LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

On An Early Morning Trip.

"Awake! for the morning-glories
Are wet with the sparkling dew.
Awake! for merry sun's shining,
A merry welcome to you.

Don't linger a moment longer,
Jump out of your warm little bed,
Wash your hands and your face and then, sang the alarm clock to Little Jack Rabbit one morning, oh, so early as he lay in bed in his little white bungalow in the Old Bramble Patch.
Tidy the hair on your towsled head."

Quickly, jumping out of bed, he soon dressed himself in his little khaki suit and hurried down to breakfast.

"As soon as breakfast is over, I want you to hop down to the Three-in-One-Cent store for a clothes-pin."

"What a nice breakfast!"

said his pretty bunny mother, Lady Love, who was in the kitchen as the little rabbit hopped through the door.

"All right," said the little rabbit, tucking the napkin under his chin and helping himself to a nice big slice of carrot cake.

My, what a nice little breakfast his rabbit lady mother had made for him—carrot cakes with lollypop syrup, turnip tea and lettuce marmalade. As soon as the little rabbit had finished, he brought in the kindling wood, fed the canary and polished the front door knob. Then, with a happy smile, he kissed his little bunny mother goodbye and hopped down the winding path through the brambles, out on the Sunny Meadow.

Pecking out of his little front door stood Timmie Meadowmouse.

"Hello!" said Little Jack Rabbit, stepping before the little, round, grass ball house, hanging on three stiff stalks of grass about six inches above the ground, "Where do you think I'm going?"

"Well, wherever you're going," answered the little meadowmouse, peering anxiously out of the little round hole that serves for his front door, "you'd better look out for Danny Fox and Old Man Weasel."

"Oh, I will," replied Little Jack Rabbit, "and I'll bring you a lollypop, 'cause I'm going up to see the Big Brown Bear and the Lollypop Tree. Goodbye."

And away hopped the little rabbit clippety clip, lipperty lip, up the old cow path through the Sunny Meadow, over the hill top until by and by, not so very long, he came to the Shady Forest.

"Where are you going?" asked Chippy Chipmunk, running along the top of the Old Rail Fence, his little red striped fur jacket shining in the morning sun and his little eyes twinkling with curiosity.

"To the cosy care of the Big Brown Bear,
And the Lollypop Tree just over there."

"Bring me a lollypop," shouted Chippy Chipmunk, as the little rabbit boy hopped up the Shady Forest Trail, in and among the trees, where Billy Breeze whistled among the leaves and in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

POETRY

"THERE IS NO DEATH."

"The Lord promised His blessing; and life for evermore." (Psalm 133: 3) Prayer Book Version.)

We drift till sunlight into moonlight glides
As fall the evening shades the waters o'er,
To find, upon the ebbing of the tide,
Our bark safe moored upon the farthest shore.

We drift till sunlight into moonlight pale
From gold to silver-crested glows the deep,
To find beyond the filmy, parted veil
Our bark hath reached its haven in God's keep.

We drift until sunlight into moonlight die,
More brightly shine the lights along the shore,
There is no death—we only seemed to die,
Our promised blessing, life for evermore.

—I. E. C., in The Living Church.

IT IS NOT DEATH TO DIE.

It is not death to die:
To leave this weary road,
And 'midst the brotherhood on high
To be at home with God.

It is not death to close
The eye long dimmed by tears,
And wake in glorious repose,
To spend eternal years.

It is not death to bear
The wrench that frees
From dungeon chain, to breathe the air
Of boundless liberty.

It is not death to fling
Aside this sinful dust
And rise on strong, exulting wing,
To live among the just.

Jesus, Risen Prince of Life!
The chosen cannot die;
Thou hast swept away the strife
To reign with Thee on high.

—Horatius Bonar, in Episcopal Hymnal.

Forty-nine per cent. of the native white population and 62 per cent. of the foreign-born population of this country are below the average mentally.

A feature of a recent musical festival in London was the singing by combined choirs from the mothers' clubs of the metropolis, many of the choristers being more than seventy years of age.

The variations in the vitamine activity of cod liver oil are believed to be due to changes in the diet of the fish from which it is obtained or to seasonal variations in their physiological condition.

To get a record of the migratory movement of cod, pollock and haddock, the United States bureau of fisheries plans extensive experiments in the Gulf of Maine. Many of these fishes will be caught and numbered and metal tags will be clamped on their tails. They will then be released to go their own way. Where they go will be revealed later when fishermen netting the tagged specimens report the number and place where the fishes are caught.

Workmen are carrying out repairs to the masonry at the very summit of Big Ben, the great Westminster clock tower in London, which is more than 300 feet high. A large Tudor rose recently fell from the highest point of the spire, and to reach the spot it was necessary to erect a scaffold 160 feet above the highest gallery. It was then found that five other roses were loose, and these have been taken down, repaired and refixed. When there is a strong wind the work has to be suspended.

POLICE REMOVE COMMUNISTS FROM THE PRUSSIAN DIET

Disorderly Scenes Compelled the President to Clear the House and Suspend the Sitting—Deputy Hoffman Was Carried Out by the Police—Two Other Refractory Deputies Were Locked Up—Franco-Belgian Reply to the German Note Links the Question of Reparations With That of the Inter-Allied Debt.

Berlin, May 7 (By the A. P.)—The communist representatives again today created disorderly scenes in the Russian diet, compelling the president to clear the house and suspend the sitting. Deputy Hoffman refused to leave and was carried out by the police, while two other refractory deputies were locked in another room.

Upon the resumption of the sitting the remaining communists created such an uproar that the aid of the police was again invoked, and the communists, numbering fifteen and including two women, were removed from the chamber.

REPARATIONS LINKED WITH INTER-ALLIED DEBT

Paris, May 7 (By the A. P.)—The Franco-Belgian reply to the German note, one of the highest spokesmen for the French government, said tonight, links the question of reparations with that of the inter-allied debts.

This is in the sense that France, out of the total of 130,000,000,000 gold marks fixed in 1921 by the allies as Germany's indebtedness, demands her share of the scheduled payments of 50,000,000,000 gold marks, or 26,000,000,000 marks, to begin with a minimum, and in addition such part of her share of the remaining 80,000,000,000 marks as will correspond to the sums asked of her in payment of the war debts to the United States and Great Britain.

All this means that, if the United States or Great Britain cancel any part of the debts owing them by France, the latter is ready to reduce to that extent her share of the 30,000,000,000 gold marks due from Germany in addition to the 50,000,000,000 provided for in the scheduled payments, or, in other words, she feels obliged to claim from Germany as much of the 80,000,000,000 mark balance as may be necessary to pay the allies.

This unquestionable authority did not say that France would not pay if Germany does not, but he made it plain that, if France pays, so Germany must pay to the limit. He also emphasized the fact that France and Belgium cannot allow their special position in the Ruhr to be compromised by allies whose interests are far less than their own.

He pointed out that participation by Great Britain in the reply to Germany would have implied that the question of reparations could now be discussed by Germany with all the allies, independently of any action by France and Belgium in the Ruhr. This, it is held, would be a distinct encouragement of the resistance to that occupation and, in fact, would encourage to Germany not to pay.

The government spokesman confirmed the report that it was the intention of France and Belgium to intensify their pressure on Germany by the seizure of other products than those already being taken from the Ruhr industries.

GREECE WILL NOT PAY REPARATIONS TO TURKEY

Lausanne, May 7.—(By The A. P.)—Greece came to the front today in a lively conference over the near eastern situation, when Elipherios Venizelos suddenly convoked a meeting with the allied chief, Sir Horace Rumbold, General Pelle and Signor Montagna, and told them some of the things Greece would not accept when it comes to signing peace.

M. Venizelos asked for British, French and Italian support in excluding from the Lausanne document the draft provision that the Athenian government must extend amnesty to Greek military offenders. He asserted that this violated the sovereign rights of Greece. The revolutionary cabinet at Athens, it is evident, wants to keep a free hand in dealing with military officials accused of responsibility in the Asia Minor defeat by Turkey.

Venizelos also warned the allied leaders that Greece would not pay one cent reparations to Turkey; Greece was ready to offset Grecian with Turkish reparations, but there must be no balance against Greece, otherwise Greece would continue the war.

Lastly, the former Greek premier informed his colleagues that the recent seizure of the Bank of Athens at Constantinople by the Turkish government was a distinct violation of the terms of the Mudania armistice and should not be tolerated by the European powers. He expressed the desire for a quick conference for the consideration of the problem of reparations, saying that that was a danger point and should be confronted immediately.

COURT TAKES SUGAR CASE UNDER ADVISEMENT

New York, May 7.—The federal circuit court of appeals today took under advisement the petition of the federal government for a temporary injunction to restrain the New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange and its clearing association from trading in raw sugar futures unless backed by actual ownership or control of the commodity.

The case was taken under advisement after John W. Davis, former American ambassador to Great Britain, had presented arguments on behalf of the exchange and after his arguments had been and answered by counsel for the government.

The court denied application of counsel for the government to submit affidavits answering those submitted by counsel for the exchange today.

The government in its answer to Mr. Davis' argument contended that as the exchange in its answer to the government's petition had admitted that 90 per cent. of the transactions were cleared by the exchange's clearing association and no delivery of sugar mand the only conclusion to be drawn was that those sales were not genuine. The government's case was compared with that in the Patton cotton corner case and the Hardwood Lumber case in which the government was sustained.

BRANFORD DEMOCRATIC FIRST TIME IN 20 YEARS

Branford, May 7.—For the first time in 20 years the democratic party today won the annual borough election, wresting control from the republicans by a comparatively large vote. Gustave A. R. Hamer, democrat, was elected warden, defeating P. Alfred Anderson, republican, by 164 votes. In addition the Democrats elected three burgesses, the bailiff and the town clerk and treasurer.

HEADS THE FEDERATION OF WOMEN'S CLUBS

Atlanta, Ga., May 7—Mrs. Charles Sumner Bird, of Boston, was elected to head the department of international relations for the General Federation of Women's Clubs at a meeting of the federation's board of directors here today. She succeeds Mrs. Horace Mann Towner, resigned. The directors meeting preceded the opening of the mid-biennial council of the federation here tonight.

FIFTY PERSONS OVERCOME BY SMOKE IN NEW YORK SUBWAY

New York, May 7.—Fifty persons were overcome by smoke during tonight's rush hour when a short circuit started a fire in the East Side subway of the Interborough company at Sixty-eighth street and Lexington avenue. Five of this number were made seriously ill and were taken to hospitals. The others were able to go home after emergency treatment.

Passengers of a ten-car train became excited when smoke from the short circuit filled the cars. Many of them smashed windows and fought their way to emergency exits, although the majority waited until the station at Sixty-eighth street was reached, where thirty were removed by ambulance surgeons and police. At Eighty-sixth street twenty more were found to be overcome by the smoke, and they, too, were taken into the air.

Many passengers were trampled upon and bruised as the hundreds dashed for safety when the train stalled. One woman suffered a broken leg.

Passengers aided firemen and police to carry a number of persons, mostly women, from the cars who had been overcome or had fainted. The train then proceeded to Eighty-sixth street, where others were taken to a nearby hospital. It was nearly an hour after the fire started that the last of the injured was removed.

NO SOLUTION OF THE DISAPPEARANCE OF HULTZ

Danbury, May 7.—The mystery of the disappearance of George Hultz, 72 year old recluse, who is believed to have been slain at Topstone, eight miles from here, Friday, was apparently no nearer solution tonight than when the blood-stained ruins of his burned shack were first discovered three days ago.

State police spent the entire day dragging Umpawaug pond, into which it is thought his body may have been thrown, but found no trace of him. It had been planned to dynamite the pond because of its great depth in places, but police decided to wait until a more thorough search could be made within the next few days.

What police consider as the strongest proof that Hultz himself was killed was found when his blood-stained vest was examined more closely. Along a seam was found an ordinary pin with several blades of grass caught in the head, indicating that he was wearing the garment when his body was dragged to the pond.

Various Valuations Of Noank Shipyard

Sold to Morse Interests in 1916 for $85,000 Cash and Mortgage of 30,000—Appraised December 31, 1916, at $919,053.

Washington, May 7.—A judge, a shipbuilder and a certified public accountant were examined today in the Morse trial by government counsel in an effort to establish the true value of the Morse wooden shipyard at Noank, Conn. The government charges that the value of this plant was misrepresented at the time the company obtained from the Emergency Fleet corporation a contract for twelve wooden hulls early in the war.

Arthur P. Anderson, judge of the probate court at Noank, who held all of the stock of the yard for the heirs of Robert Palmer and his sons, testified that the stock was sold to the Morse interests in 1916 for $85,000 cash, the purchasers in addition assuming a mortgage for $30,000.

W. A. Fraser, of Noank, who was superintendent of the plant for four years before the sale, stated that the plant was the largest and best equipped wooden shipbuilding yard in the United States in 1916 and that two years before he had appraised it at $150,000 by court order in 1919 he and others again made an appraisal at $194,810. On cross-examination he said the last appraisal was after shipbuilding had slumped and the plant was idle.

William A. Gillespie, of Baltimore, told the court that his firm installed a net set of books at Noank as of December 31, 1916, and that total assets, based on values as given his accountants, were $919,053. This included an appraisal of the real estate at $30,0000 by two appraisers of Noank.

ALLIES REFUSE TURKISH CLAIMS ON TAXATION

Lausanne, May 7 (By the A. P.).—The Near East peace conference today decided that the Turks should abandon their claim to the right to collect taxes on foreign firms covering the period since the abolition of the capitulations, or extraterritorial rights for foreigners, in 1914. Such taxes as have already been paid, however, cannot be recovered by the foreigners. Future taxation will be determined by treaty.

The French, supported by the other allies, insisted that the dispute over the Turkish contention that the interest on the Ottoman debt be paid by the Turks in their depreciated currency should be adjusted directly between Turkey and the bondholders.

Hope is expressed in conference circles that the divergency between the Turks and allies will be adjusted on the question of the powers to be granted the foreign legal advisers in Turkey. The Angora delegates are maintaining a firm attitude on this matter, although American Minister Grew has emphasized to Ismet Pasha the wisdom of conceding wide powers to these advisers as a means of quieting the apprehensions aroused in foreign circles by the abolition of the capitulations.

SKELETON FOUND IN NORTHFIELD IDENTIFIED

Torrington, Conn., May 7.—Positive identification of the skeleton found in Northfield several days ago as that of Frederick M. Beno, also known as Dr. Frederick Mors, was made tonight by two men who identified the shoes found on the skeleton, it was announed by officers working on the case.

Henry and Fritz Perrett, brothers, of Torrington, with whom Beno lived before his disappearance in 1918, examined the shoes and said they could not be mistaken in their identification. A glove button found near by was also identified. When Beno disappeared he left a note saying that he intended to commit suicide, and it is the belief of the police that he wandered to Northfield before taking his own life by poison.

Beno is believed here to have been the same man who visited the office of the district attorney in New York in 1915 and announced that he had poisoned eight bed-ridden patients in the German Odd Fellows' home in Yonkers. The authorities there, however, held him to be insane nad committed him to a hospital, from which he escaped later. He gave his name at that time as Frederick Mors and said he was a doctor. He also used the name "Dr." in Torrington, though he went under the name of Beno. Evidence found among his belongings after he disappeared from here in 1918 led the local authorities to connect him with the "Mors" case.

WIDESPREAD PLOT TO UPSET STOCK MARKET

New York, May 7—Post office inspectors, police and private detectives joined hands today to run down the authors of a widespread plot to upset the stock market by dumping on it hundreds of orders to buy, backed by worthless checks running into the millions.

Wall street generally attributed the scheme to unscrupulous traders, seeking to influence prices for their own ends, although the possibility was lost sight of that a fanatic or some disgruntled person might have thrown the monkey wrench into the gears of the New York Stock Exchange.

It was obvious, however, that the person or persons who worked out the plot had a wide knowledge of Wall street and its ways and, although not a single one of the checks was cashed, their dumping on brokers had a marked effect on today's market. Several brokers, rushing into the exchange with what they thought were bona fide buying orders "at the market" for New York Central, Corn Products and Chile Copper shares, with a sprinkling of other stocks, sent prices sharply up.

CHINESE STUDENT MUST PAY PENALTY FOR MURDER

Washington, May 7.—Siang Sun Wan, the young Chinese student found guilty early in 1920 of the murder of Ben Sen Wu, under-secretary at the Chinese educational mission in Washington, must pay the penalty by hanging, the district court of appeals held today in affirming the conviction. The execution will take place May 18.

Army Launch With Crew of Six Missing

When Last Seen Was Being Lashed by High Seas in a Strong Gale—Coast Guard Cutters Are Going in Search.

Key West, Fla., May 7.—The sixty-two foot motor launch 0-16 of the United States army with a crew of six on board, has not been heard from since 4 o'clock on the morning of May 5, when she was seen lashing the high seas in a strong gale in Latitude 26.55; Longitude 86.40. This was officially made known here today on arrival of the United States army boat General Frank M. Coxe.

Late today the coast guard cutters Saukee and Cossack were preparing to go in search of the missing boat.

The General Frank M. Coxe, attached to the United States army, Captain E. K. White, U. S. A., in command, was en route from New Orleans to Panama.

The list of men aboard the missing vessel was not available here late today.

NEW HAVEN BRAKEMAN FOUND DEAD IN TENDER

Providence, R. I., May 7.—John F. Healy, 25, of New Haven, a brakeman on the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, was found dead in the tender of a Boston-Providence freight train between this city and Pawtucket at about 7 o'clock this evening. He is believed to have received his death blow as the train was passing beneath the Pleasant View bridge in Pawtucket. The body was brought to this city.

Healy was making his first trip on the Boston-Providence run. He had been riding in the fireman's cab of the locomotive, and just before reaching the bridge left to climb over the tender to the freight cars. Being unfamiliar with the route, he is thought to have been standing erect when the train passed under the bridge. Fireman Herbert McMinn of West Haven, Conn., found him a few moments later with his skull fractured, his body lying lifeless in the coal pile.

LARKIN DISTRIBUTING ADVICE IN IRELAND

Dublin, May 7 (By the A. P.).—James Larkin, the labor agitator who recently was deported from the United States, said today that he would not seek a seat in the Dail Eireann. He could not understand the silence of the labor party, he added. It should have demanded that the Free State government take action on Eamon De Valera's recent peace proposal.

Larkin added that he saw nothing in the oath of allegiance. He also said he believed a majority of the Irishmen in the United States favored a republic in Ireland, but they could not understand the happenings in Ireland. If a settlement of the trouble in Ireland could be brought about the country could obtain a hundred million dollars for reconstruction.

A generous opening of the jail gates, in the opinion of Larkin, would be helpful toward peace, and he urged a week's truce by both sides for negotiations.

BIG DROP IN PRICE OF COTTON SINCE SATURDAY

New York, May 7.—May cotton dropped to 25.23 cents a pound, a net loss of 142 points or more than $7 a bale since Saturday's close, in the late trading on the New York Cotton Exchange today.

Liquidation based on reports of better weather in the south and a poor demand for cotton goods forced a break of 100 points in October contracts which closed at 22.80.

There were rallies of a few points in the late trading but the market was hardly steady at the close with declines of 55 to 125 points for the day.

May cotton reached 26.90 in the early trading but broke later in the day when it became known that arrivals from the south were heavy. The generally unsettled situation in the stock and commodity markets was another factor in the rush to liquidate.

MATTERS BEFORE THE FEDERAL RESERVE BANK

Washington, May 7.—The question whether permission should be granted the Boston reserve bank to establish an agency in Havana, Cuba, remained undecided tonight by the federal reserve board, after a three hour hearing, had in its posession a mass of data bearing on the Boston bank's application. The board, it was indicated, will act soon and its decision probably will establish a policy with respect to reserve bank extension.

The Atlanta reserve bank has had an application for permission to extend its operations in Cuba before the board since 1921 and, as a result of the two requests and the opposition raised against the Boston application, it appeared that the board would consider them together.

CHINESE BRIGANDS HAVE RELEASED MISS ALDRICH

Miss McFadden and Miss Schonberg Also Released—Lloyd Lehrbas, Who Escaped From the Bandits, Says the Captives Were Driven Forward at High Speed Over Rough Country—Women Unable to Keep Up With the Main Party Were Beaten by Guards—Possibility of Action by the American Troops.

Wahington, May 7.—The posibility of action by American troops to relieve the American held captive by bandits in Shantung province, China, was discussed today at a conference between Secretary Hughes and Acting Secretary Davis of the war department.

Afterward Mr. Davis announced that the war department stood ready to back up with armed forces any decision reached by the state department or by the council of foreign ambassadors in Peking.

It was intimated that a determination on the part of the Peking council contemplated concerted action by the foreign powers against the bandits would cause no surprise here.

While the situation was under discussion further official advices regarding the incident received at the state department confirmed the report that Miss Lucy Aldrich. Miss McFadden and Miss Schonberg had been released.

An official list of American "believed to have been" on the train held up by bandits was reported by Minister Schurman at Peking and Consul General Edwin S. Cunningham at Shanghai as follows:

"Mr. Larry Lehbras; Mr. L. C. Solomon; Mr. LeLon Friedman; Mr. J. A. Henley, Miss Lucy Aldrich and maid; Miss McFadden; Colonel and Mrs. Pinger and two sons; Major and Mrs. Allen and son; Mr. Levy; Mr. Robert Scripps; Miss Schonberg and Mr. Allen Child.

The department's advices also said that Lehbras was reported to have escaped, and that Mrs. Ringer and Mrs. Allen were rescued by guards and are now in Tientsin.

In a formal statement the department announced that Minister Schurman had addressed "vigorous representation" to the Chinese authorities and had instituted a thorough inquiry into the situation.

"According to a message from Peking, the latest Chinese information," said the department's statement, "is to the effect that the bandits captured 29 foreign passengers while ten others escaped.

"Minister Schurman has instructed the American consul at Tien Tsin to send Vice Consul David C. Berger immediately to the scene of the wreck. The consul general at Shanghai has been instructed to send J. K. Davis, who is very familiar with conditions in the district where the holdup occurred, to whatever point he thinks he can do the most good and to report to the legation any information he can obtain regarding captured Americans.

"Consul Davis also has been instructed to take whatever steps he may consider advisable toward obtaining the release of any captured Americans.

The Chinese government has issued stringent orders to the provincial authorities to the effect that all possible means be taken to rescue the captives.

Minister Schurman has addressed vigorous representations to the Chinese authorities in regard to this matter."

JAPANESE OFFICIALS ELUDED THE BANDITS

Shanghai, May 7.—(By the A. P.)—Governor Magai of the Japanese settlement, on Sakhulien, and the president of the chamber of commerce of Hakodate, Japan, who were reported aboard the train held up by Chinese bandits near Suchow Sunday morning, are safe in Peking, according to advices received here tonight. They reached the capital by another route and escaped the holdup.

MISS LUCY C. ALDRICH FREE AND UNHARMED

Shanghai, May 7.—(By the A. P.)—Miss Lucy C. Aldrich, sister-in-law of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., of New York, who was carried off by the Chinese bandits who held up the Peking express at Suchow Sunday morning is free and unharmed, according to a message received this evening from Linchenge, confirming earlier reports of her release.

Miss Aldrich, the message said, was found today in the village at Tseetsun on a branch line railroad, 15 miles from the main line to Peking. Her condition is not serious, the message said, and she is proceeding to Tsinanfu, province of Shantung.

EYE-WITNESS SAYS WOMEN WERE BEATEN BY GUARDS

Shanghai, May 7.—(By the A. P.)—Lloyd Lehbras, reporter on the China Press of Shanghai, formerly of Pocatello, Idaho, and of the Chicago Tribune, who escaped from the bandits who held up the Peking express on the Shanghai border, arrived today with the first eye-witness story of the affair.

Lehbras said he was in the hands of the brigands for three hours. With the others captured on the train, men and women, most of them clad only in their night clothes as they were routed from their berths, he was driven from the scene of the holdup in his barefeet while the guards about the party continually menaced them with revolvers and rifles.

The captives were driven forward at high speed over rough country. Women whose pace was slower than that of men, were shoved ahead as they fell behind, beaten when they could travel no faster and spat upon as they fell alongside the trail worn out.

Hubands of the helpless women were forced to leave their wives where they had fallen or were driven on ahead as the women dropped to the rear unable to keep up with the main party despite the beatings administered by their guards.

The bandit who was guarding Lehbras, the newspaperman said, was laden with loot wrapped in a sheet snatched from a berth in the train. He dropped some of his booty and as he stooped to recover that, Lehbras said he crawled away into the darkness and hid in the tall grass.

Major Roland Allen, U. S. A. medical corps; Major Roland Pinger, U. S. A. ordnance department; their wives and Roland Pinger, aged 8, who still is a captive with his father and Edward Pinger, four, who later was released with his mother; Robert Allen, son of Major Allen, still held captive; J. A. Hinley and C. Jacobson.

Lehbras said he saw a white man, who had been traveling in a third class carriage of the train, shot dead by the brigands.

All of the passengers lost everything they had with them except the night clothes in which they slept when the bandits raided the train.

BANDITS DROVE CAPTORS LIKE A HERD OF CATTLE

Peking, May 7.—(By The A. P.)—Approximately twenty foreigners, many of them Americans, including a prominent newspaper publisher and two American army officers tonight are in the hands of a gang of Chinese brigands, who raided the Peking express Sunday morning at Suchow, Province of Kiangsu, shot dead one English passenger named Rothman and drove scores of others, white and natives, off like a herd of cattle.

Advices received here from several sources indicate that the women among the white passengers were released, but only after they had been beaten and spat upon by their captors in an effort to make them keep up with the fast moving cavalcade as it traveled through the darkness away from the scene of the holdup.

Several of the women are said to have dropped from exhaustion and the bandits left them where they fell, refusing to permit their husbands to stop and render assistance.

When the bandits had departed, the soldiers arrived and took up the chase. Later advices were received that the troops had come up with the raiders and were firing on them, to which the brigands are said to have replied that they would kill their prisoners unless the troops withdrew. The government had instructed the military governors of the neighboring provinces to turn out their soldiery in the case.

Suchow, near which the raid was made, is situated on the Grand Canal, 53 miles by rail northwest of Shanghai, and is an important station on the railroad between Shanghai, Nanking and the capital, Peking. It is an ancient walled city, founded in the sixth century B. C., and has an average population of upwards of 300,000.

BRIGANDS DEMAND $2,000,000 RANSOM

Shanghai, May 7 (By the A. P.).—A report received in official quarters today says the bandits who raided the Peking express early Sunday morning at Suchow, province of Kiangsu, capturing a large party of passengers, including foreigners, have demanded $2,000,000 (Mex) ransom for all of the captives.

MIGHT INVOLVE AN ENTANGLEMENT WITH CHINA

Washington, May 7.—(By The A. P.)—Action of Chinese bandits of Shantung province yesterday in holding up an express train and capturing a number of foreigners including 12 Americans, has created a situation regarded as seriously affecting the continuance of friendly relations between the United States and China. The situation is held by some officials as containing elements of still broader scope, possibly involving other governments in a similar entanglement with China.

Minister Schurman at Peking in an official report to Secretary Hughes, received today, openly characterized the developments as "serious" and was immediately instructed by the state department to press his inquiry, report the facts to Washington and make strong representations to the Chinese government.

800 BUILDING LABORERS IN NEW HAVEN ON STRIKE

New Haven, May 7.—The Master Builders' association late today refused to accede to the demands of the striking members of the Building Laborers' union who quit work this morning, tying up a large amount of construction work here. The employers announced tonight that their count showed 253 men on strike, while the union declared that there were approximately 800 men out.

The laborers demanded recognition of their union, the International Hod Carriers', Building and Common Laborers' union, and asked for an increase to 65 cents an hour. The Master Builders' association, which now pays a wage scale of 40 to 60 cents an hour, agreed to pay from 50 to 60 cents, but refused recognition of the union.

Several smaller contractors agreed to the union's terms and about 200 laborers remained at work.

Charles Hanson of Moulton's court was before the police court Monday morning charged with intoxication and breach of the peace, to which he pleaded not guilty. The complainant, Anna Hanson, his wife and their two year old daughter were present in court. Mrs. Hanson told of being abused by her husband for several months past. She testified that Sunday morning he left the house at ten o'clock, returning at eight o'clock in the evening and demanded that she go out and get him some "moonshine." She refused to do this and he left the house, returning in a short time. She was getting his supper when he picked up a plate and broke it.

She placed his food on another plate and he broke that. She said she begged him not to break the dishes and he replied that he would break her neck. Then he struck her in the face with his hand and she had him arrested, Officer William Hurley taking him into custory. Mrs Hanson told the court that on two previous occasions, her husband had been before the court on the same charge.

Questioned by the court she said that her husband had worked in several places and at the present time was employed in one of the cotton mills, making $20.65 a week. She said that she also worked in the mill and had to support herself and the child because her husband did not support the family. "I don't want him around any more," Mrs. Hanson said.

Hanson denied that he was drunk Sunday or that he struck his wife. The court reminded him that he had been arrested twice previously for the same offense and that he must stop beating his wife. Judge Frank H. Foss continued the case until this morning to allow Officer Hurley and two other witnesses to tell of Hanson's condition at the time of his arrest. A bond of $100 for Hanson's appearance was furnished by his father.

The subject of his address was "Working Together With God," and he took his text from the First Corinthians. During the course of his sermon, Rev. Mr. Williams took occasion to remark that he looked for the cooperation of all the members of the parish in the work to be done.

This was necessary, he said, and he felt that the days of the future would be happy ones for both the members and himself. He announced that on Friday of this week, the twentieth anniversary of his ordination to the ministry would occur and at eight o'clock in the morning he would hold services at St. Paul's church in Windham Center and at the church in this city at 8 o'clock in the evening with a social time following. FIRE APPARATUS HITS AUTO IN WILLIMANTIC

Willimantic, May 7—Mrs. A. W. McNeill of Whitinsville, Mass., is slightly injured and a Buick roadster is badly damaged as the result of being struck Monday afternoon about 4.45 o'clock by the LaFrance Hose and Chemical truck of the local fire department. The truck was answering a call sent in from Box 39 for a small brush fire on the upper part of Church street. Mrs. McNeill had gone down to the American Thread Co. mill and after meeting her husband was returning with him, traveling up Main street going west.

When she neared the vicinity of North street she saw the fire truck coming down Main street in the opposite direction. She came to a stop on the right hand side of Main street just above the intersection of Main and North streets, in the meantime the fire truck, with Charles Reynolds driving, had come down Main street. Mr. Reynolds intended to turn up North street and noticed the Buick machine coming up Main street and swung sharp to enter North street on the left of the silent policeman. The truck sideswiped the McNeill car and the force of the impact opened the left door of the machine throwing Mrs. McNeill into the street. She sustained lacerations on her knee and was rushed into a nearby physician's office.

The LaFrance truck struck the curbing coming to a stop. As Mrs. McNeill struck the ground she barely escaped going under the truck. The Buick was considerably damaged, having received a demolished mud guard, generator and front left wheel. The fenders are damaged and the front left springs were knocked out of place on the LaFrance car. Following the accident the truck was run to the fire and was later repaired by members of the department.

BALTIC

The pupils of grades V and VI Baltic public school hung a Maybasket for their teacher, Miss Susan G. Smith, at the close of school Friday May 4. It was rung in a very unique way. The pupils knowing it was Miss Smith's birthday waited until she had left the room. Then they rushed in, placed the basket on her desk and hid in an adjoining room. When the teacher returned they all shouted, "Happy birthday to you!" "Happy birthday to you!" and pointed to the desk. Looking at the desk Miss Smith saw a handsome blue and white May basket which was filled with fruit, candy, cookies and remembrances. This basket was greatly appreciated by the teacher.

Intelligence and standard tests in different subjects have been given recently in the Baltic school. The result is that several pupils in the different grades have been advanced a grade and if they do satisfactory work will be promoted again in June. This shows that some of the children in Baltic stand as well if not better than children in surrounding towns. A thing like this is an encouragement to the hard working teachers. The children of the Baltic school are practicing daily for the athletic contest to be held May 15th on the baseball ground.

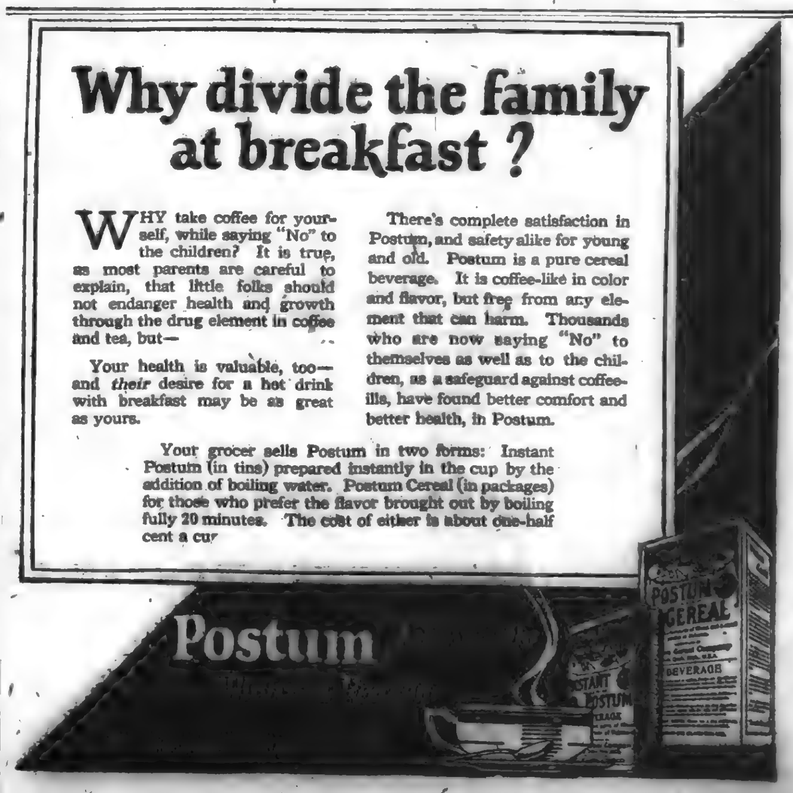
Why divide the family at breakfast?

WHY take coffee for yourself, while saying "No" to the children? It is true, as most parents are careful to explain, that little folks should not endanger health and growth through the drug element in coffee and tea, but—

Your health is valuable, too—and their desire for a hot drink with breakfast may be as great as yours.

There's complete satisfaction in Postum, and safety alike for young and old. Postum is a pure cereal beverage. It is coffee-like in color and flavor, but free from any element that can harm. Thousands who are now saying "No" to themselves as well as to the children, as a safeguard against coffee-ills, have found better comfort and better health, in Postum.

Your grocer sells Postum in two forms: Instant Postum (in tins) prepared instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages) for those who prefer the flavor brought out by boiling fully 20 minutes. The cost of either is about one-half cent a cup



SEVEN AMERICANS SURVIVE AND FIVE FAIL IN FIRST ROUND AT DEAL

Deal, England, May 7 (By the A. P.)—Seven Americans passed safely through the first round of the British amateur golf championship today. Five others went down to defeat. S. Davison Herron and Dr. O. F. Willing will not get started until tomorrow.

Numbered among the seventy-two ambitious amateurs who failed today were Jess Sweetser, the American champion, and Robert A. Gardner, captain of the American team, on whom high hopes had rested. Neither man played well in the wind that was blowing today—a wind that killed many fond dreams. They readily acknowledged that in getting drubbed they received their dessert. With them went down Guy Standifer, of Washington, Reginald M. Lewis of Greenwich, Conn., and H. S. Lake of Hartford, Conn.

Those of the Americans who won their matches were Francis Ouimet of Boston; George V. Rotan, the Texas amateur champion, Maxwell R. Marston, of Philadelphia; Harrison R. Johnston of St. Paul; Fred Wright, Jr., of Los Angeles; John F. Neville of San Francisco and Robert Hunter.

Ouimet's game did not rise to the heights where so often it has risen to thrill the gallery and wound the spirit of an opponent; but it was good enough to defeat A. H. Read of Sunningdale. Ouimet won from Read 4 up and 3 to play, and just about the same moment that the Boston player was receiving congratulations from the vanquished, another American, Neville, was having a similar enjoyable experience. It was a noble lord, Viscount Maidstone, the commoner from California crushed 5 up and 4 to play.

The vigorous young "Jimmy" Johnston never bothered his head about the terrible gusts off the channel that seemed so much to irritate Sweetser. Johnston was one under fours for eleven holes, and that was all he had to play today, as by that time he was 9 up on his opponent, H. S. Holden.

Max Marston also had an easy time in defeating Lieutenant Commander Guy Miller 7 up and 5 to play. Wright, however, had a bit of difficulty in drubbing his veteran opponent, Commander Bannerman, a task he completed only on the home hole. They had halved more than half of the holes and came down the stretch even. At the 16th Wright finally pushed ahead and looked like a sure winner at the 17th. But Bannerman sank a long putt to even the hole. Going to the 18th Bannerman missed the green with his second, while Wright was on. The commander's pitch was not very good, while Wright got his third shot to within a few inches of the cup, and the matem was conceded to him 3 up.

The sidetracking of Sweetser and Gardner constituted the sad story of the day. Sweetser was soundly knocked out of the tournament by Noel Layton of the Royal Cinque Ports club. Layton disposed of Sweetser by a score of 5 and 3.

Gardner had the satisfaction of going all the way to the 18th hole before passing out, 2 down at the hands of G. D. Forrester. Gardner during the play couud not make his irons behave and his putts would not go down as he would have liked how to go. The American was two down at the 4th but he pulled himself together and at the turn was one up. Forrester evened things at the tenth, and honors changed several times up to the 14th, after which Gardner could not make his putter sink the ball, losing the 15th, 17th and 18th.

Sweetser, who had learned to play the course with the southwest winds blowing, found the gusts coming from the northeast when he went to the first tee this afternoon.

The American champion had other worries than the wind. Some of them were his wood clubs and some his irons, but mostly they came from his putter. Last, however, but by no means least, one of his troubles was Mr. Layton, who plugged along, satisfied with scratch scores and par scores, while Sweetser was finishing in a solid block of fives.

WILLARD AND JOHNSON IN FINE CONDITION

New York, May 7.—Going through stiff workouts at their respective training camps in and around New York, all four of the principals in the Milk Fund card today passed the last lap of their training, and in preparation for the bouts next Saturday afternoon at the Yankee stadium.

Jess Willard, who is matched with Floyd Johnson in the main bout of 15 rounds, and Jack McAuliffe, opponent of Luis Angel Firpo in another 15-round contest, went through their paces at the Yonkers gymnasium; Johnson performed before a crowd before a crowd at his camp on the outskirts of Yonkers, while Firpo transferred his conditioning activities from Madison Square Garden gymnasium to an open air gym on the roof of the building.

Johnson and Firpo were the most impressive of the quartet in their workouts. The Iowan battled in strenuous rounds with four sparring partners, including George Godfrey, Harlem negro protege of Jack Johnson, former champion; and Romeo Robson, Malden, Mass., middleweight. Robson traveled at a terrific clip with Johnson and he cut the latter's mouth with a right-hand shot.

Believing that speed will prove his greatest asset against Willard, Johnson is steadily improving his footwork with the aid of several light and agile sparring partners. He weighs around 192.

Firpo boxed eight rounds with his sparring staff, revealing greatly improved footwork and better defensive ability than at any time so far. Besides working out with Joe McGrail, he took on in turn "Tiny Jim" Herman of Omaha, and Al Reich of Newark, N. J., who are matched in a six-round preliminary Saturday.

Willard, after going four rounds each against Harry Drake, English light heavyweight, and Cliff Kramer of St. Paul, a 195-pounder, declared he felt ready right now to fight Johnson. He boxed cleverly against his lighted opponents but his footwork did not impress critics. He tips the scales at close to 240 and will probably enter the ring Saturday at that weight.

The pugilists all will wind up their active work on Thursday, it was announced today, doing only light exercises from then until the day of the bouts.

BRITISH GOLFERS PRAISE GARDNER IN HIS DEFEAT

London, May 7—"The Americans are so good and so dangerous that we cannot afford to feel sentiment over their defeat, but Gardner has so endeared himself to British golfers that one may shed one little tear over his departure without it being suspected of being a crocodile tear," says "The Times" golf expert.

The Sweetser-Layton match he describes as rather curious golf "with both rather restive and high-strung players somewhat frightened of each other."

The correspondent adds that "good as the American champion had proved in practice, the correspondent saw him play in the United States, Layton is deserving of great credit for defeating him."

FIST FIGHT ENLIVENS GIANT-PHILLIES GAME

Philadelphia, May 7—A fist fight between Casey Stengel, left fielder of the New York Giants and Phillip Weinert, pitcher of the Philadelphia team, occurred today during the fourth inning of the Phillies-Giants game.

Stengel was at the plate with one ball and one strike called on him. Weinert pitched a curve ball that came dangerously close to the batter's head and thinking the pitch had been an intentional "beanball" the Giants fielder threw his bat at the Phillies pitcher.

Weinert came toward the plate and Stengel went out to meet him, the two meeting about midway and both swung at the same time. Then followed a lively encounter which was only stopped when the opposing teams drew off their respective mates.

Weinert had hit Stengel with a pitched ball in his previous trip to the plate and when the ball came near his head in the fourth the Giant player turned to Weinert and in a loud voice yelled: "What are you trying to do, lean me?"

"Get in there and bat," said Weinert, "I am pitching this game."

Stengel then addressed some remarks to Weinert and a minute later the two players were mixing it up in front of the plate.

"I had to defend myself," said Weinert after the game, "and that is all I did. I couldn't back out when he was ready to wallop me, so I countered with a return punch."

Both players were banished from the game by the umpire after the encounter.

NORWICH TOWN

Frederic H. Wyant, scout master of Troop No. 20, Boy Scouts of Norwich Town is in receipt of a very cordial letter under date of May 3rd, with check for $5 enclosed, from Grosvenor Ely. The letter is as follows:

My dear Mr. Wyant:

Mr. Bailey paid me the compliment of asking me to serve upon the advisory committee for your troop, but owing to pressure of other activities at this time, it seemed unwise for me to accept the appointment in view of the fact that I would probably be unable to do the position justice.

I am, however, exceedingly interested in the Boy Scout movement and particularly in the establishment of the Norwich Town troop and enclose, herewith, check to your order for $5 to be used as you may see fit.

I have a log camp and 200 acres of land and a small pond just off the Scotland Road, about four miles from Norwich Town. I would be very glad to have you take your troop out there some week end to camp and spend the night if you care to do so. If you decide to call me on the phone, regarding the date.

With kind regards and best wishes

Very truly yours,
GROSVENOR ELY

FIGHTING THE FLY.

The number of flies hasn't become annoying as yet, but just how numerous and bothersome they become depends upon the resistance they encounter or the freedom they are accorded.

Flies, like weeds, do not have to be encouraged. They are a nuisance and a menace that call for preventive action. They multiply rapidly and for that reason whatever can be done to combat them while the number is small amounts to a great deal more than frantic efforts during the mid-season after they have been permitted to multiply and overrun the household.

Valuable benefits are obtained by clean-up movements. Nothing draws or holds flies like filth. There they thrive and from there they make frequent trips to the homes as a menace to the health of human beings. Removal of the dirty places, the breeding places, screening the windows and doors and a liberal use of the swatter from the time the first pestiferous house fly appears means the waging of an effective war upon this nuisance and spreader of disease.

It is not a step that one or two or three can accomplish. It calls for general participation for it is a common cause, and the more who enlist in such a campaign the quicker and more satisfactorily will the object be attained.

Prevention of the filthy premises which attract the flies is a highly important feature of the work, while early wielding of the swatter means the end of those who are certain to be responsible for millions later on. It is easier to swat the few than it is to chase the many. Early opposition lessens the work later on and just how much it pays can be appreciated by anyone who knows the comfort of going through the summer without receiving the unwelcome attention of bothersome and dirty flies.

WEAKENING PROHIBITION.

The action of the New York legislature in voting to repeal the Mullan-Gage law, the law enacted by the state for the enforcement of the prohibition law, lacks only the signature of the governor to have the measure eliminated. There is much speculation as to whether the governor will sign it. There is strong advocacy in behalf of a veto, it even being urged that it would strengthen the governor throughout the state.

Against the law it has been claimed that it was a dead letter, but when a law reaches that stage very little attention is given to it. If it amounted to nothing there would be no interest in paying any attention to it unless there might be the effort to strengthen it.

New York has been anixous to get rid of this state law. It has been experiencing plenty of violations of the liquor laws, but it is well aware of the fact that the enforcement is bound to be greatly weakened when the state has no interest in such a matter. It throws the burden upon the federal enforcement authorities and that doesn't cover the ground as thoroughly as the law enforcement machinery of the state.

Just why there should be any belief that the governor would veto the bill is difficult to understand. Governor Smith has not been rated as a prohibition supporter. He is in fact decidedly opposed to the dry law and his campaign was to a considerable degree based on that fact. It seems not illogical to believe that he will accept the action of the legislature and apply his signature to the nullifying bill. A veto is certainly not what is expected from him. It isn't to be expected that he would do anything to strengthen prohibition.

GERMANY TAXES VISITORS AWAY.

That the methods followed by the German government in raising revenue does not meet the requirements has long been evident. That they do not meet with the approval of the German people is also apparent from the report from Berlin to the effect that tourists are being driven away from that country because of the stringent passport regulations and the unmerciful taxation.

It has apparently been believed that the tourist is an object for easy picking, that he will give up freely to any limit and that Germany can profit handsomely by squeezing him at every opportunity. With the hotels on the verge of bankruptcy because their business has been driven away, it is being disclosed that the desire to visit in Germany isn't so great that such extortion will be accepted without resentment.

The result is the natural one. Germany is driving tourists and business visitors away. Other countries are getting the benefit. Germany gets a big rakeoff for those who enter but the number is much smaller than it would otherwise be. Reliance upon the taxation of visitors instead of establishing adequate rates of taxation throughout Germany for the German people gets nowhere.

Germany has resisted taxation for its own people more severely than any other country. Even the allied nations have imposed greater taxes than has Germany. That is one of the reasons why it persists in claiming that it cannot pay and has been constantly going back on its promises, and for that very reason it fails to get sympathy, and the claims that it cannot pay are not regarded seriously.

When, however, it hopes to make up for such laxity by imposing burdens upon foreigners it fails to remember that subjects of other countries can be easily persuaded by just such means that Germany is not the only country, and that if their presence is so unwelcome there it is not difficult to give that country a wide berth.

IMMIGRANTS FROM CANADA.

An index of conditions in this country is furnished by the large number of Canadians who are coming to this country at this time, not as visitors but to make their home here.

The situation is one that is not pleasing to Canada because it is interested in attracting new settlers and cannot therefore afford to see those who are there depart.

Industrial activity and demands for workers in all lines have made their appeal to Canadian people. They are aware of the excellent wages that can be obtained and they are desirous of getting the benefit, and they are a class of people who make good citizens.

The pendulum swings first in one direction and then the other. Not so long ago Americans were rushing into Canada. There were various attractions in that direction while unemployment was prevalent here. It may not be a case of those people coming back but others are cognizant of the advantages offered this side of the line and when it is reported that they are crowding to get to this country and that one city received 400 in one day it is evident that the movement is on in earnest.

From such people this country has much to expect. They are not those who are to be classed as undesirables. Canada has seen to that both in attracting its immigrants and in training them. In meeting the demands for more workers in this country it could not be more fortunate than to be able to get such desirable people. We are confident of this because we have had them before.

CHINESE OUTLAWS.

It is unfortunate that the raid by bandits upon the railroad train in the Shantung province of China should come at this time, or that there should be further evidence of such outlawry in that country. China is having troubles enough of its own without international difficulties thrust upon it because of such actions. And yet it is from such conditions that it is possible to judge what the situation is in that country today.

In the last month of 1922 there was an instance where soldiers attacked the American consul and an American merchant, resulting in the death of the latter, and though China has apologized and is willing to pay an indemnity that matter has not been closed before this larger outbreak occurs in another province.

It was in Shantung where China was opposed to the continued presence of Japan, and from which province Japan recently withdrew. Coming so soon after that change it doesn't reflect creditably to China when it is possible for bandits to hold up a Shanghai-Peking express and carry off 150 passengers to be held for ransom.

It is not to be supposed that the Chinese government has any hand in the affairs but it indicates a weakened state of control when such a thing is possible. It doesn't augur well for China itself to say nothing concerning the relationship with other nations, and with Americans involved it is a matter in which this government is bound to be deeply concerned.

FOOD AND FOOD

The scene is Puff's Delicatessen Shoppe, artfully located right on the way home for most of the population of the district. Its windows are works of art with whipped cream, candied cherries, chocolate, hothouse grapes and alligator pears as the medium. The odors of Araby greet the inquiring nostril beyond the door.

Puff himself, craning his neck to look up the street—"The five-fifteen from downtown is just in. George! Shove those meringues to the front of the counter, because they won't last over! Open the icebox door a crack to let 'em smell that baked ham! How-do, Mrs. Biddle—haven't seen you for days!"

Mrs. Biddle, small, caracul-wrapped, droopily hatted, breathless — "Oh, I never dreamed it was so late and we're going out tonight, too! Give me half a pound sliced ham—you have ham, haven't you? And some cottage cheese and four of those cooked veal patties and some dill pickles and two charlette russe—well, yes, if they're fresh, I'll take meringues."

Mrs. Biddle (hurriedly)—All right—I'll take it. Charge it!"

Tall lady whose makeup snatches ten years from her age and who knows it. Also breathless — "Goodness! Is your clock right? We're going out tonight, too! Give me three veal patties and a couple of chocolate eclairs and some dill pickles and cottage cheese and a pound of Saratoga chips! My husband simply insists on potatoes, horrid fattening things! Why, yes, I believe I would rather have meringues instead if they are fresher. No, I haven't time for salad tonight—I had no idea it was so late!"

Little thing wrapped in seal with appealing eyes and one eye on the clock—"George said he never wanted to see a veal patty again, Mr. Puff, though I am sure I can't see why! Well, give me some of the cooked hamburger and dill pickles and half a pint of cottage cheese. And two eclairs. My, it's late!"

Blue-eyed beauty with blue feather hat (to her friend in black velvet and fox)—"Oh, don't you just love alligator pears? Jim says he'd as soon eat butter and call it salad, but I guess I'll have one anyway. If you begin humoring a man there's no stopping, Jessie! Yes, a couple of meringues and some cottage cheese and have you got baked ham? Half a pound! Gracious, things are so expensive and I try so hard to be a help and keep the bills down! Oh, I must have some of those marvelous jumbo olives! Only $1.45, too. Jessie! I read somewhere that olives are very nutritious and it's so funny Jim doesn't like 'em! Some potato chips and four sweet rolls, Mr. Puff. Jessie, why don't you just have a can of salmon and some pickles and rolls and eclairs if you have to get ready for that dance way over on the north side tonight?"

Friend in black velvet—"I guess I will. You are just marvelous at planning meals, Grace!"

Extremely tailored, lithe creature with long eyes and a pointed fox neckpiece — "I must have something different, Mr. Puff! My husband says he's just got to have a change and what have you besides—oh, yes, I'll take some sliced veal loaf and potato salad! That's different from potato chips, though Reggie hates the taste of onions! Maybe he won't notice tonight, for we'll be in a rush getting ready for that party out north! And a can of shrimps and small bottle of salad dressing! I'll stop in tomorrow and pay you, for I must hurry!"

Bride just beginning to wrestle with meals, which to her surprise she has found do not drop from heaven all prepared—"I want something very nice tonight, for my husband's brother is dining with us and—I guess three pounds of sliced ham and some dill pickles. Maybe I'd better get cottage cheese. How much do you suppose I want? The dish I serve it in is—so big around—look! I'll make a salad of canned salmon and give me a bottle of mayonnaise and one of those of the big olives and about three pounds of grapes—oh, dear me, are they hothouse and $2 a pound? Well, six bananas. And a can of the instant coffee. It's just exactly as good as the oldfashioned kind, I don't care what Oscar says! And I guess—well, if the meringues are fresh I'll take six meringues!"

Voice from the rear rooms as the last customer departs—"The corn beef and cabbage and baked potatoes are on the table, father! Come to supper! We've got a raisin rice custard pudding for dessert, too!"

Mr. Puff (shedding his apron, beaming) —"Well, that sounds like real food! And I got rid of all the meringues, too!"—Chicago News.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Gustaf V. of Sweden, who will be the central figure at the formal opening of the great tercentenary exhibition at Gothenburg today, is reputed to be the most democratic king in the world. He is hardly known even in his own dominions. He has never traveled much. Even as a young man he had no desire to see men and countries. He knows little of London, Paris, Monte Carlo and the Riviera. But he knows every corner of his own land, and has repeatedly declared that Sweden is the most beautiful country in the world, and that in all the universe there are no men so strong and capable as the men of Sweden, and no women so beautiful and virtuous as his countrywomen. The king was born in 1858 and succeeded his father on the throne in 1917. He is descended from Jean Baptiste Bernadotte, the marshal of Napoleon who began his career as a stable boy and ended by becoming king of Sweden.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

Bizerta.

Bizerta, France's little-known Gibraltar at the northernmost point of Africa is brought to notice by the recent protest of the Russian government to the reported plan of France to sell the ships of the ill-fated General Wrangel, now lying in the African harbor.

This important naval base of the French Mediterranean fleet is the subject of the following bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society:

"Bizerta, Tunis, is a 'dark horse' in the race for naval base strength in the Mediterranean. It is a fair question whether it is not already as valuable strategically as that household word for strength, Gibraltar, or Britain's convenient naval half-way house, the Island of Malta. For Gibraltar is in gun-reach from neighboring Spanish territory both in Europe and Africa; and isolated Malta, dependent for supplies on the outside world, might conceivably be starved out in a few months. Bizerta, on the other hand, has a productive hinterland of French-controlled territory behind its heavily fortified and magnificent land-locked harbor.

"There are two Bizertas, in reality. Along a wide, deep, quay-lined channel near the sea is the commercial harbor protected by jetties and breakwaters. Beyond the inner end of the channel, on the 'Lake' of Bizerta, a deep arm of the sea, is the naval base, from which commercial craft are excluded. This 'lake' has an area of more than 50 square miles and much of it has a depth of 30 feet. On deep water ten miles from the sea, only a giant's stone-throw from the ruins of Carthage, are naval works such as the sea-faring old Phoenicians never dreamed of. The base constitutes a city in itself, Ferryville, named for Jules Ferry who is in large part responsible for the presence of French authority in North Africa today. In the harbor are always to be found battleships and cruisers, torpedo boats and submarines. The sky-line shoreward is pierced by great cranes and dock structures; and over all is the smoke and din of machine-shops.

"The name by which the French-African seaport is most widely known, is Bizerta, is an Italian form. Northern Africa has for centuries been a field of activity for Italian and Sicilian fishermen and artisans. To the French the port is 'Bizerte.' The French are in the minority in the population of the city. Of the total civil population of nearly 18,000 about 10,000 are Mohammedans of Arabic and Berber stock and some 5,000 are Italians and Maltese. The French garrison numbers about 7,000.

"Bizerta, known in Roman days as Hippo Zarytus, was originally a Tyrian colony comparable in age to Carthage. Its citizens fought with the Carthaginians for supremacy for a while, but finally acknowledged the suzerainty of the 'African Rome.' When Carthage was destroyed Hippo Zarytus became a seat of Roman administration and grew in importance. Later it passed into Byzantine hands and in the seventh century fell to the Arabs. The Spanish captured the place in 1535 but held it only a few years. Then came centuries of neglect under Turkish and local rule. During the sixteenth century it was a notorious lair for pirates.

"When France intervened in Tunis in 1881 a French expeditionary force landed in Bizerta, and the town has been under the Tricolor ever since, though a Tunisian bey is the nominal ruler. The new channel was cut and the Lake of Bizerta made accessible to deep-draft vessels between 1890 and 1895.

"Bizerta has strategic value because it dominates both the relatively narrow passages at the waist of the Mediterranean, those between Africa and Sardinia and between Africa and Sicily. Only the home fleet base at Toulon, 420 miles to the north, is stronger than Bizerta among French Mediterranean naval stations.

"Germany seems to have had her eye on Bizerta as a possible point from which to dominate the Mediterranean, and in a draft of peace terms early in the world war let it be known that, as a victor, she would insist on the cession to her of Tunis along with other French territory."

Stories That Recall Others

Trying to Understand Gender.

Teacher had been explaining the meaning of gender to the class. William had gone home much puzzled, and that evening took his troubles to his mother.

Gender was explained again, and William's mother was illustrating each of the genders—masculine, feminine and neuter. This time William thought he understood the difference. To try him out his mother had asked him to use the masculine and feminine gender in a sentence. William still perplexed, thought for a time.

"Mother," he said at last, "Wouldn't the masculine of cat be tomboy?"

A starfish may lay 50,000,000 eggs, and but for their enemies, which preserve the balance, these creatures would fill the world's seas in one year.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Industrial Despotism and How it Works.

Mr. Editor. On May 1, Joseph P. Freeman, editor of the Liberator, of New York, and representative of that "Workers' Party," at the Labor Lyceum on Howe street, outlined its victory as the displacement of the "capitalist" system and the worker in control in everything. This is the communism of Karl Marx's Communistic Manifesto, and of the falsely named "industrialism" as set forth by the equally misnamed "Industrial Workers of the World" (I. W. W.), a revolutionary labor organization aiming to overthrow the wage system and to substitute the ownership and control of the means of production and distribution by the organized workers. Add to this, armed forces as the means of obtaining the above object and you have bolshevism; and it is figured that we have 918,000 communists already in the United States with foreign language newspapers advocating this sentiment, which is industrial despotism; which does not recognize the rights of non-union workers, and considers every farmer who owns his farm as a capitalist, one of a class which is to be overthrown, and not as a worker, nor farming as an "industry."

Secretary Morrison of the American Federation reports 3,195,000 dues-paying members of that labor organization (Atlantic City, June, 1922) and a 100 per cent. membership of the United Mine Workers in the hard coal country, and 70 per cent. membership in the bituminous country; and we have had a practical illustration of their power through the past winter, 1922-23. The strike of the railroad shopmen is a similar illustration, with its sabotage interference with machinery, endangering the safety and even the lives of passengers, to compare with the actual killings of many non-union miners at Herrin, Illinois. Unionism claims not only the regulation of wages and hours of labor, but restricts output of individual workers, and where it has sufficient power is strongly disposed to restrict unduly the number of apprentices, nearly to extinction. Of the United Mine Workers, with 800,000 members, 75 per cent. are recent immigrants from the south and west of Europe, the Hungarians being the most intelligent—the others being chiefly Poles, Lithuanians, Ruthenians, and Croats; usually working an 8 hour day on a 6-day week. To strike on a rising market is with many trade unions a settled policy. This forcing up of prices is necessarily followed by an advance in the price of the product; and with a sufficient supply of coal, miners, operators and dealers together have pushed the price of the grade of anthracite which cost the consumer $5.50 in 1884 to $15 in 1922, per ton. The union carpenters get $9 a day, bricklayers $12, masons $9; this with increased cost of material makes the cost of building enormous compared with 25 years ago; and a little before the World war, the wages of a journeyman carpenter was only $3.50 for an 8-hour day. The result is an enormous increase in rents; this forces the renter to get a wage sufficient to cover the increase; and so the vicious circle of inflation goes the round. And woe to those who are too feeble or too old to keep up the race for wages; little better, for such as laid by a little when wages were but half, often only a quarter, of the present, in their lines of work, to spend when the cost of living is twice as high as then. Many are pinching themselves cruelly to avoid living on charity; and many cannot avoid that end. We have industrial war by a minor part of the people that they may prosper at the expense of the whole, for the addition to the cost of living hits everybody; and the cost of living in March, 1923, is 68.8 per cent. higher than the average cost for the year 1913, ten years ago.

P. S. Today's New York Tribune reports Charles Ruthenberg, executive secretary of the Workers Party, found guilty by Michigan law, at St. Joseph, of criminal syndicalism; due, 10 years in prison or $5,000 fine.

SAVED FROM AN OPERATION

Now Recommends Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Washington, D.C.—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound saved me from an operation which a physician said I would have to have for a very bad case of female trouble. My system was all run-down for two years after my little girl was born. Then I read of your wonderful medicine and decided to try it. I could hardly drag one foot after the other, and after taking six bottles of the Vegetable Compound I felt like a new woman. I now do all my housework, also washing and ironing, and do not know what real trouble is. My health is fine, and I weigh 140 pounds. When I started taking it I weighed 97 pounds. I gladly recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to any one who is suffering from female trouble or is run down. Tom Carroll and his Giggle Getters, an aggregation of classy vaudeville performers, furnished a star attraction Monday night at the Elks' silver anniversary fair. Jack Kelly, formerly with Keith's, was a big favorite with his pleasing tenor and the snappy lines and melodious singing of the girls in the troupe kept the undivided attention of the crowd and won round after round of applause.

Every one who attends the fair endorses the excellent entertainment provided by the Norwich Elks and finds that the grounds at the home on Main street is a place to spend an evening of fun and frolic. The dancing in the hall is always a popular feature. Monday night a check room off the dance hall was opened and will be continued for the remaining nights of the fair.

CHIEF LINTON RETURNS FROM BIG CONFERENCE

Police Chief George Linton has returned from attending the international police conference in New York, which was a great gathering of heads of police departments from all over the world. Among the 1,000 men registered during the week from April 30 to May 5 in which the conference was held were representatives from Japan, China, Egypt, the Irish Free state, a number of the countries of South America and Europe, while police heads from all over the United States and Canada were in attendance.

Important subjects discussed included regulation of the manufacture, sale and distribution of firearms, habit-forming narcotics and drug addiction, traffic, public safety, street accidents, criminal identification, utilization of radio.

Besides the serious business of the conference there was much in the entertainment line which gave the delegates many delightful experiences. What was done for their entertainment included a trip to Brighton by autos, a visit to West Point where a review of the cadets was witnessed, a dinner on the steamer Mauretania, and a theater party at the Winter Garden. One of the features was the big banquet given to the conference by the police department of the city of New York. Meetings were held in the Great Hall of the Chamber of Commerce and at the Hotel Commodore.

The conference next year will be held at New York again, although the police chief from Montreal presented an invitation to have it there. This, he said, was mainly on the ground that it seemed as if New York ought to be relieved of the big expense of holding another convention, as he thought it was putting too much on New York on the ground of expense as this was the third time the conference had been held in that city.

Police Commissioner Enright assured the conference that if the expense on New York was the chief reason for holding the conference somewhere else, the delegates could forget all about that because New York would be perfectly able and willing to swing the conference meetings for ten years to come. It was at once voted that New York would be the choice for next year.

MAIN ST. RAID BRINGS "MOONSHINE" TO VIEW

What started out to be a raid on an alleged disorderly house at 117 Main street resulted in the local police seizing about 7 quarts of "moonshine" and the arrest of Michael Bohara as proprietor of the establishment, late Monday evening. The police visited the place about ten o'clock Monday evening and finding one woman, in an intoxicated condition, and four men arrested them on a charge of frequenting a disorderly house. As the police were about to leave the room, which by the way was fitted up with a bar they noticed three quart bottles filled with moonshine and two two-quart jars also filled with moonshine. These they took together with a traveling bag containing a three-gallon earthen jub.

Those arrested were William Dailey, Patrick Carbray, John Howard, all of Norwich, Joseph Riley of Middletown and Marie Harkins of New London. Dailey claimed to the police that he was owner of the place and was responsible as proprietor of the establishment. In questioning some of the witnesses it developed that Michael Bohara of Asylum street, this city, was the alleged owner. Bohara was arrested at his home later in the evening but claimed to have no knowledge of the place. Bohara has been in the toils of the law before for violation of the liquor law.

As the raid took place just as the theatre crowds were on the street there was quite a large sized audience that stood outside waiting developments. Just as the officers emerged from the building laden with the moonshine some one in a nearby building possessed of a dry sense of humor and possibly an unquenchable thirst and also afflicted with a preference for cornet music gave a short concert. Out over the crowd floated the sad and solemn strains of "How Dry I Am," played with excellent feeling and understanding. The age-old melody fell upon appreciative ears and a sigh of longing went up from the crowd and ended in a burst of applause for the unknown musician.

THOMAS MURPHY ELECTED POLICE SERGEANT, 7 TO 6, ON FOURTH BALLOT

Officer Thomas Murphy was elected second sergeant of the police department Monday night by the common council after a contest that took four ballots to decide, winning out by a vote of 7 to 6 over Officer Myron O. Morgan, who was the nominee of the police commissioners. The election fills the vacancy on the force caused by the sudden death of Sergeant John H. Kane by an electric shock on the night of Friday, April 6.

The choice of the police sergeant was almost the final business of a protracted meeting of the common council, which did not adjourn until 10.20, standard time, having opened at 7.15.

When all the usual and extra business of the council had been disposed of the nomination of a sergeant by the police commissioners came up.

Three Nominations

Alderman Henry Gebrath made the nomination of Officer Morgan on behalf of the police commissioners, to which he is one with Councilman Frank M. Green and Frank W. Quinley.

When Mayor Milo R. Waters asked if there were other nominations, Alderman Gilbert S. Raymond arose and said that he proposed to offer a name for the sergeantcy, but in doing so wished to pay a tribute to the man, Sergeant Kane, whose untimely death had made it necessary for the council to have this vacancy to fill now. Sergeant Kane had filled that position for a number of years, the alderman said, was a faithful, capable, efficient and well liked and serving of this public expression from the common council.

In making a nomination of a sergeant, Alderman Raymond said he regretted to disagree with the commissioners, but he proposed to name a man who is 36 years old, in the prime of life, with at least 20 or more years of service to give the police department. He was a member of the American expeditionary force in France, serving with faithfulness in the engineering corps, is known as one of the best traffic officers, is alert, athletic, capable and of good judgment.

The council will make no mistake, the alderman declared, either politically or in the interests of the city in electing Thomas Murphy, whom he nominated.

Councilman W. T. Shea nominated John T. Casey, who, he said, has been 15 years on the force and is efficient, capable and courageous.

Three Ballots Taken

The ballot box was passed by Constable A. Siegal, all twelve members of the council and the mayor voting.

Clerk Weston C. Pullen announced the result as follows: Morgan 6, Murphy 5, Casey 2.

Councilman Edward Crooks asked if it was to be understood that the recommendation by the police commissioners had been unanimous. When answered by Alderman Gebrath that it was, Mr. Crooks said he thought we ought to recognize the commissioners. He was about to speak further when Mayor Waters ruled him out of order, as there was no motion before the house.

Councilman Shea moved that the matter be laid on the table to the adjourned meeting of the council, but Councilman John E. Fitzgerald said he thought it ought to be settled now.

Another ballot was taken with the same result as the first two and Mayor Waters then declared a recess of five minutes.

Choice After Recess

The five minutes lengthened in half an hour before the council member returned from conference in the mayor's room, prepared to vote again.

On the ballot the vote stood Murphy 7, Morgan 6, and Mayor Waters declared Officer Murphy elected sergeant.

Department Bills Approved

The only business left was the approval of department bill, after which the council adjourned to Monday, May 21 at 7 p. m., standard time.

The following were the bills approved:

Water department, $2,400.20; finance department, $7,312.08; public works department, $9,682.56; permanent street improvement, $3,110.73; gas and electric department, $54,418.54; cemetery department, $549.43; police department, $6,104.09; street lighting, $1,437.00; fire department, $7,044.65; park department, $1,669.98.

Standing Room Attendance.

There was a standing room crowd in the spectators' space outside the rail when Mayor Waters called the meeting to order at 7.15, standard time, because citizens interested in hearings on sidewalk and sewer matters were on hand to voice their protests.

These hearings were the first business taken up, beginning with the grade for a five foot sidewalk for 494 feet on the westerly side of Lafayette street from the Robert McBurney property.

James F. Wilbur said it would make a pond of his dooryard and would be no improvement to the street.

John W. Nichols asked if the grade opposite the Falls company property was the correct one. City Engineer S. E. Palmer answered that no grade had ever been established there.

The hearing was declared closed by Mayor Waters.

On the petition of George H. Yeomans and others for a sidewalk on Lafayette street, the public works committee presented a resolution directing Nellie J. Nichols, John W. Nichols, James Wilbur, Louis and Clara M. Haggerty to lay concreet cement or asphalt sidewalks by July 1st.

Both the Lafayette street matters were later passed by the council.

Carroll Avenue Grade.

There was no appearance at the hearing on the petition of Adams P. Carroll for a grade on the southerly side of Carroll avenue, and this was later passed by the council.

Goldberg Avenue.

Civil Engineer G. E. Pitcher appeared for Samuel Goldberg on Mr. Goldberg's petition for a 4 1-2 foot sidewalk and grade on the westerly side of Goldberg avenue from Maple Grove to Sturtevant avenue. He asked for a tree parking space of at least 30 inches, and for a minor change in the grade measurement.

The hearing was declared closed and the council passed the resolution at a later point in the meeting.

Geer Avenue Goes Over.

A. Johnson of 25 Geer avenue made the only appearance on the resolution for a six-foot sidewalk on the northerly side of the street from West Thames to Woodmansee avenue. Mr. Johnson said he didn't think a six foot walk feasible as there is now a good five foot walk, and he thought it would be better to get the highway fixed before establishing the sidewalk.

The hearing was declared closed and later in the meeting Alderman William O'Leary moved an amendment to make the sidewalk width five feet. As the council desired to ask Mr. Palmer some questions, but he had gone home, the matter was laid on the table until the next council meeting.

Police Qualifications.

An ordinance making 25 years the limit age and 5 feet 7 inches the minimum height for new appointees on the police force was called for a hearing and was later passed.

The same was done with the ordinance requiring that between Oct. 1 and April 1 no entertainment could be given in a public amusement place where the temperature is less than 65 degrees. The penalty is a $50 fine.

Recess for Sewer Hearings.

A recess for the council was declared while sewer hearings could be held by the special committee appointed, consisting of the mayor, Alderman Raymond, Councilmen Fitzgerald and O'Leary.

On the York avenue sewer, built at a cost of $442.75, Attorney C. V. James appeared for Mr. Ford, claiming that his assessment ought to be merely nominal as the sewer would be of no benefit to him on account of the nature of his land, especially on the easterly side of the street.

Alfred H. Hiscox and Joseph Kicuk were told they were not to be assessed.

Laurel Hill Sewer

The hearing on the sewer on Laurel Hill avenue, Yerrington, Bentley and Watrous avenue, showed the total cost was $5,827.31.

Attorney Tolley E. Babcock for estate of Addison Rockwood, owning two lots on Bentley avenue, said he would derive little benefit from a sewer.

Town Counsel H. H. Pettis appeared on behalf of the town on account of the Laurel Hill school house, saying he thought there was considerable legal question on the right of the city to assess the town for a sewer and the school house is adequately sewered anyway through the so-called Cogswell sewer.

Mayor Waters said the same sewer conditions affected his property and that of Louise Cochrane, on Laurel Hill avenue which are connected with the Cogswell sewer.

John Morley of Laurel Hill avenue said he had paid $850 for a private sewer and John Johnson stated he paid about $150 for a sewer for three pieces of property.

Attorney E. W. Perkins spoke for the Cranska property on Laurel Hill avenue, on which the pro rata cost was $1,007, and claimed that no sewer was laid opposite his property but an old drain was used that had been there for years. Much of the land is low.

Civil Engineer Palmer stated that there was 175 feet of new sewer in front of this low land but the old drain was used in front of the rest.

Attorney Perkins spoke for no assessment or a very substantial reduction. The Cranska property has a very complete cesspool system, he said.

J. H. Yerrington said the Yerrington avenue sewer was too high for him and he had had a sewer for 20 years.

For Sedgwick Post

The council voted the usual $300 appropriation for the observance of Memorial day on the petition of Sedgwick Post, No. 1, G. A. R.

Petitions

Petitions were presented as follows and were referred as indicated:

Samuel Goldberg for light on Goldberg avenue, between Tyler avenue and Sturtevant street, police commissioners.

Laurel Hill Trees.

City Engineer Palmer made a statement about the Laurel Hill avenue trees, saying that he had been over there on Monday with Osias Dodge and showed him what trees must be cut and what might be saved. Mr. Dodge had expressed himself as entirely satisfied with what was to be done and had stated that he didn't see that anything else could be done with the trees in the street improvement.

Annual Reports.

Annual reports by the park commissioners and the water commissioners were presented and ordered printed in the appendix to the journal.

The fire commissioners reported on their recent action in the sale of the Main street station and development of the Greeneville station.

Murphy-Lang Case Settled.

Upon recommendation, the mayor was authorized to settle for $1,500 and such sum for costs as required the $20,000 suit brought against Natalina J. Murphy and Walter W. Lang for the cutting of wood on the two city reservoir properties in 1919.

On the petition of Martin Rovezzo and others for a six-foot sidewalk on the southerly side of North Main street from Erin street, a hearing was set for the adjourned meeting of the council.

Trolley Car Stopping.

On recommendation of the public works committee the council passed a resolution to request the Connecticut company to discontinue stopping cars at Shannon corner to take on or discharge passengers and also requesting the one stopping place between Market and Shetucket streets be established.

Age Limit For Police Service.

A resolution to make the age limit 65 years for service on the police force was referred to the police commissioners.

Bill For $1,000.

A bill for $1,000 from Dr. N. B. Lewis on a claim for damages by water flowing over the property from 84 Talman street to the tallow barn was referred to the finance committee and the corporation counsel.

The same was done with a claim for $300 from the Henschel Tire & Rubber Co. for damages to a motor truck which went over the wall on Talman street on April 21. It was claimed this was due to a defect in the street.

Declare Mrs. Keller's Recovery Is Little Short of Miracle — Gains 21 Pounds.

Thousands have testified to the remarkable powers of the Tanlac treatment in correcting stomach disorders and rebuilding weight and strength lost through illness. In this connection, Mrs. Catherine Keller, highly esteemed resident of 62 Hamilton St., Providence, R. I., says:

"My friends, as well as myself, feel that my recovery was little short of a miracle. I have regained eighteen pounds and three pounds besides. For about a year I had very poor appetite was nauseated all the time, and for four or five months I could scarcely retain anything I ate. I suffered dreadfully from constipation, was very nervous, despondent and almost hopeless.

"Everyone who knew of my case was surprised at the way Tanlac helped me. I enjoy eating now, am never sick at my stomach and sleep just fine. In fact, I am a perfectly well woman. I can't help praising Tanlac."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 37 million bottles sold.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

A telephone message received here early Monday morning by Undertaker L. E. Kennedy brought news of the death at Watervelit, N. Y., of Patrick Sherlock, for many years a resident on the West Side. Mr. Sherlock was about 63 years of age. He was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Sherlock, his father for nearly two score years having been in the employ of the Quinebaug company as a night watchman.

Since leaving Danielson a number of years ago Mr. Sherlock has been making his home in Worcester. Since his illness became serious, it is understood here, he had been at Watervelit making his home with his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. William Snyder, formerly of Danielson.

The Catholic Welfare Council is the name selected by the women of St. James' parish who have been actively engaged for a month past in formulating their plans for an active branch in Danielson of the Catholic Welfare association of Connecticut, numbering thousands of members.

Mrs. L. E. Kennedy has been elected chairman of the council, Miss Eva Viens secretary and Miss Elizabeth Brennon treasurer. Miss Georgette Jette has been named chairman of the committee on education. Miss Winifred Duffy, chairman of the circulating library committee, Miss Mayme Dunn, chairman of the social and program committee. Misses Alice Bessette and Lucile Caron, chairmen of the Glee club committee and Mrs. George Caron as chairman of the Sunshine committee.

Fro mits present nucleus of 80 members it is expected that a membership drive will increase the enrollment to 400 or 500 members, possibly more. St. James' parish is a large one and it is intended that it shall be thoroughly organized.

The theory that Benn Kershaw, the missing Putnam man, was drowned in Alexander's lake two weeks ago last Sunday has been generally abandoned by a majority of those who have been keeping in touch with the case. The body has not come to the surface after more than two weeks. A daily watch has been kept on the lake, but not a bit of evidence has been found to establish beyond all doubt that Mr. Kershaw lost his life while out canoeing on the body of water. Neither can one say positively even now that he was not drowned there, but opinion has been quite firmly established that this is not the case.

It was regarded as strange from the very first that the two paddles of the canoe were within it when it was found on the night of the day that Mr. Kershaw disappeared. He had been camping with his wife at Shady Nook cottage for a little more than a week prior to his disappearance, since when not a trace of him has been found.

Never in all of his 32 years experience as an undertaker, A. F. Wood, said Monday, had he been in charge of a funeral in which services were held for four members of the same family at one and the same time, nor does he recall such an instance as that in which Gilbert Larkin of East Killingly and his three adult children were laid at rest Sunday afternoon.

The caskets containing the bodies rested outside the church at East Killingly while the funeral service, with a congregation that nearly filled the United Baptist church, was conducted by Rev. J. W. Carter of the Methodist church at Attawaugan, assisted by Rev. A. E. Gallup of the Pentecostal church of Danielson. Among the impressive things said by Rev. Mr. Carter was that the tragedy in the Larkin home should indicate to all the uncertainty of human life and that all should be prepared for the change at any time, and if in their going away this is impressed upon all they will not have died in vain no more than the soldiers who gave their lives on Flanders field.

Four hearses were included in the funeral cortege that conveyed the bodies to Putnam Heights, where several hundred people had gathered for the burial. The committal service was by Rev. Mr. Carter and Rev. Mr. Gallup pronounced the benediction. The throng present was hushed by the solemnity of the burial and the service.

PUTNAM

Daylight saving as it applies to Putnam and immediate vicinity has some resemblances to a poker game this season. Also it is on the In Again, Out Again, Finnigan order. Some cotton manufacturing plants that went on daylight saving time in Putnam Monday of last week shifted back to standard time again this week Monday, the day that the Beechmont Worsted mills at Mechanicsville shifted from standard to daylight saving time. At the Manhasset plant in this city the matter of time remains an issue, at least with a heavy percentage of the employes.

Once more it may be pertinent to remark that "monkeying" with the time is just as much of a nuisance and public irritant as it proved to be last year. It is a source of annoyance to hundreds of people in this territory and upsetter of normal conditions in homes where housewives have to figure on two kinds of time and is heartily detested by the average person that talks about it on the streets of Putnam, though, it must be admitted, some like it.

Reports from the City hospital at Worcester Monday were not at all encouraging as to the condition of Captain Remi Delage of the local police force, frightfully injured when the machine in which he was riding with Alderman Honorius Hagnan, who was killed outright, hit a bridge abutment at Oxford a week ago tonight. Monday's reports indicated that Captain Delage has a punctured lung. He has been expectorating considerable blood and such information as has been gleaned from hospital authorities and his friends who have visited the hospital have visited the hospital in an attempt all tends to indicate that his condition on Monday was highly critical and by many regarded as more so than at any time since first reports concerning him came from the hospital last Wednesday afternoon.

There appeared up to last Friday to be strong hopes for his ultimate recovery, but this confidence has been greatly weakened in view of developments in the case on Friday and over the week-end

A monter motor truck that backed up to the main entrance of the First National bank building, now in process of extensive remodeling, carried Monday forenoon a steel door for the new vault, this vault of such ponderous contruction that the doors weight was given out as ten tons. Keen interest was manifested by spectators in the operation of rolling it off the truck and getting it within the bank building, where representatives of the vault building concern were on hand to put it in place as quickly as may be possible. The vault being installed is the most modern procurable as to protective devices against burglars and qualities of material that enter into its makeup

When Hyde Smith, who has been identified with theatrical enterprises in this city for several years, comes to Putnam again there will be many who will want to know all about the episode in which his infant daughter figured so prominently at the Smith home in Worcester one day last week. It appears that a ladder company of the fire department had to be called to release the little miss from a bathroom into which she had accidentally locked herself on the third floor of the apartment where Mr. and Mrs. Smith reside. While she managed to lock herself in she was unable to let herself out and the excitement that soon aroused her to loud protest at her involuntary incarceration. Nor could those on the outside unlock the door. So there was nothing to be done but call out a ladder company and have a fireman climb up, go through the bathroom window and unlock the door.

Less strenuous is the fact that within half an hour after the above related incident occurred fire gutted the residence in Worcester occupied by Mr. Smith's parents, Mr. and Mrs. David Smith, formerly of this city. Their furniture was practically ruined.

The contract for such improvements and alterations as are to be made at the Windham County Home for Children in the Sawyer district of this town has not been let as yet. It was stated by County Commissioner John A. Daly Monday, but it is likely the commissioners will consider the matter at their next meeting. Bids for the work recently were opened by the commissioners, but they have not arrived at a decision as to who will get the award. A fund of $25,000 has been made available by the county for the work that is to be done.

Rare indeed are the times, when a funeral with four hearses in line, each hearse bearing a member of the same family, has been seen in Putnam, but this was the case Sunday afternoon when a motor cortege brought the bodies of Gilbert Larkin and his three children from East Killingly, where funeral services were held at the United Baptist church, for burial in Putnam Heights cemetery. All the dead were adults, victims of pneumonia that scourged the family during the latter part of March and in early April.

The only surviving member of the family is Byron Larkin, still a patient at the Day Kimball hospital in this city, gradually winning his way back to health after being at death's door for more than two weeks, he also being ill with pneumonia.

Interesting comment on the accident that cost Alderman Honorius Magnan his life and left Captain Remi Delage hovering between life and death appeared as follows Sunday in a Webster despatch in a Worcester paper:

One, two or three accidents like that of Tuesday night may arouse the people of Webster so that they will insist on having their main highway to Worcester made safe for travel. Not only will the underpass at the Boston & Albany railroad, where Councilman Magnan of Putnam lost his life and the head of the Putnam police department was so frightfully injured that death was almost preferable, be changed, but the other and still more menacing underpass at the Slater mills will be replaced by a structure which not only will make the highway safe for travel but will be a credit to the town.

The underpass where the accident took place Tuesday night is in the town of Oxford, but it is of even more importance to the residents of Webster and spans a part of the macadam state road. The other and more dangerous underpass not only is in the township of Webster, but it is at the very entrance of the village. From it, many strangers entering the town by motor, must get their first impression of the place. It not only makes a menacing obstruction to the highway, but it is an eyesore and a disgrace to the town.

There is every reason to believe that this is one accident in which rum played no part. That the men were traveling at an excessive speed is apparent; that the speed was so great as to approximate recklessness is unquestioned at present. But both these underpasses are so placed as to be a source of danger to the most careful of drivers who approaches them for the first time, especially in the night. For more than 20 years, even before the days of motor cars, they were cussed and discussed. Repeatedly loads have had to turn back and make long detours because of them.

Any time the residents of Webster get mad enough, both these underpasses will be changed. It shouldn't need a few killings to make the town officials insist on changes, through legislative action if necessary, but changes and that quickly if that cannot be done, it shouldn't take a few more killings to make the citizens of the town elect officials who will do it.

Accused in cases on the criminal list will be put to plea at today's (Wednesday's) session of the superior court in Willimantic.

Forty Hours' devotion, inaugurated at the last mass Sunday morning, will be concluded at the high mass this (Tuesday) morning. A number of visiting priests were here to assist during Monday.

Delay in the delivery of valves and and other material essentially needed is holding up the completion of the work of installing the new filteration system for Putnam's municipal water works, the operation underway at Harrisville.

Of interest here Monday was The Bulletin's announcement of the death at Woonsocket of Joseph Guerin, 72, president of the Guerin Mills, Inc., which on the first of the present month took over the French River Textile company at Mechanicsville.

Funeral services for William Dolan, who died late Friday of injuries he received when the motor truck he was steering crashed into a tree on the Chepatchet highway after breaking of a rope being used to tow the vehicle, were held Monday morning at St. Joseph's church in Dayville, where burial also took place.

Miss Prudence P. Paine of Thompson was among the young women from Connecticut who were guests at a week end tea dance given at Mt. Holyoke college by members of the Freshman class in honor of members of the senior class. The freshmen all appeared wearing knicker costumes, while the seniors wore skirts and sweaters.

Maurice Friedman of the L. A. W. Acceptance Company celebrated the winning of a selling contest with a dinner at the Putnam Inn on Saturday. The following were present: Oscar Rich, Harry Diwarski, Robert Brock and Louis A. Wolf.

S. Anderson, widow of Elisha Anderson, died at the home of her son, Henry E. Anderson, where she had made her home for years. Mrs. Anderson was 85 years of age on February 27 last. She was a native of the town of Killingly and a daughter of Hosea and Beulah (Slater) Martin. Mrs. Anderson had lived her life in Killingly and town in this vicinity. Her husband has been dead for many years. Mrs. Anderson had been in poor health for a number of years.

A review on Monday of the motoring mishaps in this territory over the week-end should impress everyone who drives a motor vehicle with the danger of Sunday outings and the extreme care that must be exercised by all drivers in this year of omniverous automobile buying if each Sabbath is not to be made a day of disaster.

Added to the fast drivers, now few and far between, due to their fear of being picked up by the state police for reckless driving, is a host of new and inexperianced drivers and they constitute one of the greatest menaces to safety to be encountered on the state highways. They will get into the thick of traffic however, and when they do, anything may happen and something frequently does.

The officers at the local state police barracks were busy Monday checking up accidents that occurred in territory hereabouts during Sunday. In one of these a young woman who was walking along the state highway between Central Village and Moosup was struck by a car and seriously injured, though the driver did everything possible to avoid having his machine strike her. An intoxicated driver figured in another little accident at Moosup Sunday night.

With highways hereabouts crowded with motor vehicles as they never have been before, drivers have exceptionally heavy obligations placed upon them. The danger of accidents is now very great and only the most conservative driving by everyone will keep the accident record down to a minimum. Incidentally, a person walking a railroad track hereabouts nowadays is approximately 500 times as safe as in dreamily moping along a state highway. Yet every day persons can be seen walking state highways and avoiding good parallel sidewalks. But what a howl there would be if a motorist drove along a sidewalk.

BUILDING OPERATIONS IN NORWICH

With excellent weather for building operations in Norwich there has been much progress made during the past week. Not only has good progress been made on local projects now in the progress of construction, but there has been a marked increase in the number of building applications filed at the office of Fire Marshal Howard L. Stanton. During the past week there were eleven building permits granted for additions, garages and houses. The permits were as follows:

To George Boucher to erect a frame garage at 101 Central avenue for Edward Connelly. The garage will be of frame construction throughout and the exterior will be finished in cedar shingles.

To F. Russell Smith to erect a brick building in the rear of 282 Franklin street to be used as a boiler room. The building which will be 14x26 feet will have a concrete foundation and the walls will be of brick.

There will be plate glass fronts for the stores and the tenements will be finished in plaster and hardwood.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

In Norwich during the past week there were 34 sales of real estate as compared to 17 for the same week in 1922. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $83,000 and $42,900.

NEW LONDON COUNCIL APPROVES APPOINTMENT OF MRS. ALICE HUNT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, May 7.—New London now has a police woman, or will have such tomorrow for the city council this evening approved of the recommendation of City Manager Barlow, who recommended the appointment of Mrs. Alice Hunt, wife of Harry Hunt. Mrs. Hunt is now employed at the state farm for women at Niantic. There was another applicant for the position from the same institution, the matron, Mrs. Burke. Mayor Murray was opposed to the appointment going outside of New London and expressed the opinion that neither that position nor any other in the gift of the city manager should be given outside the city. He said he was confident that a woman for the police appointment could be found in New London.

He was opposed in that view by Councilors Whiton and Clark, who pointed out that the appointment of Mrs. Hunt was favored by the women organizations of the city and that the responsibility for the success of the appointment rested largely with them. In all the interviews the women had with the council they were given to understand that they must add the woman police officer.

Councilor Clark said that Mrs. Phillips, now connected with the Associated Charities had been mentioned in connection with the appointment, but that he was assured that she preferred to remain in her present employment, not knowing how long the appointment of a police woman would continue. Councilor Thompson asked whether Mrs. Hunt had the unanimous endorsement of the women's organizations of the city and he was informed by the city manager that Mrs. Hunt did have such endorsement. Her salary is to be $150 a month, a salary that is regarded as a snug sum for the position.

The council adjourned this evening to meet again on Thursday at 5 p. m. daylight saving time, to go over the matter of the erection of school buildings with the members of the board of school visitors. In the applications for permission to build approved by the council this evening there was but one permission sought to erect a dwelling. The other applications were for garages, or for alterations and additions to existing structures.

Mrs. Luke Martin and George Bishop, who have been undergoing treatment for diabetes at Lawrence hospital, will, it is understood, leave that institution Tuesday. It is claimed that they have been undergoing treatment by a recently discovered and alleged cure for the disease and they have been benefited so that their condition is considered to be normal now.

It is stated that a successor to Lieut. Benjamin A. Beebe of the police department will be acted upon at the meeting of the council next Monday evening. It may then be delayed for a brief time, but that it will come before the month is at an end is considered to be a certainty. It is said that Lieutenant Beebe is to ask for retirement at half pay and that the council will accede to his request and appoint his successor the day the retirement is approved.

Councilor Malcolm M. Isaac is confined to his home on Broad street by an attack of the grip. His condition, however, is improving and it is believed that he will be able to be at his duties at the Union Bank & Trust company the latter part of the week.

Roland Parry Keasby, a summer resident in New London, died on the 6th inst., at his winter home in Wahwah, N. J., death ending a brief illness of pneumonia. Mr. Keasby was 63 years of age and is survived by his wife and one daughter, the latter being Mrs. Alex Latham, of New York, nee Dorothea Keasby. Private funeral services were held Saturday and the interment was in the family plot in Morristown, N. J.

In an endeavor to prevent pedestrians from sustaining serious, if not fatal injuries Building Inspector Benjamin R. Linious today communicated with Samuel A. Goldsmith, owner of the Goldsmith block at the corner of State and Main streets, to take steps at once to make secure the imitation marble ornamentations over the entrance to the corner store.

The solid blocks have become loose and one of them has already fallen to the sidewalk, narrowly escaping striking a pedestrian on the head and others are liable to fall at any time. Although Mr. Goldsmith was acquainted with the element of danger several days ago nothing has been done to remove it.

An automobile, operated by Antonio Morano of No. 12 Elizabeth street and owned by the W. R. Perry Ice Company and a machine operated by H. Hendel were in collision at the corner of Williams and Cedar streets late this afternoon. The damage resultant was slight as a disfiguration of the mudguards was the only damage sustained.

The highway bridge over Alewife cove, connecting New London with Waterford and used by hundreds of tourists and recreation seekers daily because of the excellent roads, is in immediate danger of causing serious injury to autoists for the planking has become loose and with much more traffic over the structure some of the planks are liable to fall to the waters of the cove.

The condition of the bridge was discovered this evening by William Carter, who informed the police. The highway department was notified and it is probable that Commissioner Courtland R. Darrow will cause a repair force to go to the bridge and put it in a condition of safety.

The number of automobile accidents that are occurring daily in New London indicate that the police will have their hands full by the time that summer traffic is at its heights. Many of the drivers of machines, particularly of late, are women who are not experienced in handling cars, some of them being but students and in the process of being instructed.

In almost every instance where the experienced driver gives his lessons, the most dangerous and most thickly traversed streets and avenues are selected. One driver even yesterday selected th Hartford turnpike as a place to instruct his wife, a more dangerous place being impossible to be used by the novice chauffeurs.

Mrs. Braxton Hill, wife of Patrolman Hill, Master James Sagarin of Main street, Mrs. John Anderson of Fair Harbor place, Miss Hazel Lyman of Niantic and Mrs. Antonio DiMarco and baby of Shaw street were patients discharged at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital today.

The funeral of James Maroney of Cohasset, whose death occurred at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, following an operation several days ago, was held this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church and was attended by many mourners. A mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Alexander Wollschlaeger. The bearers were William M. Redden, James Sullivan, Antone Enos, Michael O'Connell, Robert Burns and John Riordan. Interment was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Funeral services for Mrs. Alice Williams, wife of John Williams of No. 164 Wilkins avenue, were held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at St. James' Episcopal church Rev. Philip M. Kerridge officiating. The bearers were Louis Ballestrini, Harold Holloway, Frederick Beebe, Joseph Chamberlain, John B. Williams and Clifford Sime. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

Mrs. Eva L. Van Keuren, wife of William Van Keuren, Jr., of Best View, Quaker Hill, died at her home this morning, death terminating a brief illness.

Drivers continue to violate the law in operating their machines past a standing trolley car that is discharging or receiving passengers. This morning Motormen John Boat and John Waldron complained of such an autoist to Patrolman Cavanaugh, requesting the arrest of the offender. The man was not located, but probably will be and haled into court.

Frank Todd, of No. 119 Crystal avenue, and well known to railroad employes through his long service as a freight brakeman in the employ of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, died suddenly of heart trouble in New Haven late Saturday. He was about 45 years of age, a native of Webster, Mass., and is survived by his wife and several children.

Todd was standing near the New Haven railroad station when he suffered the heart attack and collapsing, expired before medical aid could be summoned.

New London lodge of Elks will go to Norwich tomorrow evening where the members will lend their efforts towards making the fair that is now being conducted by Norwich lodge of Elks the success that it is destined to be. The New London delegation will assemble at the clubhouse on Washington street at 7.30 o'clock where automobiles will be in waiting to convey them to Norwich. Upon their arrival there the members will go directly to the hall where the fair is being conducted and give the Norwich wearers of the antlers their time and money in swelling the treasury of Norwich lodge.

The business of the police court this morning developed that there was "something doing" in the liquor business in this city over Sunday for all the business that came to the court was over the hooch line. Antonette Alfeiro had a little hooch party at her home on outer Bank street Sunday afternoon at which so much noise was made that the policeman on the beat was notified.

He went there and found that a party had assembled to put in a happy day. They had an abundance of liquor. While there was no actual disturbance there was evidence that there was material for the making of it. She was fined $150 in the court today.

There were four cases of intoxication presented for discipline. Two vagrants were sent to the workhouse for about three months each. These men have been finding a place to sleep in the lockup during more than three months, never losing a night in that period. It was decided today to let the men go before the court that they might be provided with a home in the county jail where they might be cleaned up and where they would be properly fed. That sort of treatment has not been accorded them in a long time.

Anna Dupont came here from Putnam and Danielson, where she had been a waitress and Saturday she was all "lit up." She had more than $80 with her, the money representing her savings. Anna desired to secure a position at Ocean beach and to spend the summer down by the sea. Still she felt so wealthy with $80 that when she got a few drinks of booze she wanted to spend what she had saved, so she hired a taxi. The trouble was that Anna didn't want to pay her taxi bill when she had finished her ride. That led Detective Dominick to complain to the police and Anna slept off her drunk in the lock-up. In court this morning she told Judge Prince of her experience and that gentleman ordered Anna to pack her valise and flit from the city or to come back and serve a term in jail for intoxication.

Anna got away from New London.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

The Lollypop Tree.

Up and down on his white fur back
Bumped the bunny boy's little knapsack
As he hopped along thru the Shady Wood
To the Big Bear's Cave where the lollypops grew.

By and by, way, way yonder, he could just make out the comfortable

"Do You want that nice big pink one?"

"Hello! hello!" shouted the little rabbit, waving his red striped candy cane, "are you there, Mr. Bear?"

"No, I'm here," chuckled the big, good-natured, furry-coated animal, "but just keep on, you'll find me all right."

"Good morning, Mr. Big Brown Bear! Have you any lollypops for me?"

"Well, I'll see," said the Big Brown Bear, and, rising to his feet, he walked into the cosy cave, but oh, dear me, the only things he could find were a popcorn ball in a little box and an empty ice cream cone on a shelf.

"Goodness gracious!" he exclaimed, coming out again into the sunlight, "I guess I'll have to climb up the lollypop tree."

It didn't take him long to swing himself up, and—

When, at last he had climbed up high,
Almost up to the big, blue sky,
He reached the place where the lollypops grow,
All in a beautiful rainbow row.

"Do you want that nice big pink one?" asked the Big Brown Bear, looking down into the little rabbit's upturned face, as he stood below, anxiously watching the big, kind animal, way up among the branches where the lollypops grow in a rainbow row.

"Oh, yes!" shouted the little bunny, "and that green one, too, and that one all blue, and maybe a purple one for you."

Carefully picking off the lollypops, the big, kind animal shoved them into his coat pocket and then, sliding down the tree, he was once more seated on the big wooden bench.

"Come, little bunny, hop up beside me and we'll sing the lollypop song;" and, moving over to one side, he made room for the little bunny. Then, holding up a purple lollypop, he waited for the happy little bunny boy to wave a pink lollypop in his left paw. Then, both at once, they shouted:

"Hip, hip, hurray,

and pretty soon the poor little lollypops were licked all to pieces, and in the next story, you shall hear what happened after that.

She did say that a woman does not get a fair deal in this world. She wants to see the day when woman is on an equal footing with man.

The superior court will reconvene in this city tomorrow. The cases to first come to trial are those in which manslaughter is alleged. Grace McSheffrey and John Guinan, charged with having killed an infant of which the girl was the mother, will probably be put on trial first. This will be the first case tried at this term to the jury.

Dr. John N. Dimon, charged with having caused the death of Eugene Partlow by running him down on Bank street a few months ago when the doctor drove his auto on the walk, will follow, but perhaps not till the case against Gus Zotol, charged with harboring a female minor for purposes of prostitution, has been tried. John C. W. Wilbur, a Salem farmer, is to be tried for murder at this term. Thus far several cases have been disposed of and there has not yet been a jury trial.

MUST OPERATE THEATRES ON STANDARD TIME

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, May 7.—The theatres of New London, which have been giving performances on daylight time, a benefit which the proprietors enjoyed because on Sundays two performances could be given in the evening, will have to be operated upon standard time in the future for Prosecuting Attorney Daniel M. Cronin has instructed Captain of Police Charles A. Pinney to prevent the violation of the law in permitting the theatres to give shows on Sundays only on standard time. The edict of the prosecutor was given the theatre managers last evening for the first time and as a result but one showing of pictures could be given. The ruling does not set good with the theatre managers either, but they will be forced to comply with it or dispense with Sunday evening shows.

SENDS BULLET CRASHING INTO HIS BRAIN

New London, May 7.—Joseph S. Brown, a well known and prosperous resident of Old Lyme, ended his life late Saturday by sending a bullet into his brain. So far as is known, other than despondency, no cause for the rash act of Brown can be advanced by his acquaintances and they are not sure that a despondent mind was the cause of his self-destruction. Brown is survived by a wife. For many years he conducted Far View farm, one of the largest farms in the eastern part of the state. He was a native of Newburgh, N. Y., and was favorably known to a large acquaintanceship.

Brown left his home during Saturday afternoon and went to a tract of wooded land a short distance from his home where he apparently decided to end his existence. So he pulled a revolver from his person and placing the muzzle to his head, sent a bullet crashing through his skull. Brown did not die instantly and although suffering from great loss of blood, he managed to walk to his abode where he presented himself to his wife, blood issuing from the hole made from the wound and presenting a sickening sight. Medical attention was given Brown, but he soon lapsed into unconsciousness and died during the evening.

When Brown first appeared at his home it was believed that he had been foully dealt with and an autopsy was ordered performed by Medical Examiner Deavitt Sunday. The result was the rendering of a verdict of death from suicide for the location of the bullet together with the finding of Brown's revolver with one of the chambers empty and showing that the revolver had been discharged but a short time before. All tended to show that Brown's death was the result of a self-inflicted wound.

TWO MACHINES CRASH IN BANK STREET

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, May 7.—The delivery auto of the Krystal Cleaning Co., operated by Edgar Brown of 115 Green St., was put out of commission in a collision with an auto owned and driven by Charles A. Hart of 14 Evergreen Ave., tonight at 7.45 o'clock on Bank Street.

The delivery auto had stopped in front of on eof the stores on the hill to deliver packages when the other auto came up the hill at a lively pace.

The driver of the Krystal car extended his arm as far as she could but the other machine was too close to him and its speed was such that the driver couldn't steer to a clear course. The autos came together and the delivery car was pushed to the gutter and against the curbing so hard that when it stopped both front wheels were wrecked.

JEWETT CITY

Sunday morning about two o'clock Napoleon Lebeau with his brother Frank on the front seat and Joseph Duff and Mrs. Monty on his rear seat, were enroute from Norwich to Jewett City. Lebeau was driving his Star car. When nearing Shetucket switch, Lebeau says he was blinded by the lights of an approaching car, and states that thinking he had passed the car, turned back too quick, striking the other car between the wheels on the left hand side.

Lebeau's car was demolished. Of the four passengers Duff and the driver's relative were the worst injured. Frank Moriarty, night operator at Taftville, was returning from his duty to his home in Jewett City. Frank was there a minute or two after it happened. Seeing that Duff was considerably cut about the head and neck, he took him in his machine to Dr. T. E. Rainville in Jewett City where a number of cuts were dressed. The other car, not nearly so badly damaged, the driver of which can have no blame attached to him, it is said, is owned by the O'Neil garage at Plainfield.

The story of the collision was told to Walter Drew, justice of the peace of Lisbon on Monday evening. The accident was investigated by Officers Williams and Deputy Dolan.

SHARP BREAK IN MARKET

New York, May 7.—Prices broke sharply today in all speculative markets. Net losses in active stocks ranged from one to 10 1-2 points, most of the industrial favorites establishing broke 9s to 14s points; grain sold off one to two cents; and demand sterling reacted 3-4 of a cent to $4.61 5-8, a new low records for the year; cotton new low record for the year.

Resumption of heavy selling by bear operators precipitated the reaction, which was given impetus by the closing out of another flock of weakened marginal accounts. Widespread circulation of fraudulent buying orders for stocks, several of which were executed before the fraud was discovered; ed; the relatively high interest rate of 4 3-4 per cent. on the latest issue of U. S. treasury notes, and speculative fears over the possibility of more hostile legislation being introduced into the next congress as a result of the announced conference on the revaluation of railroad securities by the Lafollette group, all contributed to the pessimistic sentiment of the professional element.

U. S. Steel common broke below par for the first time this year and then rallied to 100 7-8, where it was off 1 1-4 on the day. Baldwin appeared to be the principal target of bear attacks, being hammered down to 128 3-8, also a new low, and then rallying to 124 3-4, off 2 1-2 on the day. Among the many other stocks which sold at their lowest prices for the year were American Woolen, Cosden Oil, common and preferred, U. S. Rubber, Pacific Oil, Sinclair, Brooklyn Edison, Rock Island, Columbia Gas and Montana Power.

Stewart-Warner Speedometer broke more than 13 points to 80 1-4 and then rallied to 83 1-8, a net loss of 10 1-2 points. Losses of three to seven points were registered by DuPont, Stromberg Carburetor, American Beet Sugar, Bosch Magneto, Associated Oil, Mathieson Alkali, Kelsey Wheel, California Petroleum, Brooklyn Union Gas, Pierce Arrow preferred, Public Service of New Jersey, Replogle Steel, and Woolworth.

Short covering operations were largely responsible for the rally which set in during the last half hour, many of the leaders snapping back one to point points from their low prices of the day. Among the few active issues to show net gains of a point or more were Central Leather, Am Tobacco B and Manili Sugar.

Call money opened at 4 3-4 per cent. and advanced to 5 in the last hour. The time money market was moderately easy with loans arranged at 5 1-4 per cent. for three and four maturities. The bulk of the prime names in the commercial paper market moved at 5 per cent.

Creation of a new low record in demand sterling was the feature of the foreign exchange market. The other principal European rates also were reactionary, French and Belgian francs each dropping six points to 6.60 and 5.70 cents respectively, and German marks reaction from .0029 to .0027 1-2 cents. Spanish exchange also established a new low for the year, the pesets being quoted at 15.23 cents.

BOND MARKET

New York, May 7.—Bond prices moved downward in today's relatively dull trading, all of the active U. S. government issues with the exception of the tax exempt 3 1-2's and the Victory 4 3-4's which advanced slightly selling from 1-32 to 11-32 of a point lower. Foreign issues held fairly firm while industrial and railroad mortgages were reactionary.

Lower prices for the active United States governments was attributed to the government's announcement of new financing at the relatively high interest rate of 4 3-4 per cent. While this rate was somewhat lower than had been predicted in some quarters, it was expected that the other government issues would adjust themselves to the terms of the new issue.

Some of the gilt edged railroad mortgages held fairly firm, changes in this group being generally confined to the more speculative issues. St. Paul refunding 4 1-2's were off 1 1-2, the convertible 4 1-2's, 1 and International Great Northern adjustment 6's, certificates, 1 1-2. Rock Island general 4's were up 1 1-4.

Losses of a point each were recorded in the industrial group by Punta Alegre Sugar 7's, Northern States Power 5's, Eastern Cuba Sugar 7 1-2's, Cerro De Pasco 8's, and Virginia Carolina Chemical 7 1-2's, with warrants. Mariand Oil 8's, with warrents declined two points. Public service of New Jersey 5's were in demand, advancing a point.

Total sales (par value) were $16,210,000.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, May 7.—Influenced chiefly by weakness of stocks and cotton, the wheat market today underwent a material new setback in price. Closing quotations were heavy 1-3 cents to 1 5-8 net lower, with July 115 7-8 to 116 and September 114 3-8 to 114 1-2. Corn finished 3-4 cent to 1 1-4 down, oats off 1-4 cent to 3-4, and provisions at 32 cents to 42 cents decline.

Although an increase of dry weather complaints from Illinois, Indiana and Ohio tended to rally the wheat market at various times, such bullish factors were lost sight of largely in the last part of the day. The close was near to the lowest point reached during the exchange session, and was about 10 cents under recent top figures. Liquidating sales, especially on the part of small holders, were of a persistent character and the downward swing of the market was accelerated by the fact that many orders to sell out at certain limits were forced into operation.

Speculators who bought wheat in the early dealings found it was difficult to unload at the last, particularly as there was nothing to indicate much demand at the seaboard. However, the Liverpool market was rather firm owing to smallness of world shipments to Great Britain, and this circumstance, together with a prospect that the British government would urge Germany to present a more liberal plan of reparations settlement helped somewhat to check the weakness of values here.

Despite a falling-off of 3,280,000 bushels in the visible supply of corn, the prices both of corn and oats receded with wheat. Dry weather reports had only a transient bullish effect on oats.

Provisions went decided lower as a result of continued big receipts of hogs and because of the decline of grain.

Campbell, Thomas H. Morrison, George B. Utter, Louis Rossi, Charles S. Fowler, John D. Nichols, Farquhar Smith, the full membership of the council; City Solicitor John Ferguson, Jr., and Clerk Everett E. Whipple. When the council convened at 9.30 the minutes of the previous meeting were read with the bills omitted.

The first matter discussed was the regulation of the sale of fireworks for the Fourth of July. Solicitor Ferguson reported that with Chief of Police Brown he had taken up the sale of fireworks with Arthur N. Nash and E. Howard Clark. After a considerable discussion in which it was brought out that no control of sale could be had for the Connecticut side of the river, yet arrest and prosecution could be made of purchasers with fireworks in their possession contrary to law when on the Rhode Island side. It was later voted that Town Clerk issue licenses upon the payment of $1.00 to applicants.

Thomas McKensie appeared before the council for the board of water commissioners which has in charge the sewer installation with a report. Superintendent of the Water Works McKensie's report recommended that the notes of the town be issued to meet the cost of construction of the Imhoff tank on the Kenyon lot. Bids had been received by the board for the construction of the tank as follows: Briggs Engineering & Construction Co., Providence $22,267.60 F. D. Miller & Co., Norwich, $22,596.00; Sperry Engineering Co., New Haven, $23,900.00.

A vote of the Water Commissioners was reported as follows:

That the recommendation of the board of Water Commission be accepted and approved and that the board be authorized to enter into necessary contract covering the proposal of the Briggs Engineering Co., for the construction of the Imhoff tank. This was passed by the council.

It was a source of gratification to the Water Board that these construction figures from representative New England firms were so close and but $3,000 in excess of estimate, which was accounted for by increase in cost of material. The contract requires the completion of the tank in 150 working days. No contracts have been asked for filter beds, which is a contract for moving dirt, for which a supplementary bid might be asked for. Notice was given of an application made to the Rhode Island State Board for the Purification of Waters, although not required by law, might prevent later complications. The council voiced its approval of the board's procedure.

The assessment laid by the board of water commissioners read in part:

"We, the board of water commissioners, make the aforegoing assessment upon all estimates abutting upon that portion of Canal, Pleasant, Pierce, Pond, Pearl, Dayton, West, Friendship, High streets, Rose avenue, Margin, Beach, Main, Broad streets, Grove, Newton, Narragansett avenues, Elm, Crescent, School, Chestnut, Spring, George, Summer, Chester avenue, Wicklund avenue and Union street, in which a sewer or main drain is located as ordered by the town council in an ordinance providing for sewer assessment and the payment thereof passed March 5, 1923, amounting to $80,955.35. Dated April 2, 1923. Board of Water Commissioners, Tristam D. Babcock, Albert N. Crandall, Lewis Stanton."

For this total, subject to minor correction, is assessed in seven of the total of nine sewage districts, the following figures obtain: Number of front foot assessed at 60c per foot, $54,037.35; mount, $32,422.41; square foot area assessed at 3-4c per square foot, 6,351,449; amount, $47,613.84; total, $80,955.35.

The ordinance on sewage assessment required a notice within 60 days for the apportionment to five equal payments. Blank forms are supplied and up to the present time the following have given notice: Annie Marroso, West street; Mrs. Carrie M. Greenman, George street; Helen W. Rogers, Canal street; Mrs. E. Aanson Stillman, Main street. When so apportioned the first payment is not due until Oct. 15, and no interest can be charged previous to that date or any penalty exacted after except the 6 per cent. interest. In the following years assessment bills will issue with tax bills as of June 11th.

The action of the water board in this and also their request for blanket authority to make assessment as soon as a street was completed was granted. This will begin with the completion of lower Elm street and errors taken up as individuals, and it will not be necessary to go before the council. In the assessment some 550 names had to be gone over in 30 days and it was not quite completed. The amount $80,055.35 in the average cost is less than 35 per cent. of the cost of sewage to date. Estimates based on rock and soil removal have run from 56 to 16 per cent., with an average to date of 61.1 per cent. of an eight-inch sewer, the pumping station and machinery most expensive part built.

In junking the electric line from White Rock to Norwich, the J. E. Fitzgerald company has asked permission of the council to operate a donkey steam engine to move some 25 cars each way for removal of material. By the deed of property of Thomas Hewitt to Norwich road it was forbidden to operate steam locomotives along the property. It was voted that the construction company file a bond of $25,000 before permission was granted to cover any damage.

The conference of President Campbell and Solicitor Ferguson with Shore Line relative to repair of Watch Hill road and Main street along trolley tracks showed that $4,000 would be required. Receiver Perkins said that this amount was too great in proportion to road's receipts, and Judge Day of the Connecticut superior court would have to be asked for the sum would have to come from the liquidation in the sale of Connecticut property. If the matter was pressed he would instruct his attorney to proceed wit han appeal to court for a receivership and the property sold.

Councilman Smith asked if the new company had taken over the Watch Hill road. Solicitor Ferguson replied that it was being held on trial as an experiment was being made from Jan. 1st through Labor day and the road's destiny influenced by results which Receiver R. W. Perkins said unsatisfactory earnings and unertain results would not permit extra expense where safety did not require it. It was the sentiment of the council that if the highway department cared for Main street the road might spend $600 or $700 on the "cemetery stretch," and the issue be not forced at this time.

The following licenses were granted milk dealers: John L. Kenyon, Herbert H. Crandall, Harry L. Mitchell, H. M. Johnson, M. D., James F. Reale, Walter C. James, Frank Tierney, John L. Davis, Harris P. Chapman.

The chief of police reported four arrests during the month of April—two for intoxication.

Dr. S. C. Webster reported one case of German measles, one case of measles, one case of scarlet fever.

Thomas Morrison for the garbage collection committee reported that but 74 acceptances had been received from citizens and it was decided by the council to let the matter drop.

Just as the council was adjourning William Hartley, Frank Platt, Thomas Goodyear and James Savage, members of Local No. 1405, Textile Workers, residents of Westerly and Rhode Island, asked the granting of a permit to hold a tax day on Saturday next for the benefit of the striking Lorraine operatives. It was the opinion that this permission would establish a precedent and was not given. The police committee of the council said there would be no interference on their part.

Councilman Utter brought up the matter of council 'phone calls being charged to the highway department, and in the future the calls are to be taken by the town clerk. Also the matter of surface water which flows from the New Haven railroad to the property of the town and some of its citizens. It was voted to ask the road to take care of it.

Town Treasurer James M. Pendleton appeared before the town council. He stated that he came for a conference with Solicitor Ferguson as he was under the impression that the act before the Rhode Island legislature to allow the school committee to issue bonds for school construction had been passed. As the act had passed but one house he did not think it advisable to recommend action by the council at this time. This week $13,000 or $14,000 will be required and Treasurer Pendleton wanted the entire amount of issue to be available at one time. He explained that the town was now borrowing money at 4.5 per cent., that when application was made financial institutions for a loan the validity of each authorizing act had to be gone over and needless expense and costs followed. Next fall Mr. Pendleton thought a schoolhouse serial construction bond might be floated as at that time when income tax returns are being filed there was a better market for a tax exempt bond than the present time and by waiting two months a 4 per cent. bond issue.

Mr. Pendleton said he regretted that due to a transposition of figures the playground association fund was overdrawn. That an auditor be added to the town's officers would be a saving in the financial affairs of the town was urged by the town treasurer. It was brought out that Westerly was not large enough for a city form of handling its expenses yet was too large for a town. As at present, the school and highway departments are not subject to one department which can pass on the bills as presented, but are separate from the other town departments.

Fifty-one of the town departments might result in financial loss that would have to be met by the taxpayers. It would be the duty of an auditor or town accountant to check up on all expenditures. The town treasurer would have to furnish the council with a list of unexpended balances.

Councilman Campbell asked what salary the town accountant should receive and the treasurer replied that at first an expert accountant might perform the duty and the expense would not be large. Councilman Campbell stated that he did not think the new school building would be completed this year.

The subject of employing a person to check up personal property and poll taxpayers was brought up with the statement that 850 names were on the tax list. Little progress has been made in straightening out the conditions. Solicitor Ferguson reported the itinerant venders act, urging the council to take action for Westerly exemption.

Bills were ordered paid by the councillors with the exception of an item of town of Westerly, sewer assessment, $224.63, which was ordered stricken out.

It was commented on that the cost of fighting forest fires had been but a small sum when compared with a year ago, upon whih a large sum was then spent.

DRIVER FINED FOR OPERATING UNDER INFLUENCE

(Special to hte Bulletin)

Westerly, May 7—Following an automobile collision between two machines near the Chesbro ice house Sunday Walter S. Kenyon of Pawcatuck was placed under arrest by Police Constable Charles W. Connors that night charged with driving an automobile along a state road while under the influence of intoxicating liquor. Accompanied by Thomas Purcill of Stonington, Kenyon had operated the machine in a zig-zag course from side to side of the road until it crashed into the machine driven by Thomas H. Shackley of Stonington borough on the Stonington road.

On presentation by Assistant Prosecuting Attorney William A. Wilcox before Judge Frank H. Hinckley the minimum fine of $100 and costs of $17.40 was imposed and paid by the defendant Monday in Stonington town court. Appearing as witnesses were Morris Rosa, Mrs. Thomas Shackley, Miss Catherine Sullivan and Thomas Shackley.

TAFTVILLE

On Saturday, the Army and Navy club signed an agreement with the St. Louis society to lease for the period of one year, with the right to renew it for four years at the expiration of the first year, the upper floor of the Casino on Dion street. The important deal was handled for the St. Louis society by its general, David Lambert, treasurer, Albert Barry, Arthur Roy, president of the Army and Navy club and Ernest Frechette, treasurer of the club. The acquisition of this new property places the army and navy club in the front rank of the social clubs in the village. The club has grown remarkably since its organization and felt the need of greater room. In their new location, they will have sufficient space for a gymnasium, reading room and pool room and up-to-date shower baths will be installed in the basement. The club is active in outdoor sports in the village, and has a team to represent it in pool tournaments. The St. Louis society will retain the lodge rooms in the basement of the Casino which they will continue to sublet to the various fraternal and social organizations in the village.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Williams have returned to England, sailing on the steamship Cedric, which cleared from New York, Saturday morning. Mr. Williams was one of the fitters in the employ of Platt Bros. of Oldham, England, who were installing machinery in the carding department of the Ponemah mills. He and Mrs. Williams have made their home in the village for some months, and also resided in Ocoum. Mr. Williams was one of the popular members of the Taftville Football and Social club, and Mrs. Williams took an active part in the affairs of the Taftville Congregational church, being a member of the home department of the Sunday school, the Ladies' Benevolent society, and she was also a member of Taftville chapter, American Red Cross.

One of the pipes which carries the water from the reservoir to the No. 4 weave shed of the Ponemah company became clogged Monday morning, and it was impossible to get any water from the faucet. Pipers who disconnected the pipes found an eel about three feet long which had got into one of the joints, and the pressure of the water was not enough to dislodge it. The workmen found it necessary to cut the eel up into small pieces before they could remove it from the pipes.

Louis L'Heureux of South C street was seized with an attack of heart trouble while at his work as a weaver in the No. 4 weaving department of the Ponemah mills, Monday afternoon. Needed at Dances And the Sea Shore

(Aids to Beauty)

Here is a home treatment for removing hairs that is quick, painless and inexpensive: With some powdered delatone and water make enough paste to thickly cover the objectionable hairs, apply and after 2 or 3 minutes rub off, wash the skin and it will be left soft, clear and hairless. This treatment will not mar the skin, but to avoid disappointment, be careful to get real delatone. Mix fresh as needed.

FREIGHT TRAIN WRECK BLOCKED TRACK AT ALLYN'S POINT FOR HOURS

The Worcester branch of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad was completely tied up Monday when 11 of the 39 cars of freight train N. W. No. 2 bound from New Haven for Worcester piled up at Allyn's Point at 1.50 o'clock Monday morning. The train, in charge of Conductor Charles Sullivan and Engineer W. H. Cooper of New London, was making fast speed up the grade when a hopper broke on one of the head cars, loaded with pig-iron, causing the cars following to jump the rails and pile up along the embankment. One of the cars landed endup in the Thames river.

The wreck completely blocked the line until about 3 o'clock in the afternoon when the line was repaired and opened to allow the 3.08 o'clock passenger train from Norwich to New London go through. Before this all trains had been routed over the Central Vermont to Norwich then over the old Norwich & Worcester tracks onto the New Haven line at the Norwich station.

Although the tracks were ripped up by the cars and the jam was a bad one the train crew escaped injury, only one man, Flagman Dayton, who was riding in the caboose receiving minor cuts and bruises when thrown about in the cab by the shock.

The wrecker was soon on the scene and with the wrecking crew got busy and hauled many of the cars back onto the iron, pushing others to one side to open the tracks.

It was stated Monday afternoon that the damage to merchandise could not be estimated but it was believed to be slight, the largest loss being in flour in the car that landed in the river. The damage to the freight cars is also slight, most of them with slight repairs being ready for service again.

BROKEN NECK CAUSE OF MISS HUBBARD'S DEATH

The sudden death of Miss Betty Hubbard, 19, colored, in an elevator at the Falls Co. mill on Tuesday morning, April 24, was caused by a broken neck and concussion of the brain, according to the finding of Medical Examiner C. C. Gildersleeve and Coroner J. J. Desmond.

Miss Hubbard, who was a large and heavy woman, sustained the broken neck in a fall to the floor of the elevator, according to the belief of the medical authorities, this being caused by some sudden seizure or weakness in which she pitched headfirst to the floor in such a way as to break her neck. She was alone on the elevator at the time and there was nothing on the inside of the cage that could have caused such injuries as she received, it was found.

GREASE ON FIRE IN RESTAURANT KITCHEN

The fire department was called out Monday night about 9 o'clock for a fire in the kitchen of Sellas lunch. A pan of grease on the range suddenly took fire and the flames were shooting up to the ceiling when the firemen arrived, but they made short work of it and soon had the blaze out before any damage could be caused.

This was the second fire at the lunch room within a week, the first call being for a fire beneath the floor of the restaurant which was quickly extinguished by the department.

POETRY

MAY AND HER LAUGHING ATTENDANTS.

Paint the waterfowls' far situation
Well, as they wedged from the south;
Now the rose from her high situation
Smiles with the red on her mouth.
The West Wind's wild basin upraising,
Sets all the little branches a-swing,
Gladly robins, the truth realising,
Sing!
A flourish of green in the grasses;
A low, balmy breath by the brook,
Unraveling the catkins' gay masses,
Where bug yesterday shook
Barren branches seen through dim-litten
Panes; now in beauty they bring
This truth, in fair violets written,
"Spring!"

The snowdrifts no longer beleaguer
The broken down stile or the path;
For come, like a dream, in the rigor
Of Winter's stern wrath.
All eyes on the newcomer now center;
Above the portal in roses appear;
"The sweetest of hopes have who enter Here!"

And now that the Winter's relenting,
While his rude retainers retreat,
Like Raleigh, the Springtime's presenting
With courtesy sweet,
A mantle bedecked with dew-pendants,
Along each untrodden by-way,
For you, and your laughing attendants
May!

Decar hands while the bluebells are tolling
The passing of Winter's stern sway,
From the tomb of the Springtime are rolling
The dark stone away.
Weighed down by sorrow with dejection,
For grief's but a night that endures
With peace we may take our election
Sure!

MAY IN DEVON.

It's May again in Devonshire
And every country lan,
Is green again and gold again
And shining after rain.
While all along the sea there runs
A magic wall of fire;
The fairies sight on England's shore
These cliffs of Devonshire.

Take you your cliffs of Dover white
Whose faces look toward France,
Or the dark hills of Cornwall's pride
Where youths and maidens dance
For me the cliffs of Devonshire
Have beauty yes and more
Than the brown cliffs or the gray cliffs
Of all old England's shore.

I've loved a June in Surrey's lanes
And later walked in Kent;
My memory holds a Dartmoor month
When I was well content
But never the year meets May again
But there's that old desire
To seek again those red-brown heights
The cliffs of Devonshire.

BRIGANDS USED FOREIGN PRISONERS AS SHIELDS

Some of the Captives Were Shot When Government Troops Attacked the Bandits—Troops Are Believed to Have Surrounded All the Hill Strongholds of the Bandits—Negotiations Have Been Started for the Release of the Prisoners.

Peking, May 8 (By the A. P.)—Some of the foreign prisoners taken by the bandits who raided the Shanghai-Peking express train Sunday were shot when the brigands used them as shields from the bullets of the attacking government troops, according to unconfirmed reports received both here and at Tientsin.

TROOPS SURROUND THE STRONGHOLD OF BANDITS

Tientsin, May 8 (By the A. P.)—Government troops are believed to have completely surrounded all the hill strongholds where fifteen foreigners are being held by the Suchow bandits, according to C. G. Jacobson, inspecting engineer for the British American Tobacco company, who ran a gauntlet of bullets to carry the bandits' demands to the outside. Jacobsen arrived here today.

Jacobsen told a graphic story of separate dashes made by himself and Miss Schonberg, another captive, through a "No Man's Land" swept by the fire of the bandits and the pursuing soldiers, of how he reached the troops [illegible] waving his cotton underwear as a flag of truce after he had overpowered and disarmed the last brigand he encountered; of Miss Schonberg's nerve in braving the bullet raked zone after the bandit guard in the doorway of their prison had been shot down by rifle fire from the besieging soldiers.

Jacobsen said that the entire party, after their capture Sunday morning were marched steadily three hours across country, up into the hills to the east. After gaining the high ground, they were broken up into groups which were led off in different directions. His party, numbering eight, including Major Pinsle, Miss Schonberg and major's son Roland, and a Mexican couple.

They were driven over boulder-strewn trails, across hills 2,000 feet high for another two or three hours and finally reached a walled enclosure—the bandits' stronghold.

Two hours later soldiers appeared on the scene and immediately opened fire. The only protection for the party was the seven-foot wall about the compound and they crouched in the corner under the bullet hail, hungry and miserable. They had no food and their clothing was scant.

After a consultation the bandit chief agreed to the suggestion that one of the foreigners be sent out to the troops and arrange for his passage through the lines to Peking to negotiate ransom for the remainder.

An Italian lawyer of Shanghai, Chevalier Musso, was chosen as the emissary. He started but returned almost immediately as the troops redoubled their fire on his appearance. Then Jacobsen undertook to make the dash.

As he passed the stockade gates bullets missed him by inches, but he succeeded in reaching the bottom of the hill on which the bandit stronghold stood. There he collapsed exhausted.

As he lay there other bandits came up and he feigned unconsciousness. They all passed him by except one. Jacobsen watched his opportunity and gathering his strength he leaped on the brigand and disarmed him.

Heading in the direction in which he believed the troops to be, he came up to them at last and to induce them to cease firing on him he took off his underwear and waved it as a flag of truce. The troops recognized the signal and treated him kindly.

The fugitive was taken before the captain in charge of the detachment who questioned him calmly despite a severely wounded hand that hung limp from a uniformed sleeve smashed by a bandit bullet.

Here Jacobsen met the American named Day, who also had escaped and Miss Schonberg who had been sent out in his wake by the bandits as a second messenger.

Miss Schonberg, Jacobsen said, had displayed unusual courage. She had volunteered to run the gauntlet from the brigands' fort and had escaped almost miraculously. As she passed through the gateway, the guard there fell at her feet, shot through the throat, but she kept on her course and reached safety. The engineer said that members of the party were compelled to entertain the bandits in their stronghold by playing jazz instruments that had been seized in the raid on the train at Suchow. He added that he was certain the soldiers had completely surrounded all the hill fastnesses in which the captives were being held.

NEGOTIATING FOR THE RELEASE OF CAPTIVES

FABULOUS SALARIES OF MOTION PICTURE STARS

New York, May 8.—Well known motion picture stars receive from $100,000 to $350,000 for each picture they work in. It was revealed today by John D. Williams, organizer of the First National Exhibitors Circuit, Inc., who testified at the federal trade commission hearing as to whether the Famous-Players-Lasky corporation and its subsidiaries constitute a trust.

Williams told of the salaries paid the stars after his testimony that the Famous Players controlled 60 per cent of the leading film men and women in 1916 was challenged.

Charlie Chaplin, he said, had received $1,000,000 in 1917 to produce eight pictures, while between 1917 and 1918, Mary Pickford had received $350,000 for each of three pictures. Norma Talmadge, he said, first received $150,000 each with a share in the profits of eight pictures, and later had been engaged at $350,000 for each of twelve more pictures.

Constance Talmadge appeared first in 12 pictures at $110,000 each and later had received $150,000 each for a second dozen. Katherine McDonald had received $600,000 for six pictures.

Thousands of dollars, Williams said, had been paid to the stars before work on the pictures began, and in instances in addition to their salaries, they received a share of the profits and even higher salaries for renewals of contracts. Some received as high as $850,000 bonus for signing contracts, he said.

HOOVER SEES NO SIGN OF APPROACHING HARD TIMES

New York, May 8.—The prosperity America is now enjoying can be made permanent if the business men of the nation exercise confidence and caution rather than timidity. Herbert Hoover, secretary of commerce, said tonight before the chamber of commerce of the United States, in annual convention. He declared the present business health was by no means an augury of approaching hard times.

His address was made at the Hippodrome after Julius H. Barnes, president, had outlined the chamber's program for settling domestic and international problems; Raita Fujiyama, president of the National Federation of Chambers of Commerce of Japan, had predicted a future of friendly and cooperative amity between this nation and his own; and Representative Albert Johnson of Washington, chairman of the house committee on immigration and naturalization, had forecast the further restriction of immigration by the next congress.

"During the last few weeks there has been a distinct note of caution in our rapid industrial recovery," Mr. Hoover said, "I have shared in this; but some have gone so far as to fear that we are entering a period of inflation or danger of collapse.

"We have no need to go into a period of inflation. We are undoubtedly in a plane of prosperity, and we wish to hang on to prosperity. I am not one of those who believes that hard times have any special advantage in disciplining our minds. We ought to be able to discipline ourselves in prosperity when we have time to do it, and, having achieved prosperity, we ought to be able to hang on to it.

"We must not judge the state of business activity by pre-war figures, but by a hugely increased base. We must not be frightened when output of steel or textiles or automobiles, lumber, corn or hogs, or our car loadings amount to figures in excess of those that would be implied along in a normal growth of population, there has been in the past decade an unparalleled growth of our industrial and commercial efficiency and our consequent ability to consume."

PERMANENT ENAMEL BAKED ON STEEL

Eight years ago, when Dodge Brothers originated the all-steel motor car body, they took advantage of the absence of wood in the framework to bake an enamel finish on the surface of the steel.

In a vast series of electric ovens, especially designed and built by Dodge Brothers' engineers for this process, three distinct coats of black enamel are successively baked on the steel at an intensely high temperature.

The result is a finish so hardy and durable that it seldom requires more than a good cleaning and polishing to restore the original brightness.

Even in sections of the Southwest where alkali in the soil is especially destructive to body finishes, Dodge Brothers enamel retains its beautiful lustre after years of wear.

ST. LOUIS CARDINALS TO PLAY HERE NEXT SUNDAY AGAINST LOCAL CLUB

The St. Louis Cardinals will play at the Fairgrounds on Sunday, Manager William O'Leary of the local baseball club received a telegram Tuesday noon from the secretary of the Cardinals stating that as their scheduled game at Providence for Sunday had been cancelled the team would play in Norwich if Manager O'Leary could make the necessary arrangements. Manager O'Leary immediately cancelled the game with the Gardner Town team and wired the St. Louis club that he would book them for Sunday.

St. Louis will bring all the regulars on the squad including Rogers Hornsby, leading hitter of the National League and the home run king for the 1922 season. The Cardinals finished in third berth last year after a close race with the Giants and Cincinnati. With practically the same team as last year the club is leading the second division of the National League and is going strong.

Besides Hornsby the Cardinals will bring to Norwich, Blades, Bottomley, Doc Lavan, Milton Stock, Torpercer, Ainsmith and others of equal note. This is the only time that the Cardinals will play in this section this season and will probably be their only exhibition game in New England. The Cards were here two years ago and made many friends in Norwich. After leaving Norwich that year the Cards started a winning streak and they have always had a soft spot in their hearts for the Rose of New England so that Norwich was given first preference after Providence had cancelled the game.

It is seldom that major league teams give exhibitions in small towns and Norwich and Eastern Connecticut is fortunate in securing this attraction this season.

Manager O'Leary will put a strong aggregation in the field against the visiting big leaguers and while he does not feel certain of victory he is of the opinion that his club will put up a good exhibition. At this early date he is undecided just who will pitch against the Cards but is out to get a real hurler.

Of course it is not known who the Cards will use against the local team but the fans can rest assured that they will see some of the best ball players in the country in action at the Fairgrounds Sunday afternoon. Everyone is familiar with Rogers Hornsby's record as one of the greatest second sackers that the game has ever known and local fans will welcome his appearance here.

YANKS TAKE CLOSE GAME FROM INDIANS

Cleveland, Ohio, May 8.—New York defeated Cleveland, 3 to 2, in the opening game of the series here today, rain stopping the play in the seventh inning. Coveleskie outpitched Bob Shawkey but poor support caused his defeat. Guisto's error paved the way to the Yankees first run while a mental nap by Wamby and Sewell's wild throw were the avenues for the champions two runs in the sixth. The score:

YOUNG GANS LOOKING FOR BOUTS FOR HIS BOYS

Young Joe Gans, who is training several of the local boys for the squared circle, is looking for several bouts for his men in local rings or in towns near by Norwich. Gans has Irish Billy Glynn, Red Rankin, Tony Bruso and Kid Miller in his stable, and says that all four are coming along at a good clip, especially Glynn and Rankin. Besides these boys, he has several youngsters of tender age who would like to appear before lodge smokers or in private exhibitions.

Red Rankin after a layoff of several years is back in shape again and is going strong, as was evidenced by his work in the recent bout at Danielson. Glynn is a frish fighter and is a whirlwind of action when he gets started but needs a little more ring experience. Tony Bruso is a clever boy and is one who would fit in well on any card as a prelim or semi-finalist.

FEDERATION SUSTAINS ACTION OF A.A. U. REGARDING PADDOCK

New York, May 8 (By the A. P.)—Henry Breckinridge, president of the National Amateur Athletic Federation of America, tonight issued a statement denying published reports that he had sustained the action of the Amateur Athletic Union in disqualifying Charles Paddock, California sprinting star, for participating without A. A. U. sanction in a students' meet at Paris last week.

"The president of the National Amateur Athletic Federation of America," Mr. Breckinridge's statement said, "has been quoted as sustaining the action of the Amateur Athletic Union in the Paddock case. This report of his position is entirely unfounded in fact."

While it was inferred from his statement that the N. A. A. F. might side with the National Collegiate Athletic Association, which has backed Paddock in his defiance of the A. A. U., it was emphasized by Elwood S. Brown, executive officer of the federation, that no official action had been taken as yet.

"As far as the federation is concerned," Mr. Brown explained, "the Paddock case has not come before it officially, because, as it stands at present, it is a matter in which our organization is in no way concerned."

Asked whether the federation might go on record, however, either on the side of the N. C. A. A. or the A. A. U., Mr. Brown replied that it was altogether possible that the executive board would take up the issue at its next session. Until then, he added, no statement of its opinion as an athletic governing body would be forthcoming.

Brig. Gen. Palmer E. Pierce, president of the N. C. A. A., which is a constituent member of the Federation, came out flatly in support of Paddock's participation in the Paris meet after the A. A. U. had declared it would disbar the sprinter for his alleged violation of international athletic regulations.

Subsequently the French Athletic Federation, supporting the A. A. U., took steps to stop Paddock from competing and, after its edict was ignored, placed under official ban the Paris University club, which sponsored the meet.

SISLER WILL PLAY BALL NEXT MONTH

St. Louis, Mo.; Phil Ball, owner of the St. Louis Americans, this afternoon expressed the opinion that George Sisler, star first sacker, would be back in the line up some time in June, perhaps by the first of the month. He added that Sisler, who is suffering an eye trouble was "very much improved".

TWILIGHT LEAGUE WILL START THE SEASON NEXT MONDAY AT FAIRGROUNDS

Next Monday the Norwich Twilight baseball league will get under way when the first game will be played at the Fairgrounds at 6.30 o'clock, according to the vote of the general meeting held at the chamber of commerce rooms on Tuesday evening. The meeting was presided over by Earl Mathewson as temporary chairman.

The meeting endorsed the action of the nominating committee and ratified the election of William F. Hill as president of the league, Harold T. Robinson as vice president and secretary and Arthur E. Story astreasurer. Mr. Hill was greeted with a rousing burst of applause as Mr. Mathewson turned the meeting over to him. He spoke briefly saying that he considered it a great honor to head the league and while he thought that he was through with baseball many years ago he found that the game never dies and still holds his interest. Mr. Hill said:

"I believe our beloved game will last for all time, and will not only be the only national game of this country, but will in years to come spread all over the civilized world.

"I hope I may live to see a real world series of the best clubs in the countries of the eastern and western hemispheres. I may be accused of dreaming but when you think of the recent trip from the Atlantic to the Pacific in 26 hours, you must rub your eyes and wonder if the whole world isn't dreaming. The dream of today is a reality of tomorrow. The great Napoleon once said "impossible was a word only fit for the fool's dictionary."

"The children of today are well cared for by the city with its playgrounds. They play the children's games of their age. It develops their tiny muscles and improves their health. Soon they want a field where they can play ball. That develops not only the body but helps their minds. It requires quick thinking as well as quick action to be a real player. In fact all outdoor sports will develop both the mind and body.

"If you would take a number of men and women below normal in health, give them an athletic field where they can indulge in their favorite sport both summer and winter, I am positive there would be less nervous breakdowns.

"If our Twilight league is to be a success, it means everyone must do their part. We must have a board of directors working in harmony, and all willing to do the work assigned to them. If you do that boys, you will have a league that you will be proud of. I for one, want to see the most intense friendly rivalry among the different club. I want to see the young boy develop, and perhaps good old Norwich will furnish a few players that will have a national reputation. In closing, I want to say this one thing. 'Don't wait for someone to tell you what to do, but do some awful strong thinking yourself, and you will dig something up that will help our cause, that the other fellow did not think of."

"I accept this presidency not for myself, but because I want to help you boys. I want you to build up a healthy, clean body, and make real men of yourselves, and when you arrive at a good old age, you will be a healthy and happy man. For health is everything. Millions of dollars can buy most anything, but will not restore broken down health.

After his short talk to the members of the league Mr. Hill requested that Mr. Mathewson resume the chair for the remainder of the meeting. The first matter to be considered was the matter of allowing so-called local semi-professional players to play in the league. This matter caused considerable discussion and it was finally voted to allow all local players to participate in the league with the exception of those connected with organized baseball.

A board of control or board of directors was voted to be composed of the officers of the league together with two other persons outside the league to be appointed by the president.

It was also voted that all the games be played at the Fairgrounds during the first five nights of the week with holidays excepted. All postponed games will be left with the board of control to decide when they shall be played if the managers of the two teams concerned can agree.

The matter of the selection of umpires was left with the board of control as was the adoption of the league ball, equipment and a few minor details.

It was voted that the bond of each team should be left with the Sports Editor of The Bulletin not later than 8 o'clock Friday evening, May 11th. M. F. Standish was appointed to draw up the schedule of the season and have it printed on Saturday morning.

Other minor rules regarding the league were adopted and will be printed in the rules governing the league a copy of which will be sent to each manager some time within the next few days.

There will be a meeting of the board of control at an early date so that everything will be ready for the opening of the league on Monday evening.

HARTFORD BEATS PONIES IN WEIRD CONTEST

Springfield, Mass., May 8—Hartford used three pitchers today to beat Springfield in a weird game in which the Ponies' ragged fielding offset their timely batting. Simpson featured both with the bat and on the bases. Score by innings.

Two base hits, Bernard, Conway, Damean. Home runs, Simpson. Stolen bases, Cosgrove, Hauk, 2; Duffy.

SIX AMERICANS REMAIN IN BRITISH TITLE PLAY

Deal, England, May 8.—(By The A. P.)—On the basis of proportional representation, it is a one to one shot tonight that an American will be the next amateur golf champion of Great Britain. Six of the sixty-four golfers who remained in the struggle for the title after the second round had ended today are members of the team which came from the United States to defend the Walker cup.

They are Francis Ouimet, Dr. O. F. Willing, George V. Rotan, John F. Neville, Fred Wright, Jr., and Maxwell R. Marston. Two of their companions, S. Davison Herron and Harrison R. Johnston were among the eighty-odd golfers eliminated from the field between dawn and sunset. A third American, Robert Hunter, who came over as an individual player and not as a member of the team, also went down to defeat. One other native born American aside from the six mentioned above is still in the grind. He is Douglas Grant, who lives in London, and who put out Johnston during the afternoon play.

All but one of the surviving Americans are in the lower half. The British strength is better distributed.

Ouimet, who defeated Bernard Darwin today by a score of 3 and 2, is still considered by the British onlookers to have the best chance of any of the Americans to capture the title; but tonight the sharps have begun to look upon Rotan, the tall Texan, as an added menace to the English title. Yesterday Rotan turned in the lowest card of the first round play, and today he played better than on Monday, going out in 34 and dispesing of his opponent, Leslie Schon, at the twelfth hole, where he was 7 up.

The Texan flashed down the field like an arrow, scoring four birdies and five pars on the first nine holes and another birdie and another par on the remaining three.

PROFS BUNCH HITS IN NINTH AND WIN

Bridgeport, May 8.—New Haven bunched hits off Brown and aided by Gillespie's wildness in the ninth defeated Bridgeport 7 to 2 here today. Carrigan, although touched for eight safeties, was effective in the pinches. Score by innings:

New Haven	0	0	0	2	0	0	0	0	1	—7

SAFETY ON CONNECTICUT HIGHWAYS.

With the department of motor vehicles reporting that the general accident situation throughout the state has becoming worse and worse, with both fatalities and less serious accidents increasing by leaps and bounds, it has certainly reached a wise decision in arranging to open on the 15th an intensive safety campaign throughout the commonwealth.

When some of the cities are showing twice as many accidents as last year, others a third more and most all in which records have been kept are disclosing an increase the situation is one to call for action of an emphatic nature.

Connecticut has more machines than it had last year and Connecticut highways are being utilized as they never were before by machines from other states. New traffic regulations are constantly going into effect for the purpose of preventing accidents and yet they pile up. Though the streets are more congested with motor vehicles than ever before there is still maintained too little regard for the rights of the other fellow and too strong a disposition to take chances and to push the machine for all the speed it will stand under conditions that do not justify it. Likewise, in spite of prohibition, there are those who persist in taking the wheel of a car when they are in no condition to drive.

Traffic problems of the present day are enormous. There are those who are scrupulously careful to see that the letter of the law is obeyed and the rights of other highway users are respected. But there is a class of drivers, some of whom may grow careless through constant driving and chance taking, that endangers all users of the streets and highways.

Whatever the motor vehicles department can accomplish for the betterment of conditions will be heartily welcomed. It is to be hoped, however, that the campaign will cover a sufficient period to amount to something. It deserves and should get all possible cooperation.

LONG DISTANCE FLYING RECORDS.

Because there hasn't been a strict compliance with the rules of the National Aeronautical association that organization will not recognise the cross country accomplishment of Lieutenants Macready and Kelly. It does not claim that they did not make the trip, it does not take exception to the time or the conditions under which the flight was made and it does not intimate that they made a landing on the way. The only trouble is that there is a provision in their rules which requires that aviators who undertake distance or duration flights must return to the point from which they start.

Such a rule seems to have been established through the influence of European countries, where it is impossible to make distance flights of the extent attempted by the army aviators without crossing several countries, whereas it simply means going from ocean to ocean in the United States. If the lieutenants had gone half way across the countries and then returned their record would have been acknowledged. Because they have done the same thing in a straight line and really encountered worse conditions by so doing they are to be deprived of recognition.

That is the aeronautical association will not give them credit. But that doesn't mean that they will fail to get the credit that they are entitled to from the country at large. The situation plainly indicates that the association is supporting a rule which ought to be changed. If there are European conditions which require such a restriction on long distance flying they certainly do not exist in this country. It cannot be imagined that an aviator flying halfway across the Atlantic and then returning here would get the same amount of popular credit as the one who stuck it out and went entirely across, even though the distance would be no greater.

It is necessary to have rules when records are being attacked but it is evident that all the long distance flying is not going to be done in circles, and there seems to be no good reason why straight away flights should not be properly credited.

MEMORIAL TREES.

State officials and mayors from Massachusetts have recently been in Washington for the purpose of setting out memorial trees. Memorial trees are not new. They have been used for such purposes for a great many years, but within the past few years, since the close of the World war, the idea has been more generally resorted to with individual trees, groves and those along highways being set out in memory of those who made the supreme sacrifice.

But Massachusetts has been adding to the number of trees in the national memorial and dedicating them [illegible] Lincoln, Washington and Roosevelt highways, the Lincoln highway being the first of the Massachusetts elms and dedicating each as a tribute to his memory along what is to be known as Massachusetts avenue of memorial trees.

This tree planting idea is one which may well be emulated by other states. Memorial avenues have their place and what is a fine thing for Washington is likewise just as fine for other communities. The tree planting idea is in no danger of being overdone. It would be well if there was an organization in every city that looked to the task of replacing the dead trees or of setting out new ones where it has been necessary to remove others, when conditions permit.

There is certain to be a long and lasting memorial for individuals in such an arrangement. Trees will not last forever, but they grow and stand majestically along well kept roads or grounds.

What Massachusetts officials have carried out in Washington will have its good effects in behalf of tree planting, and the excellence of the idea will become more and more impressive as the years pass and the trees mature. As a center of attraction for people in all sections of the country it is quite evident that those going to the national capital from the different states would be keenly interested in the particular memorial avenue which was shaded by trees set out by their state.

A FINE SHOWING.

Once again the masterly guidance of the national finances is reflected in the statement which is made by the treasury department to the effect that the national debt will have been cut $1,800,000,000 by the end of this fiscal year, and during a period of 26 months, and that by the end of the fiscal year, closing with June, there will be a surplus in the treasury for the year of $125,000,000.

These facts are brought out at a time when some new financing is being undertaking for the payment of the Victory notes, a large government loan which is being gradually reduced by short term notes instead of by long term bond issues calling for interest payments over many years. The gradual cutting down of the national debt doesn't mean that there is any immediate prospect that it will be soon wiped out for it still amounts to more than $22,000,000,000 but every time there is a big slice taken off it it means just that much reduction in the amount of interest payments and by the reductions that have been made the country is being saved more than $80,000,000 in interest yearly.

It is through the careful administration of the government funds and the operation of administration policies that such excellent results have been obtained. Only a few months ago, even with the curtailment of expenditures, it was expected that the fiscal year would end with a deficit of about a half billion dollars. Through the sound business administration and the favorable effects of the tariff this prospect of a deficit has not only been overcome but a substantial surplus will be shown. It is a showing that certainly speaks for itself.

THE WILLFUL BLIND.

When France replied to the German offer it spoke for itself and not for the allies. When the time comes, if it ever does, that there is an acceptance of the German terms there will be a joint reply, for France recognizes that such is required.

With the prompt negative answer by France it is realized nevertheless that it speaks the sentiment of the other countries. Great Britain is not disposed to accept the German reparation offer. That it doesn't appeal to it is recognized by the attitude it has taken in intimating to Germany that it should make use of its offer as a basis for further negotiations, and should increase the amount.

When France declines to accept the terms it points out to Germany what it is willing to do. It repeats what has been said from time to time before. It has been quite as anxious as any other country for an adjustment without trouble, but it has not been able to get it. It hasn't even now slammed the door in the face of further negotiations, but has, and apparently intentionally, left the way open if Germany is disposed to make the most of it under its own initiation or through such encouraging words as Great Britain may say to it.

One of the great troubles with Germany is that it still clings to the idea that it can convince the allied nations, including France, that it is unable to pay any more than it has said that it could. The facts seem to be well established that such an attitude has made no impression upon France. It is pursuing the wrong course but is a long time in coming to a realization of it. There are none so blind as those who will not see.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

It is tough on those who have changed from winter to summer furs and are determined to stick it out.

England reports a decrease of 33 per cent in divorces. Is that getting back to or going below normalcy?

The date when a legislature ought to adjourn doesn't always correspond with the inclinations of that august body.

The man on the corner says: Prosperity is real when part of Canada wants to come down and share it with us.

Before long the summer hotel proprietors will be petitioning for warmer weather just to give the proper spurt to business.

Even if 11,000,000 Russian lives were saved by American relief work soviet Russia doesn't seem disposed to keep them alive.

Opinions were quite general that France would not accept the German offer. But it was not the opinions that guided the French judgment. France knows its own mind.

We never expected it to happen but a Pennsylvania girl has washed dishes for 31 hours without stopping. It is noteworthy, however, that her stunt hasn't made others crazy to outdo her record.

It is to be hoped that the prediction of a $60,000,000 surplus for the fiscal year will be realized. That will reflect the soundness of republican policies and administration and show the right disposition toward debt re-

HER PARISIENNE

"I don't think you are as glad to see me as I hoped you might be," said the young man sadly. "I didn't expect you to be exactly crazy with delight. I only thought you might be mildly pleased, but you are about as approachable as an iceberg."

"Oh, no," said the girly calmly. "I really have been looking forward to your coming home. I hoped you could tell me a lot about the fashions in Paris and something, perhaps, of the gowns the girls wear."

"When a fellow is sent to France on business he hasn't much time to notice gowns," said the young man. "My business was to notice certain architecture so that my firm can fill some contracts this winter. I had to study soil and atmospheric conditions and a lot of things that must be absolutely uninteresting to you."

"I got your card from Cherbourg," the girl told him. "The one that said you were having such a good time, you know."

"That was just before we sailed for home," the young man explained. "There was a crowd of us sightseeing together, my uncle and four cousins and I. They had just landed and I was trying to show them around before they went on to Paris. They are great fun, those girls."

"I've never met them," said the young woman politely. "What are their names?"

"Their last name is Monroe," said the young man, surprised. "And there are Alice and Daisy, Fan and Mabel. I am quite sure you have never seen any of them."

"I have never heard of them, either," said the girl. "I suppose you met lots of people you found very interesting over there?"

"Oh, yes!" declared the young man. "The elevator man at the hotel and the doorman and five or six taxi chauffeurs were quite pleasant, though set on getting tips occasionally. Oh, yes, and one other."

"Yes," the girl prompted him. "And that was?"

"The best conversationalist I ever met," said the young man with enthusiam. "Stunning-looking and mighty good to me."

"Wasn't that nice!" exclaimed the girl, trying to be enthusiastic. "Don't you want to tell me about her?"

"Her?" laughed the young man. "I was speaking about our representative over in Paris. He took a lot of trouble to help me in every way or I wouldn't have succeeded in my errand. It's no wonder that I am so thankful to him, since he made it possible for me to win out."

"You would have won out anyway," said the girl scornfully. "I am sure you must have had a fine time socially, meeting a lot of French girls and all that, don't you know!"

"I didn't see any good-looking ones," said the young man. "And they could scarcely seem interesting to me when the only French I know is what I pick up in books on architecture."

"It must have been interesting to see the inside of French homes," said the girl. "I have often thought that if I should go over to France I should like to see some of the real French people. What are they like?"

"Search me," said the young man, easily. "Our representative is an American living over there and his family is away, so we dined at the restaurants. I am ever so sorry that I cannot tell you anything at all about the natives. I did say some few things in my letter, didn't I? I was there so short a time I didn't have time to write again."

"Your letter?" repeated the girl. This is the first thing I have heard about a letter."

"I gave it to George to bring over to you," said the young man, much upset. "He sailed a week before I did and he said he would not forget. No wonder you were cool when I came in!"

"Cool?" said the girl. "Why, not at all! Of course I am pleased that you wrote, but that's all."

"Great Scott!" cried the young man. "Think of all the time I put in writing that letter and then you never got it!"

"Did you find it difficult to write to me?" asked the girl coldly. "Why, then, did you trouble?"

"Oh, I suppose you don't care anything about whether I wanted to write or not," sighed the young man. "But that particular letter meant a lot to me. I came over tonight to get the answer to it and you froze me stiff. Does that mean it's no?"

"Why, why—I don't understand," stammered the girl. "Your uncle told my father in a letter yesterday, that you went daft or crasy or something over Madeline, and of coarse I thought—"

"Madeleine?" said the young man puzzled. "Oh, Great Scott, I see now! Dear, don't you know that the Madeleine is a church and I am an enthusiastic architect. —Now I've got my answer to my letter!"—Exchange.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Bank Corner Stop

Mr. Editor: What kind of consideration can the city fathers be giving to the convenience of the trolley patrons when the common council votes to ask the trolley company to abandon its stop at the corner of Main and Shetucket streets?

It is of course a busy corner, but the idea that a car cannot stop between Market street and the square is ridiculous. The real trouble at the bank corner lies not from the congestion that is caused by the cars but in the automobiles that are allowed to stand along both sides of the narrowest street in the city. There the autos stand till the shopping is done or until those seated therein get tired of watching the crowds go by.

The fewer the stops the better pleased the trolley company will be, but one would suppose that members of the council would have more regard for the interests of their constituents and not force the people to walk over long distances when they have paid to be carried. Those going to the library, city hall, churches, gas and electric office, the banks, Broadway theatre or Laurel Hill have excellent ground for entering a protest against such a short-sighted recommendation. It is a corner at which the cars always stop and failure to do so would inconvenience a large number of trolley patrons.

Shortening the Flag

Mr. Editor: My attention was attracted by this despatch:

Washington, May 5. The American flag is too long in proportion to its width to be artistic, and a reduction of 13.1 per cent in the length of the present standard size has been decided by the Fine Arts commission to be the most artistic proportion. In consultation with a committee of government officials appointed for the standardization of the flag, the commission decided on a ratio of 1.67 to 1 instead of the present 1.90 to 1. The decision was reached through the test of various sized flags flown from the Arlington amphitheatre flagpole.

Our flag is none too long for this, our country that it represents.

Have we got to cut off our flags! Such a proposition is enough to make our deceased Civil war veterans rise up out of their graves.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Paul Wayland Bartlett, who has been honored with election as a foreign associate member of the French Academy of Fine Arts, has long ranked as one of America's leading sculptors, although he has lived much of his life in France. He was born in New Haven in 1865 and after attending the public schools in his native city went to Boston to begin his art studies. He continued his studies in Paris and at the edrly age of 14 exhibited a bust in the Salon. Mr. Bartlett's best known works include the pediment over the west wing of the national capitol in Washington, several statues in the Congressional Library, an equestrian statue of Gen. McClellan, in Philadelphia; six statues outside the New York Public Library, a statue of Gen. Joseph Warren, in Boston, and the equestrian statue of Lafayete, presented to France by American school children.

LOST BREATH, HEART FLUTTERED after least exertion

Weak, Nervous Woman Obtains New Health

"Some months ago, I found that after the slightest exertion I suffered from shortness of breath and fluttering of the heart. Frequently I would get a stabbing pain in my left side. I tried various remedies but instead of improving I became worse. My appetite failed and soon even the sight of food became repulsive. Then my nerves became so weak that I would "jump" at any sudden sound.

One day a friend called and, seeing my exhausted condition, told me that what I needed was Wincarnis. I began taking it right away and in all I have taken four bottles and I am amazed at the wonderful result. Today I am strong and well and I owe all my renewed health to Wincarnis."

98 OUT OF EVERY 100 WOMEN BENEFITED

An Absolutely Reliable Statement Important to Every Woman

Remarkable Results Shown by a Nation Wide Canvass of Women Purchasers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. 50,000 Women Answer

For some time a circular has been enclosed with each bottle of our medicine bearing this question: "Have you received benefit from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?"

Replies, to date, have been received from over 50,000 women answering that question.

98 per cent of which say YES. That means that 98 out of every 100 women who take the medicine for the ailments for which it is recommended are benefited by it.

This is a most remarkable record of efficiency. We doubt if any other medicine in the world equals it.

Think of it—only two women out of 100 received no benefit—98 successes out of a possible 100.

Did you ever hear anything like it? We must admit that we, ourselves, are astonished.

Of course we know that our medicine does benefit the large majority of women who take it. But that only two out of 100 received no benefit is most astonishing.

It only goes to prove, however, that a medicine specialized for certain definite ailments—not a cure all—one that is made by the most scientific process; not from drugs, but from a combination of nature's roots and herbs, can and does do more good than hastily prepared prescriptions.

You see, we have been making, improving and refining this medicine for over 50 years until it is so perfect and so well adapted to women's needs that it actually has the virtue to benefit 98 out of every 100 women who take it.

Its reliability and recognized efficiency has gained for it a sale in almost every country in the world—leading all others.

Such evidence should induce every woman suffering from any ailment peculiar to her sex to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and see if she can't be one of the 98. The Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

Wives of Famous Men

Lilliam Woodman, Wife of Thomas Bailey Aldrich.

"Love at first sight was the trouble," sings a poet explaining an unhappy marriage. But love at first sight was never a trouble to Thomas Bailey Aldrich, American author and poet. His infatuation for Lilliam Woodman, the beautiful young girl who later became his wife, proved an infallible instinct. Their marriage was one of the happiest in the world.

Miss Woodman, herself well educated and talented, met Aldrich at the home of Edwin Booth, the actor, who was a close friend to both. The first time he saw her, the writer felt that she was the wife he must have. The second time he told her so, and the third time she accepted him. After that, however, events did not march so fast. Because of the impecunious state of the youthful author their marriage did not take place until three years later. But the period of their engagement was a happy one. Miss Woodman was possessed of an unusually clear insight and understanding, and was then as well as after her marriage an invaluable aid to Aldrich in his work. She seemed to have possessed an instinct for remedying such of his writings as did not satisfy him.

The role of wife, however, was at no time made subservient to the role of literary adviser, and his domestic life, unlike that of so many creative artists, was tranquil and happy. When success had crowned his efforts his laurels in prose and verse meant nothing to him compared with his home and the companionship of his lifelong sweetheart. Just before their 40th anniversary, he said to a friend: "Tomorrow, Lilliam and I shall have been married 40 years! Forty years with only one great sorrow. How many married pairs in this sad world can say as much?"

COUNTY CAMPAIGN TO IMPROVE DAIRY INDUSTRY

Elimination of the scrub bull is contemplated by the New London county Farm Bureau as a part of its campaign to make the dairy industry in the county more profitable. Within the year it is hoped to weed out practically 600 animals of poor breeding.

There are approximately 800 pure bred bulls in the county and it is estimated that this number is sufficient for breeding purposes. Owners of poor bulls will be urged to get rid of them and if necessary, rent the services of a well bred animal. As the cost of keeping a bull is estimated at $125 a year, elimination of the scrub bulls would mean a saving to the county of approximately $75,000 a year.

The best obtainable figures that dairy cows in Connecticut must average 5,000 pounds for New London county, as fixed by the United States census, is 3,640 pounds. Poor breeding is said to be largely responsible. About half of the dairy cows of the county are home raised and by using only pure bred bulls for breeding, future dairy herds will be greatly improved.

The farm bureau is organizing its campaign by communities and expects to interest farmers in every town in the county. The better bull campaign is to be run in conjunction with the movement for importation of better cows from the big dairy breeding stations.

By buying better cows and using only pure bred bulls at home, the farm bureau hopes eventually to see all dairy herds in the county average 5,000 pounds of milk per cow or better. Many herds in the county now rate much higher than this, some averaging as high as 8,000 or 10,000 pounds per cow. It is pointed out that better cows will not only bring more profits to the farmers but that the cities will profit by having a better milk supply and in greater buying power among the farmers, the great majority of whom are dairymen.

Stories That Recall Others

Instinct or What?

A good looking pointer dog was trotting timidly along the street, plainly uneasy, as if seeking someone.

A woman's black sailor hat came rolling along in the high wind. It careened among scurrying feet, but none stopped it. Thirty yards or more behind in laughing chase was a young colored woman.

The dog saw the hat and although not neat it ran in chase. He galloped along beside it, striking at it occasionally, as if to let it know it should stop. He seemed not to wish to touch it for fear of doing it damage. Finally he became exasperated and caught it in his mouth. Holding one foot on it he looked around to see what should be done.

The colored girl got her hat all right, the pointer yielding it with a proud strut. He got a pat on the head and a kind word that made him jump for joy.

The colored woman went on her way, and the dog half wistfully began his search for a way out of the crowd.

A Lesson in Preparedness.

He was visiting in another city, and being interested in cars stepped into one of the large garages, one of those "rent it and drive it yourself" kind. One of the first things that met his gaze as he entered was a large sign on the wall. It said:

If you feel that you are going to speed, get drunk, drive recklessly, or let your inexperienced lady friend handle the car, please place your order with ——— & ——— across the way before driving out.

He looked across the street and there beheld a sign in large gold letters, ——— & ———, undertakers.

M'COOK OFFERS MORE LAND AND SOME BEACH FRONT

With the reasonable certainty that the committee on humane institutions bill condemning a portion of the McCook estate, East Lyme, to afford Seaside sanatorium for tubercular children room for much needed expansion, will sweep the house and be passed in the senate with a majority of from four to five votes, a new eleventh hour compromise offer has been made by the McCook family to stave off condemnation proceedings, it has been learned.

Capt. Anson T. McCook, executive secretary to the governor, who has bitterly opposed efforts of the committee and the state tuberculosis board to buy a strip of land adjoining the sanatorium site, and whose previous compromise offer of a 60-foot strip of land, not on the water, had been rejected, last Friday made another compromise offer of a strip 120 feet wide, on the shore and adjoining the sanatorium site. With this offer, however, is the condition that the McCook property be immune from further condemnation proceedings equivalent to canceling the state's right of eminent domain.

Legislators, who for some time have shown impatience with Secretary McCook's obstructive tactics, view this latest offer unfavorably and express unwillingness to consider it because of the danger that the demand for further immunity of the McCook estate from condemnation proceedings might raise extended legislative discussion which with adjournment close, might endanger the bill's passage.

The Y. M. C. A. swimming campaign in which the association is offering a course of free swimming lessons to all the boys of Norwich, started off in good style Monday afternoon. One hundred of the city's liveliest lads have thus far enrolled in the classes, and there is quite a little splashing and gurgling as the boys endeavor to master the art of keeping afloat. The boys are being taught a step at a time, first learning the proper method of breathing while swimming. This is followed by water stunts which are given to help the boys overcome their fear of the water. Later they are taught to float across the pool, after which are added the arm and leg motions, which with a reasonable amount of earnest practice results in most boys learning to swim.

Most of the boys have made good progress in the two lessons given them thus far, and Physical Director Fritz believes that quite a number of the boys will be able to qualify for the swimming certificates that will be awarded each boy who can swim a distance of fifty feet following the six lessons.

Boys in the city who are desirous of taking advantage of these lessons, and who have not yet enrolled may still registered for next week's course by calling at the Y. M. C. A.

HOUSE PASSES BILL TO PUT CURB ON SUNDAY BASEBALL GAMES

(Special to The Bulletin)

Hartford, May 8.—Among the bills favorably reported in the house is one raising a commission on tax exemptions.

It is to consist of three members pointed by the governor to serve without pay, except necessary expenses. The business of the commission will be to investigate the subject of tax exemption of real estate in this state, particularly whether the general statutes relating to such exemptions should be amended, whether the exemption granted to organizations for moral or mental improvement or for religious, charitable or educational purposes operates equitably, whether such exemptions are being misused or employed improperly, for profit or otherwise, and whether there are organizations owning property which is not exempt which may be entitled to tax exemption on terms equal to societies which own property which is, in whole or in part, exempt from taxation. Said commission is directed to determine whether the exemption of publicly owned real estate in any town imposes an unreasonable hardship on the taxpayers of such town. The commission is directed to file with the tax commissioner on or before January 1, 1925, its report, addressed to the next general assembly, with recommendation concerning such legislation, as, in the opinion of the members of said commission, may be equitable and wise.

The bill provides that, the public utilities commission, upon written application of any person authorized by the United States government to carry mail by motor vehicle, or of any person desiring to carry passengers for hire to and from any rural section where there shall be no other agency of public transportation of passengers, may authorize such applicant to transport passengers for hire in such motor vehicle over a prescribed route, if, in the opinion of said commission, public convenience and necessity shall require the same. Said commission shall also determine the registration fee, if any, to be charged such applicant, and shall forward to the motor vehicle commissioner a certified copy of its findings concerning the requirements of public convenience and necessity and the registration fee, and, thereupon, the motor vehicle commissioner may register such vehicle for such service. Said commission may, at any time amend or revoke any such authorization.

HOUSE

The house was called to order at 10.15 with Speaker Nickerson in the chair. The report of the committee on on investigation of railroad conditions in the state that was ordered on January 23 was offered in the house.

Mr. Smith of Avon moved that the report be accepted, printed in the journal and placed on file in the office of the secretary.

Mr. Faulkner of New Haven called for the reading of the report and after the clerk had been reading it for some time Mr. Buckley interrupted to inquire how much more there was to be read. Mr. Fenton of Windham said the reading of the bill was called for that it might be known what it was. On motion of Mr. Buckley the motion to adopt was withdrawn and it was voted to receive the report and print it in the journal.

Vaccination Bill Amendment.

The vaccination bill came in for further consideration. The senate amendment offered last week was rejected and an amendment was offered by Miss Green of Tolland which was adopted and the bill was transmitted to the senate.

Jonathan Trumbull Highway.

When the bill creating the Jonathan Trumbull Memorial Highway was reached on the calendar Judge Edward P. Lyman of Columbia reviewed the leading events in the life of Trumbull. He said that this was a fitting memorial of his great national character. The bill was passed without dissent.

Nickerson Approved For Judge.

The communication of the governor appointing a judge of the superior court was made under suspension of the rules and acted upon and resulted in the election of Mr. Nickerson by ballot.

The ballot resulted in 198 yeas and 16 nays. Mr. Darbie of Killingly in the chair declared Judge Nickerson elected for a judge of the superior court for a term of eight years from July 1, 1923. The resolution was transmitted to the senate.

Approval For Judge Ells.

From the senate came the resolution appointing Arthur F. Ells of Waterbury a judge of the superior court and balloting resulted in the election of Judge Ells by a vote of 189 yeas to 16 nays.

The nomination by the governor of Everett S. Simpson to be a judge of the court of common pleas for New Haven county was approved by a vote of yeas 201 to 7 nays.

The nomination of John R. Brooks for the same position was also approved by a vote of 191 yeas to 5 nays.

Unfavorable on Bonus Amendment.

An unfavorable report was received on the petition for a constitutional amendment to provide a soldiers' bonus. Two yea and nay votes were taken and the speaker's declaration being doubted each time, a rising vote was taken which resulted in the adoption of the committee's unfavorable report by a vote of 102 yeas and 28 nays.

The house concurred with the senate in rejecting the bill creating a three headed highway commission.

Sunday Observance.

House Bill 811, concerning the observance of Sunday was taken from the table on motion of Mr. Buckley and he moved a reconsideration. The bill having been rejected on April 17th, Mr. Buckley at that time had the bill tabled and gave notice that he would introduce an amendment at a later date, if the house would vote a reconsideration that would allow him to do so. Mr. Brinsmade of Washington spoke against the motion. Nash of Norwalk also opposed reconsideration. He wanted the young men and boys to enjoy recreation on Sunday afternoons but he was not in favor of commercializing Sunday baseball. Mr. Buckley argued for reconsideration in order that he might offer the amendment as printed in the journal. Miss Greene of Tolland moved that the motion to reconsider be indefinitely postponed. Leader Buckley raised the point of order that the motion was not in order. The speaker ruled otherwise, and the motion to indefinitely postpone was lost.

In speaking for a reconsideration, Bell of Salsbury was reminded by the speaker that his remarks were not parliamentary. The presious question was ordered on motion of Andrews of Danbury. Leader Buckley closed saying that as the house had voted not to legalize Sunday baseball and as the existing law was not being enforced it was the duty of the house to take action such as will lend to its enforcement. The motion to reconsider was carried by a vote of 134 yeas to 58 nays.

Injunction Against Baseball.

Mr. Buckley then offered the following amendment:

"The state's attorney upon complaint, supported by such information as he may find sufficient, that any person, association or organization contemplates, intends to, plans for or arranges to give, hold or conduct on Sunday any baseball or football game at which any charge for admission or for any seat at such game shall be made, which game is intended to be held within the jurisdiction of such state's attorney, shall forthwith apply to the superior court or any judge thereof for an injunction restraining the giving, holding or conduct of any such game. Upon cause shown such injunction shall issue."

Faulkner of New Haven raised the point of order that the amendment was not germane to the motion. The speaker ruled that the point was not well taken.

The speaker's decision that the amendment was in order, was upheld by a great majority.

One Law For Whole State.

Schatz of Hartford spoke in favor of the amendment, saying that a law should apply to all parts of the state. He called attention to the fact that commercial baseball was allowed to be played in New Haven, while if it was played in Hartford the promoters would find themselves in jail. Faulkner of New Haven asked that the vote be taken by roll call and only six were in favor of his motion. The bill as amended was carried by a vote of 14 yeas to 50 nays. Under suspension of the rules the bill was transmitted to the senate.

The bill which will permit the retirement of any employe of the state who has been in service forty years or more with a pension of three-fourths of his previous salary was passed.

Conference on Vaccination.

The vaccination bill came back from the senate on disagreeing action and a committee of conference was appointed.

RECKLESS AND DRUNKEN DRIVERS ON INCREASE

Startling increases in the reckless driving of automobiles and in intoxication on the part of automobile operators are noted in a report just issued by the statistical bureau of the department of motor vehicles. The statement, covering the first four months of this year, shows that 1065 automobile drivers sacrificed their privilege to operate in Connecticut because of various violations of the motor vehicle law. During the same period last year there were but 202 suspensions, less than one-fifth of this year's number.

Some of the increase is credited to the growing efficiency of the department in checking up on the various offenses, through the co-operation of police departments and legal courts, but the department officials have little doubt that the major offenses, such as reckless driving and the operating of a motor vehicle by one under the influence of liquor, are greatly on the ascent.

During the month of April of this year, the high point of 544 suspensions was reached. A large number of these were for failure to report accidents. Many more during last month were for operating while intoxicated or operating without a license.

Reckless driving, so far this year, has lost thirty-three licenses for Connecticut drivers, in comparison with but one suspension last year. Eighty-six operators were suspended during the first four months of this year for operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor, against only forty-nine for the same period last year.

The other offenses are listed below with the number of suspensions so far this year and the number for the same period last year:

ADDED $1,000 IN DRIVE FOR CHURCH REBUILDING

One thousand dollars was raised on Tuesday in the drive for $40,000 to rebuild Sacred Heart church in Norwich Town, this being one of the best days of the campaign. The total subscriptions up to Tuesday night came to $19,533, and it is expected that subscriptions not reported will send the total over the $20,000 mark.

The campaign closes today (Wednesday) and the workers are to make an intensive last day drive in hopes of bringing in the largest sum of money for any single day of the drive. Every one wishing to give to this worthy cause, and who has not yet been approached, can do his part by calling at the old Dalco store on Main street, where campaign workers will be pleased to receive all donations.

The final check-up meeting of the campaign is to be held this (Wednesday) evening at the Knights of Columbus home on Broadway. DENIES MOTION TO SET $7,527 VERDICT ASIDE

A motion to set aside a verdict for $7,527 against George W. Carroll of this city in favor of Mrs. Mary E. Bates of Preston, administrator of the estate of her husband, has been denied by Judge Allyn L. Brown of the superior court.

A jury gave the verdict in the superior court here in the trial of the suit over the death of Mr. Bates, which followed his injuries on Oct 24, 1921, when his automobile was struck by a car driven by Mr. Carroll. The Carroll car was passing the Bates machine from the rear on the Jewett City road at the time of the accident, with Mrs. Bates driving her husband's machine. His death occurred several months later and it was a contention of the defendant's attorneys that the death of Mr. Bates was not due to the accident injuries but from a disease from which he had suffered before the accident.

The suit was defended by the company in which Mr. Carroll was insured. There are several other suits in the court from the same accident.

PROPOSE SALARY RAISES FOR STATE REFEREES

The state referees, all of the former judges of the superior court, are to be given an increase in salary, just like other mortals, provided the budget prepared by the state officials is passed by the legislature.

It is the custom to make a retiring judge of the superior court a referee, which system is classed as a pension provision. These referees cost the state $47,250 last year. It is proposed to raise the total appropriation for them $7,500 a year, so that this service will cost the state about $55,000 every 12 months.

State referees are but little known because most of their sessions are held quietly without any advance advertising. In many instances the referees close the doors when they go into session. To the referees are referred divorce suits, when both sides agree. This step is usually taken to shut out the public, and to keep from a divorce case the publicity it might get were a judge to hear it in open court. Of course the litigants are taxed for such sessions.

On the other hand the referees usually get these cases in which there is a vast amount of accounting which would take up too much time of the regular judge on the bench. The referee makes his report and recommendations, and that goes to the court. In some cases there is an objection to accepting the referee's report and recommendation, and then the whole case is argued out before a judge. In the Hegel divorce case the matter even was carried to the supreme court.

Talking of salaries paid by the state, it is seen that the secretary of state gets $3,500 a year and his deputy is paid $2,999.99, with no increase proposed for the secretary, but one of $500 for his deputy. The state treasurer is in the same fix. He gets the same salary as the secretary, and his deputy gets $2,791.67. Even the chief clerk in the treasurer office is paid a higher salary than the treasurer himself.

The office of the attorney general is an exception to this rule. The attorney general gets a salary of $6,000 a year, which is $1,000 more than the governor himself gets. The assistant attorney general is paid $4,948.96.

"POWER OF THE CROSS" SHOP MEETING TOPIC

At the Y. M. C. A. noon meeting Monday at the Richmond Radiator plant Rev. C. H. Ricketts deeply impressed a good sized audience of the employes with his timely address on The Power of the Cross. Among other things Mr. Ricketts said:

There is one word, and one word only, that covers the whole meaning of Calvary, and that is Sacrifice—voluntary sacrifice. There are only three forcible methods by which men lose their lives: accident, murder and capital punishment, as far as external force is concerned. This is not sacrifice because it is involuntary. There is no attractive power in any involuntary death. A man suddenly loses his life by falling from a building. Of course it attracts attention, and arouses sympathy. If he leaves a family in straitened circumstances, the community will not let it suffer, because we are not pagans. But there is no power in that death that strengthens the community, but quite the reverse, there is the loss of so much manpower; the ranks of labor have been weakened by his death, and the more important a man is to society the greater is the loss sustained by his death.

But where a man willingly dies for some noble cause, even though he is forcibly executed, he exerts a much greater influence in death than he did in life. Take the case of Nathan Hale, the patriot who was put to death at the early age of 22. He is still a living force, giving our American youth lessons in patriotism more potent possibly than his living could have done.

This was voluntary, though forcible, sacrifice, but a sacrifice that had only a limited centralizing power. Nobody, for one single moment, would think of comparing it with the sacrifice of Calvary. We can easily imagine that the sacrifice of Nathan Hale carries little power outside of the American people. It can never be a great center of attraction for the whole world. And what is true of Nathan Hale is true of any other man whose death was more potential than his life.

There is no greater power of attraction in all the world than that of sacrifice. What binds parents to children and children to parents more than the willingness to sacrifice for one another? Where love is dominant there is always a readiness to sacrifice. Parents willingly deprive themselves in order to keep the older children in school; and the older ones work hard to give the younger ones the same advantages. In the poorer home, if touched with the immortality of love, the mother with neither whine nor whimper, will shut herself up with the little ones when attacked by diphtheria or scarlet fever. A spirit like this gives tone to the whole moral order.

The speaker went on to show that nothing but the sacrificial spirit of Calvary can unify the human race.

Memorial Day—so soon to be observed—emphasizes sacrifice, but the whole country is not brought under its banner. While we of the north perpetuate the memory of those who fought and died to banish slavery, another portion of the land will tenderly remember those who died to sustain it. The Fourth of July with its wider area of observance has only a national significance. It means little to Canada to the north of us or Mexico to the south, and still less to nations beyond the seas. There is no world unifying force here.

Secular education will never unify the world, important as it is. The more a man knows the more independent is his thinking; he takes his pace from nobody. They squabble just as much in a college faculty as they do in a labor union. It is shown also that the dogmas of human invention that have sliced Christianity into the various sects have rather a divisive, rather than a unifying, effect. None of these can say, "and I, if I be lifted up from the earth will draw all men unto me."

The work of the Red Cross was used as illustration of the unifying power of sacrifice during the war. All sects, all races, all parts of the country came together for unity of purpose. The unifying power of Calvary as a world force is very far from completeness. There are many centuries of propaganding work to be done. But, in time every knee will bow to the Saviour of Calvary

Frame Barn and Auto Damaged by Fire

A two story frame barn owned by Andrew S. Byrnes, at 53 Pearl street, a Chevrolet touring car owned by Chester Chapman also of 53 Pearl street, and a quantity of furniture owned by Joseph D. Pfeiffer of Yantic were badly damaged by fire early this (Wednesday) morning when a blaze broke out in the part of the barn occupied by Mr. Chapman for a garage and spread rapidly to envelop the entire structure.

The cause of the fire could not be determined Wednesday morning but it was believed after a brief investigation to have been of incendiary nature as the fire started in the front of the garage near the sliding door which had been left unlocked during the night.

The fire was discovered by George Amburn who lives at 45 Pearl street who heard crackling noises and upon looking out saw the flames leaping high into the air. He quickly sent the alarm from Box 18, corner of Pearl and Pearl streets, and the fire were soon on the scene.

For a time it seemed as though fire would spread to nearby properties especially to the garage owned by Mrs. Martin D. Kibbin of 47 Pearl street which stood only a few feet from the barn. When the fire of the garage was pulled down firemen the interior of the building resembled a roaring furnace. In quick time four streams of water were playing on the fire, the section used for the garage and the upper story.

The west wall of the barn badly gutted as was the roof structure, the flames spreading to the second story and burning in the ceiling. It is not yet known what has caused the barn but said the loss is covered by insurance.

The Chevrolet touring car owned by Mr. Chapman was a total loss, the top being burned off, the tires and the wheels badly burned, the gasoline tank contained but did not explode. The metal part of the car is standing but nothing but the charred remains. Mr. Chapman has insurance on his car but understand how much the car had not been in use for months.

The furniture in the east end of the barn was in a separate compartment and a large extent the loss being by smoke and water.

Mr. Byrnes could not estimate his loss but said it would probably rebuild.

The fire brought hundreds of people, into the streets from all parts of the city, the quick action of the firemen burning, which was in accordance with the fine equipment and splendid fire apparatus which prevented the fire from destroying buildings.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

In line with its program to increase the volume of flowage the Crystal Water company has started on the work of replacing 2,000 feet of 4 and 6 inch pipe in upper Mechanic street with a new 10-inch main. The replacement will be made from a point near the property of the Standard Oil company northward to a point opposite the Connecticut mills, to which point a ten-inch main leads in from North Main street.

Eventually, it is understood, larger mains will be extended through Mechanic to Main street. The company also contemplates replacing the 10 and 12 inch mains leading from the reservoir at East Killingly down through Elmville to Danielson. It is not likely that all of this work will be accomplished during the present year but it will be gradually carried out and the supply system kept well ahead of the demands apt to be made upon it.

Another excavation operation, in which the borough is interested, has to do with the laying of several hundred feet of sewer in Maple street, the work running northward from a point near Palmer street. This section of sewer construction work was authorized last year, but the building of it could not be reached until this time. When completed this new sewer will serve a number of houses, several of them of comparatively recent construction, in the northerly section of Maple street.

Tuesday afternoon at the home of George Paine on the Green Hollow road funeral services were conducted by William Mason of the Pentecostal church for Mrs Elizabeth Jane Sweet, 83. Hymns were sung during the service. Burial was in Westfield cemetery. Relatives acted as bearers. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the arrangements.

Several motorists driving through that section of Main street opposite the Attawaugan hotel have been surprised recently by having their cars skid quickly and without apparent reason and have avoided accidents only by narrow margins. The happenings of this nature have been due to the fact that the paving has been worn away from the trolley rails, in some places to such an extent that the base of a rail is exposed. Wear and tear of traffic, including the friction from the flanges of trolley wheels and thawing and freezing weather during the winter is held accountable for the present condition of the pavement, which is a danger to one not familiar with the condition.

An item in this column Tuesday morning relative to people walking along state highways brought forth considerable comment. Some of it was from pedestrians who insisted upon their right to walk along state highway if they desire (and to be maimed or killed if it so happens) and more of it was from motorists who are equally insistent that some means should be found to keep people off state highways and on sidewalks when such walks are available. The jay walkers are a menace not only to themselves but to all drivers, the motorists insist and point to the fact that car drivers are restricted and regulated by all manner and means while a walker can amble around at his own free will without having anything said about it.

The question is in all seriousness an important one and with traffic as heavy as it now is the car drivers are entitled to at least some protection from those who not of necessity or on business walk along a state highway, but go out for afternoon strolls, often with the hope that some driver will pick them up for a ride if he does not happen to knock them into eternity.

Better lighting for the business section is on the program of the chamber of commerce. This is a matter that likely will receive attention at some future borough meeting.

Though few are worrying about the matter these beautiful May days, there is only a small amount of hard coal arriving in Danielson and next winter's supply is yet to be received here.

At Central Village Fred Breault was fined $100 and costs by Justice Mathewson for operating a motor vehicle while in an intoxicated condition. The incident leading to Breault's appearance in court occurred in Moosup Sunday evening. A young woman was driving the car at the time, the state police have learned, but she has in the meantime disappeared. Breault, as owner of the car was brought to court.

Replacement of worn railroad ties is now underway hereabouts. Ties that have been given a special chemical treatment are being use in replacement work, these ties having been assembled along the right of way last fall.

Now that another period of dry weather is being experienced small brush and forest fires are of almost daily occurrence, although the danger from them is not regarded with so much concern because green grass has come up and the these later days of spring have brought other protection.

The sharp slump in the price of cotton was of special interest to hundreds of mill operatives here Tuesday, especially in view of the fact that some observers regard its being due to a falling off in demand for manufactured cotton materials.

A measure authorizing an increase in the number of state police is expected to mean that the force at the Danielson barracks, the only one in this corner of the state will be considerably augmented during the summer.

Rev. Walter B. Williams was at Putnam Tuesday attending the annual convention of the Windham County Association of Congregational churches and ministers.

Boxing fans are looking forward with anticipation to the next card of bouts to be held here, these scheduled for the coming week.

Chief John McFarland said Tuesday morning that speeding will not be tolerated through the business section and that the few who indulge in it may look for prosecution if the violation of the law is continued.

The service battery baseball team recently defeated Joseph Norton's team by a score of 13 to 12, in an interesting game.

PUTNAM

Judge Jamse H. Webb of the superior court will come to this city today to hold a session at which upwards of forty candidates for citizenship will have an opportunity to qualify for that high estate. Among the applicants are representatives of a number of countries but the majority are subjects of Great Britain, numbers of them being originally from the empire's colonial possessions. The candidates with their witnesses will make a considerable aggregation of visitors in town.

Wilfred Benoit, 25, is at the Day Kimball hospital with a leg amputated four inches below the knee as a result of an accident he figured in while riding his motorcycle through Grove street. According to reports of the affair received by the police Benoit was coming along the street on his machine at a time when a motor car driven by Ernest Kent was coming out of the driveway leading through the property of the Southern New England Telephone company at its central station and at the same time a light truck owned by the telephone company was about to head into the driveway. In trying to dash between the two machines Benoit is believed to have misjudged his distance and his leg struck against a part of Mr. Kent's car. The leg was broken so that a bone protruded through the flesh and later at the hospital it was found necessary to amputate the injured member. Benoit is an ex-service man. His unfortunate experience has brought many expressions of regret. No blame for the accident has been attached to the driver of either motor car.

No encouraging news came from the bedside of Captain Remi Delage in the City hospital at Worcester during Tuesday. His condition remained very critical, although Nathan Eccleston of this city, who was a brief visitor with him late Monday, found him cheerful and willing to talk. Mr. Eccleston remarked upon the power of the injured captain's handclasp and his comment that he was feeling fine. Those in charge of the case at the hospital insist, however, that Captain Delage's condition still remained highly critical with the outcome in doubt. There appears to be doubt as yet as to the nature of the internal injuries that causes him to expectorate blood from time to time.

It was learned Tuesday that Captain Delage's watch and revolver were picked up by some one at the scene of the accident and cannot be found.

Traffic checking squads of the state highway department are again on duty in this section of the state. A squad of five men was engaged in checking up all traffic passing over the Putnam-Danielson route during Tuesday. These workers halt motor vehicles and ascertain from the drivers where the machine are traveling from and where they are bound. In the case of motor trucks the nature of the commodities being transferred are inquired about. All of the information obtained is of value to the state highway department in getting a line on the amount and nature of traffic passing over any given route on which a check-up is made.

An operation that is going to be watched with interest by the people of Putnam is the placing of stucco on the exterior walls of the First National bank building, the first business structure in this city that will have such a finish. During the past few days the walls of the building have been painted with a black tar-like substance and on Tuesday metal screening was being used to cover the brick work. When this screening work is completed the building will be ready for the stucco workers and it is in their activities that the public is going to be interested as something of a novelty—as to the manner in which it is applied.

For the first time in a quarter of a century the annual convention of the Windham County Association of Congregational churches and ministers was held here on Tuesday at the Second Congregational churches of the county. Many who attended came in their motor cars.

The morning session opened at 10.30 and in addition to annual reports and routine business included an address by Dr. Ernest V. Claypool of Hartford on The Churches and Law Enforcement. At the afternoon session, opening at 1.30, there were brief reports from the churches represented and an address on The World Situation and American Responsibility by Dr. Charles H. Levermore of New York.

The sessions of the convention were open to the public.

Increased cost of housing the supply last winter is given as the reason for an advance of 10 cents per hundred pounds that is to be made for ice in Putnam during the warm weather season now near at hand. This summer's price to household users will be 60 cents per hundred. Where large quantities of ice are used, as in markets, the rate will be 40 cents per hundred pounds, this representing an advance from the minimum wholesale price of 35 cents that was in vogue last summer. It is understood that the rates quoted for this year will be generally maintained by the dealers serving this community.

There is an abundance of ice on hand this season, as the past winter afforded full opportunity to harvest full supplies of high quality.

Putnamites noted Tuesday morning that the white bands marking safety and traffic and parking zones in the business section had been repainted during the night, a special bit of work that claimed the attention of members of the police department, but the special interest in the work was due to the fact that a machine adapted to painting such banding had been used for the first time in this city and found to work satisfactorily. The machine is a time and labor saver and is a novelty developed from the necessity of marking street surfaces to guide traffic and pedestrians in these days of heavy motor traffic.

There will be keen competition among the Y. M. C. A. and high school groups of Windham county in the field meet at the Brooklyn fair grounds a week from next Saturday to win the events scheduled, for the winners will be eligible to participate in the state meet to be held at Wesleyan university at Middletown the following Saturday, May 26. It is expected that Putnam will have a strong representation in the Y. M. C. A. and high school entries from this town.

Not all who apply for motor vehicle operators' licenses are obtaining them from the state police, who have the examinations in charge. Some of the applicants who appeared here Tuesday, the weekly time for issuing licenses, were turned back as too inexperienced and told to practice more before attempting to qualify. In addition to being able to operate a car satisfactorily the department also requires applicants to have a general knowledge of the motor vehicle laws of the state. The state police are careful not to issue licenses to any person who does not exhibit ability to handle a car successfully under normal conditions, though new drivers who may be competent for ordinary driving should not venture into heavy traffic.

Frederic W. Bailey, choir director, is to give an organ recital at the Congregational church next Sunday afternoon.

Chief Special Deputy Howard A. Elliott and Special Deputy William Jarvis of the commission on domestic animals were busy with affairs of their department in the town of Thompson Tuesday.

New highway signs pointing the route to Willimantic and Hartford and to Worcester, Norwich and Providence have been placed in conspicuous positions on buildings in the square, a point where many motorists become confused as to routes.

Next Sunday will be observed as Mothers' day and much will be made of the event in the churches.

J. Richard Carpenter was in Worcester Monday on a business trip.

Mr. and Mrs. N. Waldo Kennedy who have been spending the winter in Birmingham, Ala., are expected at the Eastford home about June 1. They will leave Birmingham May 15, and stop over for several days in Washington before coming to Eastford.

WESTERLY

Superior court for Washington county came rather unexpectedly to Westerly Tuesday morning following the completion of the session at West Kingston. The cases of Wanton R. Carpenter vs. George F. Frazier; also George F. Frazier et al vs. Wanton R. Carpenter; were adjusted between counsel and did not come to trial. The case of Henry N. Girary vs. R. Ella Moore, a suit for trespass and ejectment, was construed as not being properly before the court. The statute provides that the service of writ in a case of this kind should be by a sheriff and inasmuch as the writ was served by a constable a proper notice had not been given. The case of Louis J. Geer vs. John M. Geer, Hicks, Rathbun, was passed to the September session. With the disposition of this case, adjournment by law was taken to Westerly.

The Westerly calendar of cases on the superior court docket set down for trial in Westerly at the courthouse no Union street, May 8th, before Judge Edward W. Blodgett, are as follows:

Mary A. Graf vs. Morrone & Castagno; Lyman Franklin Perry vs. Marshall Thomas; Thomas J. Healy vs. James W. Burke; Simon Hert vs. Harry Deutsch, alias; Francis McGraw Grady vs. Calbert R. Mitchell vs. Frank Costanzo and Decoroso Farina; Elizabeth Hoxie vs. Almond E. Hoxie; Roche, Dunn; Amos L. Kenyon, compl't, vs. Wilfred Palmer; Roche, Rathbun; Victoria M. Burgess, Ferguson, Dunn; Empire Cream Separator Co., vs. C. Palmer Chapman, Roche, Ferguson; Providence Auto Equipment Co., vs. J. Fred Barber & Son, Ferguson, Jr., Flynn.

For the trial of the first case on the Westerly calender, Mary A. Clemmons, Westerly, called to be succeeded by Charles A. Church, North Kingstown, who was made foreman and completed the jury.

The plaintiff, Mrs. Mary A. Graf, owner of the Martin hotel block, was the first witness called and testified that on May 1, 1920 she entered into a 3-year lease with the defendants, the amount of rent to be $35, in which lease she stated that the occupants could not sublet. She claimed that on examination of the telephone book she discovered that the premises was being used by jitney drivers and informed her tenants that she considered their contract broken and would ask $75 a month rent.

The occupants offered her $50 a month payment. At this point it was ascertained that the case might take the remainder of the day so the spare jurors were excused to report Wednesday morning. Following Mrs. Graf on the witness stand were Sheriff Mitchell, who testified to service of paper, Andrew J. Martin, son of Mrs. Graf, whose testimony was similar; William Duguid of Westerly Auto Service, testified to the jitney telephones on the premises, the north store in the Martin House block. Other jitney men were not placed on the stand when at 12:35 Attorney Rathbun moved that the jury be excused. He then presented a motion for non suit claiming that all evidence showed that the 3-year contract was still in force that Mrs. Graf had waived rights remained by acceptance of the tender from the tenants. After reviewing the case Judge Blodgett at 12:40 granted the motion and a non-suit was entered.

Following a meeting of the Westerly Board of Trade in the council chamber Tuesday night in which it was urged that the Westerly Town council offer a reward for evidence which would lead to the arrest and conviction of parties concerned in the burning of Daniel F. COLUMBIA

A very enthusiastic ball game was played on Columbia Green on Saturday afternoon, between teams from the Old Hop River and the Pine Street schools. Bert Lyman an experienced ball player umpired the game. Carpenter and Van Ness were the battery for the Pine Street team and Slater and Toloken for Old Hop River. The score was 8 to 6 in favor of Pine Street school, but the Old Hop River team want to play another game and reverse the score.

The girls of the Center school have challenged the boys of the Pine Street club, who won the game to play a game with them next Saturday afternoon.

In the monthly circular issued by E. L. Russell, school supervisor for this district, it is shown that the schools in Columbia have a standing of 106 per cent. in Intelligence as compared with thousands of other children, 93 per cent. in reading, 102 per cent. in fundamentals, 97 per cent. in problems and 106 per cent. in spelling, the last being the same for Hebron, is the highest in the list. Columbia stands 87 per cent. in reading, 96 per cent. in fundamentals, 91 per cent. in problems and 100 per cent. in spelling.

The speaking contests will be held for Columbia at the town hall May 8th at 2.30 p. m. and the field meet on the Green May 25th.

The district contests in spelling, speaking and athletics will be held in Willimantic at the State Normal school building, May 15th.

On Sunday holy communion was administered by Rev. T. M. Owen, who preached on Galatians, 5:7 and 10, "Ye did run well, who did hinder you that you should not obey the truth," and "I have confidence in you through the Lord."

He said the great wonder is that the people of Israel did not loose their individuality and become lost. They were kept from being absorbed by the Assyrians. They eventually went back to Jerusalem and rebuilt the city but not the temple, until urged by the prophet to rekindle their enthusiasm and face the facts, which they did and build a more beautiful temple than the former one.

The preacher said it is a difficult thing to rekindle a former enthusiasm which has died out, but God's word comes to us to take heart, and He will help us to be His followers.

Packard Service Economy is Assured

When you bring your Packard car into a Packard service station you are told the exact cost of any operation you may require. The price quoted always includes both labor and materials.

This signal advantage is the result of the Packard standardized service system, available wherever a Packard dealer is located.

There is no opening for guess work.

All costs have been carefully worked out on the basis of the highest efficiency, and are printed in a service book issued by the factory.

These costs were established by factory experts who analyzed all standard operations by the time study method.

A uniform service of assured fairness is a factor of convenience and economy that all motorists appreciate.

GUS ZOTEL GIVEN JAIL SENTENCE AND $200 FINE

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, May 9.—In the superior court today two sentences were imposed, Gus Zotel of Norwich, for harboring a female for immoral purposes, was sentenced to jail for a year and for living on the earnings of the female he was fined $200.

Benjamin Eliai, charged with poisoning a horse, pleaded guilty and was sentenced to a year in jail. The execution of the sentence was suspended and he was placed in the custody of Probation Officer Edwin Hill of Norwich.

Dr. John N. Dimon, who was unfortunate enough to drive his automobile upon the sidewalk as he came out of Golden street some months ago and to have run down and fatally injured Eugene Partlow of Golden, was arraigned, charged with manslaughter. The case did not have all the elements of crime to it and the state's attorney asked that the court should nolle the complaint. The motion was granted. A condition of the nolle was that Dr. Dimon should pay the costs the state was put to in order to bring the case to the court.

This the defendant willingly agreed to pay. The widow of the man killed has brought a suit for damages against Dr. Dimon. The auto the doctor was operating was one he had then but recently bought and he was not familiar with the operation of the machine, so in a confusing situation he is supposed to have stepped on the accelerator of the auto instead of upon the brake. That sent the machine bounding to the sidewalk and Partlow was crushed between the auto and the window frame. His skull was fractured and he died a few days following the accident.

Roy C. De Vault, stationed at Fort Wright was arrested this morning by Sergeant Nelson Smith, charged with being a deserter. He was escorted back to the post this afternoon by a guard and will be given a court martial. De Vault who has been in the army a long time, came to New London over a week ago and because he refused to return to the fort a request was made of the police to apprehend him.

Peter Seros, a former resident of New London and at one time proprietor of a cafe on Bank street, now in business in Fall River, Mass., is spending a few days with relatives here.

Secretary James G. Hammond of the chamber of commerce has informed the police that two imposters are in the city endeavoring to procure money on false pretenses. The two men have been in the vicinity of Riverside park, where they visited a number of dwellings and endeavored to dispose of shares of stock, representing the stock to be in a dry goods firm. The police made an effort to locate them but without success.

The parking standard State street, used entirely by automobiles, is beginning to be insufficiently large enough to accommodate all the cars that their owners desire to park there and with the approach of the summer season the place is sure to be overcrowded for already a condition of congestion exists there. The congestion is made possible to a large extent because of owners of automobiles, even those operating buses, leaving their machines there indefinitely some for several hours.

George Casey, a former resident of New London and only son of Mrs. Ellen Casey of Potter street, died at Vallejo, Cal., yesterday of kidney trouble, the young man having been under treatment for the malady a long time. He was 33 years of age and besides his mother, is survived by two sisters, Mrs. J. Allen Walker of Colman street and Miss Margaret Casey of Potter street. Mr. Casey had been in Vallejo twelve years, where he was superintendent of a flour mill. He was a member of Vallejo lodge of Elks and Knights of Columbus. The body will be brought to New London for funeral and interment and will be accompanied by his mother, who went to Vallejo six week ago when her son's condition became serious.

Two automobile operators will be arraigned in the police court tomorrow morning, charged with violation of the traffic laws. One of them is Arthur J. Page of No. 35 Bank street, who was ordered into court late this afternoon by Traffic Officer Clyde Murphy following Page blocking a fire hydrant several hours. The other is Samuel Okerefsky of No. 56 Elm street, Hartford, for turning on State street and after having been directed not to do so by Traffic Officers Patrick Sheehan.

A group of employes of the New London Ship & Engine company have been granted an increase in wages, the increase dating from last Saturday. Several weeks ago a petition for an increase of seven cents an hour for all the employes was handed to the officials. The matter was taken under advisement and Saturday it was decided to grant the increase to the deck workers, but not to any of the other employes. The increased will be enjoyed by about a hundred workers.

Bertram W. Heim, a former resident of New London, at which time he was a machinist in the employ of the New London Gas and Electric company, died in Philadelphia last month, it has been announced here.

Two members of the New London police force have recovered from illness and injury, which condition kept them from performing patrol duty some time. They are Patrolmen William Manice and Howard Sloan. The former has been confined to his home a month by a severe attack of indigestion and the latter sustained injuries to his chest and legs by falling through a defective hatchway on Main street two weeks ago.

Miss Betty Shalett, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Shalett of No. 67 Blydenburg avenue, was operated upon today at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital for appendicitis. The condition of the patient this evening was reported as being as comfortable as could be expected.

Another Bank street real estate deal will probably be consummated this week, for it is known that a valuable business site is being negotiated for, and the owner expects that the sale will be made tomorrow or Thursday. The site in question is in the heart of the business section and comprises two stores and several tenements.

There have been no important transfers of business on the property in some time, the last sale of business property there being that of the property of the Williams estate, comprising four stores, and about a dozen tenements, which was sold by Philip J. Handel, Louis Eifenbein and Abraham Acher to John H. James, proprietor of James' pharmacy.

With the journeyman carpenters now enjoying the munificent salary of $1 an hour, the increase from 80 cents having been granted May 1st, the journeymen plumbers are now seeking the same rate of pay, and have requested that the granting of it be made to become effective June 1st. The request has been considered by the master plumbers, but that body has not agreed to grant it. A conference of the two bodies will probably be held next week.

Auxiliary yacht Alfera, which has been moored in Shaw's cove since last October, is being fitted out and made ready for service this year. The master of the yacht, Capt. Edward Crawford, and a crew of 18 have arrived in New London for the purpose of having the yacht ready for sea at the earliest possible date.

The condition of Jeremiah Twomey, a patient at William Backus hospital, Norwich, receiving treatment for a laceration of the wrist and a severe shock resulting from being thrown from an automobile near Norwich a fortnight ago, has so far improved that the patient will return to his home on Garfield avenue next Saturday or Sunday. Benjamin Brody, the other occupant of the automobile, and who was at the wheel when the accident occurred, and who suffered a fractured leg, is still compelled to walk with the aid of crutches, but the fracture is healing rapidly.

Robert Powers of No. 152 Crystal avenue requested the arrest of an automobile driver this evening and if the police can locate the operator he will be taken into custody charged with reckless driving. According to Powers he was in the act of crossing Crystal avenue when a machine bearing Connecticut registration 96-326 came along at an excessive rate of speed and that had he not made a jump to one side of the highway he would have been struck.

The town of Waterford, First district, is to be afforded fire protection that has been contemplated a long time, for tonight at a meeting of a committee of Waterford Fire Engine Co., Inc., No. 1, a modern fire apparatus was ordered for delivery on or about July 1st. The apparatus will be a Ford chassis, but equipped with two 45-gallon tanks, with ladders, hooks and every modern equipment for combatting flames. The cost of the machine will be approximately $3,000.

The company at a meeting held several weeks ago appointed a committee and authorized it to purchase a suitable piece of fire fighting apparatus.

Mrs. Alice Hunt, wife of Harry Hunt of East Lyme, where Mrs. Hunt is employed at the state farm for women, and who was appointed policewoman for New London by the city council at its weekly session Monday night, will not assume the duties of her office until about June 1st. Mrs. Hunt was notified this morning of her appointment, but she will not vacate her present position until after the middle of this month, it is believed, as Mrs. Hunt desires to give the institution where she is now employed ample time to obtain her successor. City Manager Barlow stated today that he did not believe that Mrs. Hunt would be assigned to police duty much before the first of the month.

Coroner Jeremiah J. Desmond of Norwich has not rendered his finding as to whether Milton Card of Ramsdell street, Groton, is criminally responsible for the death of Mrs. Leo Brogan, formerly of No. 8 Park street, Groton, who was struck by Card's automobile on the Eastern Point road, Groton, several weeks ago, receiving among other injuries a fractured skull, which resulted in her death a few hours later at Lawrence-Memorial associated hospital. Coroner Desmond concluded his investigation last week when he obtained the versions of the accident from Card and Mr. Brogan, the latter being with his wife when the automobile ran her down.

Card, who suffered a nervous breakdown following the fatality, and who remained unconscious several days, is now much improved, so much so that he is able to be about, although it will be a long time before he fully recovers from the shock.

About 50 members of New London lodge of Elks went to Norwich this evening, where they attended the fair in progress there and being conducted by Norwich lodge of Elks. The trip was made by automobile.

COMPLETING JURY TO HEAR M'SHEFFREY CASE

New London, May 8.—When the superior court comes in Wednesday morning it will have a new panel of prospective jurors in attendance that 13 men may be secured for the trial of Grace McSheffrey, who is charged with having killed a baby of which she was the mother by abandoning it during a cold winter night a few months ago in a stoneyard at the corner of Reed and Bliuman streets. The child was born at the Fournier house and was wrapped in a sheet from that place when it was discovered. The McSheffrey girl has been in jail since her arrest, but John Guinan, who was held with her, has been at liberty on a bond.

The attempt to get a jury to hear the case was begun in the superior court today, but only two-thirds the number of jurors that must be obtained to begin the case were secured. They are the following men: George G. Avery of New London, Charles R. Heath of Groton, George F. Stanton of Waterford, John R. Healy of Groton, Ralph Larkin of Stonington, David F. McDowell of Groton, Henry A. Tyler of Montville and Harris W. Bond of East Lyme. Seymour Chapman of Old Lyme was accepted as a juror before it was discovered that he was not a voter in his home town, though he had resided there some 40 years, and he was excused from service. He said he never voted and never was called upon to register as a freeman of the town. This raised the question as to how the prospective jurors were listed, for it was apparent that the voting list was not used in selecting them.

Counsel on both sides ingisted that no man should be on the jury who had been the client of either of the lawyers in the case. Any man who had formed an opinion as to the guilt or innocence of the accused was excused without further ceremony when he expressed his opinion.

Guinan is to be tried separately. This is at the request of his attorney, who does not want the testimony in one case to apply to the other. He claims that the facts are entirely different and that Guinan cannot be associated with the crime as an active participant in it.

MEMORIAL MISSION TO BE HELD AT ST. MARY'S

A two weeks' mission to be conducted by priests of The Jesuit Order will be opened in St. Mary's Memorial church on next Sunday.

The priests assigned to Norwich are Rev. John Walsh, S. J. and Rev. John Coveney, S. J. The opening sermon for the women's mission, which will be the first week, will be preached at the high mass at 10.30 o'clock. The last mission which was conducted in December, 1919, and known as the Jubilee Mission, was a grand success, and Rev. William A. Keefe, the pastor, is very optimistic that the coming mission to be known as the Memorial Mission, will outdo the previous one.

There will be an early morning mass for those called to work early, as well as a later mass for the school children, housekeepers and adults, daily, as well as the evening services. Each mission week to end with the renewal of the baptismal vows and apostolic blessing, the latter only privileged to be given by the mission priests. There will be extra prayers and masses said each day for all who have in any way contributed to the erection of the handsome memorial church.

The men's mission will open on Sunday evening, the 20th, closing one week later.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

Twenty industrials averaged $86.34, net gain 1.13. High 1923 105.32, low $85.41.

Twenty railroads averaged $1.55, net gain 1.13. High 1923 90.68, low 80.37.

MARKET STRONGER.

New York, May 8.—Indications that the stock market had been oversold by professional speculators for the decline were seen today in the quick recovery from recent weakness of several popular industrial stocks. Buying of these issues by so-called "inside interests" in the early dealings resulted in extensive short covering which carried a number of the leaders 1 to 5 points above yesterday's closing prices.

Bear traders made another last hour attempt to unsettle the list by throwing overboard a large volume of domestic oil shares, using the cut in Louisiana crude oil and the relatively poor 1922 income statement of the Pacific Oil company as excuses for selling pressure. Early gains were reduced in many instances but the general level of prices was higher than the previous close.

Equipments led the initial rally American Locomotive was pushed up nearly 5 points to 122, slipping back later to 120 3-4 and Baldwin closed 2 3-8 higher at 127 1-8 after having touched 128. Pullman was up 4 at 121 and General Electric up 3 at 176. The short interest in these shares was reported to be unusually large. Rubber and tire shares also moved upward in the face of another cut in crude rubber which carried it to the lowest price of the year, U. S. Rubber, Kelly-Springfield and Goodrich each closing about a point higher.

Strength of rail shares was accompanied by reports of several voluntary consolidations being announced in the next few months and increased foreign demand for these securities. Gains of 1 to 5 points were recorded by New York Central, Atlantic Coast Line, Canadian Pacific, Great Northern Preferred, Delaware & Hudson, Frisco, St. Louis & Southwestern Preferred, Reading, New Haven and Louisville & Nashville.

Among the active industrials which closed 2 to 4 points above yesterday's final figures were American Woolen, DuPont, Eastman Kodak, Beechnut Packing, Associated Dry Goods, Bosch Magneto, Kelsey Wheel, Nash Motors, United Drug, Crucible Steel and Cuba Cane Sugar Preferred. Stewart-Warner opened more than a point higher then broke 5 points to 79 1-4, or within half a point of the year's low and 45 points below the year's high, and finally fell back to 84 1-4, up 3-4 on the day. The recent reaction on this issue was described as a bear raid in an official statement of the company.

Union Bag also was conspicuously weak, dropping 6 points. Virginia Carolina Chemical issues were heavy in the final dealings. One block of 10,000 shares of Cosden changed hands at 46 3-4.

Call money opened at 4 3-4 per cent and dropped to 4 1-2 in the early afternoon, closing at that figure. Trading in the time money market was quiet with occasional loans arranged at 5 1-4 per cent for the shorter maturities. There was a good demand for Commercial Paper prime names being unchanged at 5 and 5 1-4 per cent.

Demand sterling created a new low for the year at $4.61 1-4, off 1-2 a cent. French francs improved slightly to 6.62 cents. Norwegian exchange fell 22 points to 16.78 cents, also a new low, in further reflection of the financial troubles of that country. Changes in other currencies were narrow and irregular.

BOND MARKET.

New York, May 8.—Influenced by the better tone of stocks, bond prices moved upward in today's dealings of the New York Stock Exchange, speculative issues particularly reflecting the improvement.

U. S. government bonds held fairly firm, fluctuations being confined to 4-32 of a point. There was some selling of the French government issues but changes in this group were small.

Sugar Company liens were in demand in the industrial group, Punta Alegre Sugar 7s and Eastern Cuba Sugar 7 1-2s each gaining two points. Cerro De Pasco Copper 6s gained 2 1-2 points, and Dery 7s jumped 3 1-2, Bethlehem Steel Refunding 8s were up 1 5-8. Losses of slightly more than a point were recorded by American Smelting 5s and Fisk Rubber 8s.

International Great Northern Adjustment 6s, certificates, up 1 1-8 and Carolina, Clinchfield & Ohio 6s up 1, were the outstanding strong spots in the railroad group. Hudson & Manhattan refunding 5s were off a point. Tractions were irregular (a loss of 1 1-4 by Chicago Railway 5s, being the only important change.

Total sales (par value) were $16,004,000.

It was reported in financial circles that an offering of nearly $2,000,000 in equipment trust certificates of the Central of Georgia railroad would be made within a few days.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, May 8.—Freezing temperatures with snow and rain in the spring crop belt, together with pronounced firmness of stocks and cotton, led to higher prices today for grain. The government crop report issues after the close turned out to be a little less bullish than was looked for. Wheat closed steady at 7c to 1 5-8c net advance, July 1.17 1-4 to 1.17 3-8, and September 1.15 7-8 to 1.16. Corn finished 1 1-8 to 1 3-8c up, oats up 1-8c to 5-8c, and provisions showed a rise of 2 1-2c to 10c.

Throughout the day, persistent buying of future deliveries of wheat took place, chiefly on the part of commission houses and said to be more or less on European account. In this connection, significance was attached to the fact that the Liverpool market had failed to respond fully to yesterday's decline here and that Liverpool quotations were at more than twice the premium over Chicago than they were a while back. There was gossip current, too, that all the bonded Canadian wheat in the east had been sold to go abroad, and that Europeans would have to be more liberal buyers of cash wheat hereafter.

The unseasonable weather for wheat in the northwest was somewhat offset by beneficial rains in Illinois, Indiana and Ohio. On the other hand, expectation that the government crop report would prove advantageous to the bulls was an evident help toward restoring a higher price level, especially in the last part of the exchange session. The late dealings were also particularly affected by the maintenance of rallies in the stock and cotton markets greatly in contrast with the weakness which on the previous day had disturbed confidence in grain values.

Large shipments of corn out of Chicago tended to strengthen prices of corn and oats. Storms and cold acted as a further bullish influence.

Provisions ascended with grain.

By DAVID CORY

NEARLY FORGOT HIS ERRAND.

At last when nothing was left but the little sticks the big Brown Bear took out of his pocket the green and blue lollypops. Holding them up in the same way again, they sang the lovely lollypop song all over again. By and by, not so very long, the Big Brown Bear asked with a smile;

"What shall we do now?"

"Let's have one more lollypop and one more song," answered the little rabbit.

"Dear, dear, dearest me! I must

"I lick a lollypop every day," they shouted.

climb once more the Lollypop Tree," sighed the Big Brown Bear and up he went again until at length he came to the row where the beautiful, luscious lollypops grow.

"Do you want that yellow one?" asked the Big Brown Bear.

"Oh, yes, I do and that red one, too!" shouted the little rabbit, "and that orange one will be nice for you."

Quickly picking them off, the Big Brown Bear put them in his pocket and scrambling down to the ground, walked over to the big wooden bench. The little rabbit followed close at his heels and jumping up beside him, peeked into the good-natured animal's pocket.

"My, what a hungry little bunny!" laughed the Big Brown Bear as he picked out the lollypops. Then, holding up the orange colored one in his right paw, he waited for the little bunny boy.

they shouted all over again and not until the lollypops were all gone did the little rabbit suddenly remember the errand for Mother.

"Dear, oh dear!" he suddenly cried, "I almost forgot to get a clothes-pin at the Three-in-One-Cent Store. Goodbye, Mr. Brown Bear," and away hopped the little rabbit, down the winding trail, in and out among the trees until at last he hopped across the Busy Beaver's dam that held back the water in the Bubbling Brook.

"What's your hurry?" asked Busy Beaver.

"Don't stop me!" replied the little bunny boy. "Mother wants me to get a clothes-pin from the Three-in-One-Cent Store," and hitching up the little knapsack, he swung his little red striped candy cane around three times and a half and hopped merrily up the cow path towards the farm yard.

TAFTVILLE

An automobile bearing a New York registration and occupied by two young men, shot along South Second avenue and up "Cow Hill" went through the wire fence at the end of the street and brought up against a big boulder in a pasture, during the early hours of Tuesday morning. The occupants of the car, evidently believed they were on the road to Norwich, and were proceeding at a good rate of speed through the village, but they neglected to follow the trolley tracks where they turn down South B street. The street ends abruptly at the last house on the hill, and the ride ended abruptly when it brought up against the boulder. One headlight was demolished and one fender badly crushed.

The occupants of the car got out and attempted to dislodge the car, but the whirring of the engine only disturbed the inhabitants of the neighborhood, and brought Officer Hormidas Disco to the scene. The officer saw the difficulty at once and commandeered one of the horses from the Ponemah Company's barn, with which he hauled the damaged car back to the road, and it was able to proceed on its way under its own power. The men in the car believed themselves lucky that they did not crash down the hundred foot bank to Terrace avenue.

Announcement has been made by the New England Insurance Exchange and has been confirmed by J. S. Clyne of the Connecticut Stamping Office at Hartford, of the reduction of fire insurance rates in the village of Taftville. This has been caused by the purchase by the town of Norwich of the new chemical and pumper for Fire Department, No. 3. The village is now listed as being in Class D, instead of Class E as formerly, and the rates have dropped considerably. The new rating took effect on April 23rd.

Scouts Edward Preston and Robert Schmidt of Troop 3, Boy Scouts, and Scout Marius Reguin of Troop 4, have been notified of their appointment as forest guides by State Forester A. S. Rawes. Scouts Preston and Schmidt reside in the Ellisville section of the town, and Scout Reguin lives on South A street. All three scouts have specialized in woodcraft, and fully deserve the honor that has been conferred upon them.

In a game that was exciting from the first to the ninth, the Sacred Heart school team were victors over the Spinning Room Sweepers at the first game of the season on the Providence street grounds, Monday afternoon. The Sweepers fought hard for first place, but their opponents were just a little too speedy and won by the score of 10 to 8.

The Girls' social club of the Versailles Methodist Episcopal church met Monday evening at the home of Miss Cora L. Tarbox of Occum to make arrangements to have the Dramatic Club of the Taftville Congregational church present their play in Occum. Mrs. Charles W. Perkins was appointed to take charge of tickets, to be assisted by Miss Asilcity, and stage properties in charge of Miss Helen Towar. Committees were also appointed to take charge of a sale of home made candy at the affair.

A pair of curious birds have been noted about the village during the past week, which at first glance appeared to be domestic pigeons, except that they are much smaller and of a sombre brown color. Each have a large white spot on the neck, which appears as though a ring were encircling it, and there are large white spots on the wing which are very conspicuous during flight. Amateur naturalists who have been puzzled by this strang species, have finally decided that it is the European Ring Dove or Wood Pigeon, which must have escaped from some cage, as many of these birds are imported annually for cage birds.

Mr. and Mrs. Tarbell of Newton Highlands, Mass., have been recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Young of North Third avenue.

One of the enjoyable May events was the annual dance given at the German Shooting Club, last Saturday evening, which was largely attended, many coming from out of town.

Canadian families are still arriving

In great numbers to take up their residence here. Not since the war has such a large number of families from Canada, come to settle here. Canadian families are always blessed with two things, health and children. They bring along sturdy youngsters in goodly numbers, who grow up to be among the best citizens of the town. Most of the families find work in the local mills. They make good mill operatives, are industrious and thrifty, and make up an important part of the population of the village.

The iron pipe fence which borders the wall on the easterly side of North Third avenue is undergoing repairs. For some time, the fence has been unsafe in sections as the pipes which support the rails have become rusty and loose where they are fastened into the stones of the wall.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Carter and their daughter, Mrs. Charles Cadwell of Newmarket, N. H., are the guests of the Misses Louise and Mary Stubbs of North B street.

Miss Annie Seidel of Providence Street has returned to work after enjoying two weeks vacation.

Benjamin Thibeault and his daughter, Miss Vivian Thibeault of Woonsocket, R. I., formerly of Occum, have been recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Smith of North B street.

On Thursday, the Feast of the Ascension, which is a holy day of obligation in the Roman Catholic Church, will be observed at the Sacred Heart Church with special masses at 5.30, 7.00 and 8.00 a. m. Each evening in May, three are devotions in honor of the Blessed Virgin.

Mr. and Mrs. Dalvida Comeau of Providence Street have moved to a house on Norwich Avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Sylvia Chenette of Norwich Avenue have moved to a house on Merchants Avenue.

Mrs. Walter Carson has returned to her home in Brooklyn, N. Y., after spending a few days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lucien Breault of South A street.

The large lot north of North B street owned by the Ponemah Company, is being plowed and made ready for spring planting.

Joseph Comptois of South B street has resigned his position in the No. 1 Weaving Department of the Ponemah Mills.

Frank Gingras of South A street has entered the employ of the No. 4 Weaving Department of the Ponemah Company.

Sunday evening a brooder, belonging to Walter Drew of Lisbon, took fire and was destroyed. Mr. Drew lost a number of chicks, although some escaped by running out into a wire pen that adjoined the brooder.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold E. Lenderson of Putnam, Conn., spent a short time this week with Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Yerrington of South Second avenue.

A quantity of Newfoundland money is in circulation in the village. Canadian money has always been used freely here, and is accepted at par by merchants, but Newfoundland money is something new to the town. One resident has already made a collection of several Newfoundland half dollars. Newfoundland is not part of the Dominion of Canada, but of the British Empire, and therefore issues its own notes and coins.

The Cercle des Ormeaux, a dramatic organization of Worcester, Mass., presented a play in the French language, entitled Madame le Marechal, in Parish Hall, Sunday evening under the auspices of Taftville Fire Company, No. 2. The cast included some of the players who appeared here a short time ago in L'ensorceleuse. Those who took part all showed remarkable talent and the play was greatly enjoyed by the large audience which completely filled the hall. A goodly sum was turned into the treasury of the fire company, which is striving hard to clear its building of debt.

Mrs. Jesse Phegan and children of South Second avenue have returned from a visit of several days with relatives in Arctic, R. I.

Thomas Parsons of North Fourth avenue, who has been taking a course in automotive engineering at a school in Detroit, Mich., has returned to the village and has accepted a position with a Norwich automobile agency.

Miss Roberta Crowe of South Manchester is the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Crowe of South A street.

Geoffrye Couture has returned to his home on South Second avenue after a visit with friends in Arctic, R. I.

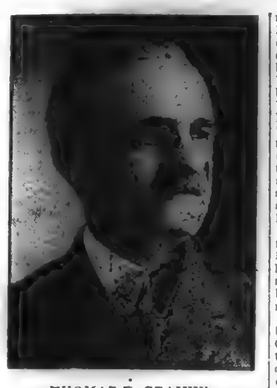
On Sunday a photograph was taken of the chemical and pumper of Fire Company, No. 2, with the members of the fire company in their uniforms.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Desmarais of South B Street have moved to Pawtucket, R. I.

Monday morning at 7 o'clock Rev. U. O. Bellerose united in marriage Miss Albina Labarre and Joseph Benoit at the Sacred Heart church. They were attended by Miss Rosanna Bellerose as bridesmaid and Albert Labarre, Jr., of Goodyear, brother of the bride. The bride wore a suit of taupe broadcloth with hat to match and carried a bouquet of white roses. Her maid was attired in a brown broadcloth suit with hat to match and carried white roses. Her maid was attired in a brown broadcloth suit with hat to match and carried pink roses.

There was a reception at the home of the bride's parents Mr. and Mrs. Albert Labarre of Hunters avenue followed by a wedding breakfast with 64 covers. Places of honor at the table were occupied by the brides' grand parents of Jewett City, both over 80 years of age. Guests were present from Providence, Springfield, Moosup, Baltic, Plainfield and Willimantic. The bride was the recipient of many beautiful gifts. The happy couple left on a wedding trip which will take them to Providence and New Bedford and upon their return will reside in Taftville where the groom is employed at the plant of the J. B. Martin Company.

ELKS' SILVER ANNIVERSARY FAIR
HAD TWO LODGES MAKING VISIT



THOMAS R. CRANEY
General Chairman

Visitations by delegations from New London and Willimantic lodges of Elks to the Norwich Elks' silver anniversary fair Tuesday night on the grounds at the Elks' home on Main street made the evening one of the big events of the five days' fair which closes tonight (Wednesday). The grounds were filled all the evening with the largest crowd that has been on hand since the fair opened, something over 2,000 people being counted inside the gates.

The Willimantic brothers were first to arrive, about 250 in number, by special trolley cars, with their own Elks band of 35 pieces, which gave a concert of popular numbers shortly after its arrival and was heard all through the evening in tuneful numbers.

Soon after their arrival the Willimantic Elks organized for a parade, led by their band. James Osten, esquire of Norwich lodge, was marshal of the parade, and the line was led by Charles F. Hill, exalted ruler of Willimantic lodge, Arthur F. Campbell, exalted ruler of Norwich lodge, District Deputy James P. Hayes, P. E. R., of Norwich lodge, and P. E. R. Thomas R. Craney, general chairman of the silver anniversary fair committee. The paraders passed through Main street to Franklin square, through Bath street to Union square, down Broadway to Main street and back to the grounds at the home.

The New London lodge members made the trip by automobiles, about 50 coming, and they helped materially to enliven the hours of entertainment at the fair grounds. They were led by Exalted Ruler Julian D Moran.

The vaudeville show was again a big attraction as given by Tommy Carroll and his Giggle Getters. The troupe of sixteen people commanded enthusiastic applause for their clever dancing, pretty costume changes, tuneful singing and surefire line of jokes and chatter. Jack Kelly's sweet tenor voice made his solo numbers favorites with the crowd.

The same troupe will furnish the entertainment tonight (Wednesday) with a change of bill.

The Willimantic Elks stayed until the gates were closed at midnight and shortly after that time marched to Franklin square, with their band playing "Auld Lang Syne," to board the cars for Willimantic.

Another big crowd is predicted at the fair for tonight (Wednesday), the closing night of the fair, when the big interest will be in the disposition of four automobiles that are to be given away.

The grounds will doubtless be thronged from the opening hour and the patronage of the crowd for the score of booths with the variety of attractive articles they are offering will bring a good sized sum into the charity fund of the Norwich Elks.

POETRY

THE COUNTRY OF SPRING.

Tell me, O Life, where a man may be gay,
Wishing life longer, and longer the day?
Where are the dawns most seraphic of wing,
Evenings least gray?
In the country of Spring.

Tell me, O Love, where a beggar may find
Love? And, O love, where art thou the least blind?
Where are the stongs that the lost shepherds sing,
Blown on the wind?
In the country of Spring.

Answer me, Age, where those green fields do lie
Where man returns ere he turns him to die?
Where lives the Mother to whom all men cling,
For whom all sigh?
In the country of Spring.

Death! in what land do the violets blow
Over the women men loved long ago?
Where o'er their graves bloom the lilies O Wing
Whiter than snow?
In the country of Spring.

—Henry De Vere Stacpoole, in Boston Transcript.

HARBOR GULLS.

A flowing silver mane and snowy ear;
Into the shafts again I see him put,
And hoof-beats out upon the highway hear,
As jauntily he jogs our cart to Hull:
A journey to the harbor with the long gray pier:
A journey for the cawing of the gull!

The waves of old Nantucket sparkle fire,
A red that shimmers through a mist of gold!
The lighthouse rises like a distant spire,
Bathed ever with the waters deep and cold:
While fluttering round it without pause or lull
On wings forever dauntless, strong and bold
I see the ashen flutter of the gull!

I see them fishing yonder on the bar,
A throng so vast they spread a silver haze!
A nine I see, where soon will come a star
To shine above it in the azure space
And all the lifting waste of waves grow dull!
Then, lingering, there will be no white-winged trace,
No flutter of the somber-breasted gull!

The sea is moaning now for all its coves;
The tide is rising far on summer sands;
The birds sing faintly from the upland groves;
A wind from out the dimming harbor fans
The stranded ship's tall mast and lifted hull!
I turn away; I wave regretful hands
In farewell to the lighthouse, sea and gull!

NINE REPORTED "SAFE" OF 20 FOREIGNERS CAPTURED

Message Received at Chinese Legation in Washington—Legation Officials Interpret the Word "Safe" to Mean That Nine Had Escaped—Message Confirmed That One British Subject Had Been Killed—Some Chinese Political Factions Are Believed to be Behind the Bandit Raid.

Washington, May 9. — Advices reaching the Chinese legation here today placed the number of foreigners captured in the bandit attack in Shantung at twenty, and said that of this number nine were "safe," a term taken by legation officials to mean that they had escaped. The message confirmed that one British subject had been killed, but made no mention of the killing of an American.

DOUBT ABILITY OF THE PEKING GOVERNMENT

Washington, May 9. — Comment here today on the Chinese situation revealed a doubt on the part of some government officials as to the ability of the Peking government to bring about the release of Americans and other foreigners taken prisoners by Chinese bandits and to pay the ransom demanded.

It was pointed out that none of Minister Schurman's reports had shown definitely what motive inspired the brigands. Whether they sought ransom in cash or recognition and immunity was said to be a question, the answer of which would throw considerable light on the central government's ability to fulfill the obligations which it has assumed. Information on this point is expected from Minister Schurman.

While the resources available to the Peking authorities are understood to be sufficient to ransom the prisoners in cash, it was pointed out that unless the money was paid by Saturday the progressive indemnity demanded by the diplomatic corps for every day the prisoners remain captive after then, if continued over a period of a few weeks, probably would exhaust the finances of the central government.

An official report from the Peking foreign office, the first to be received here, was communicated by Minister Sze in person to Secretary Hughes today soon after his arrival in Washington from China. The report said the Chinese government was doing all in its power to effect an adjustment of the situation and Secretary Hughes was understood to have expressed gratification at the promises made by Peking but reiterated his primary determination that the American prisoners should be freed and delivered unharmed.

Reports that the bandits had released all women captives were confused by the receipt of dispatches from the American legation in Peking establishing that Mrs. Seaton and Miss Auld, two American tourists from Manila, were on the wrecked train and still were unaccounted for.

Brigadier General William Connor, commanding the American forces at Tientsin, also added to the confusion in official dispatches by reporting that Majors Roland Pinger and Robert Allen, who were taken prisoner by the bandits, had not been heard from at the time his dispatch was filed last night. Press reports from China, however, said that the two army officers had escaped and the two women were safe in Shanghai.

MISS LUCY ALDRICH IS ON HER WAY TO PEKING

New York, May 9.—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., today received a cablegram from Dr. H. S. Houghton at Tsinanfu, China, advising him that Miss Lucy Aldrich, Mrs. Rockefeller's sister, and her traveling companion, Miss Mcradden, who were released after their capture by the train bandits, were on their way to Peking.

POLITICAL FACTIONS ARE BEHIND CHINESE BANDITS

Peking, May 9—(By the A. P.)—That some one of the Chinese political factions is behind the bandit raid on the Shanghai-Peking express Sunday morning with the object of embarrassing its opponents through international complications following the kidnapping of foreigners, is the impression steadily gaining ground here.

The theory is said to be freely accepted in Chinese political circles that the bandit outrage was something more than an ordinary case of brigandage, inspired by the cupidity of unorganized outlaws.

There is no intimation that any idea of aggression against foreigners entered into the alleged plot. Discussion in the capital appears to center mainly on what effect the affair will have on this or that political party.

It is pointed out in some quarters that the semblance of organization reported to exist among the bandits of the Suchow district is dominated by an element which has no sympathy whatever with the recent successes in the Yangtze valley of the militarists of the Chihli party. This party leader is Marshal Tsao Kun. Its driving power is General Wu Pei Fu, military sponsor of the present Peking government.

ANTI VOLSTEAD RULING BY FEDERAL JUDGE KNOX

New York, May 9.—Federal Judge Knox today declared unconstitutional, as restricting the right of a physician to prescribe for his patients. The provisions of the Volstead act and its amendments prohibiting the prescribing of more than a pint of spirituous liquor every ten days.

By implication, he declared his belief that a provision of the Harrison Anti-Narcotic act, prohibiting physicians from prescribing increased doses of drugs to addicts under treatment, also was unconstitutional for the same reason. Counsel for Dr. Ernest Bishop, recently indicted for violation of the drug prescribing limitation, announced they would apply to him for dismissal of the indictment.

Judge Knox read a 3,000 word decision upholding his contention of unconstitutionality and granting the injunction asked.

Although, he said, the question of whether liquor as a voluable therapeutic agent is so highly controversial that a questionnaire directed to 30,000 physicians had resulted in a 51 to 49 vote in favor of the use of liquor in certain cases, congress itself, "in the very legislation under attack" had recognized it as having a legitimate medical use.

"The difficulty," he continued, "is that having done so, congress, without reference to the quantity of liquor actually required for the proper treatment of a particular ailment, and irrespective of the good faith, judgment and skill of the physician in attendance, proceeds to limit the amount to be prescribed to not more than a pint within a period of ten days.

"The eighteenth amendment was designed to bring about the prohibition of intoxicating liquor for beverage purposes, and was not, I think, intended to put an end to the use of liquor for purposes regarded by those who proposed the amendment, and by many of the states that ratified it as justifiable and proper."

BOSTON WOMAN HELD IN $10,000 BONDS FOR FORGERY

New York, May 9.—An indictment charging forgery in the second degree was returned today against Mrs. Myrtle B. Hayes, Boston business woman, alleged by the district attorney's office to have negotiated nearly a score of notes involving $225,000 to which had been forged the endorsement of Charles M. Schwab, ironmaster.

The notes were alleged to have been issued in connection with the construction in Boston of the Hotel Chatham. The specific charge brought against Mrs. Hayes today concerned one for $25,000.

Arraigned this afternoon, the woman was held in $10,000 bail for a hearing tomorrow. Her lawyer, George Gordon Battle, pleaded in vain for smaller bail, asserting that she had come into court voluntarily to face the indictment and that she had not profited by any of the alleged forgeries.

Judge Nott of the general sessions, before whom she was arraigned, ordered her committed to the Tombs if bail was not forthcoming by 10 p. m. Meanwhile she was taken to the matron's room of the East 67th street police station to await the arrival of a brother who she said was coming from Boston to arrange bail.

Of youthful appearance and comely, Mrs. Hayes gave her age as 47 and said she was living at the Hotel Lorraine.

WEST IS SWELTERING WHILE EAST SHIVERS

Chicago, May 9.—While the east shivered and the west sweltered, the central west, covered this morning by a blanket of snow, was treated by capricious May or more moderate weather although still below the seasonal normal.

The weather bureau here predicted warmer weather for this forecast area tomorrow and indicated that normal May temperatures will return before the first of the week, following the freezing weather of last night and the snow which at times approached the proportions of a mid-winter blizzard.

While several eastern cities reported snow flurries today, the west was basking in the warm weather that set May records at some points when the thermometer sailed over the 100 degree mark.

The snow which covered most sections of the middle west this morning, and at points in Michigan reached a depth of ten inches had nearly all disappeared during the day. Despite the cold weather, it was reported that crops and fruit would not materially be damaged for the reason that they were behind the seasonal normal, due to the cold spring.

MORE ABOUT REMUNERATION OF MOTION PICTURE STARS

New York, May 9.—Shrewd business ability of Charlie Chaplin brought him $1,000,000 profit from one motion picture, one of eight for which he had contracted to produce for $1,075,000, James D. Williams, organizer of the First National company, testified today at the federal trade commission investigation into charges that the Famous Players-Lasky corporation and six other defendants constitute a trust.

Chaplin, Williams testified was allotted $100,000 additional for each of the pictures over the original contract price because of heavy production expenses, and in addition had received 70 per cent. of the gross receipts of "The Kid," which brought him $1,000,000 profit.

Mary Pickford, he continued, also was allowed $100,000 expense of each picture she produced, as the First National contracted with stars so that they were obliged to pay the production expenses out of the contract price.

MEDICAL BILL BEFORE JUDICIARY COMMITTEE

Hartford, May 9.—A bill providing for the creation of a preliminary examination board to standardize the basic educational requirements of applicants fo ra license to practice in any of the six recognized medical cults in the state, today was the center of a spirited hearing before the judiciary committee.

The bill provides for an examining board of nine members, three of whom would be laymen with the other six representing their respective schools. The bill was introduced by Representative Eddy of Canton, a doctor, who explained it as a measure designed to protect the state as far as the fundamental education of doctors was concerned. He said that the present condition which permits each of the six schools to conduct its own preliminary examinations had not worked well.

Dr. Eddy discussed the report that there were 47 doctors licensed in the state contrary to law and declared tha this bill was not concerned with them but was only concerned with future applicants for licenses. He said that the power of revoking licenses would be placed in the central board with the provision that an appeal could be taken to the superior court.

The six schools recognized by the bill are: Allopathic, homeopathic, eclectic, osteopathic, chiropractic and natureopathic.

PROHIBITION VIOLATIONS IN WESTERN PENNSYLVANIA

Pittsburgh, Pa., May 9.—Following temporary cessation of activities of government field agents in what they termed an intensive drive to "dry up" western Pennsylvania, where for months real beer has been sold openly over saloon bars in many cities, another wing of the federal forces swung into action today with telling efforts.

Two batches of indictments returned by a federal grand jury carried charges of conspiracy against officers and employes of two distilleries and others, one, a former prohibition officer. Nineteen men were named in the indictments, who are alleged to have been implicated in removal from warehouses of wholesale quantities of liquor on forged permits.

Five officers and employes of the Logansport Distillery company, at Logansport, Pa., and a Pittsburgh wholesale beverage dealer, were named in the second batch of indictments returned late today. They were charged with conspiracy in the fraudulent removal of 5,419 cases of whiskey from the distillery last February.

The company employs about 350 men working on a day and night shift. It manufactures automobile cotton and fine duck.

A committee of the operatives made their request for an increase to Superintendent John T. Hanton this afternoon and informed him that a strike would be called tomorrow if it were not granted. The management ordered the mill closed and then re-opened it with the announcement that the old wage scale would be retained. About two thirds of the employes were reported to have left their work.

PROBABLY WAS VICTIM OF RUM-RUNNERS' WAR

Providence, R. I., May 9.—The theory that the unidentified man whose nude body was found with the head crushed in on the rocks at Narragansette Pier Tuesday was a victimof a ruthless rum-runners' war gained credence in police circles today following an autopsy performed by Medical Examiner F. Edward Burke and three other physicians, under orders of Attorney General Herbert L. Carpenter.

There was no water in the lungs or stomach and the internal organs were not congested, leading to the opinion that the man was murdered and then thrown overboard from some vessel.

NOANK AND GROTON PLANTS FEATURE THE MORSE TRIAL

Evidence Given That Predated Entries of Assets of the Groton Iron Works Were Made in the Books of the Noank Plant—Auditor Increased the Valuation of the Real Estate of the Noank Shipyard from $300,000 to $800,000 and the Capital Stock from $200,000 to $1,000,000.

Washington, May 9—Evidence that predated entries of assets of the Groton Iron Works were made in the books of that concern's Noank, Conn., plant and that the Groton Company expeprienced continued difficulties in obtaining payments from the shipping board on account of government ship contracts was introduced today in the Morse trial.

Daniel H. Gilligan, auditor at the Noank yard, was the witness. He said that when he went to Noank the books were in a "muddled condition" and that he straightened them out. He prepared "work sheets" which were made the basis for the statement by Dennis and Young, New York public accountants, as to the financial condition of the company and which were presented to the emergency fleet corporation as the basis for the contract for twelve wooden ships awarded to the company on June 15, 1917.

By direction of William Dennis, the witness said, he increased the value of real estate from the $300,000 appearing on the old books to $800,000 and the $200,000 capital stock to $1,000,000. On cross-examination he asserted that the statement so far as these items were concerned was a joint statement of the company's Noank and Groton plants.

The witness testified that while the statement of assets, as contained in the Dennis and Young report on the company's books as of April 30, 1917, the actual entries were not made until the following June. A new set of books was opened, he explained.

Gilligan said also that the Noank plant's books showed overdrafts on May 1, and July 1, 1917, that creditors made frequent demands to be paid and that the company was unable to satisfy all of them. The concern also had difficulty in obtaining payments from the shipping board as the work on the ships progressed the witness declared. The first payment was received on July 2, 1917 and was for $360,000 which was deposited in a New York bank, together with an additional $100,000 which the company borrowed from that bank. Some of this money was used to liquidate old accounts, but the witness could not say whether any of the funds from the government were used for that purpose.

A NEW HIGH RECORD FOR LIFE INSURANCE

New York, May 9.—American life insurance companies wrote ten and a half billion dollars of life insurance in 1922, a new high record, and for the first time in their history paid out more than a billion dollars to policy holders, it was disclosed today in statistics prepared by The Spectator, an insurance publication. The payments totalled $1,006,931,734.

Of the $10,500,000,000 new business written, $8,400,000,000 was ordinary insurance, including group. This was about $500,000,00 less than the amount written in 1920, the previous banner year. The industrial insurance figure for 1922 was $2,100,000,000 as compared with $1,400,000 the year before.

The 260 companies included in the tabulation took in $1,672,099,924 in premiums, and had a total income of $2,137,294,355. Their assets were listed at $8,717,758,758,247, an increase of $650,87,511 from last year's figures, and their surplus assigned and unassigned at the end of the year, was $973,994,182.

"If we are to believe that the writing of new life insurance is an indication of the economic and financial condition of the country, The Spectator concludes, "it is safe to say that the depressive period of reconstruction has passed, and that America has reached a state of optimistic normalcy.

CONFIRMATION OF JUDGE PEASLEY DENIED BY SENATE

Hartford, May 9.—Prospects that the general assembly would be able to recess after its session tomorrow as had been predicted by House Leader Buckley here today when it became apparent that the volume of work still on hand would keep the legislature in session for at least several more legislative days, with some predictions that it will be at least a week.

The action of the senate in refusing to confirm Governor Templeton's nomination of Frederick M. Peasley of Cheshire to be judge of the superior court by a vote of 19 to 14 will make it necessary for the governor to make another appointment, and it is expected that the name of Judge Omar W. Platt of Milford will be sent in. Although severe criticism has been directed against the governor since he announced his nomination of Judge Peasley, it was not expected that the senate would actually turn down the nomination, and today's action came more or less as a surprise.

The judiciary committee had reported the nomination favorably and Senator Ells spoke at great length in support of the appointment.

RETURNS OF CLASS ONE RAILROADS FOR MARCH

Total revenues of the class one roads during March, amounting to $535,541,000, were thirteen per cent. greater than during the same month last year but expenditures on maintenance of equipment totaled $126,301,000 which was 19 pe cent. in excess of similar expenditure in March last year.

For the first three months of this year, net income of the class one roads was $183,124,000. Last year the first quarter earnings were $160,000,000. Class one roads were operating more than 90 per cent. of the country's milage.

A SPIRITED PROHIBITION DEBATE BY EPISCOPALIANS

New York, May 9.—A spirited debate over prohibition and its enforcement today marked the close of the annual convention of the Protestant Episcopal diocese of New York, which finally adopted a resolution requesting Governor Smith not to sign the bill which would repeal the Mullan-Gage prohibition enforcement act.

As originally submitted by the committee on miscellaneous business, the resolution opposed signing of the repealer "in the interest of law and order." This phrase was stricken out after one speaker had asserted that he would note vote for a resolution which would brand every member of the legislature who had voted for the repealer as not being a supporter of law and order.

During the debate one clergyman asserted he favored repeal of the state dry law, because under present conditions persons were compelled to be hypocrites as far as enforcement was concerned.

"I go among my friends," he said, "many of whom are at this very convention, and find wine upon their tables. I like a glass of wine myself. Many persons, including good Episcopalians, are busy making their own wine."

After one speaker had deplored the fact that the question of prohibition had come before the convention at all, and another had termed prohibition a dismal failure, Bishop Manning asked permission to speak one word.

"I would not feel quite content if I should sit in silence without expressing my views," he said. "I stand where I did last year before this convention. I said then, and I say now, that I have never been a prohibitionist but have always stood for upholding the law. It would be most sad and serious if this great state of New York should stand before the people of the land as inclined to oppose the federal law. It would be sadder still if this convention, representing the greatest diocese of the country, should take that position. I hope that the governor, for the credit of the state, will see fit to veto this law."

The resolution then was amended and adopted.

ADDRESS BY CONGRESSMAN SCHUYLER P. MERRITT

Bridgeport, May 9.—A vigorous attack on the Smith-Towner education bill and increasing costs of government, a stand with President Harding for the establishment of a world court with freedom from treaties and entanglements and a warning against tendencies toward strict democracy and mass action, were the keynotes of an address by Congressman Schuyler P. Merritt, of Stamford, before the Lions and Kiwanis clubs here this noon.

"I believe the action of President Harding in recommending adherence to this policy of a world court meets with the approval of the majority of the people," he said.

Advocating the policy of the Nutmeg state in convening its general assembly only every other year, the speaker said he favored a policy of minimizing legislation and reduction of the attitude which looks to congress for all sorts of corrective lawmaking.

He referred to the "tremendous increase" in the cost of education and government, the "enrichment of school curriculum" as possibly being an attribute of the higher education costs, and in general attacked the Smith-Towner bill which he said would "create all sorts of red tape."

A large five-ton Mack truck, loaded with fabric goods and a Buick six cylinder roadster came together on Wednesday morning about 10.30 o'clock on the Hartford-Willimantic state highway at a point some 500 feet from the Andover town line in the town of Columbia. The accident occurred on a sharp curve a short distance from Noble's garage and as a result the Buick sustained a completely demolished left side. The truck which was but slightly damaged, was being driven by Steve Harrington of Pawtucket, R. I., and is the property of the C. L. Carpenter Company of Pawtucket. The Buick is the property of Charles Tiedermann of 177 Adelaide street, Hartford.

The machines crashed and the front left side of the Buick was stove in and Mr. Tiedermann was considerably shaken up. One of the fenders on the truck was beat in a slight extent.

The state police were notified of the accident and Officers Fred T. Caron and Raymond Kelsey soon arrived on the scene. The Columbia authorities were also notified and the drivers will be given a hearing before Justice of the Peace Hubert Collins. It was alleged by witnesses that the truck was occupying approximately 11 feet and eight inches of the roadway and that the Buick had 7 feet and 5 inches at its disposal, both measurements including the two or three feet of sand on each side of the macadam. The Buick was insured through the Strong and Grant agency of this city.

CHANGE OF LIFE LOSES TERRORS

For Women who Rely upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Greenville, Pa.—"I took your medicine through the Change of Life and it did wonders for me. I was down in bed when I started to take it and weighed 95 pounds. I had hot flashes and was so nervous and weak that everything would get black and I could not see. I would sit and cry and did not know what I was crying for. Since I have been taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I feel younger than I did ten years ago, and my friends all tell me I look younger, and I owe it all to the Vegetable Compound. I do all my housework for a family of seven now. I will be glad to answer any woman who writes me in regard to my case."—Mrs. JOHN MYERS, 58 Union St., Greenville, Pa.

Many letters similar to this have been published testifying to the merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. They are sincere expressions from women who describe as best they can their feelings before and after taking this well-known medicine.

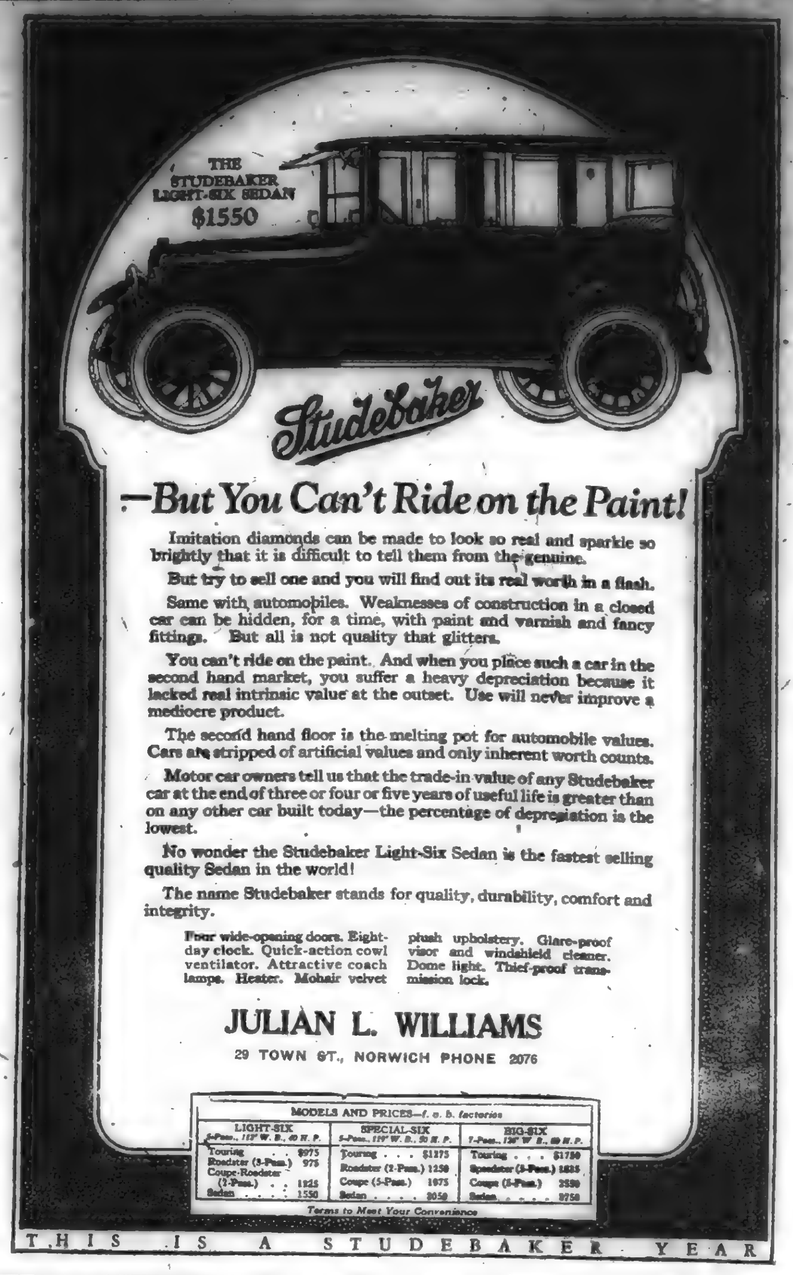
Says Dangerous Varicose Veins Can Be Reduced at Home

Rub Gently and Upward Toward the Heart as Blood in Veins Flows That Way.

If you or any relative or friend is worried because of varicose veins, or bunches, the best advice that anyone in this world can give is to get a prescription that many physicians are now prescribing.

Ask your druggist for an original two-ounce bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil (full strength) and apply night and morning to the swollen, enlarged veins. Soon you will notice that they are growing smaller and the treatment should be continued until the veins are of normal size. So penetrating and powerful is Emerald Oil that it dissolves goitre and wens and causes them to disappear. It can be secured at any pharmacy.



—But You Can't Ride on the Paint!

Imitation diamonds can be made to look so real and sparkle so brightly that it is difficult to tell them from the genuine.

But try to sell one and you will find out its real worth in a flash.

Same with automobiles. Weaknesses of construction in a closed car can be hidden, for a time, with paint and varnish and fancy fittings. But all is not quality that glitters.

You can't ride on the paint. And when you place such a car in the second hand market, you suffer a heavy depreciation because it lacked real intrinsic value at the outset. Use will never improve a mediocre product.

The second hand floor is the melting pot for automobile values. Cars are stripped of artificial values and only inherent worth counts.

Motor car owners tell us that the trade-in value of any Studebaker car at the end of three or four or five years of useful life is greater than on any other car built today—the percentage of depreciation is the lowest.

Four wide-opening doors. Eight-day clock. Quick-action cowl ventilator. Attractive coach lamps. Heater. Mohair velvet plush upholstery. Glare-proof visor and windshield cleaner. Dome light. Thief-proof transmission lock.

An exceptionally fine selection of B. F. Keith vaudeville acts will be presented the last half of this week starting today at the Broadway theatre. The Five Steppin' Fools is the headline attraction presenting a series of twists, taps and twirls. The production was staged by Hal Lane. Zella Green, the singing comedienne is sure to please. Mlle. La Tor's models is called vaudeville's prettiest offering, the act is a wonderful exhibition of canine intelligence, beautifully presented and an act that will be enjoyed by everybody. Thomas P. Jackson, assisted by Jean Russell, in "The New Stenographer," a one-act playlet that's different. Johnny Neff, the barnstorm comedian, will come in for his share of laughs.

Strand Theatre, Friday and Saturday.

These are some of the things which are said of "The Song of Life," the First National attraction which is coming to the Strand Theatre on Friday for an engagement of two days only.

Certainly "The Song of Life" is not to be pre-judged as an ordinary motion picture when one considers who produced it and who the celebrities are that interpreted it for the screen.

"The Song of Life" was made under the direction of John M. Stahl, that widely known creative genius of the screen, for Louis B. Mayer. It is Mr. Stahl's second independent unit production, his first being the highly successful photoplay, "The Child Thou Gavest Me."

It was, in fact, Mr. Stahl who originated the theme on which "The Song of Life" is based. For years he had been harboring the idea and now that he is an independent producer he has decided to give it to the screen.

The cast in "The Song of Life" includes such cinema celebrities as Gaston Glass, Grace Darmond, Georgia Woodthorpe and little Richard Headlick, the four-year-old idol of millions; Arthur Stuart Hull, Wedgwood Nowell, Edward Peil, Fred Kelsey and Claude Payton.

Ernest Palmer, who photographed "The Miracle Man" and other notable film productions, was chief cameraman during the making of "The Song of Life."

The fourth round of Fighting Blood series called "Two Stones with One Bird" and a News Weekly will make up the remaining subjects on the bill.

Last Showings of "The Christian" Today at Breed Theatre.

If you can't get to Tijuana, Pimlico or Churchill Downs, you might look over the Goldwyn production of "The Christian," which will be shown at the Breed theatre today.

In it you will see an exciting horse race on one of the most famous old tracks in the world, Epsom Downs, near London, on Derby day. You will notice several things in contrast to American customs. Epsom is a turf track, for one thing, and bookmakers ply their trade openly instead of secretly. You will see Richard Mix, in the title role, exhorting (in vain) the heedless pleasure seekers to turn from their worldly ways. You will see racing where it is truly the "sport of kings," with a king's horse among the starters, and you will see an English holiday crowd at its favorite pastime.

Maurice Tourneur directed this film version of the famous Hall Caine novel and the cast includes, besides Mr. Dix and Miss Busch, Phyllis Haver, Gareth Hughes, Claude Gillingwater, Mahlon Hamilton and others equally well known.

HEAVYWEIGHTS IN FINE CONDITION FOR MILK FUND BOUT SATURDAY

New York, May 9.—As the ten heavyweights entered in the elimination contests at Yankee stadium saturday for the Milk Fund began tapering off in their training today and a score of battered sparring partners sighed relief, promoters made preparations to care for the greatest crowd that ever witnessed a pugilistic carnival.

Predictions of promoters, based on the advance demand for seats, were that close to 100,000 persons would be in the vast baseball amphitheatre when the voice of the announcer boomed to the spectators through amplifiers the identities of the performers in the first match. This would eclipse the crowd of more than 90,000 that saw Georges Carpentier bowled to the canvas at Boyle's Thirty Acres, Jersey City, July 2, 1921.

Half a thousand members of New York's police department have been assigned to preserve order in the stadium.

The heaviest of the heavies entered in the show, Jess Willard, shook the heads of two sparring partners with vicious lefts today in his final hard workout. Jess will spend tomorrow and Friday in exercises to improve his wind. He expects to go into the ring weighing 242 pounds and hopes to finish young Floyd Johnson within eight rounds. But Johnson, as confident a youngster as ever battled in the ring, thinks he will be able to wear out the aged former champion in about 12 rounds. Johnson suffered a slight cut over his left eye sparring with Alex Hart, the Philadelphia lightweight, yesterday, and will do no more sparring. His trainer, Willie Lewis, said today that Johnson was in superb condition.

Jack McAuliffe, 2d, of Detroit, and Luis Firpo, the South American champion, principals in the other 15 round match, appeared today to be the finest physical specimens of the lot. The massive Firpo, both in condition and fighting style, has improved wonderfully since his engagement with Bill Brennan. His opponent, while not so powerful, is younger and has had more thorough ring schooling.

O'LEARY ROUNDING UP TEAM FOR CARDINALS

Manager O'Leary of the Norwich Baseball club is busy getting a team together that will show up well against the St. Louis Cardinals when they appear here on Sunday. Practically the same team that made such a good showing against Worcester last Sunday will be in the field with the possible exception of the battery. O'Leary is scouting for a pitcher that is eligible to go against them and as final choice may pitch Eddie Boyce. He is angling for several first class hurlers but has not received any definite assurance that he can get them.

The Cardinals have hit a winning streak and on Wednesday turned back the Phillies in a hard hitting game. Bottomley and Stock were the feature hitters of the game, Stock getting three hits out of four times at bat and Bottomley getting 3 out of 5. Both these boys will be here on Sunday with the regulars. No matter who O'Leary secures for a pitcher there is bound to be some hard hitting by the Cardinals when they get to swinging their war clubs. Who will pitch for the Cardinals is not known and it will probably be Sells or Sherdel.

COLLEGE ATHLETES INVITED TO MEET IN CHICAGO

Chicago, May 9.—Invitations to the colleges of America to enter their athletic stars in a national collegiate athletic association championship track and field meet were mailed tonight by Major John L. Griffith, commissioner of athletics of the western conference and a member of the committee in charge of the meet.

The meet will be held at the University of Chicago field June 15 and 16. It will be conducted by the National Collegiate Athletic Association which is composed of 200 of the leading colleges and universities of the country. The competition will be open to all college athletes who have won a place in a conference, state, sectional or a general intercollegiate meet. The event will bring together the winners of the twenty sectional meets being held throughout the country. The University of California captured the team trophy last year but the University of Michigan with a well balanced team promises to be a contender for the 1923 honors.

The announcement that the University of Southern California would enter a team furnishes another ankle to the controversy of the National A. A. U. over Charles Paddock, the fastest human.

The National Collegiate Association will welcome Paddock as a contestant in the Chicago meet, according to Major Griffith. Permitting Paddock to compete in the meet after the A. A. U. had held him as an "outlaw" because of his unsanctioned trip to Paris, may provoke a controversy officials admitted, between the A. A. U. and the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

Entries for the national meet will close with A. A. Stagg, director of athletics at the University of Chicago, on June 5.

GRAMMAR SCHOOL LEAGUE AND ATHLETIC MEET PLANNED

A grammar school baseball league and a big athletic meet has just been announced by the grammar school Y. M. C. A. athletic committee, consisting of Principals J. E. Murphy, J. F. Stanton, Frank Clapp and Physical Director E. J. Fritz of the Y. M. C. A.

The baseball league series will be played on the Academy field, beginning next Wednesday afternoon when the Broadway team is scheduled to meet the Greeneville nine.

The athletic meet will be held at the fairgrounds, Friday afternoon, May 18, and plans are to make it bigger and better than ever. More events have been scheduled than in last year's meet, and some events have been included for the girls. The events are as follows: Boys' relay race (12 boys per team) each boy running 88 yards; running broad jump; girls, 50 yard dash, tug of war (12 boys per team), running high jump, potato races; girls' relay race (10 girls per team) each girl 20 yards each.

The Norwich Evening Record has offered a pennant, which is to go to the baseball league champions, and The Bulletin is backing the athletes by presenting a trophy cup to be awarded to the school winning in the athletic meet.

JENKINS, HARVARD ATHLETE, IS VERSATILE PERFORMER

Cambridge, Mass., May 9.—Versatility in athletics presented a problem today to the graduate managers of Princeton and Harvard who were called upon to make a special agreement in order that Percy Jenkins, of Quincy, might be able to compete in both the track meet and the baseball game against Princeton here one week from Saturday. Princeton readily agreed to the fixing of time for the two events in such a way that the Harvard athlete might do double duty for his alma mater. Last year Jenkins won his letters in broad jumping, baseball and football.

While Jenkins was competing in the broad jump against Yale last season a baseball game with Amherst started but he got into his regular berth at shortstop before the game was over. In his freshman year he encountered similar difficulties.

He is 30 years old.

FIVE AMERICANS STILL IN FIGHT FOR BRITISH AMATEUR GOLF TITLE

Deal, England, May 9.—(By the A. P.)—Five fighting Americans still had their fingers on John Bull's golf pie tonight, with three rounds of play behind them in the long battle for the amateur championship of Great Britain.

The quintet of Americans who were among the survivors of today's grind are Francis Ouimet of Boston, Dr. D. F. Willing of Portland, Ore., George V. Rotan of Houston, Texas., J. F. Neville of San Francisco and Douglas Grant.

The last named, a resident of England, had the honor today of eliminating the champion, E. W. Holderness.

Two Americans went down the chute on which Holderness slid to his sorrow—Fred Wright, Jr., of Los Angeles and Maxwell R. Marston of Philadelphia. Wright was put aside by G. N. P. Humphries, a Cambridge graduate of considerable renown on the fairways of his homeland, and Marston was conquered by the hard-hitting Cyril Tolley.

None of the Americans who won had any difficulty. They were so much superior to their third round opponents that one of them, Rotan, was able to play in a mediocre manner and still win, crushing F. Lies. Stone of Sidcup by a score of 8 and 7. On almost every green Stone putted the ball from one side of the hole to the other before he could entice it tosiip into the cup. As a result, Rotan had nothing to do but keep going.

Ouimet defeated P. Clough, of Bradford, 5 and 3. Dr. Willing defeated E. Blackwell, of Prestiwkc, 3 and 2, and Neville won from W. H. Ricardo, of Worplesdon, 4 and 3.

Wright, like Rotan, had an off day, but unlike the Texan he did not have an easy opponent, and that is the short and simple story of his defeat by Humphries, who was able to take and did take advantage of every topped approach and the many poor putts of which Wright was guilty.

Max Marston knew what he had on his hands the minute he and Tolley drove off the first tee, and apparently so did everyone else. It was the feature match of, as the English say, the "star turn" of the day, and a big gallery waited for them behind ropes guarding the first green. Both were on the green in two, with a good chance for 3s, but each took 4. At the second, Marston required three putts, and Tolley took the hole. They were all square again on the third, Marston sinking a 12-foot putt for a 4.

Then came the short fourth, where high mounds hide the green from the sight of those on the tee. Marston's drive landed on the green while Tolley's lodged in a sand mound and he conceded the hole, without taking a second stroke. The fifth was halved in 5s. On the sixth green Tolley's second putt rolled around the rim of the cup and then darted away, whereupon he conceded Marston's two-foot putt and the hole, which made the Pennsylvanian two up.

Then, on the seventh, came the break in their gritty struggle. Tolley's third was dead to the pin, about a foot from the cup. Marston's second lay in clover just off the edge, and everyone could see that Tolley's ball lay on a line from Marston's to the cup. The gallery expected to see Marston play safe and putt either from one side or the other of Tolley's ball but he chose to go straight. The putt was short and he was stymied. He tried a tiny, delicate pitch with a niblic, but the ball rang against the top of the tin circle and bounced out, and the hole was Tolley's, 4 and 5.

The Britisher also took the next two holes, the eighth with a birdie two. Thus finishing the first nine holes one up, having wrested the lead from the American. They halved the tenth and Tolley increased his lead on the eleventh when Marston's second shoe went into a bunker. The Englishman became three up on the short fourteen when the American again got into bunker trouble and then overran his approach putt.

On the fifteenth Marston cut the Britisher's lead to two when Tolley missed a short putt. On the sixteenth Marston addressed his second with a brassie, shouted for the crowd to move back as he was likely to slice it. He knew what he was talking about for he did slice, and slice badly, while Tolley's second got to the green. It took Marston two more shots to get there from the rough where his drive landed, and as Tolley slapped his first putt to the edge of the cup there was nothing else for Marston to do but go over and congratulate him.

Tomorrow morning half of the fortunate 32 who are still in the running will be elimnaited, and one American is sure to be among the fallen, for as the luck of the draw would have it Ouimet meets Neville in the forenoon. The fifth round will be played in the afternoon, so that only eight will remain in the struggle by sundown tomorrow. On Friday morning the sixth round will cut them to four and the semi-finals will be played Friday afternoon.

Dr. Willing tomorrow morning will play R. W. Cummack, Lancashire; Rotan is paired with W. L. Hope of Turnbury, Scotch internationalist, and Douglas Grant will play H. D. Gillies, of Woking.

WORLD COURT DISCUSSED BY WOMEN'S CLUBS

Atlanta, Ga., May 9—(By the A. P.)—With a resolution asking approval by the general federation of women's clubs of proposed American adherence to an international court of justice awaiting presentation to the council meeting tomorrow, discussion of the world court entered the council session here this afternoon.

The resolution asking approval by the federation of proposed American participation in an international court of justice was brought out of the resolutions committee but was not reported. It will be read to the convention tomorrow and will lie dormant for 24 hours. The resolution makes no mention of "world court" nor does it connect up with the proposal advanced by President Harding. However, it was informally pointed out by members of the resolutions committee that there is but one court proposal now before the country, that if President Harding.

Another resolution appeals for a selective immigration law, and a third, understood to be in the hands of the committee, calls upon the club women to join in a move to reduce sugar consumption to bring about a price reduction.

YOUTH THREATENED BY THREE MASKED MEN

Asbury Park, N. J., May 9—Three white masked men, investigating the theft of a donation of $50 given to Mrs. Ella Titus, of West Belmar, by the Belmar branch of the Ku Klux Klan entered the home of William Radman, a contractor of West Belmar last night and with drawn pistol kidnapped Mrs. Titus' 18 year old son, George, according to County Detective Charles O. Davenport.

The Titus boy had been befriended by Radman since the boy's mother and and father separated several months ago, the county detective said. Radman told the authorities the masked men carried Titus to Shark river hill where by threats they sought to compel him to admit the theft of $50, a gift to his mother from the Belmar branch of a nationally known secret order.

The men threatened to hang the boy by a rope which was dangling from the limb of a tree, the county detective said, if he did not tell the truth.

After young Titus had repeatedly denied the theft, he told the county detective the men carried him back in the automobile to a cross-road at New Bedford about a mile from the Radman home and released him.

Bridgeport, May 9—William A. Funk, of 463 76th street, Brooklyn, N. Y., was found lying in a dying condition beside an overturned motorcycle on the Southport Post road shortly before six o'clock tonight. He died from a fractured skull while being rushed to St. Vincent's hospital here.

E. J. C. Joralmanon, of 872 Degraw avenue, Newark, N. J., who found Funk, said no other person or vehicle was in the vicinity. State police and Southport authorities are trying to learn how Funk was fatally hurt. They said they did not know late tonight whether his motorcycle had crashed into a tree or whether he was in collision with a motor car. Funk was employed by the Cutler Hammer Manufacturing company of New York.

The man who knows enough to attend to his own business, knows a good deal.

POETRY

THE ROMANCE OF THE ROSE.

Poor Rose! I lift you from the street—
Far better I should own you
Than you should lie for random feet
Where careless hands have thrown you!

Poor pinky petals crushed and torn!
Did heartless Mayfair use you,
Then cast you forth to lie forlorn,
For chariot-wheels to bruise you?

I saw you last in Edith's hair
Rose, you would scarce discover
That I she passed upon the stair
Was Edith's favored lover.

A month—"a little month"—ago—
O theme for moral writer!—
'Twixt you and me, my Rose, you know,
She might have been politer:

But lo, that pave. She gave you then—
Behind the oleander—
To one, peshaps of all the men,
Who best could understand her.—

Cyril that slyly flattered, took,
As only Cyril's able,
With just the tiune Arcadian look
He used, last night, for Mabel!

Then, having waltzed till every star
Had faded away in morning
Let you be cynical clear,
And tossed you downward, scorning

Kismet, my Rose, Romance is sweet—
She made you heart-strings quiver;
And so!—You shan't be in the street,
I'll drop you in the river.

VETO SHOULD BE OVERRIDDEN.

Much surprise and disappointment is bound to be manifested in the action of Governor Templeton in vetoing the measure to include the turnpike between Norwich and East Haddam in the trunk line system of the state.

Here is an improvement that has long been needed. This turnpike not only handles a considerable amount of traffic between here and the Connecticut river and between here and Gardner Lake, but put in condition it would handle a much larger volume and give relief to congested conditions which prevail on the main lines of traffic to which travel is now forced.

Weak is the excuse offered by the governor that the road lies through a sparsely settled section. That might have been said of some of the great railroad systems of the country before they were built. Sparsely settled sections of the state are due to the lack of just such improved conditions as are being sought by this road. Many other trunk line highways would never have been constructed, and some that have been built of concrete would not have been attempted had it become a rule to build no improved road where houses did not exist on both sides the entire length.

Plainly the governor has given little consideration to the interests of the towns through which this road passes, or to those who would be benefited by the advantages offered by the improvement.

It cannot be believed that his veto will prove convincing to the members of the legislature. There are strong reasons for believing that this is another veto which the legislature will be entirely justified in overriding. Certainly such action is to be anticipated in the proper distribution of stat ehighway improvements, and if the merits of the Tolland county road are on a par with those of the one in this county the same action deserves to be taken in that case.

PUNISHING DOPE PEDDLERS.

Down in Wilmington, Del., there is an interesting disclosure in regard to the dope evil and the illicit traffic that is carried on by those who are willing to get rich through the demoralization of humanity.

Two years ago there was an alien running a barbershop in that city. He became aware of the opportunity that existed for engaging in the business of handling narcotics. That it was against the law made no difference. He considered he was careful enough so that he would not be caught. He was looking for the dollars that were obtainable from such a business and he got them. He became the leader in that line of trade. He had no conscientious scruples and he covered up the lawbreaking side of it by consideration of the snug sum he was getting. In a short space of time he bought an expensive home, acquired considerable real estate, invested in a half dozen automobiles and put away $200,000 in the bank.

Perhaps he had carried on the illegal traffic so long that he considered himself immune to the law, but it is a long road that has no turning. The results of his business came to the attention of the federal authorities. Soldiers who had died from the use of drugs were the direct cause of a thorough investigation and his arrest. Today he is in prison, sentenced for eleven years and to pay a fine of $4,000.

There can be no sympathy for such an individual. Considering the effects upon humanity which the business he has conducted for the past two years has caused it must be felt that his sentence was by no means too severe.

There is a lesson in this case for other dealers in dope. Such people are entitled to no respect and when caught in such a business should get no leniency. It is not only a case of flaunting the federal law but of deliberately setting out to wreck human lives for paltry dollars, and the strongest possible cooperation should be given to the government in its fight to discover and end such operations.

HONORS CANNOT BE DENIED.

The announcement which is now made by the National Aeronautical association to the effect that it will press its efforts for an amendment to the flying rules of the international federation which will recognize straight away flying records is timely in view of the feeling that has been aroused over the refusal to recognize the accomplishment of the American army lieutenants.

While the national association is fully aware of the injustice of the situation which requires long distance fliers to return to the point of departure, action removing that requirement must be taken by the international body, and it is to the credit of the American organization that it had petitioned in March for a modification that would have covered the case now in question.

Something more than anticipation is thus added to the support of the plea. No greater injustice can be imagined than to deny the American lieutenants the world record which they have certainly established. If there had been nothing in the past to warrant a change in the rules it has now been provided and with the sanctioning of the alteration of the rules the change should be made retroactive to the date of the American petition so that the flight across this country may get the recognition to which it is entitled.

A world's record has of course been established, whether in this particular case the rules of an international organization which has its headquarters in Europe permits it to be accepted. That record will stand until someone exceeds it and those who made it will get the honors to which they are entitled even though they crossed the continent instead of flying in a circle. Whatever views the international organization may have held regarding such flights in the past that from New York to San Diego suffices to furnish the necessary proof that it works an injustice and calls for a modification. Such an organization must at least keep up with aviation achievements.

BIGGER JOB FOR HOUSEWIVES.

That there should be an appeal taken by the government from the decision of the federal court in refusing to grant an injunction against the sugar exchange is in keeping with what is to be expected. The government bases its action upon a decision of the United States supreme court regarding the dealing in grain and it is natural that it should hold that a similar view is justified concerning sugar.

Through the appeal, however, there is likely to be no quick relief. Whatever is done in the meantime seems likely to make the greatest progress through the efforts that have already been undertaken for the purpose of curtailing the amount of sugar that is consumed in the country.

Being told by a refiner that there is an ample supply it becomes evident that if the consumption drops, without being detrimental to the health of the consumer in any way, it will mean an increase in the supply over and above what it would be with the rate of consumption continuing at an unrestricted pace. With the amount of sugar piling up the law of supply and demand cannot be entirely ignored. An increasing supply naturally results in a decreased price.

More and more are people learning that they would be better off without so much sugar. Just at the present time they are conscious of the fact that it would be beneficial from both the standpoint of the pocketbook as well as that of health. The failure of the federal court to grant an injunction can be expected to mean renewed and increased activities in behalf of the sugar boycott which authorities, high and low, considered to be entirely justified. The decision leaves a bigger job for the housewives.

DEALING WITH RUSSIA.

Conditions are not improving in soviet Russia. Rather do they appear to be going from bad to worse if we are to judge by the protest that has been handed to the Russians by the British representative in that country.

The protest comes as the result of a series of acts which stir resentment among the British. Great Britain realizes that it is time to come to an understanding. If conditions are to continue as they are the British are prepared to sever relations, and yet it doesn't appear just how much they are willing to accept in the way of promises without something actually being done to overcome the situation that has been created.

With soviet Russia seeking the recognition of this and other countries for the advantages which it knows would come from it, it cannot calmly face the possibility of the ending of such relations as it now has with Great Britain. It is a situation which only goes to emphasize the wisdom that was displayed by the secretary of state in this country in refusing to have anything to do with soviet Russia until it met the guarantees which were called for.

Apparently the British are getting tired of their experiences. It was not long after the trade relations were established with Russia by the British than it was declared by a high British authority that it was unwise to send goods to Russia unless it was intended to give them away. Now it seems to be getting more and more unwise to have anything to do with the government of that country as it now exists.

MOTHER KNEW

"Bob, listen! Take your nose out of that book and listen!" implored Gretta. "Mother's going to let me go to the Christmas high school dance!"

"The dance she is!" Bob came to life with a sudden start and sat up on the playroom window seat, his rumpled yellow hair glinting in the firelight, his tie under one ear. "Well, if that means that I have to take you," he went on, with brotherly candor, "you're out of luck."

"Oh, Bob!" Gretta, having been dearly brought up by a brother two years older, knew better than to cry. But her cheeks were suspiciously pink, her brown eyes especially pleading. "Now, don't be an old grouch and spoil everything."

"But I don't want to go."

"I know you don't. But you might be a good sport about it. I'm not so terribly keen about having you take me, either. I can think of a whole lot of fellows I'd rather—but mother won't let me. She's a darling, but she's got funny ideas. Not till I'm 16. Not in the evening. It's perfectly ridiculous of her—I can't think what makes her so set about it. All the girls do!"

"It's a darn good thing for you she is set about it. If you chased around like a lot of these flappers do I'd go jump in the lake before I owned you for a sister. And if I do take you it'll be just the first dance and no more!"

"That's the boy! And the first dance will be plenty, thanks. If you'd only learn to camel walk—"

"Easy on that stuff or you stay home! I won't. And you'd better quit picking on me about it. What are you sore at Chick over? Didn't he take you to the Englewood game?"

"If I tell will you cross your heart?"

"Hope to die."

"He kissed me," said Gretta, in a little voice, and gave her entire attention to destroying a perfectly good fire with the poker.

"He what?"

"He kissed me."

"The big stiff! What did he want to do that for?"

"How do I know? But you needn't be so surprised about it. Lots of girls get kissed, right along."

"Mush!"

"They do, and you know it. Just because you live and breathe and eat to play football is no sign you're deaf and dumb and blind. Mother wasn't a bit surprised. She was perfectly peachy."

"You told her?"

"I had to," Gretta admitted. "You see I'd never keep a secret from her before, if I am 14. But I didn't honestly know what to do about this, because—truly, Bob, I don't think Chick knew himself that it was going to happen. And I told him where he got off, myself, right away. And I was afraid mother'd be awfully mad and tell him he couldn't ever come here again, and then he'd know I told."

"But she didn't?"

"She was splendid. She didn't blame Chick one bit. She just said, 'Where were you, Gretta, when this happened? What were you doing and saying? Tell me every little thing.' And I said, 'We were coming home from the Englewood game. And we got to that gap in the hedge under the street lamp. And it was snowing.

"Just then I put my hand through his arm and looked up at him and said, 'Oh, Chick! You will vote for the gold class pins instead of the silver ones—won't you?' and it happened.' Then mother said, 'Gretta, dear, keep your hands off the boys. Don't hang onto their arms, or coat lapels, or their neckties. Don't steal their tie pins or their handkerchiefs. And if you look up at them like that, under any kind of light, particularly when it is snowing, you will probably be kissed; and you'll deserve it. And if you want to be the kind of girl that any boy can kiss, that's the way to do it, honey. But I don't believe you do.'"

"Hasn't she? I was so relieved: because, of course, I don't want to be that kind of girl. And yet—you know Bob, that I don't want Chick to kiss me again, or any one else—ever. Not for years and years, anyway. But if I ever should — some time — why, you know—"

Gretta paused. It was growing dark in the playroom. The fire had settled to a bed of coals, and in its glow her head was a curly brown silhouette, with little gleams of red along the edges.

"Yes?" questioned Bob, curiously.

"If I ever should," said Gretta, "It's kind of a comfortable feeling to think that I know how."—Chicago News.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Not Public Spirited Act.

Mr. Editor: In the obituary of my brother, Willis D. Perkins, it is stated that he was the donor of Meeting House Rocks at Norwich Town to the Norwich Rural Association. This is untrue. He did not donate them. They were gotten away from my brother, as he has always said, through the exercise of undue influence, and he has always regretted it and has worried about it ever since. He wasn't a public spirited citizen nor did he ever donate anything to the public.

Wives of Famous Men

Elizabeth, Wife of Emperor Franz Joseph.

Another unhappy royal union was the romantic marriage of the late Emperor Franz Joseph of Austria to Elizabeth, daughter of Duke Leopold of Bavaria, a nobleman with many children and an income in inverse ratio. Elizabeth, one of the youngest and most beautiful of his family, met the young Franz Joseph quite by accident at a fashionable watering place.

He was charmed at once by her grace and pulchritude, and attraced much unfavorable attention by dancing with her and displaying a marked interest throughout the evening. This interest he unwisely, from the political point of view, continued. He became deeply enamoured of the girl and despite the difference in their rank asked her to be his wife.

This was almost the sole act of his life in which the emperor allowed his heart to guide him, and it proved that his heart was a poor judge. His choice of a wife was unwise for more than one reason. The empress' lack of funds caused the ladies of the court to act unkindly toward her. Her life, in spite of the splendor of the court, was not happy, and her husband's infatuation had no wearing qualities. His affair with the actress Katie Schratt has become history. Elizabeth, too proud to complain grew morose. Haughty to a degree, she had never made any contacts, either with the people immediately around her nor with the populace; and her bitter marital experience lured her into a hermit's life. Her end was a tragic one—in 1898 she was assassinated by a mad Italian. The public mourning, however, was for appearances only, she had no hold on the hearts of her people.

Stories That Recall Others

Tire For the Bay.

A young woman appeared at a store where they sell tires recently and asked for a "baby tire." Spare tires for baby carriages were suggested, but that was not what the young woman wished. She illustrated with her finger a circle of about an inch and a half in diameter, saying it was the size of the tire she wished.

"It's something for my baby to use in cutting teeth," she said.

A teething ring was suggested and it fit the specifications.

The young woman said she had asked at many garages for the "tire" and had been directed to the store. There she was in turn directed to a drug store.

Dangerous Ground.

She is one of the most talkative of young women. And recently she became a bride. As she walked up the aisle of the church the evening of her wedding she was much excited. And the bridegroom kept saying to her in an undertone, "Walk slower; walk slower."

Later in the carriage he apologized to her for giving her advice at the church. She looked at him a minute. "Oh, that was all right, dear," she said, "but you were near dangerous ground if you had only known it. I kept thinking at first that you were saying 'Talk slower,' and I was just getting ready to tell you what I thought of you when we reached the altar."

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

Kastelorizo

"Kastelorizo, raided by Turks, who were repelled by an Italian garrison, was a notable island among the classic Greeks," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"Today the island is important only as a key to Italy's sphere of influence on the contiguous mainland of Asia Minor. A region as conspicuous in Ionic times as England is in the modern world has become one of the least known areas in the inhabited world of 1923.

"Two major peninsulas protrude from the south coast of Asia Minor into the Mediterranean. Tiny Kastelorizo lies along the shore of the westernmost protuberance, which juts out between the Gulf of Makri and the picturesque port of Adalia. The shore line between these points marks the coast of ancient Lycia; the peninsula now has no distinctive name.

It taxes the imagination to realize the wealth, culture, and great population of western Asia Minor in the era of the Seven Wise Men, through the period of the Kings of Pergamus, down to the time of the Roman occupation and that great letter-writer, St. Paul.

"This region then had at least 230 cities, each city stuck off its own coins, and at least three claimed preeminence as the 'first city of Asia.' The Aegean was to Ionia what the western Mediterranean was to Europe of medieval times: and Greek colonists fringed the shores of the eastern Mediterranean. Nomenclature, at least, Kastelorizo gives a hint of classic times for the atlas still designates it as an Aegean Island—the easternmost—and it has been governed in modern times as an adjunct to Rhodes.

"The setting, too, recalls that environment which gave the Greeks the joy of living and youth of mind which the world still envies. Here, says one writer, 'the sea is bluer than other seas; the tints of the skies are softer, the violet and rose blend more marvelously in the sunsets, the mountains have a sensuous attraction, and the sails on the horizon allure.'

"Kastelorizo then was one facet of the charm of the insular life of the Mediterranean. Now the steamers that ply from Rhodes to Adalia pass it by. It has attained no distinction since it acquired its present name from the red castle erected there by the adventurous Juan de Heredia when Edward III was on England's throne.

"From the steamer the island flecks the shore line back of which rise the snow-capped peaks of Lycia, the foothills of the Taurus mountains.

"One discerns the site of Xanthus, a city of which Homer sang, which gave up an obelisk to modern explorers not many years ago. While Egypt's tombs were storage vaults, the rock-cut tombs of these shores represent homes as they were furnished while their dead were yet living. It is from a Lycian sacophagus that bas-reliefs were taken to the British museum which are considered some of the most exquisite extant types of this style of decoration.

"Adalia, which is the apple of the Italian eyes as Smyrna was of the modern Greeks, is the most fascinating city on the coast. Cliff-built, the town is notable for many cascades of sparkling water, though it seems like stretching a point to call them cataracts.

"Everywhere pieces of ancient sculpture are used to adorn walls, doorways, courtyards and fountains. The ancient wall is preserved almost in its entirety.

"Popularly Adalia is best known for its dancing dervishes. For generations the Greeks have lived so much to themselves that they retain many ancient habits. This also is true of the Jews. Bazaars and mosques hold their early Turkish character.

"Streets are very narrow in places, balconies of houses often project on above the other so far that two persons can almost join hands across the street from upper stories.

"Adalia has a flourishing silk industry. Cocoon sheds outside the city limits are interesting because the laborers represent so many nationalities."

"MOODUS NOISES" MAKE THEIR REAPPEARANCE

Moodus, Conn., May 9.—A distinct shock of "Moodus noises" was felt here about 2.30 this morning. It was sufficiently heavy to shake houses and cause loose articles to rattle. The noise was like a moderately heavy clap of thunder, gradually dying away. The duration of the shock was several seconds. People were awakned by the tremors. It has been several years since the last previous shock.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

In the Metropolitan Opera house in New York tonight the president of the United States and other representatives of the nation are to be heard in tribute to Gen. and Mrs. Ballington Booth for their service to country and humanity. Gen. Booth is the eldest son of the late Gen. William Booth, the founder of the Salvation Army. Mrs. Booth is the daughter of an English clergyman. She became the wife of Ballington Booth in 1886, and a year later arrived in America to work with her husband in charge of Salvation Army affairs. Until 1896 the administration of the American work by Ballington Booth was satisfactory to the founder of the movement. Then friction came, and the independent younger Booth, chafing under the arbitrary acts of his father, left the Salvation Army and founded the Volunteers of America. His wife, early in her resident in America, became interested in the welfare of prison inmates, and began to concentrate her attention on them; and today she is known generally among them as "Little Mother."

CHILD TRAINING

THE BUSINESS OF BEING A CHILD.

"Red-Strapped Overalls."

By Josephine Weyman.

A man who; by the general world, is accounted a successful man, once said to me: "I never had a chance to play."

That statement was, in some way, the most appealing, the most pathetic remark that this man ever made in my hearing. Successful as he is in the business world, this man misses (and the pity of it! knows that he misses) some of the joyous careless comradeship which makes life sweet. Others may sometimes taste the sugar icing of the cake; for him, life is merely bread-stuff, substantial but rather tasteless. He misses the thrill of the unexpected nuts and raisins in the cake, the hearty slap on the shoulder, the easy Joi de vivre which is the heritage of those who learned to play when they were children. Now that he is grown, this man is too "grown-up" to play. He has been "grown-up" for a long, long time, and I am afraid now that he will never know the utter joy of relaxation to be found in playing.

But he knows—this man who "never had a chance to play"—he knows that he has missed something, and something infinitely precious for I heard him say not long ago in speaking of his infant son:

"That kid is going to have a pair of red-strapped overalls, and I'm going to send him out every morning to get his hands dirty! If he doesn't find a mud-puddle or a sand-pile inside of five minutes I won't think him worth very much!"

What an extraordinary remark, some people might think! Indeed! sending a child deliberately out to get his hands all dirtied up!

But the man's wife turned to me and said:

"You know my husband always said that when he was a child they kept him too dressed up to play; Lord Fauntleroy suits, and Buster Brown collars!"

The explanation was not necessary for me, for I had never forgotten that previous remark of his, "I never had a chance to play", and to me this man's sand pile and mud-puddle were vividly real. I saw him, a pale lonely child, wistfully watching other children burrow deep into the clean white sand. I saw him standing far off, so that no spatters might bespeck the Buster Brown collar, while other boys joyously explored the wonders which may lie at the bottom of even a common street puddle.

He had never been dressed for playing!

And as his body grew he found himself still more aloof from the other boys he knew, still more lonely than before. Growing out of Fauntleroy suits is so much easier than growing out of habits formed so young! Marbles would wear the knees out of his trousers, just as the mud-puddle had endangered the stiff white collars of a year or so before! Always there was something to prevent his joining in the sports of other children of his age.

And suddenly he was grown! A boy six feet tall, who had never known the joys of marbles, football, swimming; a man who lacked the spirit of friendly co-operation, of ready judgment, of quick self-reliance which strengthens growing boys for coming manhood. And he was lonely, just as he had been when but a child.

He had been grown-up so long! He had worn stiff white collars since he was three years old, and he felt only uncomfortable in flannel shirts and old felt hats which are spiritual delight to the ordinary man! He had been an onlooker for so many years that he still feared the taunts and mud-spattering of these men who might have been his friends and comrades; and while they admired his business skill they felt uneasy doubt of the quality of his sportsmanship, even in the line of business!

But if he does, he makes a stranger of his son, unless, happily, he has the sense to get out in the sand pile and learn to play with the youngster, which after all is what all fathers should do.

There is a vast difference between horse sense and horse talk.

CRANSTON'S

GAVE THREE-HOUR HEARING ON THAMES RIVER CHANNEL

The board of army engineers gave a three-hour hearing at Washington Tuesday to the Norwich delegation which presented the city claims for the deepening of the Thames river channel.

The board of army engineers estimated the cost of deepening the channel from Allyn's Point to Norwich from 14 feet to 16 feet at $127,000. An annual maintenance charge to keep the river at a 16-foot depth would be necessary, the minimum estimated cost of which would be about $20,000. In the minds of the army engineers, the question was whether or not the expenditure of this sum would be justified by the commerce carried on the Thames river to Norwich. It was for the purpose of presenting arguments in favor of the further development of the river that the chamber of commerce sent a delegation.

Prior to the hour of the meeting, a conference was held with Senator Brandegee during which the Norwich men went into details in explaining the local situation to the senator. The whole matter was very thoroughly gone into and promptly at 2 o'clock the Norwich delegation and Senator Brandegee went over to the munitions building for the hearing.

Senator Brandegee opened the hearing by stating the case of Norwich in a very able manner. He was followed by former Congressman Edwin W. Higgins, who made a splendid presentation of arguments for the further development of the river which would be justified by the increased commerce that would follow the deepening of the channel in order that larger boats could come to Norwich. His arguments proved that the commerce of the Thames river in recent years had greatly suffered because of the insufficient depth of water to carry the prevailing type of larger boats that could safely navigate the channel.

Every member of the delegation submitted facts and arguments representing his particular business or activity concerning the waterborne tonnages to Norwich. Many instances were quoted to the board of army engineers showing that the present channel of the river prevented the safe navigation of the larger boats now used in the coastwise trade. It was brought out at the hearing that in recent years the interstate commerce commission have made an effort to place Norwich on the so-called inland city basis regarding freight rates which are a good deal higher than those maintained by cities having waterborne transportation.

The local delegation left no effort undone that would retard the development of the channel from Allyn's Point to Norwich. A stenographic report was made of the hearing, a copy of which will be mailed to Norwich at the request of the delegation and the project is now in the hands of the army engineers. The result of their action is eagerly awaited by Norwich.

The army engineers present at the hearing were: Gen. Harry Taylor, Col. Spencer Cosby, Col. J. C. Oakes, Col. F. C. Boggs, Maj. Max Taylor, and Maj. C. Y. Young.

The Norwich delegation was: E. N. Higgins, H. M. Leroy, Lucius Briggs, L. M. Carpenter of Jewett City, J. C. Smith of Baltimore, president of the Uncas Paper Board Co., H. F. Dawley and Secretary John J. O'Rourke.

Senator Brandegee was present throughout the hearing and substantiated the statements made by the various members of the delegation from time to time as well as opening the hearing with a very fine statement on the necessity of the proposed river development and its effect upon the entire eastern section of the state.

The final result of the hearing, is of course in the hands of the army engineers who now have the matter under their consideration.

STRUCK BY AUTOMOBILE, INJURIES FATAL TO MISS DYER OF SACHEM ST.

Miss Alice Clinton Dyer of 39 Sachem street, died at midnight in the Backus hospital Wednesday from injuries received about 9.15 o'clock when she was struck by an automobile at the corner of Washington and Sachem streets.

The machine was driven by Gracian Strzelczyk, proprietor of a meat market at 16 Thames street, who lives at 119 Sachem street.

According to the report made to the police by the driver of the machine, he was on his way home after the day's work and was driving up Washington street. As he approached the corner of Sachem street, he saw Miss Dyer standing on the sidewalk at the corner, where she seemed about to cross the street. He stated that he slowed up, but started ahead again as she seemed to draw back. As he started up, she also stepped out into the street, he said, and was struck by his machine. He thought one of the front wheels ran over her.

Miss Dyer was picked up and taken to the hospital in an automobile that happened to be passing. She was attended there by Dr. E. J. Brophy and later by Dr. Harrison Gray, her personal physician, who was called to the hospital.

It was believed her skull was fractured but her condition from shock made an operation inadvisable. She remained unconscious to the end. The external marks of injury were a depression on the side of her head and a bruise on the left hip. It is possible that there may have been internal injuries.

Mr. Strzelczyk, who had gone to the hospital, was brought from there to police headquarters, where he made a statement of the accident to Sergeant A. C. Matthews, who reported the facts to Prosecuting Attorney Lee Roy Robbins. The driver of the machine was not held.

Dr. C. C. Gildersleeve, medical examiner, who was not feeling well on Wednesday night, will make an investigation this (Thursday) morning.

Miss Dyer, who was 68 years old, belonged to one of the old families of Norwich, being the daughter of the late Dr. Elijah and Abigail Morse Dyer. She had lived practically all her life in this city where a host of friends will be shocked to learn of her death and will feel in it a deep sense of personal loss.

GIVES JUDGMENT FOR SUIT OVER COMMISSION

A decision and judgment in favor of Burdick & McNicol of this city, real estate brokers, has been handed down this week by Judge C. B. Waller of the common pleas court in the suit against Louis J. Bruette of this city for a $250 commission for the sale of a store property at Norwich Town. Judge Waller gave judgment for the amount sued for, plus interest, $16.87 and costs. The sale was made on March 16, 1918 and the suit was tried here April 9.

Carleton H. and Mabel R. Hawes were the purchasers of store from M. Bruette and it was claimed by the agents that they procured these purchasers and had been engaged by M. Bruette to find a customer for the store. The defendants denied the agency and that Burdick and McNicol procured the customer.

Judge Waller found that the evidence showed a general agency existed and that Burdick & McNicol were the procuring cause of the sale and were thus entitled to the commission.

TIME TO IMMUNIZE AGAINST TYPHOID FEVER

The arrival of warm weather is invariably followed by an increase in typhoid fever cases, says the state department of health.

All people who travel from home either for business trips or vacations may be served with food by an unknown typhoid germ carrier. If the typhoid germ carrier is careless in his personal habits, the food may be contaminated, and the person served with become ill, with typhoid fever after the two-week incubation period has elapsed.

Persons going on vacations may be infected in this way, or be infected by brooks, ponds, or wells polluted with intestinal discharges.

Typhoid vaccine, given in three doses, will protect the individual against typhoid fever from one to two years. By being immunized, individuals can not only enjoy their vacation, but will not become ill with typhoid soon after returning to their homes as a result of being infected during their vacation.

ASLEEP ON SUITCASE IN FRANKLIN SQUARE

Great weariness must have overtaken him as he reached Franklin square. He was a stranger, probably a traveling man waiting for a trolley. But, anyway, there he was in broad daylight Wednesday afternoon, parked comfortable on his suit case on the sidewalk near Rose place, while his closed eyes, nodding head and sonorous nasal performances told the world that he was getting the rest he needed.

Before long, some one called him back to earth and broke his beautiful sleep.

ELKS ANNIVERSARY FAIR CLOSES WITH BIG CROWD

The closing night of the silver anniversary fair of Norwich lodge of Elks brought a crowd of over 1,700 to the grounds Wednesday and the attractions offered kept them on the grounds till after midnight. Rain that had threatened during the day held off during the hours of the fair, but a sharp shower arrived soon after the last of the patrons had left the grounds.

Interest centered in the latter part of the evening in the giving away of four automobiles, with a number of smaller articles that included a ton of coal, silk floss mattress, cedar chest, fancy rocking chair and electric floor lamp. One of the lucky ones was present in the audience, this man receiving one of the automobiles. The awards were conducted under the supervision of General Chairman Thomas R. Casey and Secretary Joseph Sternlieb. The committees in charge were headed by A. E. Smith and Dan Macdonald as judges; Matthew Bergen, Chris Mack and Edgar Seavey and James N. Casey.

Tom Carroll and his Gazette Gerrers were in charge of the evening's entertainment of vaudeville numbers which were given from the same platform that was used by the speakers during the week. All the numbers were given [illegible] and the committee had a big success for the evening and the results of the five days will add a comfortable sum to the entire fund of the lodge, as a part of although it was impossible to [illegible] any figures Wednesday night.

TWO FINED $5 IN MONTVILLE JUSTICE'S COURT

The [illegible] was $10, which was paid. Mr. Wilson pleaded guilty and [illegible] brought against him [illegible] and driving without [illegible] were nolled.

Wilson, from his employers moved [illegible] to leniency, as it explained that they had sent him on Tuesday from Montville to Norwich to get some machinery parts that were needed in a hurry. On the way to this city, another car passed him from the rear which according to Mr. Wilson ran on him at Derby Hill and nearly crowded him into the ditch. Wilson chased the other car to tell the driver what he thought of him. There was a brief but heated exchange of words when Wilson's car caught and passed the other at Trading Cove. Wilson's car then was pursued by the other and passed De Wolf's switch, where the driver revealed that he was D. C. S. Allyn of Waterford, a special officer, who accused Wilson of speeding and summoned him to appear before the Montville justice.

Justice Smiddy also had before him Wednesday night Eugene Kirk of New London, accused of driving with illegal lights. He pleaded guilty and was fined $5 and costs, paying $16.

Tenth Birthday Party.

Miss Annie O'Connell of Yantic celebrated her birthday Saturday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold O'Connell of Sunnyside, Yantic. Some 35 of her friends gave her a surprise party in the evening, many coming from Norwich. Music and games were enjoyed and delightful solos were rendered by Miss Kirby and Mrs. O'Connell. Following the entertainment, refreshments were served by Mrs. O'Connell, assisted by Miss Kirby. The party broke up at a late hour, all wishing Miss O'Connell many happy returns of the day.

RHEUMATIC PAINS GO SWOLLEN JOINTS VANISH

Thousands of sufferers have freed themselves from the bondage of rheumatism: rid themselves of the torturing pain; reduced the swollen joints; thrown away canes and crutches, and from helpless beings became able to work and be of use to themselves and their families.

They took Rheuma; the modern enemy of rheumatism, lumbago, sciatica, arthritis, gout and chronic neuralgia.

Don't be skeptical about Rheuma. You will know in a few hours after beginning the treatment that the poisonous uric acid is leaving your system through the natural channels. You will feel better in a day; you will know you are going to be helped in less than a week.

There is no guess work about Rheuma bringing you back to health. That's why The Lee & Osgood Co and good druggists everywhere sell it with guarantee of money back if it does not give quick and blessed relief almost at once.

If Skin Breaks Out, Is Fiery, Itchy or Rough, Use Sulphur

Just the moment you apply Mentho-Sulphur to an itching, burning or broken out skin, the itching stops and healing begins, says a noted specialist. This sulphur preparation, made into a pleasant cold cream, gives such a quick relief, even to fiery eczema, that nothing has even been found to take its place.

Because of its germ destroying properties, it quickly subdues the itching, cools the irritation and heals the eczema right up, leaving a clear, smooth skin in place of ugly eruptions, rash, pimples or roughness.

You do not have to wait, for improvement. It quickly shows. You can get a little jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur at any drug store.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

On his way home from a tour that has taken him to Egypt, into a number of European countries and the British Isles, Dr. Nathaniel Hibbard has penned some entertaining descriptions, under date of March 28, at London, to friends here who are in receipt of post cards from him.

A keen observer and an adept at description what Dr. Hibbard has had to tell about the British capital has been of special interest to those who have had communications from him. Incident to a visit he made to parliament Dr. Hibbard says on one card: "The sessions begin at 4.15 p. m. and often continue all night. I attended one session and came away with the impression that those who addressed the assemblage were a poor lot of speakers."

On another subject the doctor says: "I have been in Scotland several days. Very cold—but I kept going despite snow, hail, rain and sleet. Saw everything worth seeing. Edinburgh is a great and fine city. The castle of Edinburgh is the big attraction built in part in 1300 and added to thereafter. Here Mary Queen of Scots was confined before being sent to England to lose her head and here is the ancient Scot regalia, hidden for 125 years in a great oak chest. This regalia is magnificent, much of it solid gold with precious stones for adornment and includes crowns, swords and scepters."

Dr. Hibbard comments that he saw practically no wooden buildings in the parts of England and Scotland where he visited and also was impressed by the speed at which British express trains travel, mentioning that he rode 180 miles in 2 3-4 hours on one occasion and 75 miles in 60 minutes on another trip.

Dr. Hibbard and Mrs. Hibbard are both well and are expected here in the near future.

Secretary Harold B. Atwood of the Danielson Rod and Gun club has sent out announcements that the organization is all ready for its first shoot, which is to be held at the shooting grounds on Allen Hill road Thursday, May 17. Saturday, May 19, both events designated as Beginners' days, and the regular shoot on Thursday, May 30. The events of May 17-18 are really practice shoots and preparatory to the regular event scheduled for Memorial day. At these practice sessions someone will be on han dto give instructions and explain the rules of trapshooting.

The traphouse and platform have been completed and are ready for use. Secretary Atwood has pointed out in his notice to the 300 members of the club that if one has not done any trap shooting heretofore these shoots will be a good time to begin, as there will be a bevy of new men trying their skill.

The shooting grounds of the club are reached from Danielson by driving out South Main street through the West Side to the Allen Hill road, in the town of Brooklyn and then taking left hand road near The Pines and traversing it to where the grounds are located.

The Memorial day shoot is to start at 9 a. m., and as the event is scheduled for a holiday a very large attendance is expected.

Another big event is at hand—the opening of the "bull-head" fishing season. From exhibits already made here it promises to be a stunner. On Wednesday five mudpout, as bullheads are otherwise known, were on exhibition in the window of Charles W. Hale's store here. These fish weighed about a pound each and the assurance was made with all sincerity that they were small compared to the really good ones now being taken from Tadpole pond, north of Jewett City, this body of water opened for fishing for the first time in several years.

Local people who have been fishing at the pond say that there is a regular nightly carnival of fishermen there and that the gleam of lanterns can be seen all around the pond as well as upon the water, where the favored ones are using boats. Boats, incidentally, are renting at 50 cents an hour and the representation is made that would-be hirers of them stand in line waiting for a chance to get the use of one. Fifty cents an hour may seem a high price, but it doesn't appear so to the many who like fishing and can get such remarkable returns on his investment as is indicated from the fish stories now drifting north from Jewett City.

One hears stories of mud pout being taken from the pond that weigh up to a pound and a half, ringside.

Many epicures regard pout as one of the best eating fish that comes out of southern New England waters, so there is small wonder that Tadpole pond is so very popular right now.

The swallows that each spring win a bit of publicity in this column have returned to what may be regarded as one of the resting and filling stations on their journey to wherever they may be destined to spend the summer—the gaunt brick chimney that reaches up from the yard of the Kennedy Corporation on Cottage street.

Myriads of these graceful birds may be seen any evening now just before sunset wheeling and volplaning about as they prepare to hide up for the night in the great chimney. Swarms of them circle and circle and circle until it would appear that they would weary before the first of them make the spectacular dive that takes them into the depths of the chimnye for the night. It is a pretty sight that they make each night and it is a free show for anyone sufficiently interested in bird life to spend a few minutes watching them.

It has been said that their assembling for their nightly bivouac is just before sunset. Not so much is known by the average person as to when they fly out to greet the new day, but those who are early risers and have been on the lookout for them say they emerge just before the first brilliant rays of the sun tinges the eastern sky. Where they spend the day is a matter of conjecture for they are not much in evidence, at least not as a great battalion. They will be here for a few more days before going on to their summer haunts.

Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home of her son, Henry E. Anderson, Maple street, funeral services for Mrs. Ellen S. Anderson were conducted by Rev. Frank W. Houck, pastor of the Baptist church. During the service Miss Helen Bo[illegible] man sang Face to Face. Burial was in Westfield cemetery. The bearers were William H. Martin of Norwich, Everett Salisbury of Jewett City, John Whipple of Georgiaville, R. I., and Charles Martin of Danielson. A. F. Wood was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Services previously having been held in Watervleit, N. Y., the funeral of Patrick Sherlock, long a resident of this town, was held Wednesday morning from the undertaking rooms of L. E. Kennedy, burial being in St. James' cemetery, where Mr. Sherlock's parents lie at rest. The funeral was attended by relatives and a number of Danielson friends.

A very fine attraction Wednesday evening at the Orpheum theater was the concert by the Lotus Male quartet of Boston. This entertainment was given for the benefit of the Killingly High school gymnasium fund.

At Wildwood park Manager P. J. Sheridan is busy with his preparations for the opening of this popular summer resort, the opening to be during the latter part of the present month, as is the usual custom.

Thousands of cotton mill operatives in this and surrounding towns are now getting the benefit of the recently effective advance in wages, amounting in most instances to about 12 1-2 per cent.

There was a reminder that western states had experienced a May snow storm in the drop in temperature noted here Wednesday afternoon after a period of high wind and rain.

State highway crews continue the work of oiling trunk line roads in this and nearby towns. The Danielson-Wauregan and the Danielson-Brooklyn routes are among the latest to be treated.

Bernard Casey, grand knight, and Henry N. Dubuc, past grand knight, have returned here after attending the state convention of the Knights of Columbus at Stamford as delegates from Rose of Lima council, K. of C.

Today (Thursday) is being observed as a holy day by members of St. James' parish, being the feast of the Ascension, and there will be special services at St. James' church.

James A. Redman of Fall River was a visitor with friends in Danielson on Wednesday.

Of interest is the fact that many who never heretofore have carried any liability insurance on their motor cars are taking it out this year because of the increased danger of accidents through heavy traffic and the number of serious accidents reported hereabouts so early in the season.

A flood of Victory bonds is coming into local banks for redemption, this issue ceasing to bear interest in the near future. The bulk of the bonds are being cashed in and the returns deposited in savings accounts.

PUTNAM

Members of the police department were rejoicing Wednesday over an advance in pay that was authorized for them at an adjourned meeting of the common council. Under the new rate of pay the patrolmen are receiving $35 per week and the sergeant $38 per week. The advance was requested some time since in view of the fact that living costs are excessively high. No change was made in the salary of the captain of police. The advance amounts to $3 per week for the patrolmen and sergeant.

Judge James H. Webb presided Wednesday morning at a session of the superior court at which more than a score of candidates were admitted to citizenship. The men who desired to be admitted and their witnesses filled the court room when the session was called to order at 10:30. As is always the case, some who desired citizenship were told after the usual examination that their cases would have to be continued that they might further familiarize themselves with this nation's form and practices of government. Those who successfully passed the tests were sworn in and this feature of the day's session, bringing new citizens into the fold the greatest republic the world has known, was very impressive.

At St. Mary's church Wednesday morning at 7 o'clock, Miss Delia Vannose, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emery Vannose, became the bride of Honorius Lemery of Grosvenordale. The father of the bride and the father of the groom, Raoul Lemery were witnesses. The bride's gown was of peach canton crepe and she wore a hat to match. After a wedding trip that will take them to Hartford and New Haven, Mr. and Mrs. Lemery will make their home in this city.

Further apprehension was felt as to chances of recovery of Captain Remi Delage when it was stated Wednesday noon at the City hospital in Worcester that his condition was poor, though little changed from what it has been since the first of the present week. It was stated at the hospital that his name remains on the dangerous list of cases. The fact that this case took on a more serious aspect last Friday and that since that time he has shown no improvement and no encouraging statement has come from the hospital causes his many friends here to fear for the ultimate outcome of the case.

Announcement was made Wednesday in Hartford papers that Miss Grace Annie Child, formerly of this city, was married in Hartford, in the parlor of Center Church House Monday of this week to James Newton Bevan.

Mrs. Bevan is a sister of Miss Elisabeth C. Child of Grove street, this city, and for several years past has been librarian for the Phoenix Mutual Life Insurance company. Formerly she was on the staff of the Hartford Public library.

Announcement of the marriage was made by Miss Child's aunt, Miss Ruth K. Child, 31 Ward street, Hartford, where Mr. and Mrs. Bevan are to make their home.

Hundreds who have heard about the matter have visited the vicinity of Bowditch reservoir, a few miles east of this city, and hundreds more are expected to go into that territory to see the havoc wrought at about 1.30 o'clock last Sunday morning by what is popularly described as a thunderbolt, crashing down out of leaden skies during a severe electrical storm to tear up the earth, rend a ledge, melt a mile stretch of telephone wires and set grass and leaves ablaze along its trail of destruction.

What may be described as a trench hundreds of feet long, six feet wide and four and a half feet deep was torn in the surface of the earth by the terrific electrical phenomena. In its path was a country road that was made impassable to all but pedestrians. Under the road and at considerable depth was a ledge that was rent asunder and left with a fissure about six inches wide and several feet deep.

Whatever the herculean force, it tore boulders out of the earth and hurled them against trees, which were crushed and toppled over. The house of James Reynolds had clapboards ripped off, the clocks stopped and telephone put out of order.

No such occurrence is on record for this territory nor is such an experience recalled by an inhabitant. Along a distance of a mile telephone wires were torn down and for much of the distance no wire remained, having been entirely consumed by the tremendous heat.

Only a comparatively few people had heard of the occurence in this city up to Wednesday, but all are assured that the vicinity that figured in the interesting event is well worth visiting by those who would see what tremendous forces of nature can do when on a rampage.

Putnam High school is again approved by the state board of education as a school for attendance by non resident pupils, Secretary Charles L. Torrey of the Putnam town school committee has been notified in a communication received from the office of the state board at Hartford.

Secretary Torrey also announced Wednesday that there is to be a special meeting of the town school committee on Monday evening next for the purpose of selecting from among many candidates a successor to Principal E. H. Snow of Putnam High school, who has resigned to become principal of a larger high school at Ardmore, Pa.

Also of interest as pertaining to schools is that Miss Edith Cutler and Miss Marion Renshaw, both teachers at the Smith street school, have returned unsigned their contracts for the coming school year. Recently announcement was made of Miss. Cutler's approaching marriage.

The district spelling and speaking contests will be held in the Putnam High school auditorium Wednesday afternoon, May 16, at 2 o'clock, standard time.

One speaker and one speller chosen at the town contests will compete for the first places. The winners will go to Hartford to compete in the state contests which will probably be held June 5.

The following are the contestants:

Pomfret: Speaker, Irene Hibbardo; speller, Cedric Child.

Eastford contestants to be chosen.

Union contestants to be chosen.

Canterbury: Speaker, Anna Hansen; speller, Gertrude Hansen.

Voluntown: Speaker, Flossie Bebo; speller, Doris Bliven.

Sterling: Speaker, Susan Nason; speller, Margaret Mariott.

The Putnam High school glee clubs and orchestra will furnish the musical part of the program.

There will also be an inter-town athletic meet with the following events:

Boys: 75 yard dash; hop, step and jump; baseball thrown for distance.

Friends here have learned that Norman Turner, 5 years old son of Walter Turner, formerly of this city, lies dangerously injured in a hospital at Springfield, Mass. The child sustained a fracture of the skull when he fell from a second story veranda to a cement walk below. The child was hurried to the hospital and it was stated here Wednesday that though he is grievously hurt his recovery is anticipated.

Malcolm M. Willey, a student at Columbia university, will come here today for a recess stay of a few days. Mr. Willey will complete his work at Columbia in June.

Israel Putnam lodge of Odd Fellows will hold its annual memorial service Jin honor of deceased members on Sunday, June 10.

At the class day exercises of the senior class of Putnam High school next month the address of welcome will be delivered by the class president, Michael Maher. Chandler Mofse has the class will, Miss Edith Pease, and perhaps one other classmate, the prophecy. The history is being prepared by Miss Sarah Barber. Misses Mildred Perry and Elizabeth Rich will present the class gifts and the ivy oration will be by Miss Grace Buell.

A special city meeting is to be held on May 21, at which time special funds for highway work and money for other purposes will be asked for, the expenditures being regarded as necessary.

Friday evening of this week a spelling and speaking contest in which pupils of Eastford school will participate that representatives of Eastford may be selected to appear for the town at the contest to be held in the Putnam High school auditorium next Wednesday afternoon, when various towns will be represented here.

CADILLAC

Norwich—THE A. C. SWAN CO.—New London

V-TYPE, EIGHT-CYLINDER ENGINE

JEWETT CITY

Mt. Vernon No. 75 F. and A. M., tendered a reception on Tuesday evening to the Most Worshipful Grand Master of Connecticut Arthur M. Brown, the lodge opening at 7.15 with all the officer at their stations. Between 175 and 200 members were present. The most worshipful grand master was on official visitation and was received with pomp and dignity. With him were associate officers, including Grand Chaplain Alexander H. Abbott of Norwich; District Deputy

ARTHUR M. BROWN

David A. Seamen of Poquonnoc, deputy over the eighth Masonic district, which includes Mt. Vernon of Jewett City; Past Grand Masters Thomas H. McKenzie of Pawcatuck and Frank L. Wilder of Bridgeport; also Lieut. Governor Hiram Bingham of New Haven. A recess was called and Marshall F. L. Kanahan formed the company in line when they marched to the Baptist church vestry where a fine supper was served by the women of the church. The menu included:

Grapefruit Cocktail
Roast Turkey Cranberry Jelly
Mashed Potato Mashed Turnip
Celery Radishes
Rolls
Ice Cream
Maccaroons
Lady Fingers
Coffee

The tables were beautifully decorated with quantities of carnations and sweet peas, smilax and ferns sent in honor of the occasion by a non-resident members of Mt. Vernon lodge. A large centerpiece of purple violets and smilax were among the decorations. At each place was laid a carnation and song card, with the Masonic napkins. 168 were served at the supper. Mt. Vernon orchestra of eight pieces was present and played as the members entered and during the supper hour. Grace was said by the grand chaplain. Several songs were sung by the company, under the direction of Senator William O. Park, song master of the evening. At the close of the supper, a return was made to Rioux hall, where every seat was filled. Worshipful Master Norman B. Parkhurst was the master of ceremonies and carried the exercises through in admirable manner.

After a selection by the orchestra Lieut. Governor Bingham was introduced. He is a professor at Yale, and a member of Hiram Lodge No. 1 of New Haven. He said he had to join Hiram lodge, because Hiram was his grandfather's, father's, his own and his son's name. Past studies had taken him several times into foreign countries, where he found civilization and Masonry linked together. He proved how everything in ancient days pointed to the fact that all building and construction was in some way connected with Masonry.

LIEUT. GOV. HIRAM BINGHAM

On visits to Peru and South America investigation had proven that Masonry had existed there and also in this country hundred of years before it was discovered.

Past Grand Master McKenzie was next introduced. It was he who started the present state grand master on his way and he said he was glad he did such a good job. His address was principally on the importance of the Masonic service association, including 35 districts throughout the United States, and the important work it was doing. William Dealtry delighted the audience with his solos, Friend of Mine and Absence. He was accompanied by Fred Lester of Norwich.

Grand Chaplain A. H. Abbott, a member of St. James' lodge of Norwich, alluded to the most worshipful grand master as a man standing foremost among them as a representative of Masonry, at its best. His theme was unity, right and justice.

The last speaker was Most Worshipful Master Brown. He recalled the old saying that there is a spot in the ocean so deep that it is never disturbed. He said that there was a spot in his own heart which had never before been so touched by the thoughts, actions and wishes of all his friends. He said the spirit of Masonry was the spirit of friendship. The trouble with most people is that they cannot understand what is in the hearts of the others because they are strangers. Masonry teaches friendship. And he convincingly and whole heartedly declared that as he looked into the faces of those present that he had rather have their friendship as had been manifested to him, than any quantity of gold poured out before him.

It was the most delightful occasion the lodge has ever experienced. Facing the company as they sat in the hall, was a dark green curtain draped at the back of the platform, in the center of which was the Masonic emblem and the name of the local lodge. The same emblem was displayed in the church vestry. During the evening the lodge directory was distributed, there being the addition of the state grand master's photograph to its pages. The committee in charge of the reception were Worshipfuls A. M. Clarke, G. H. Prior and F. L. Kanahan.

The committee who were in charge of the supper served at the Masonic reception Tuesday evening were Mrs. Francis Campbell, Mrs. G. H. Prior, Miss Ida I. Foster, Mrs. E. M. Gray, Mrs. John Harris, Mrs. Samuel Cathcart, Miss Ruby Thornton and Mrs. N. J. Babcock. Mrs. C. F. Gardner was in charge of the dining room and the waitresses were Mrs. John Davis, May Blake, Georgina Campbell, Martha Morgan, Florence Quimby, Mabel McBroome, Alice Brown, Mrs. G. H. Prior, Mrs. E. E. Gilbert, Mrs. John MacLean, Winifred Scates, Priscilla Scates, Verna Tarbox, Mrs. F. H. Gilbert, Mrs. B. R. Gardner, Mrs. A. M. Brown, Ellen Prior, Mrs. A. D. Tripp, Mrs. Elmer Tarbox, Ruth Davis, Grace Olin, Mrs. George Sparks, Mrs. W. T. Crumb and Mrs. Ralph Kingsley.

The Jewett City Rifle club ended its indoor season with a victory over the Western Reserve Rifle club of Cleveland, O., scoring one point more than their opponents. This makes five matches that the local club has won in succession. Starting at the bottom and by dint of hard work and constant practice, several members of the club are doing some very fine shooting, as evidenced by the scores made in the recent matches, and there is no reason why every member of the club, with the completion of the indoor range, will not be doing some fine work.

Following are the scores:

Jewett City Rifle Club.

William Marshall	100
Fred Stebbins	100
Charles B. Palmer	100
Dona Ballou	99
Gilbert Miner	98
Total	497

Western Reserve Rifle Club.

James Mackenzie	100
William Sletzer	100
H. Kendall	100
W. C. Walker	100
S. G. Stevens	97
Total	497

William Marshall, one of the youngest members of the club, got his first perfect score of 100 in this match, and, as he is only a beginner, having been shooting a little over three months, this young lad will soon be one of the top notchers in the game at his present rate of improvement. Fred Stebbins also got his first perfect score, while Ballou and Gilbert Miner each got a high score of 99.

The Western Reserve Rifle club is one of the best in the central west and numbers among its members several well known rifle shots. This club has a membership of over 500.

The Salvation Army will open fire in Jewett City on Friday evening with an open air meeting in front of the postoffice at 7.30, followed by a meeting in the Baptist vestry at 8. Emery Campbell has been appointed as an outpost sergeant for Jewett City.

The funeral of Charles Joffrey was held Wednesday afternoon at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Clarence Kahn. Rev. E. E. Scates, pastor of the Baptist church, officiated. Burial was in the Jewett City cemetery. The bearers were John Woodworth, George Mosier, J. E. Phillips, John Barnett, Frank Stetson and L. O. Buckingham. Relatives who attended from out of town were Mrs. Samuel Reynolds of Eagleville, Mrs. James Culley and Mr. and Mrs. Silas Adams of East Killingly and Mrs. William Cook of Ballouville.

Deputy Sheriff Dolan was notified by the occupants of the house opposite the Boardman school in Glasgo Wednesday morning that chicken buyers had attempted to put over a wrong count of the fowls sold them. On remonstrance of the owners, the peddlers assaulted the man, it is said, and then disappeared with the fowls. Deputy Dolan and Constable McDermott traced them through Voluntown and Ekonk, evidently on their way to Rhode Island. Dolan then phoned the Providence police, came home and got his warrants and started for Providence. When he reached the Providence police station the men and wagon were there awaiting his arrival. They returned to Jewett City with the deputy and were put under bonds furnished by Thomas McBroome to appear in court Saturday morning.

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, May 9, 1923—The trial of Grace McSheffrey on a charge of manslaughter has commenced in the superior court before Judge Hinman and a jury. There was delay in obtaining a jury for the first panel did not furnish them and fourteen more talesmen were necessary to get the desired twelve men who will pass on the guilt or innocence of the accused. There is only one man from a city on the jury, he being from New London. The others are from the smaller towns and mostly from the rural section about the county. They all declared that they had not formed an opinion. It will be recalled that Miss McSheffrey was a roomer and boarder at the Fournier house in this city and that she had as consort and supposedly as her husband, a young sailor from the submarine base, one John Guinan.

The body of the baby which Miss McSheffrey is accused of having abandoned while the child was still alive and a few hours after she had given birth to it at the Fournier house, was found last January in a pile of stone in a vacant lot at Reed and Blinman streets.

The case against the girl hardly got a start today, for the afternoon session was in progress before the jury was obtained.

County Detective W. E. Jackson was the first witness and he told of the investigation of the case at the suggestion of State's Attorney Hull. He was followed by James Williamson, the proprietor of the Fournier house, in which Miss McSheffrey was a lodger. The man who found the body of the child, Louis H. Swift, a carpenter, followed Williamson, detailing the circumstances attending the finding of the little body on a cold winter's day while he was at work there. The fact that the bundle had been where it was found a second day attracted his attention and he investigated to discover that the child had been abandoned there to die.

Miss McSheffrey is said to have met Guinan in New York and to have come to New London on his invitation. She remained here after that. There is a story to the effect that the accused has made a second statement in which she contradicts the first story she told to the coroner when she was advised of her rights in making the statement. What that story is as it now stands, has not been disclosed nor will it be until she goes upon the witness stand to testify in her own defense.

At the state convention of the K. of C. held at Stanford yesterday, Jerome J. Collins of No. 46 Alger place was reelected state advocate, an office he has held with efficiency and integrity some time. William C. Fox of Squire street sought the office of national delegate and was defeated.

The funeral of Mrs. Emeline Edgcomb Taylor, who died at her home at Eastern Point, Groton, Monday, was held this afternoon at 4 o'clock at the Huntington Street Baptist church and was attended by a large throng of mourners. The services were conducted by Rev. Joseph Elder, pastor of the church. The body was forwarded to Springfield, Mass., where it will be cremated and the ashes forwarded to Cleveland, Ohio.

May Peterson, an inmate at the State Farm for Women, at Niantic, recently violated her parole and escaped from the institution. Tonight she is back at the farm and will probably stay there for some time to come. May came to New London a few days ago and a request was made of the New London police to maintain a watch for her. This morning Detective Charles Hammond located the girl in a Main street rooming house and in a room with two girls of whom she had gained a chance acquaintance.

As the two girls had been observed frequently in company with sailors from the Submarine Base, the trio were escorted to the police station. There the out of town girls declared that they had come to New London in search of work, but admitted that they had not procured it. All three were turned over to Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield, the two strangers to be sent to their homes, while May enjoyed a bus ride back to the farm.

It is not definitely known, but it is probable that City Manager James E. Barlow will recommend the passage of an ordinance restricting the sale of fireworks again this year. The matter has already been discussed by the city manager and Captain of Police Charles A. Pinney and a decision in the matter, it is expected, will be made within a short time.

Nonowantuc Tribe, Independent Order of Red Men, are planning a class adoption and the event is likely to be held in their lodge rooms on Bank street the early part of next month.

Commander Guy Davis, U. S. N., has been notified by the navy department at Washington of his transfer June 7th from duty as commander of the Fourth Division of Submarines of the Atlantic fleet to the hydrographic office in Washington. Commander Davis has been stationed at the Submarine Base two years and will be succeeded by Commander Kraft, U. S. N., now stationed at the War College at Newport, R. I.

All hope of John Devens, aged 21, of Fishers Island, and Peter Ukas aged 28 years, of Seymour, being among the living has been abandoned and if their bodies are recovered they will probably be picked up in the waters of the Sound within the next two or three weeks, for there is practically no doubt but that the young men were drowned by being thrown from their canoe off Fishers Island last Saturday night.

Every possible search for the two canoists has been made by residents of the island, the search not having been abandoned until today. Absolutely no trace other than that which would indicate the drowning of the young men has been revealed. Searchers off Fishers Island Sunday found a paddle which it is believed was from the missing canoe and yesterday a canoe, overturned, was reported as having been observed floating off Watch Hill.

Devens and Ukas started from Big Hay Harbor club about 7.30 o'clock for West Harbor and they were never seen alive again, so far as is now known.

As stated by The Bulletin several days ago, the state police department will maintain a barracks in Groton. It is now revealed that the department has leased the Golden Rule hotel property on the Eastern Point road for a term of three years and at an annual rental of $1,200. The property was formerly used by the owner, Harry Zaveritas, during the war and accommodated many employes of the Gpoton Iron Works. The state police department will take possession of the place the 15th inst., at which time it is planned to station eight or ten officers there. Niantic was also considered as a site for the barracks, but because of the location selected being close to New London and enabling the officers of the latter department to cooperate with the state police, the Groton site was deemed the best for the most efficient service.

Four farms in Chesterfield, for the acquisition of which the city of New London, through City Manager Barand Director of Law Frank L. McGuire, have been negotiating for several weeks, were acquired today. The farms border on Lake Konomoc, the city's reservoir, and are those of Stanley Morgan, Mrs. Robert D Taylor, Sarah Chapel and Edward L. Ashcraft. The aggregate price paid was $19,500.

Two other farms, those of Fred Morgan and Mrs. Emerson Dart, are being sought for the purpose of acquiring still additional water shed; but a price cannot be agreed upon satisfactory to the owners and the city. If a price is not agreed upon within a few days condemnation proceedings will be instituted.

The Morgan farm comprises about 300 acres and brought $14,000. The Taylor place, which is familiarly known as the Old Tinker farm, abuts both sides of Lake Konomoc with a conduit connecting both sides and was acquired for $3,500. The Chapel farm has a frontage on the lake and was sold for $1,850. The Ashcraft farm is located at the head of the lake on the Colchester road and was purchased for $1,000.

All of the property on the turnpike has been acquired excepting the Morgan and Dart farms and with those places in the possession of the city, together with the places acquired today the city will have a water supply that will satisfy the needs of the city for many years.

The New York Yacht club squadron is to rendesvous at this port on Tuesday, the 7th of August preparatory to its cruise to the eastward. It has been a great many years since the yachts have started their cruise from this port. During the war no yachts were in commission. The arrangements this year will not bring together anything like the squadron of former years but there will be a considerable number of craft and they will present a spectacle the night they assemble and the following morning when they start for Newport that will be worth going a long distance to see. There are a few of the yachts at this port now, where they have been in winter quarters.

A couple of sailors from the submarine base were in New London last night and they got hold of some fighting fluid that made them wild. They were finally found at 11 Church street, a house that has caused the police more trouble than any in the city in recent years. When they left there they were so boisterous and abusive that Policeman Rehn interfered to preserve the peace. The sailors put up a fight with him so that he had to protect himself with the use of his stick. He did this so thoroughly that Kennedy presented the appearance this morning of having been in a war.

His companion, Frank R. Scott, was not so roughly handled but he was an equal offender against the peace of the city with Kennedy and Judge Prince did not make disginction in imposing a fine. He ordered each to pay $10 into the court treasury and attached costs to the penalty.

Arthur J. Page, a driver of a truck for the Babcock Printing Press company and long a resident of this city, operated the machine right up alongside a fire hydrant and went away and left the machine there. The state laws are to the effect that an auto shall not be parked against a hydrant.

Still Page didn't seem then to realize that he was an offender. He said the auto was left where it was found but six minutes, so Judge Prince suspended judgment. Sam Okerofsky, a Hartford pedler, turned his auto around on State street just where he was told he should not turn and was arrested. He became confused when he was directed to go to the head of State street and turned at the border of the safety zone. He escaped a penalty by pleading ignorance and a desire to conform to the city's ordinances.

The deed transferring the summer residence of Benjamin L. Armstrong on the board walk at Ocean Beach, to Mr. Siegel of Hartford, was received for record today at the office clerk.

Estelle B. Clarke has sold a house and lot on Broad street to New London Home Owners' Association.

Miss Rita Chapman of Monument street, Groton, where she is employed as teacher in the primary grade of the Groton public school, is ill with diphtheria. Miss Chapman showed symptoms of the malady a few days ago and cultures returned from the state laboratory show a positive case. Miss Chapman is quarantined together with other members of her family.

Miss Winifred Sullivan of Harrison street, Miss Mary Sammataro of Shaw street and Michael Miner of Groton, were patients discharged at Lawrence-Memorial Associated Hospital today.

Funeral services for Mrs. Eva L. Van Keuren, wife of William Van Keuren, Jr., were held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at her home at Best View, Waterford, and were attended by a large gathering of mourners. Rev. Chester H. Howe, pastor of the First Baptist church, officiated. The bearers were Eugene, William and George Kent and John Bugbee. Interment was in Union cemetery, Waterford.

Miss Clarissa W. Watrous died this morning at the home of her sister, Mrs. Samuel Crocker of No. 14 Lee avenue, death ending a lingering illness, which was due in a way to Miss Watrous' advanced years.

The condition of Joseph F. Vodwarka, a well known member of Brainard lodge of Masons, who suffered a shock several months ago, is not improving at the Hammond hospital. Mr. Vodwarka is 92 years of age.

The body of John Stanford Brown, well known Old Lyme resident, who committed suicide Saturday and for whom funeral services were conducted in New London yesterday, was forwarded to Boston this morning, where the interment took place this afternoon.

It has been revealed that the automobile that is alleged to have been operated through Crystal avenue at a reckless rate of speed late yesterday and which narrowly escaped hitting a daughter of Bernard Smith of 76 Harrison street, is owned by Daniel S. Marsh and company.

An effort was made by the police this morning to learn the identity of the driver, but as Mr. Marsh was absent from the city, this was not accomplished. As soon as Mr. Marsh returns to New London and the driver of the car is made known, the latter will be haled into the police court. Two witnesses have volunteered to testify to the reckless operation of the auto.

VETO BY GOVERNOR OF TRUNK LINE ROAD FROM NORWICH TO HADDAM

Hartford, May 2.—The house was called to order at 10.15 with Speaker Richardson in the chair.

Concurrence was voted with the senate in rejecting the claims of F. J. Jackson and Tracey Bros.

Concurrence with the senate was voted in paying Robert McBurney of Norwich $600 pay. This bill is on account of salary voted for him as messenger of the superior court but for which no appropriation was made at the 1921 session of the general assembly.

The house agreed with the senate in amending the Owen-Oak bill.

It was felt that the original bill opened too wide a door. It would open the way for the holding of horse race pools, prohibited in New York. Upon report of the judiciary committee, John F. Gudelotte was appointed judge and Joseph Adams deputy judge of the town court of Westport.

The bill transferring to Julia Driscoll of New London the property held in escrow by the state belonging to the estate of John Hill was passed. John H. Hill was a foundling and had been taken care of for years by Julia Driscoll. He died without any known heirs and his property became the property of the state. She is to give such bond as the probate court may determine for the restoration of the property in the event of any heirs being found.

Governor's Veto on Roads.

Governor's Secretary McCook presented a communication in which he vetoed the bill including in the trunk line system the highway from Norwich to Haddam. This is by way of Gardner Lake. Also a veto of the bill including in the trunk line system the highway leading from Tolland, through Ellington to Stafford. The communication was received, reconsideration voted and the bill was tabled.

The new motor vehicle law was passed with numerous amendments.

The act making appropriations for state expenses for the fiscal period ending June 30, 1925 amounts to $8,-435,192. This is part 2 of the general appropriation bills.

The amount given to the state forester and fire wardens amounting to $70,000 was stricken out and the amount added to the appropriation for state park and forest commission. The appropriation for that commission amounts to $230,000.

For East Lyme Sanatorium.

The substitute bill providing for additional land for the state sanatorium at East Lyme was explained by Hill of Shelton. The substitute bill provides for only a portion of the land instead of the whole as provided in the original bill.

The tract desired by the state has a shore frontage of 200 feet and an acreage of one and one-half acres. The whole tract owned by the McCook heirs contains about eighteen acres. The bill provides for the purchase of the desired portion and if this cannot be arranged, the attorney general is directed to institute condemnation proceedings, in accordance with the provisions of section 5126 of the general statutes. Pierpont of Ridgefield moved that the matter be referred to the committee on appropriations. Mr. Darbie of Killingly suggested that the land could be acquired under section 5181 and that was not necessary to provide this special legislation.

Miss Weaver of New Milford urged the passage of the bill. The committee has given much time to a consideration of the bill and she thought the recommendation was a proper one. The sanatorium now has a short frontage of only 97 feet. Mr. Keith of the Appropriations committee said that if the bill passed the committee would report an appropriation on Thursday for the purchase. The motion to refer was lost. The passage was urged by Warner of Hamden, Fenton of Windham and Kilpatrick of Bridgeport. The bill was then passed by a large majority. On motion of Leader Buckley the vote was reconsidered and tabled. This Session of the superior court was resumed on Wednesday morning at the Union street courthouse with Judge Blodgett on the bench. The first case tried was that of T. J. Healy vs. James W. Burke, a suit to recover balance of money loaned due Healy from Burke for work done on farm property owned by Burke on the Post road. The following jurors were drawn: Frank W. Taylor, Westerly, foreman; G. W. Hathaway, Exeter; W. R. Jordan, North Kingston; S. W. Easterbrooks, South Kingston; Clarence A. Church, Charlestown; Walter H. Gardiner, North Kingston; Ethan W. Pendleton, Westerly; Charles H. Fairbrother, Charlestown; Fred J. McKarron, Richmond; Frank Mills, Charlestown; Fred Stramp, Richmond; John J. Blase, Westerly.

In this case a contract or agreement in writing was entered into between the parties whereby Healy was to receive $1 a day for 365 days and Burke was to provide seed, fertilizer, etc., as well as Healy's transportation. After Sept. 14 Healy stated that he had received no monies or the one-half profit from the sale of the produce which it was alleged Burke had taken or tried to take from the farm, from which it was evident that some disturbance had taken place.

When Mr. Healy had been on the stand for some time and much evidence given, Judge Blodgett asked "What kind of a complication have we got here, anyway?" On his review of the case it was the opinion that suit was brought on a contract which amounted to a lease in which the money involved might have been a bonus as it was not called wages, that an action had not been taken on book account so that to simplify matters he would take the case from the jury and mark it passed.

The jurors were excused to report at 1.30. When court session began Wednesday afternoon the following jury was called in the damage case of Simon Hert vs. Harry Deutsch: C. H. Caswell, South Kingston; C. A. Church, Charlestown; I. E. Wilbur, South Kingston; W. H. Gardiner, North Kingston; T. P. Quinn, Narragansett; Ethan Pendleton, Westerly; G. E. Helliwell, South Kingston; J. J. Blase, Westerly; F. Stramp, Richmond; W. R. Jordan, North Kingston; Frank Mills, Charlestown; G. E. Wood, Narragansett.

The following witnesses testified: Simon G. Hert, Samuel C. Webster, Jr., Harry Deutsch, William Margowsky with Interpreter David Ribner. After several motions for non suit had been denied and a recess taken, the case finally went to the jury, which returned a verdict of $70 for the plaintiff. As no cases would be ready that could be finished Thursday, and Friday being Arbor day, a holiday in Rhode Island, inasmuch as Judge Blodgett was scheduled for Woonsocket next Monday, the jurors were directed to report Monday, May 14, for which date the case of Francis Grady vs. Caleb R. Edward was set down for trial.

Two fires have occurred in Westerly the past two mornings for which no bell alarm was given. Egger. Procuring a fire extinguisher, the fire was put out without calling out the entire department. The damage resulting was broken window glass, smoked ceiling and charred woodwork, amounting to less than $100. It is thought that rats and matches might have been the cause. Greater damage resulted from Tuesday morning's fire when the barn on Beach street owned by Mrs. Elvira C. Sisson of Washington avenue was burned with its contents, farming tools and lumber, estimated at $400 or $500. The latter fire is thought to have been caused by a tramp.

"It gets the edge dirt right out"

Yet the grimiest of this man's collars are now washed white and clear of edge dirt without hard rubbing

Read the letter below from a man who travels over dusty, dirty roads every day.

"My wife gets out all edge dirt from my semi-stiff collars since she took to using Rinso. She says she never could get them clean with bar soap alone and she hated to use harsh powders. With Rinso I must say she gets a fine result—my collars come out spotless—and it seems to me they wear almost twice as long."

With this new soap soaking takes the place of rubbing

Just by soaking in the suds of this new soap, the most ground-in dirt is gently loosened and dissolved and not a thread is weakened.

Even the dirt that gets absolutely ground in at cuff edges and the like is so loosened by soaking in Rinso suds, that it comes out with only a light rubbing. A little Rinso sprinkled dry on the worst spots makes them disappear.

Whatever your way of washing, Rinso does the whole job—with it you need no other soap.

All these washing machine manufacturers say "Use Rinso"

Apex, Bluebird, Coffield, Gainaday, Getz, Haag, Horton, Laun-Dry-Ette, Meadows, "1900" Cataract, One Minute, Rotarex, Sunnysuds, Surf, Trojan, Voss, urge women to use Rinso.

Get Rinso today. All grocers and department stores have it in two sizes—the regular package and the big new package. Lever Bros. Co., 164 Broadway, Cambridge, Massachusetts.

Rompers and working clothes

"In my wash every week the baby's rompers and my oldest son's working clothes are the dirtiest. I make a good suds with Rinso and let my clothes soak. I have to rub my son's shirts a little but Rinso has loosened the dirt and it works right out. By half-past nine my whole washing is on the line. Rinso is a wonderful saver of time and strength."

Boys' Scout clothes

"My boys' scout clothes were my despair until I learned about Rinso. Dirt from the woods, from smoky pans—ground right into their suits. Now I soak them for about twenty minutes in Rinso and all the dirt is loosened."

Big heavy pieces

"The thing I minded most was rubbing the big heavy things. Since I have found outhow easily Rinso soaks the dirt out of them I don't have any troubles."

Rinso soaks the dirt out - - only the dirtiest spots need just a light rubbing

RECOVERY IN MARKET.

New York, May 9.—Stock prices, which had been hammered almost incessantly by bear traders during the last ten days, made a quick and impressive recovery in today's market, confirming the general impression that the market had been over-sold. While the rebound was undoubtedly due to technical conditions within the market, Secretary Hover's speech predicting continued prosperity and another new high record of car loadings for this season of the year had a cherful effect on sentiment.

Short covering operations, induced by the relatively small floating supply of stock available for loaning purposes, provided the impetus for the advance but there were further indications of buying by strong interests and an increasing public demand for the standard issues, although this outside participation is not yet heavy enough to materially influence the price movement.

Marked weakness of demand sterling which fell below $4.60 for the first time this year, brought about sympathetic declines in the other principal foreign exchange rates and in the prices of foreign bonds, but it was without effec tin the other securities and commodity markets.

Equipments again led the rally, American Locomotive touching 138 1-2, or within a point of the year's high, and closing, at 138 1-4, up 7 1-2 on the day and 1 21-2 points above Monday's low. Baldwin crossed 130 for a net gain of 3 1-8; American Car advanced 3 1-4; New York Air Brake, 2 3-4, and Lima Locomotive 2 1-8.

Punta Alegre Sugar advanced 1 1-4 points and the others, fractionally, on higher prices for the raw and refined products, which were based on publication on reports of eight more Cuban Centrals showing actual production less than earlier estimates. Denial of the government's application for a temporary restraining order against the New York Coffee & Sugar Exchange was not made known until after the market had closed.

Some of the outstanding strong spots in the industrial list were American Water Works, Pierce Arrow prior preferred, Railway Steel Spring, Chicago Pneumatic Tool, Kelsey Wheel, Stewart-Warner Speedometer and Stromberg Carburetor, all up 2 to 5 points.

All shares were heavily bought, Pittsburgh & West Virginia climbing 2 3-8 points to 44 5-8, a new high for the year, on buying attributed to soft coal mining interests, Canadian Pacific, Baltimore & Ohio, Reading, New Orleans, Texas & Mexico and Union Pacific all advanced 1 1-4 to nearly 2 points.

Heavy offerings of bills here were responsible for the cent drop in the sterling rate. French francs dropped 4 points to below 6.60 cents and similar declines took place in the Italian and Belgian rates. Norwegian exchange dropped 20 points to 16.58, another new low, in further reflection of financial troubles in that country. South American rates were noticeably heavy.

Call money opened at 4 3-4 per cent, but eased off to 4 1-2 during the noon hour, closing at that figure. Trading in the time money market was quiet with loans arranged at 5 1-4 per cent. for the shorter maturities. The commercial paper rates were unchanged, prime names still commanding 5 and 5 1-4 per cent.

METAL MARKET

New York, May 9.—Copper easy, electrolytic, spot and futures 16 3-8 a 16 1-2. Tin firm. Spot and nearby 43.87 a 44.00; futures 44.00 a 44.12. Iron steady, prices unchanged. Lead easy. Spot 7.35 a 7.50. Zinc easy. East St. Louis spot and nearby delivery 7.00; antimony, spot 7.62 a 7.75.

BOND MARKET

New York, May 9.—Bond prices displayed a much firmer tone in today's dealings with some good buying noted in a number of high grade long term mortgages. Some of the French bonds yielded slightly in sympathy with the drop in the principal foreign exchanges, but the net losses were held to fractions. U. S. Government issues were steady, net changes being within 3-32 of a point of yesterday's final prices.

New York Central 6's, International & Great Northern adjustment 6 certificates, Denver & Rio Grande Consolidated 4 1-2's, Atchison convertible 4's and New Haven 6's, St. Paul refunding 4 1-2's and the 4's of 1925, each advanced a point or more. Texas & Pacific first 5's were heavy.

Sugar company bonds made a quick response to the higher commodity prices, Punta Alegre 7's, Eastern Cuba 7 1-2's and Cuba Cane 8's each gaining about a point. Montana Power 5's advanced 1 1-4 and the Active Copper company bonds improved fractionally. Local traction and Wilson Packing issues were heavy, registering large fractional losses.

Total sales (par value) were $13,702,000.

Some of the large offering in prospect include a $35,000,000 to $50,000,000 issue of Illinois Bell Telephone bonds, probably 5 1-2's; $2,910,000 Central of Georgia railway a per cent equipment trusts; $17,000,000 New York Central equipment trusts and $2,170,000 Boston & Providence railroad debenture 5's.

CHICAGO GRAIN

Chicago, May 9.—Moderate upturns in the price of wheat resulted today from buying based more or less on opinions that frost and low temperatures were likely to have an unfavorable effect on winter wheat and on the spring crop as well. The market closed firm, 1-2 to 3-4 cents net higher, with July $1.17 7-8 to 1.18 and September 1.16 1-2. Corn finished 5-8 to 11-4 cents up, oats gained 3|8 to 1-2 cent and provisions 15 cents to 22 a 25 cents.

It was a generally accepted view that although the cold wave would be without any immediate serious consequence as to winter wheat, the ultimate probable effect would be to a considerable extent adverse because of delay to plant progress. The significant fact in this connection, according to a statement issued by a leading expert, was that the winter crop is already late, and especially in the Ohio valley is lacking in vitality. Further interference with spring wheat was also held to be serious, and it was said the germination of a large percentage that is seeded but is still unsprouted would likewise be hindered.

Evidence that wheat bulls had regained some confidence was particularly noticeable near the end of the day. Bearish aspects of the government crop report tended to check buying at the outset, but were lated almost lost sight of. On the other hand chartering vessel-room for the shipment of a cargo of wheat from here to Buffalo counted as something of a stimulus, and so too did gossip that virtually all the wheat in Omaha had been asquired for export.

Notwithstanding that today's hog market was at about the lowest price level of the season, demand for provisions was good, and the provision market went higher with grain.

Never judge a woman by the company she is compelled to entertain.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT
By DAVID CORY

Attacked By a Wicked Cat.

"Hello!" cackled Henny Jenny.

"Cock-a-doodle-doo!" said Cocky Doodles.

"I'm pretty well," answered the bunny boy rabbit as he peeked through the big fence, "but don't stop me because I must get a clothes-pin for mother at the Three-in-One-Cent Store."

Just then, however, Ducky Waddles came around the big haystack with Turkey Tim. Of course, when they saw Little Jack Rabbit, they said "Hello!" too.

After that, the Weathercock on the Big Red Barn spun around on his gilded toe and looking down at the little rabbit, asked him the time.

"Go away, go away!" Cried the little bunny.

"Dear me!" thought the little rabbit as he took out the big gold watch which Uncle Lucky had given him for a birthday present, "I'm almost afraid to look at my watch, I've wasted so much time this morning getting a clothes-pin for mother," and then, oh dear me! I hate to tell it, something dreadful happened.

All of a sudden,
Just like that,
Out of the house
Came the farmer's cat, and, with a loud meow, made for the little rabbit bunny boy.

"Oh, dear me!" thought the little rabbit, backing away towards the old apple tree. "Black Cat will surely tear all the buttons off my fur overcoat."

"Meow, meow!" cried Black Cat, his back against the old apple tree. There he stood, with his little paws raised to protect himself as best he might.

"Go away, go away!" cried the little bunny, but closer and closer crept the wicked cat in his long black coat.

All of a sudden, a little voice from the tree-top whispered:

"Don't you remember what your mother told you to do when in a tight fix?"

Then, of course, the little rabbit boy remembered what his mother had told him, and turning around, quick as a flash, struck out with his two strong hind legs, hitting Black Cat a terrible welt right in the belt.

"Oof, oof, oof," went Black Cat, all doubled up with pain, as he looked here and there, under a stone and behind a bush for his breath and while he tried his best to stand up straight, away hopped the little rabbit, clippety-clip, lippety-lip, down the road to Rabbitville.

"Don't forget to remember next time what mother tells you," called out little Bobbie Redvest from the apple tree.

"Oh, I won't, I won't!" shouted back the little bunny, "I'm trying to remember now to get the clothes-pin," and away he hopped, faster than ever to the Three-in-One-Cent Store.

TWO VOTING DISTRICTS FOR TOWN OF SPRAGUE

A bill to divide the town of Sprague into two voting districts has been favorably reported in the senate by Senator Park, chairman of the committee on cities and boroughs. It provides that one voting place shall be at Baltic and the other at Hanover and that the annual town meetings shall be held at Baltic.

Section 1. The town of Sprague is divided into two voting districts for the purpose of holding electors' meetings and annual town meetings for the choice of town officers. The first district shall comprise all that part of the territory of said town lying without the following-described lines: Beginning on the line between the towns of Scotland and Sprague where the highway from Baltic to Scotland crosses said line, thence southerly along the center of said highway from Baltic to Hanover; thence easterly along said highway to Hanover to a point opposite the northeasterly corner of land of the Baltic Mills Company; thence southeasterly to the highway leading southerly from Hanover to Versailles at a point three hundred feet southerly from the southeasterly corner of the house on said last-mentioned highway owned by William S. MacDonald; thence easterly to the highway marking the town line between Sprague and Lisbon at a point on the dividing line between land of the Inland Paper Board Company, Inc., and land of the estate of William S. Breed; thence northerly by the line between the towns of Sprague and Lisbon and thence westerly by the line between the town of Sprague and the towns of Canterbury and Scotland to the place of beginning. The second district shall comprise all that part of the territory of said town lying within the above-described lines. The electors dwelling within the first voting district shall vote at Baltic and the electors dwelling within the second voting district shall vote at Hanover.

Sec. 2. The annual town meeting of said town for the purpose of electing such officers as are not required by law or by vote of the town to be chosen by ballot, and for the purpose of hearing the annual accounts, laying taxes and transacting the ordinary business of said town, shall be held at Baltic on the last Monday of September.

Sec. 3. The selectmen shall provide a suitable and convenient place for voting and the necessary ballot boxes for the use of the voters in each of said districts at such electors' and annual town meetings, and the warnings of such meetings shall specify the place of voting in each of said districts.

Sec. 4. The registrars of voters chosen at the annual meeting for said voting districts shall be electors entitled to vote in the district for which they are elected.

Sec. 5. No elector shall lose his right to vote in the district of his last previous residence in less than thirty days from his removal, if he shall continue to reside in said town.

STAFFORD SPRINGS

As a result of an automobile collision near the House of Henry Gilmarlin on Somers avenue Sunday evening Carlo A. Brigheuti and Abdo Shaunney were each fined $25 and costs by Judge Heald in the borough court Wednesday morning each being charged with reckless driving.

The evidence showed that the road is very wide at the point where the collision occurred there being more than enough room for three cars to pass, yet the car operated by Shaunney and that operated by Brigheuti came together about in the middle of the road. The accident happened about 9.30 o'clock Sunday night and Judge Heald told the drivers that if each was using the caution that he should have used at the time the cars could easily have passed each other without an accident. Both machines were considerably damaged by the crash. Mrs. Maud Burkee of Springfield who was riding in the Shaunney car received a cut on her nose and Mrs. Mae Miles also of Springfield and an occupant of Shaunney's car sustained a sprained ankle from the collision.

Mr. Bigheuti's children were riding in his car and they were not seriously injured.

Frank A. Sullivan, age 20, died of tuberculosis bronchial pneumonia at the Johnson Memorial hospital Wednesday noon. He was the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Sullivan of New York and came here from that city last November and has since been employed as a book-keeper in the offices of the Fabyan Woolen Company.

BAD BREATH
Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets Get at the Cause and Remove It

People afflicted with bad breath find quick relief through Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The pleasant, sugar-coated tablets are taken for bad breath by all who know them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act gently but firmly on the bowels and liver, stimulating them to natural action, clearing the blood and gently purifying the entire system. They do that which dangerous calomel does without any of the bad after effects.

All the benefits of nasty, sickening, griping cathartics are derived from Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets without griping, pain or any disagreeable effects.

Dr. F. M. Edwards discovered the formula after seventeen years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint, with the attendant bad breath.

Olive Tablets are purely a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; you will know them by their olive color. Take one or two every night for a week and note the effect. 15c and 30c.

TAFTVILLE

The village was visited with a driving rain and windstorm Wednesday, which played havoc with the clothes lines, ripped the shutters off some of the buildings in the business section, and in one case carried away the large glass shade from the top of a gasolene pump. While the storm subsided during the afternoon, it was at its height just before noon when the local school closed their morning session. There was a regular carnival of umbrellas being wrecked or carried away altogether by the strong wind.

The committee in charge of the coming entertainment of the Girls' Social club of the Versailles Methodist Episcopal church, which were printed in The Bulletin, Wednesday morning, should have read as follows: Tickets, Mrs. Charles W. Perkins, to be assisted by Miss Astrid Benson; printing and publicity, Mrs. William Frohmader; stage properties, Miss Helen Tower.

Baseball is proving to be the king sport of the juvenile members of the community this season. The Wequonnoc school has a fast team in the field which stands ready to meet all comers and which defeated the speedy Elizabeth street school of Norwich Tuesday by the score of 10 to 4. Phalen did the twirling for the Wequonnocs, with Gero behind the batter, while Haggerty put them over for the Norwich team, and Hargreaves received. That the Wequonnocs are handy with the stick is shown by the hits to the credit of the players as follows: Gero, 3; Phalen, 5; Martin, 3; Kunnel, 2; Pingree, 2; Smith, 3; Radtke, 2, and Boenig 2. They are anxious to make connections with any other grammar school team in this vicinity. The line-up is Phalen p; Gero, c; Kunnel 1; Martin, 2; Radtke, 3; Gordon, ss; Pingree lf; Smith cf; Boenig, rf; Keefe, sub. T. Dugas is the mascot.

The dogwood on the cliffs behind North Third avenue is beginning to blossom, and within a week, will be in full bloom. Each year the hundreds of trees covered with white blossoms make a pretty picture as they stand on the rocks high above the street. Most of the fruit trees about the town are also in blossom, except the apple trees, and they will be in a week or ten days.

An argument arose in one of the local garages Wednesday evening, as to how many pleasure automobiles were owned in Taftville. One of those in the debate could name 125 residents of the village who had cars, without a stop and there are no doubt many more that he could not think of at that moment. This speaks well for the prosperity of the town.

Rev. Edwin Gordon Crowdis, George N. Beardow and George H. Young who are acting as a committee to obtain information regarding a pipe organ that would be suitable for the Taftville Congregational church, have been in touch with some of the large organ manufacturers of the country and have talked with some of their representatives who have visited the village, and looked over the church property to ascertain what alterations would be necessary to install an organ. Women are fast learning the value of the use of delatone for removing hair or fuzz from face, neck or arms. A paste is made with some powdered delatone and water and spread on the hairy surface. In 2 or 3 minutes it is rubbed off, the skin washed and every bit of hair has disappeared. No failure will result if you are careful to buy genuine delatone and mix fresh as wanted.

SACRED HEART CHURCH FUND GROWS TO $26,248 FOR RE-BUILDING

Clean-up reports in the $40,000 rebuilding fund drive of Sacred Heart church of Norwich Town were made Wednesday night at the K. of C. home to General Chairman P. T. Connell, which made the remarkable total for the day of $6,715 and sent the grand total to $26,248.

This splendid result represented a great final effort on the part of many team captains and members, while a very considerable part was in contributions that had been turned in to pastor of the parish, Rev. C. W. Brennan. These had come in many $100 and $25 contributions and the aggregate accounted materially for the wonderful sum of Wednesday.

While the drive has officially closed as far as active canvassing is concerned, there are still a number of team captains who have yet to make complete reports and there are to be various efforts like supper and entertainments that will add sums to the total.

Taftville and Jewett City are two communities that are to make returns and good sums are looked for from the efforts that have been put forth there.

The pastor and the leaders expressed great confidence Wednesday night after hearing the returns that were made that the parish would secure a total that would adequately provide for the re-building of the fine church that was destroyed by fire on Easter Sunday.

no definite specifications have been given, it is used for that purpose, will cost in excess of three thousand dollars, but no final figures can be given until the committee decides whether an electrical or a water driven instrument would be best.

Articles running in the Danielson column of The Bulletin, relating to the rights of pedestrians and motorists, are calling for considerable discussion in the village. Many motorists agree that with the heavy traffic on all state roads, especially on Sunday, something should be done to keep people off the roads and on the sidewalks, to prevent accidents. Occum road has always been a favorite strolling place for crowds of villagers every Sunday. Sometimes they walk in couples, but usually in crowds, and spread themselves all over the road, forcing automobiles to keep close to the trolley tracks. When two cars attempt to pass in such a narrow space, it has often been necessary to "take the track," or come to a dead stop, as the pedestrians occupy the entire road. One automobilist said Wednesday after reading the article, "Just as in one large Boston store, the customer is always right, so on the highways, the automobilist is always wrong."

Some of the resident of the village are discussing the possibility of organizing a coal company to take care of the needs of the villagers. Up till now local people have been dependent upon Norwich dealers for fuel, and some believe that such an organization would be a paying proposition.

The new store and residence on Occum Hill is fast nearing completion and will be ready for occupancy within a short time.

STATE MASTER PLUMBERS IN BRIDGEPORT CONVENTION

The thirty-third annual convention of the Connecticut Master Plumbers convened at the Elks' club house, Bridgeport, on Wednesday. The attendance was large and enthusiastic.

President Edward L. Maloney occupied the chair. Rev. Michael J. Lynch offered the invocation and followed with a stirring speech on American Ideals, enforcing the duty of every American to embrace all opportunities to inculcate the doctrines laid down in the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of our country.

This was followed by an apt address of welcome by Dr. William H. Coon, representing the city of Bridgeport.

Thomas F. Nolan, a representative member of the National Association of Master Plumbers, added an inspiring address urging devotion to the benefits being derived from the association and its business and fraternal returns and advantages.

After general business routine a royal banquet was served under the direction of the Bridgeport local when further talks were given by invited guests, concluding a very important meeting of the society.

A year book of some forty pages containing besides advertising matter cuts of leading past officers, was distributed, embracing a partial review of the history of the state association (covering 3 pages) from its organization birth in 1898, with succeeding officers and conventions up to the present. This was furnished by John Treland of Norwich, a treasurer for 11 years and holding official connection with the body ever since its incorporation.

The convention endorsed a movement which will mean that practically every plumbing installation will now be guaranteed by the firm doing the work. Heretofore no such surety has been offered by master plumbers.

Officers elected at the afternoon session at the Elks club where the gathering was held were: Howard F. Bryant, Bridgeport, president; Edward Tierney, New Haven, vice president; Garry D. Raymond, Stamford, second vice president; George S. Bull, Hartford, financial secretary; Charles U. Newman, West Haven, treasurer and Joseph Berger, Bridgeport, recording secretary.

The convention also went on record as favoring the establishment of comfort stations along main highways by municipalities. The meeting interstate auto travel demands such improvements, the meeting concurred.

WILL DISCUSS IMMIGRATION BEFORE COMMERCE CHAMBER

"Immigration and the Shortage of Labor" will be the subject of the address by Frederick A. Wallis, of York city, former United States commissioner of immigration, at the manufacturing and agricultural conference of The Connecticut Chamber of Commerce to be held at the Hotel Bond, Hartford, on the evening of May 16th.

The subject of immigration is of more interest to the business men of this state now than ever before, and it is expected that about one thousand persons will attend the conference. Connecticut industry is seriously threatened because of the small number of unskilled laborers. The "3 per cent" immigration law which prevents a large influx of immigrants from manning the farms and manufacturing establishments of this state has seriously hampered general business, and already Connecticut manufacturers are planning a concerted movement, with manufacturers in other parts of the country, to amend the "3 per cent" law at the next session of congress.

Mr. Wallis, who is to discuss immigration, is considered one of the foremost authorities in the country on this topic. He was first in charge of immigration through the port of New York, and later President Wilson appointed him immigration commissioner of the United States. He will discuss every phase of this subject.

The other speaker at the conference will be Dr. David Friday, president of the Michigan State Agricultural College, and the foremost authority in the country on agriculture. Dr. Friday will take for his subject An Agricultural Program For an Industrial State. Many Connecticut farmers are planning to attend the conference by which it is hoped a closer cooperation between the manufacturers and farmer can be effected.

ATTENDING CONVENTION OF WOMEN'S RELIEF CORPS

Mrs. Jayne E. Seed, president of Sedgwick W. R. C., Mrs. Iola Bjurstrom, department inspector, Mrs. Marietta Wright, past department president, and Mrs. Elizabeth Mackey are in Hartford to attend the annual state Woman's Relief Corps department convention, which opened Wednesday and will continue through today (Thursday).

The opening session of the convention was devoted mainly to the reading of the reports of the state department officers and on Wednesday night there was a flag presentation followed by a reception with Robert O. Tyler Relief Corps as the hostesses.

The program Wednesday night began with a prelude by Willis Waterman which was followed by an address by ex-Congressman Augustine Lonergan. Miss Maude Hugett sang a solo and Department Commander John L. Saxo of the G. A. R. made a speech. The remainder of the program consisted of readings by Miss Isabel Kilby, an address by Mrs. Elizabeth B. Daggett, national councilor and past president of the Women's Relief Corps, and a speech by Norman C. Buckingham, division commander of the Sons of Veterans. Mrs. Emma D. Fisher presented the flag to the Central Baptist church, where the convention was held and the Rev. Dr. Herbert Judson White delivered the acceptance speech.

On Thursday officers for the coming year will be elected. Mrs. Morse, the president, has signified her intention of retiring from the office.

ANOTHER CLUE FAILS IN MYSTERY OF TIBBITTS

Officers working on the case of the disappearance of William Tibbitts, the Fitchville farmer, saw another bubble burst this week in the form of a check for $18 made out to Tibbitts which they believed had been cashed the day following his disappearance. A check-up however, disclosed the fact that Tibbitts had bargained with Harry Fishbone of Yantic for the cashing of the check at the same time making a deal for two loads of hay. The check was deposited at a Norwich bank after Tibbitts had been missed and this at first led the officers to believe the check might have some bearing on the case.

As far as is known the mystery remains as deep as ever and the middle of May is fast approaching. Many people are awaiting to see how near the speaker at a recent meeting of the Spiritualists will come to the truth, this speaker having given a message that Tibbitts was dead and his body would be found about the middle of May. The fulfillment of her message would be welcomed by the public and officers for it will at least establish the fact that Tibbitts is dead.

A portable rocket pistol that weighs only six pounds, recently invented in England, will throw a life line for rescue work nearly 400 yards.

TELLS ROTARIANS WHAT MARINE SALVAGER DOES

A very interesting and instructive talk on Marine Salvaging by William H. Hull of the T. A. Scott Co., of New London, featured the noonday luncheon of the Norwich Rotary club held at the Wauregan hotel on Wednesday. Mr. Hull came to Norwich at the invitation of Russell A. Clapp, chairman of the programme committee, who also conducted the latter part of the meeting.

In telling of the many problems of marine salvage work Mr. Hull first gave a brief outline of the history of the T. A. Scott Co., which, since its merger with a New York wrecking concern, is now the largest wrecking firm in the world and plans are underway whereby stations of the Scott company will be located all along the Atlantic and Pacific coasts of the United States. The Scott Co. was very small in its beginning and has had a remarkable growth.

The T. A. Scott Co. has just passed its 50th anniversary said Mr. Hull. In the fall of 1862, T. A. Scott, founder of the company, took the contract for the construction of the Race Rock Lighthouse and in the early spring of 1873 came to New London to start work. He secured a steam lighter, a small pumping equipment and other paraphernalia required in his work. He was his own office, his own diver, and his filing system was his old derby hat. He completed the job, however, and returned to New London intending to go in for marine construction work. His equipment was his diving suit and an old shed to store his equipment and a sloop. From this meagre beginning started the T. A. Scott Co., which employes 250 men including eight master divers and many in training. A large office force and excellent equipment which includes 6 steam tow-boats, 14 lighters, of 3 to 75 tons each, 2 dipper dredges, 1 suction dredge, 8 scows, 3 electric submersible pumps, a number of gasoline unit pumps, pontoons and a large amount of other equipment. The company maintains its own wireless station, three storehouses, machine shop, carpenter shop, etc.

The company also has a well regulated information bureau with men stationed all along the coast who notify the main office immediately when there is a wreck in their vicinity. The company immediately sends out lighters and divers. There are two kinds of wrecks to contend with, the beach cases where the wreck has been run aground, and the wreck that has sunk. There are no two wrecks alike. Many things enter into the problems of salvaging a wrecked vessel. Her location has to be accurately determined, the time of year, the tides and currents, the vessel's construction, whether she is a wood or steel craft, her interior and exterior construction and a hundred and one things that take experts to calculate.

When notified of a wreck the first thing is to send out the wrecking gear on the steam lighters. The wreck master first makes his survey, taking into consideration the condition of the bottom on which the boat rests, if it is a beach case, the shifting currents that pile up the sand about her bottom, and how much she will stand before being floated. A survey is made of the interior to determine the exact injury sustained. The injury is repaired as much as possible, seams that have been opened are sealed and the pumps started. If everything is successful the vessel is floated within three or four days.

The steel ship is more apt to bury herself in the sand and the work must be rushed along a good deal faster. Weather conditions are another thing that the wreck master has to battle. He must be about two jumps ahead of the weather bureau and his guess must be more accurate.

In salvaging the sunken ship the procedure is different. The wreck master determines the depth of water, the damage sustained and the weight of the ship. The damage is repaired as much as possible by divers and then pontoons are submerged beside the vessel, chained to the ship and then the water is pumped out of the pontoons which being filled with air lift the ship to the surface where the water is pumped out of her.

Another method is to seal up the ship as tight as possible, build coffers around the hatches and then pump out the water. Sometimes this takes as long as three or four weeks, according to the amount of damage the ship has sustained and her location.

In some cases the damage is so great to a vessel that the salvaging of the ship would not be advisable. That is why you hear of wrecks not being touched along many points on the coast.

The largest and most important work done by the Scott Co. was the salvaging of the battleship Texas several years ago. The Texas went ashore off Block Island and a bad shore it was, too. The bottom was covered with boulders weighing from 5 to 100 tons. These boulders pierced the outer shell of the ship and some even broke the inner shell. With the heavy guns, armor and supplies the ship was a heavy proposition to float. The crew were set to work removing everything that could be moved and they finally took off about 4,500 tons. Then the inside shell was made tight and then the water between the outer and inner shells was pumped out. By doing this she just cleared the boulders and was pulled out into deep water. As she slid off the rocks two big boulders were added and in this way she was towed to New York and was back in service again in four months. This is the biggest job that the Scott Co. has undertaken.

At the conclusion of his talk Mr. Hull was given a vote of appreciation. The business session was conducted by President Charles A. Saxton with E. LaRue Bliven as song leader. There were several quartette selections and solos by F. W. Wheeler. There was a report from Lucius Briggs, John J. O'Rourke and Herbert M. Lerou on their trip to Washington in behalf of the Thames river channel project. The report was very gratifying showing that the Chamber of Commerce is working hard to get a wider and deeper channel for the Thames river.

There was a report of progress on the baseball team by the manager and it looks as though the local club would be well and strongly represented on the diamond this season.

The meeting closed with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner.

Clouds come high, but we must have them.

RUSSIAN SOVIET DELEGATE TO NEAR EAST CONFERENCE ASSASSINATED LAST NIGHT

M. Ahrens, Head of the Soviet Press Bureau at Lausanne and M. Didwilkowski, Another Russian, Were Wounded—The Party Was Dining at the Hotel Cecil When a Young Man Opened Fire Without Warning—The Assassin Was Seized as He Was About to Leave the Hotel—Fascisti Had Warned Vorovsky to Get Out of Switzerland

Lausanne, May 10.—(By the A. P.)—M. Vorovsky, head of the Russian soviet delegation at the Lausanne peace conference, was assassinated tonight. He was shot several times and killed outright.

M. Ahrens, head of the soviet press bureau in Lausanne press bureau in Lausanne, and M. DidWilowski, another Russian, were wounded, the former seriously.

Vorovsky and his party were dining at the Hotel Cecil. A young man seated a few tables away arose after he had finished his dinner and leisurely partaken of coffee, calmly walked over to the Russians' table and opened fire without warning.

Vorovsky was the first victim, and the assassin then turned the weapon on Ahrens who was struck by three bullets, twice in the thigh and once in the shoulder.

Ahrens, nevertheless, managed to draw his revolver on his assailant, but a waiter rushed forward and knocked up his arm. Meanwhile the assassin shot Didwilkowski in the body.

The assassin was seized as he attempted to escape from the hotel. His name is Maurice Alexander Conradi, and according to the police, who subjected him to a severe grilling, belongs to the Canton of Grisons.

Conradi is 38 years of age and was born at Andeas. He expressed no regret and admitted that he had formerly served in the Russian army. He returned recently from Russia and came to Lausanne today from Zurich where he had been residing.

Conradi refused to state the motive of his act or whether he had accomplices. However, nothing yet has been found to connect him with the fascisti, who had warned Vorovsky to get out of Switzerland.

An examination of Didwilkowski by surgeons disclosed two bullets in the abdomen, which they were not able to extract. Late tonight his condition was alarming. He is twenty years of age and was Vorovsky's secretary.

It is declared that the fact the position of the Russian delegation has never been properly defined may have contributed to bring about tonight's attack on the Russians.

While M. Vorovsky went to Lausanne to attend the Near East conference he was not recognized as a delegate, as the allies had made Russia's participation in the resumed conference contingent upon soviety acceptance of the straits convention drawn up at the first meeting.

As a result of this non-recognition of his status as a delegate M. Vorovsky had been in a controversy both with the conference heads and the Swiss government, charging that the latter acted unfairly and partially in denying his representatives in Berlin to refuse a visa to a soviet courier on the way to Switzerland from Moscow.

The Swiss fascisti injected themselves into the situation early this week when they issued a statement asserting that Vorovsky, because of his condemnation of the Swiss government's action, must be deported. The statement added that the fascisti were adequately armed and that everything was ready to enable them to deal with the soviet representative unless he left the country of his own accord. Upon being apprised of this statement M. Vorovsky declared he would ignore the warning.

UNCLE AND BROTHER MURDERED BY BOLSHEVIKI

Lausanne, May 10 (By the A. P.)—Conradi told the police tonight that his uncle and brother had been tortured and murdered by the bolsheviki during the terror in Russia. His act in shooting the Russians, he declared, was one of vengeance.

WOULD BLOW OUT OIL WELL FIRE WITH TNT

Washington, May 10.—Dr. Charles E. Munroe, chief explosive chemist of the bureau of mines, suggested today that the safest and easiest way to control the oil well fire near Corsicana, Tex., which has resulted in the death and injury of thirteen or more persons, would be to blow out the flame with TNT.

"I know that it sounds spectacular to suggest that an oil well fire resulting from an explosion should be blown out with TNT, but it is not spectacular in fact," said Dr. Munroe. "It is a simple scientific method of control, used before with complete success, and the files of the petroleum division of the bureau of mines will produce photographs of the operation.

"Puffing out a flame 200 feet high by 50 feet in diameter with a blast of TNT is a little more startling, perhaps, to the layman, than peacefully blasting rock for a highway or rooting out a tree stump with an explosive in a small cartridge, but, after all, there is not much difference between blowing out a candle flame with a human breath and blowing out an oil well fire with TNT. It is just a bigger flame, and takes a bigger breath, that's all. All that is necessary is to stretch a cable near the oil well fire, from which cartridges of TNT are suspended, and then they are set off simultaneously with detonators, electrically operated from the ground at a safe distance. One big puff, and the fire is out."

GRAND JURY PROBING THE DEATH OF STUDENT MOUNT

Chicago, May 10.—Leighton Mount, Northwestern University student who has been missing since a class rush in September, 1921, previously expressed his intention of disappearing. A skeleton believed by the authorities to be Mount's was found under a pier at Evanston several days ago led to the grand jury investigation.

Miss Fuchs, who has claimed to have received a letter from Mount the day he disappeared, said she at first believed he had made good his threat but since the finding of the skeleton, she told the jury she believed he had been a victim of class hazing.

"I first met Leighton when he and two other boys came to my assistance while I was trying to open the door to my apartment," Miss Fuchs told the grand jury. "We were what you might call pals although he did frequently refer to me as 'Dearie.' He never showed any other affection than that.

"Leighton confided to me about his family affairs. He said he was disappointed over th emanner in which he was treated at home. He said he was not allowed to go out anywhere and he came to me for mental aid and comfort.

"The night before the class rush while we were out riding he told me that I would not see him again. He said he would disappear during the class rush, but I paid no attention to him because he had said those things before. The night of the rush it began to worry me so I went and told his mother."

ONLY ONE WAY TO FORCE DOWN THE PRICE OF SUGAR

New York, May 10.—The only way to force down the price of sugar is not to buy it, President Edward F. Dierks of the New York sugar exchange told a delegation of women who appeared on the floor of the exchange today and demanded to know "how it works."

Mr. Deirks said his advice was unofficial. If supply and demand are not regulating the price of sufar, then "you should look further down on the street," he added, indicating the location of the offices of big sugar refineries in Wall street.

"We speculators are not to blame for any unfair action," he said.

He was injured about the head and was taken to a hospital but later returned to his hotel, where it was stated his condition was not serious.

There has been much feeling in France against Caillaux since the war. He was leader of the defeatist element in 1917-18, and in 1920 was found guilty of having commerce with the enemy, for which he was sentenced to three years' imprisonment, five years' residence in certain country districts, during which period he could not enter Paris, and ten years' loss of political rights. Assembly Rejects Peasley Nomination

Gov. Templeton Has Five Days in Which to Make New Nomination for Judge of the Superior Court.

Hartford, May 10.—Another week of work is in store for the general assembly. It had been expected that both branches would be able to recess for three weeks after today's session, but the amount of business still on hand proved greater than had been anticipated and it was necessary to agree to another week.

The rejection by both branches of the nomination of Frederick M. Peasley to be judge of the superior court has left a condition which is without precedent in many ways. It is hoped that the governor will send in another nomination before the session ends and House Leader Buckley has indicated his desire that the legislature will be able to act on a second name. In order to save time, a special committee was appointed today to inform the governor that Judge Peasley's name had been rejected. The governor has five days in which to send in a second name, but it is hoped that he will not take advantage of the legal limit. Governor Templeton, thus far, has declined to discuss the Peasley rejection.

The house today concurred with the senate in confirming the appointment of Eliot Watrous and Arthur W. Chambers to be judges of the city court at New Haven. These nominations had been the center of some hostile criticism but went through with no opposition.

John J. Walsh of Norwalk, democrat, and judge of the Fairfield county common pleas court, has been mentioned as the probable second nominee of Governor Templeton to be a judge of the superior court, succeeding Judge James H. Webb of Hamden, who retires upon reaching the age of 70 years on December 22, 1924.

PUBLIC CLOCKS MUST SHOW STANDARD TIME

Hartford, May 10.—The public display of any but standard time is forbidden under penalty of $100 fine under the terms of a bill passed in concurrence in the senate today. The bill is the second one dealing with the question of daylight saving time introduced this session, the first one having been defeated in the senate after the house had passed it. The senat epassed it by a vote of 19 to 12.

The bill will now go to the governor who is expected to sign it because of his publicly announced objection to the changing of clocks in accordance with "summer time."

The bill reads:

"Section 1. No person, firm, or corporation, organization or association, shall wilfully display in or on any public building or on any street, avenue or public highway any time measuring instrument or device which is circulated or intended to furnish time to the general public set run or indicating intentionally any other time than the standard time as defined by chapter 37 of the public acts of 1921. Any person, or any officer, of any corporation or organization or association violating any provision of this act shall be fined not more than $100.

Those voting for the bill: Senators Dignam, Christoph, Beers, Beisiegel, Rogers, Gibbs, Park, Harter, Avery, Anderson, Child, Ash, Brooks, Judd, French, Pierson, De Peyster, Bidwell, Behre and Allen.

Those voting against the bill: Senators Doty, Bakewell, Trumbull, MacDonald, Clyne, Ellis, Kenealy, Wilder, Challenger, Harter, Covert and Johnson.

The bill, which was passed in the house May 4, was taken from the table by Senator Trumbull who offered an amendment permitting the display of daylight saving time if the words "summer time" were displayed on the clock. This amendment met vigorous objection on the parts of Senator Brooks, Rudd and Dignam who maintained that it would cause an enormous amount of confusion and would legalize two different times in the state, a condition which, they said, would be highly undesirable. Both Senator Trumbull and Senator Wilder defended the amendment maintaining that it would serve to clear up existing confusion.

EFFORTS TO FINANCE THE PIGGLY-WIGGLY STORES, INC.

Memphis, Tenn., May 10.—(By The A. P.)—Piggly-Wiggly Stores, Inc., tonight awaited the beckoning word from any of a half dozen cities, while Memphis business interests made ready for a final effort to perfect financial arrangements to retain headquarters of the institution with its [illegible] of 50,000 shares of stock, the main point at issue.

Clarence Saunders, head of the organization, brought the situation to a climax today in a [illegible]-day campaign which failed to sell the stock, in a statement denouncing certain "banking interests" and announced that he had opened negotiations with other cities looking to a "trade" that would result in transferring headquarters from Memphis. This was followed by an announcement by E. O. Bailey, president of the Memphis Chamber of Commerce, which sponsored the stock-selling campaign that efforts to obtain subscriptions to the stock would be discontinued.

Mr. Bailey declared, however, the Chamber of Commerce would continue its efforts to retain the Piggly-Wiggly headquarters.

Announcement was made after a conference this afternoon that the question still was open with a committee named to confer with Memphis financial interests. Another meeting will be held tomorrow.

Disposal of the 50,000 block of stock, Mr. Saunders explained, was necessary to safeguard the interests of members of the pool with which he was associated in the recent sensational transfer in Piggly-Wiggly from the "big board."

Mr. Saunders, in his statement announced his willingness to retire from the [illegible] and declared his interest in the "pool" would not be considered until the interests of other members had been provided for.

CHANGE IN LAW FOR STATE AID FOR SCHOOLS

Hratford, May 10.—The "average attendance grant" bill which amends the present law concerning state aid for schools was passed in the senate today after brief debate between Senators Bakewell and Brooks. The bill was taken from the table by Senator Bakewell who offered an amendment which had been submitted and printed in the Journal some time ago.

The bill, as passed, changes the present statutes and is designed to place the various towns on an equitable basis as far as state aid is concerned without disturbing existing conditions more than necessary. It would prevent towns from getting a larger share of state aid than they are really entitled to, Senator Bakewell said. The bill provides for nine classes of towns having a grand list of $3,500,000 or less.

WOODEN SHIPS CONTRACT SAVED NOANK SHIP PLANT

Documentary Evidence at the Morse Trial Disclosed That the Plant Had Been Unable to Meet Promptly Its Obligations Up to the Time It Received the Contract—Creditors Had Made Threats of Court Action—Letters From Benjamin W. Morse to His Brother, E. A. Morse, Showed That the Former Had Sent Checks to Preserve the Credit of the Latter.

Washington, May 10.—More documentary evidence designed to show that the Groton Iron Works' Noank, Conn., ship plant was unable to meet promptly its obligations up to the time it received a contract for wooden ships for the Emergency Fleet corporation on June 15, 1917, was introduced today by the government at the Morse trial.

Most of the evidence took the form of letters from creditors or their attorneys, demanding payment of bills ranging from $75 to several thousand dollars, and which, it was claimed, were long past due. In some of the letters threats of court action were made. Where there were letters from Dexter Flood, treasurer of the Noank plant, in reply to the demands, in which statements were made that the company was short of ready cash but had large sums owing it which it hoped to collect soon, when settlements of the bills in question would be made.

The first letters offered were written by Benjamin W. Morse from the office of the Continental Trading company, ship brokers, New York city, to his brother, E. A. Morse, at Noank. One, under date of Jan. 5, 1917, stated that the writer was enclosing a check for $3,650 to cover certain checks of the Noank plant, adding that if the checks went to protest it would ruin your credit, which is bad enough as it is."

A second letter, dated the same day, stated that a check for $2,146 was enclosed and added that "I presume you need money pretty badly."

"It looks very much," the letter continued, "like you are soaking the life out of us because you think we have a little money. You have charged us $30 or $60 a thousand (feet) for lumber which cost you 8-5. I know you are pretty hungry for money, but for heaven's sake don't soak us on bills in an effort to get a [illegible]."

Asked by counsel for the defense about his statement in one letter to a creditor that there was $300,000 due the Noank plant, Mr. Rood said a large part of the money was repair work done on ships of the United States Steamship company, another Morse concern, and the parent of all the others. He could not say whether any of this money ever was collected.

Mr. Rood said that at another period when the company was being pressed for payments, its bills, payable amounted to $100,000 and it then was negotiating for the sale of a schooner for that amount.

The government had not concluded its presentation of evidence as to the financial affairs of the Noank plant at the time Justice Stafford adjourned the trial over until Monday.

UPPER NEW YORK STATE IS COVERED WITH SNOW

Albany, N. Y., May 10. — Winter took what is hoped will be its final whallop at upper New York state today, covering the ground with snow in a number of localities and sending the mercury down to meet the freezing point.

It all began last night, when after a day of rain, the temperature began to drop, snow flakes showed in a blizzard still was a possibility and the wind assumed a chill which recalled the frosts of late fall. During the night the rain turned to snow, and this morning a new coat [illegible] to a good two inches covered the ground.

Jamestown reported a two-inch fall and several southern cities. Snow fell also on cities along the Mohawk valley, through the Adirondacks, Poughkeepsie reported flurries with a heavy frost in all districts. At Niagara Falls shrubbery in the parkway near the falls was encrusted with frigid spray.

The temperature dropped to proximity of the freezing, the readings generally reported being 32, 33, and 34 above zero. Farmers reported damage to early fruit and vegetable crops but not to a great extent as produce was well advanced in growth.

Early tonight the weather was cool and the sky threatening.

NARRAGANSETT BODY NOT THAT OF LAWSON

Providence, R. I., May 10.—The body of the man found off Bass Rock, Narragansett Pier, is not that of John F. Lawson, Jr., aide to prohibition agents, the father, mother and wife of the young man told the police today, and combined with the statement of Medical Examiner F. Edward Burke that the body is that of a murdered man, developments on the case have caused Attorney eneral Carpenter to order an inquiry into the mystery. Sheriff John R. Wilcox was placed in charge of the investigation after the autopsy report had been received by the attorney general.

A double mystery now faces the investigators, inasmuch as they must make a fresh start on the identification of the body and also a search for the murderers. Medical Examiner Burke's verdict, it was said, removed all doubt from the minds of officials and convinced them that it is a case of foul play.w

Whether or not John Lawson, Jr., used by federal agents as an informer, has been murdered, as the mysterious "underground" messages to his wife would indicate, is also another problem for the police to tackle.

WOMAN RULES AGAINST EXPOSURE OF MEN'S LEGS

New York, May 10.—The question whether mere man, whose opportunities to display his own pulchritude have been drastically limited in modern times, can be exploited on a New York state movie screen with his legs unsheathed, is to be settled by the superior court of the commonwealth.

The appellate division of the court granted a writ today requiring the state motion picture commission to submit for review a report of its order to delete a number of man and dog scenes from a motion picture released by Pathe Exchange, Inc.

The commission ordered the movie corporation to "eliminate all view of man's legs exposed where trousers are pulled by dog at dance." The letter written by Mrs. Eli T. Hosmer, woman member of the commission, said such an exhibition would "tend to incite to crime."

The movie people's reply that "there is no more reason for this elimination that for the elimination of a like or similar exposure of a woman's leg," was filed with ther papers in the court today.

HITCH IN NEGOTIATIONS WITH CHINESE BANDITS

Peking, May 10 (By the A. P.)—A hitch has developed in negotiations for the release of the captives held by the Suchow bandits in their hill stronghold back of Linching, according to a report carried today by the Asiatic News Agency, a Chinese news agency.

The news agency declared that the government's hasty acceptance of the bandits' preliminary demands that the pursuing troops be called off has brought brigands shouts of official sincerity and has led them to fear that Peking is laying a trap for them.

The last available information indicates that only one woman is held by the Suchow bandits. Senora Vera, wife of anuel A. Vera of Guadalajara, exico, who also is a captive. She refused to leave her husband, although offered her liberty, according to reports.

WILLIMANTIC

NORWICH BULLETIN
Willimantic Office
881 Church Street Telephone 1048

Practically the entire session of superior court held in this city on Thursday was taken up with the trial of William H. Horton, president of the Willimantic Motors company, who was charged with reckless driving. The charge is the outcome of an accident in which the accused figured on Saturday evening, April 14, when a Dort sedan owned by the Willimantic Motors Company and driven by Horton turned over on the sidewalk on Church street after making the turn out of Maple avenue. The machine was almost totally wrecked from the impact and by fire. Horton was found guilty and fined $10 and costs in the local police and he took an appeal to the superior court.

Officer Roderick Lariviere of the local police department was the first witness called for the state. He told of being notified of the accident and of finding the car on one side of the west sidewalk of Church street. At that time, members of the fire department were extinguishing the blaze in the machine. The officer stated that he saw two heavy wheel-marks leading from a distance of about 25 feet on Maple avenue in a quarter circle to where the car had struck the curbing and turned over.

Thomas F. Connelly testified to measurements on Maple avenue and Church street. According to his measurements the wheel marks showed for a distance of 73 feet. There were two wheelmarks but he would not say by which car they had been caused.

When Joseph Peck, who has operated motor vehicles for twenty-one years, was called to the stand, it was expected that his testimony would have much bearing for the state's evidence. Mr. Peck told of being stopped in his own car at a point some distance from the corner of Maple avenue and Church streets and of seeing a car suddenly appear out of Maple avenue and turn over on its side on the opposite side of Church street. Within a few minutes, Mr. Peck was at the scene of the accident. Witness then made a twist in three gasoline feed pipe and shut off the flow of gasoline, thus avoiding a more severe blaze. When asked as to the condition of the brakes, witness stated that he had examined the brakes and found one entirely disconnected and the other fastened on for a temporary connection. He was firm in his belief that there were two wheel marks in the roadway.

It was then suggested that all concerned take a trip to the scene of the accident in order to receive a better idea of the surroundings. A journey was made to the Willimantic Motors Garage on Temple street and Judge James H. Webb and the attorneys viewed the wrecked Dort automobile.

Upon returning to the court room, the session was resumed and Officer Frank McLean of the local department took the stand and his testimony was identical to that given by Officer Lariviere.

Raymond A. Parker, whose property abuts the sidewalk where the accident occurred, was called to the stand. He claimed that he did not see the machine until some time after the accident.

A recess was taken and at 2 o'clock the afternoon session was opened. Judge Webb and the attorneys retired into the ante-room for a conference following which it was announced that the case against Horton had been nolled on the payment of $35.

The case of John Desrosier, who was charged with attempting to break and enter, was also discussed during the conference. When court was resumed, the accused pleaded nolo contendre and Judge Webb imposed a sentence of one year in jail with judgment suspended and the accused placed on probation for that time with Arnold S. Peckham as probation officer. The costs of $30.39 were paid.

An enthusiastic annual meeting of the Young Men's Christian Association was held in the boys' department rooms of the association building recently and a rising vote of thanks was extended to W. N. COLCHESTER

A meeting of the representatives of the committees from East Hampton, Moodus, East Haddam, Haddam, Higganum and Colchester was held in Moodus on the residential lighting question. The meeting was organized by choosing E. T. Clark of Higganum chairman and Myron R. Abell of Colchester clerk. After a general exchange of thoughts, it was unanimously adopted.

It was also voted that a committee of three be appointed to meet Mr. Perry and arrange to carry out this vote of the committee. E. Gordon Cone, Myron R. Abell and E. T. Anyone who before May 15th will be billed at the new rate of current used from May 1st.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Government Savings System Permanent

The U. S. government savings system is a permanent institution. Beginning as a helper in raising money to carry on the war it grew rapidly and finally developed into a real necessity. It was found that many people who had money would not invest it or deposit it with any institution that was not operated by the government. The word of Uncle Sam is what such people wanted before they would take their money from the old stockings or cubby holes and tea canisters and place it where it would earn a fair interest and have the principal returned to them at the end of the term of investment. War savings certificates proved popular with investors in small amounts, but they were not adapted to peace conditions, nor was the war savings organization of the treasury department able to handle after-war conditions. So a new savings security was devised and the U. S. government savings system was created and made a permanent part of the treasury's fiscal policy.

The new system not only sells the new savings certificates but is conducting a nation-wide campaign to encourage saving and to discourage the tendency toward taking chances with all the fake investments that are offered by sharpers and swindlers who deal in bogus stocks and other worthless securities. In a brief but interesting form the government savings system tells what it is doing in a booklet recently issued. It is sent free to anyone who is interested enough to write to the treasury department at Washington for it.

Announcement

As with every other product in daily use and demand engineers are continually experimenting in attempts to develop new and better features in storage batteries.

Seven years ago all battery manufacturers were using wood for insulating the plates of storage batteries.

But the wood insulator comprised a weak link in the battery because it could not be made to last the life of the plates. Frequent and costly repairs were the common result.

All the engineering and experimental departments of the larger battery companies were continually wrestling with this problem, namely to find a separator that would last at least as long as the plates, and that would have uniform porous qualities.

Rubber is the best insulating material known and it is acid resisting as well. But the great problem was to make it porous. Every method conceivable was tried to pierce rubber with a larger number of tiny holes, but it seemed impossible to pierce a sufficient number of them small enough to obtain porosity and still keep the insulation quality.

It remained for T. A. Willard, president of the Willard Storage Battery Company of Cleveland to solve the problem. He hit upon a way to vulcanize into rubber blocks thousands of cotton threads running horizontally the length of the block. The block was cut into slices so that each slice was pierce from face to face with 196,000 threads.

It was Willard's first supposition that there threads when immersed in the acid of the battry would dissolve out and leave the thousands of tiny holes he wanted.

But here he failed to take into consideration the fact that acid eats and destroys only when exposed to air. The threads immersed in the acid did not dissolve out but served as tiny wicks to conduct the electrolyte from one plate to the other and besides helped to maintain the natural strength in the insulator, a part of which would have been lost had the threads been dissolve as he supposed they would.

The threaded rubber insulator now put into batteries as original equipment on 134 makes of cars in the United States has proved even more satisfactory in practice than even the wildest dreams of its inventor, T. A. Willard. It has reduced the national repair and recharging bills on batteries by many thousands of dollars annually.

Breed Theatre

Without doubt The Yosemite Trail, which is the feature attraction at the Breed theatre today and Saturday, will please the audiences that view it. In settings of picturesque grandeur the story unwinds itself in logical sequence, closing with a climax of great dramatic power. There is a touch of natural humor in the picture to lighten the heavier situations.

Dustin Farnum, the Fox star, who is popular on stage and screen, portrays his part in a creditable manner. Irene Rich deserves special mention for her performance. As a villain, Frank Campeau scores successfully. This review would not be complete without referring again to the majestic beauty of the Yosemite Valley where the scenes are laid.

The Five Steppin' Fools closed the bill with a series of twists, taps and twirls that was very good. The production was staged by Hal Lane.

Alice Brady in her latest Paramount production, "The Snow Bride," was the attraction at the theatre last night and more than pleased an enthusiastic audience. This is a story of the Northland, with all its trials and hardships, plots and romances. It is an altogether thrilling tale and one that will be remembered by picture lovers for considerable time to come.

Maurice B. Flynn has the male lead in "The Snow Bride," while the supporting cast includes Mario Majeroni, Jack Baston and others.

Strand Theatre Now Playing

The Song of Life, an all-star production, heralded as one of the most dramatic and interesting photoplays of the year, is coming to the Strand theater today for an engagement of two day. It was produced by Director John M. Stahl for Louis B. Mayer and is a First National release.

Georgia Woodthorpe, at one time leading lady for Edwin Booth, portrays the central character, that of an elderly woman, who years before had left her home and husband because of her love for pretty things. She realizes her folly when the happy married life of another young couple is disturbed for the same reasons.

Gaston Glass, distinguished as the star of "Humoresque," is seen as the juvenile lead, while Grace Darmond, a famous screen star and beauty, portrays the ingenue lead.

Richard Headrick, four years old, universally beloved for his work in "The Child Thou Gavest Me," has an important role, and Wedgwood Nowell, a distinguished actor, takes the part of the heavy.

Other well known figures in the cinema world who contribute their talents to "The Song of Life," are Arthur Stuart Hull; Edward J. Peil, Fred Kelsey and Claude Payton.

The production was filmed at an elaborate scale and is said to be the finest photodrama that has yet been made by Mr. Stahl, who is rated as one of the most able members of his craft.

Round four of the famous Collier's Weekly stories by H. C. Witwer, Fighting Blood, is also featured and a news weekly completes the bill.

EDDIE BOYCE TO PITCH AGAINST ST. LOUIS CARDINALS HERE SUNDAY

Eddie Boyce, who pitched an excellent game here last Sunday is Manager Bill O'Leary's choice to pitch against the St. Louis Cardinals here on Sunday. Boyce is a left hander with good speed and sharp breaking hooks and should perform well against the big leaguers. Boyce made a favorable impression on his first appearance here and now that Canavan is going to the Hartford Eastern League club, Boyce will probably do the pitching the greater part of the season.

The receiving end will be taken care of by Bill Bergen. The infield will be the same as last week with Eddie Hart at first, Danny Silva, the Pittsfield second sacker, at the keystone position the local team has an exceptionally strong inner defense. Danny's playing last week was a feature and the local fans are strong for this boy.

In the outfield Drohan will cover the left pasture, Lester Lee will be in center and Jack Clabby will be in right. All three played a great fielding game last week and should make a good showing against the Cards although they will have plenty to do should the Cards start hitting Boyce.

St. Louis will bring the regular lineup and from the showing made during the past few days local fans should see some real baseball. Yesterday the Cardinals shut out the Phillies and did some very hard hitting. Bottomley, who takes Jacques Fournier's place at first base is developing into a hard hitting player and is among the first five leading batsmen of the National league. The begrudged Torporcy is also hitting hard in his last few games.

Rogers Hornsby, recognized as the greatest second baseman in the major leagues will be with the team. Hornsby has been going strong this season and at the present time is third in the National league in batting with a mark of .405 for the past 21 games. He has been at bat 79 times and has hit safely 32 times. Hornsby is no stranger to local fans and he has many friends in this city where he played two years ago. Practically the only missing face on the St. Louis team will be Jacques Fournier who is now with Brooklyn. Jacques created no little fun at the game when he was here.

This engagement will be the only one the Cardinals will play in the east outside of the league games. There will be ample parking facilities for the game for automobiles and Manager O'Leary is planning to handle a large crowd.

CARDINALS SHUT OUT PHILLIES; BOTTOMLEY STARS

Philadelphia, May 10.—St. Louis made it three in a row from Philadelphia today, blanking the locals 7 to 0. Doak pitched fine ball for the victors holding the Phillies to three scattered hits in seven innings when Stuart relieved him and kept up the good work. Bottomley hit a home run, a double and single in five trips to the plate, driving in four of the St. Louis tallies. Score:

Boston, May 10.—Caveney's triple and Hargrave's single in the sixth gave Cincinnati the run which eventually beat Boston, 4 to 3, today. McNamara was hit hard and only excellent fielding by Southworth, Nixon and McInnis prevented the visitors from piling up a big score. The score:

WHITE SOX TAKE SLUGGING MATCH FROM RED SOX

Chicago, May 10.—Chicago defeated Boston, 9 to 7, after two days of postponements, in the first East-West series here. The game was a slugging match, with the visitors using five pitchers, while Faber went the route for the locals. DEMPSEY TO START TRAINING IN FEW DAYS

Great Falls, Mont., May 10.—Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight champion, will start training here within ten days for his fight with Tommy Gibbons, it was announced here today.

One of the locations most favored lies three miles east of the city at the Giant springs, said to be the largest fresh water springs in the world.

Great Northern railroad officials announced trains will be parked in at Shelby one week before July 4 for the contest.

ANDY FERGUSON BADLY INJURED IN FALL

Baltimore, Md., May 10.—Jockey Andrew Ferguson, riding Locarno, was badly injured by a fall from his mount in the Mount Washington steeplechase at Pimlico this afternoon. A priest who was at the track administered the last rites of the Catholic church to the jockey just before he was taken to a hospital where his condition was pronounced serious.

FAVORITES ARRIVE FOR BIG PIMLICO CLASSIC

Baltimore, Md., May 10.—With the arrival of Zev, better luck, Blanc Seing and Hobgoblin from New York, all the candidiates for the Preakness, Pimlico's $50,000 classic next Saturday, will be on the ground. None of those nominated from Kentucky is expected to show up. Zev, a son of the Finn, made a great reputation last season and in his only outing this spring, was returned a winner. Some of the post in the Preakness Saturday the "wise ones" think he may go to the favorite. Martingale also is well favored and General Thatcher has a good following.

Two Preakness nags, Tail Timber and Flagstaff, showed in the Rennert stakes at Pimlico yesterday and two others, Chickvale and Golden Rule, in the Arundel. Tail Timber won handily enough and was worked out a mile and a sixteenth in 1.49. He will be the Wilson hope for the big race and will be ridden by Butwell. Flagstaff is regarded as a doubtful starter as he has not yet shown Preakness quality.

ACADEMY LOSES SEE-SAW GAME TO STONINGTON HIGH SCHOOL TEAM

Playing in frigid temperature and a high wind Stonington High school nosed out a ten to eight victory over the Norwich Free Academy team at Stonington on Thursday afternoon. Local fans who attended the game were strong in their criticism of the Stonington umpire who it is said reversed decisions and made glaring misjudgments of plays which aided Stonington greatly in winning. This was very noticeable in the seventh inning.

Stonington started off in the lead scoring one run in the first inning. In the second the Academy scored three runs but Stonington got them back in the next inning and held the lead until the sixth when with 3 runs the Academy took the lead by two counters, and added one more in the seventh enough to win had not the umpire made one of his many errors. The Stonington team on this error scored four runs and added another in the eighth.

Ellie Seigal pitched for the local team and disposed of twelve men by the strikeout route but errors in the infield spoiled his record. The errors came at critical times with men on bases and Stonington was not slow in taking full advantage of the local boys' misplays. Although eight errors were made the Academy infield played better than in previous games. The score:

OUIMET STANDS ALONE AGAINST BRITISH GOLFERS

Deal, England, May 10.—(By The A. P.)—Through sunshine, rain and blustering winds, Francis Ouimet, former American amateur and open golf champion, today battled his way to the round before the semi-finals in the British amateur championship tournament.

Two of Ouimet's American colleagues were eliminated from the contest during the morning and another this afternoon, so that tonight Ouimet alone, of the four men Americans who came across the ocean to enter the championship struggle, remains to fight. The Americans who were put out of the running today were Dr. O. F. Willing of Portland, Ore., George V. Rotan of Houston, Texas and John F. Neville of San Francisco.

But Ouimet is not the sole representative of American golf still surviving, for Douglas Grant, who won his matches today, is a citizen of the United States but a resident of England.

Tomorrow morning the eight players still in the running, two Americans, two Scotchmen and four Englishmen will play the sixth round and in the afternoon those who triumph over the 18 holes of the morning will meet in the semi-finals. Grant is in the lower half the draw and Ouimet in the upper half, so there is a possibility, though seemingly not a very strong one, that the two americans will fight it out in the final on Saturday.

Ouimet had two very hard tussels today. He had to go to the home hole in both of them before winning. In the forenoon "Jack" Neville, the California champion, clung to him like the proverbial barnacle, and in the afternoon a cool, experienced Englishman, C. Bretherton, not only staunchly challenged Ouimet's right to remain in the running but for a time made a sound threat to put him out. Bretherton had Ouimet three down at the sixth hole, and the slinger Bostonian had battle bravely and well to overcome this lead. The Englishman aided Ouimet's uphill struggle by geting rather badly off his own game on those deciding holes between the turn and the finish.

HEAVIES FINISHIN GUP TRAINING FOR SATURDAY

New York, May 10.—A rugged gang of man-mountains, principals in the five boxing matches to be held at the Yankee Stadium Saturday afternoon, reached the crest of their final tapering-off exercises today.

On the famous old Roof-Garden at Madison Square, Luis Firpo, bronzed son of the treeless plains south of the Amazon, went through a terrific workout of seven rounds with three mates while hundreds of office workers watched from the windows of nearby skyscrappers.

A pampero, as South Americans call a chilly breeze, blew across the roof and Firpo stormed about the ring to keep warm. He pummeled in turn Al Reich, Joe McCann and Frank Kobbele and a halt was called until fight time Saturday. Firpo has been well-schooled since the Bill Brennan engagement in defense and punch delivery and is in superb condition.

In Yonkers, Jack McAuliffe, 2nd, Firpo's opponent, and Jess Willard and Floyd Johnson, principals in the other star match, worked lightly. They reached their fighting edges yesterday and engaged only in light exercises to keep their muscles loose.

The first engagement of the Saturday programme between Drake and McCann, a four-round affair, is to begin at 3 o'clock daylight time, to be followed by a six round preliminary between Reich and Herman. The first of the star bouts, that between Fulton and Renault, booked for ten rounds, probably will be called at 3.45. The Firpo-McAuliffe set-to follows and then Willard and Johnson. The latter two bouts are of 15 rounds each.

The promoters announced today that should the matches be prevented by weather conditions they would be held Saturday, May 19, and that in the event a postponement was necessary from the 19th, then on Saturday, May 26.

Baltic Wants Games Sunday

The Baltic A. A. team is looking for a game for Sunday afternoon at Baltic as Manager Harry Weisner has run out of his engagement with the Baltic club. Manager Collins is anxious to book some fast team and arrangements can be made by calling him at 69.21.

HIGH PRICES FOR SEATS AT DEMPSEY-GIBBONS BOUT

Shelby, Mont., May 10.—Ringside seats for the heavyweight championship fight here July 4 between Jack Dempsey and Tommy Gibbons will cost $50 plus war tax, the promoters announced today, ranging downward, the prices will be $30, $25 and $20, exclusive of war tax.

Work on an arena to seat 40,000 persons will start at once. If the seat sale by June 15 warrants it, the arena can be increased to a capacity of 100,000.

Loy J. Molumby, head of the American Legion of Montana, who assisted in signing the articles for the bout, announced today the arena could be completed within 30 days. It will occupy about twenty acres.

F. J. Duscher, division chief of the United States internal revenue office at Great Falls, has announced that speculators in tickets will be taxed 50 per cent. of their profits.

Gibbons will train at Havre after completing a tour that will start next Monday and which will include six Montana cities and three in Canada. Dempsey is expected at Great Falls within ten days to train there.

CANAVAN REPORTS TO HARTFORD EASTERN CLUB

Pitcher Hughie Canavan, bought by Hartford from Memphis of the Southern Association, is joining the Senators at Worcester, Thursday.

Canavan is a left hander. He broke into professional ball with Jack Flynn's, Lawrence club in 1918. In 1919 he was with Worcester and his showing drew the attention of the Braves, who bought him, but later sent him to Memphis.

Canavan pitched one whole season for Memphis, ranking with the best lefthanders in the league. Rip Conway was on that club at the time.

The following season Canavan refused to report and since then has been under suspension for so doing. He pitched a few games for the American Threead in Willimantic.—Hartford Times.

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

Howard Ehmke is pitching the same genuine brand of ball for the Red Sox that he pitched for Detroit a year or so ago.

From the way they trimmed the Tigers, the lowly White Sox appear to play their best game when they meet the leaders.

The Detroit team surely misses those sweet wallops of Harry Heilman when the Tiger slugger is out of the lineup.

Manager Pat Moran believes he has the right kind of hitting and if his pitchers can stand the gaff the Reds will travel a fast clip.

Philadelphia fans can see the "silver lining" this spring, a spectacle they haven't been able to lamp with a telescope in many years.

The savage hitting of big league batsmen is nothing short of murder, when 34 pitchers are used in eight games as was the case the other day.

From the way Walter Johnson has started the season there's still a heap of high class pitching in the system of the veteran Washington hurler.

Ivan Olson's long service in the major leagues doesn't seem to have slowed him up. He has been playing a whale of a game for the Brooklyn Robins.

Looks as if the Cleveland Indians could use Joe Wood's healthy wallops these days, but the Speakers will have to wait until "Smoky Joe" finishes his job of turning out ball players at Yale.

Sometimes a change of uniform works wonders. Allen Russell couldn't pitch pennies for the Red Sox, but decked out in a Washington uniform he makes monkeys out of his old team-mates.

Followers of the Giants are of the opinion that Frank Frisch will prove a bigger sensation this year than he did last year. And he certainly was some head-liner last year.

Some of the experts pick the Pirates to give the Giants a tussle for the National pennant. The Pirates have been up there several times in past seasons, only to wither when the going got hot.

The strength of the western division of the National league is more evenly distributed than is the eastern end. Cubs, Cards, Reds and Pirates all look to be good for a 50-50 break in pastiming with each other.

TONIGHT'S CAUCUS.

Tonight the republicans of this city have been summoned to appear in the town hall for the purpose of selecting candidates for the coming June election.

This is the so-called off year in city elections, when the mayor is not elected. Otherwise it means the selection of half of the aldermen, half of the councilmen, city clerk, city treasurer, tax collector, city sheriff's and a member of the board of water commissioners from each party.

It must therefore be fully apparent that even though it is regarded as an off year much importance is attached to the filling of the offices with competent officials, those who have the best interests of the city at heart and who can be relied upon to properly discharge the trust that is imposed in them.

The preliminary in every election, and it is a most important one, is the caucus. There it is determined who are to be presented to the voters as candidates for the respective offices. It is not a task that should be left to a few regardless of what party may be in session. What is needed for the best interests of the city and therefore the best interests of the party are candidates who will command the support of their fellow citizens.

It is with the idea in mind of selecting a strong list of candidates that the republicans should assemble in caucus tonight, and it is a meeting which all republicans who can should grace with their presence.

Let there be a manifestation of interest in the selection of the city ticket that will be in keeping with the real importance of this election preliminary and the naming of a ticket that will appeal to the voters irrespective of party.

THE PEASLEY REJECTION.

The action of the Connecticut legislature in refusing to confirm the appointment of Frederick M. Peasley of Cheshire as a judge of the superior court was unusual. Rare have been the instances when the selection made by the governor has not received the support of the general assembly. But in this instance the trouble lies not in the belief of the legislators that the nominee is incompetent in any particular, for the feeling runs strongly the other way, but because of resentment displayed over the manner in which the governor is alleged to have juggled the selection in connection with other candidacies and the fact that he has picked two candidates for the superior court judges from the same section instead of distributing his nominations about the state. Regardless of these conditions it was not surprising that the democrats should stand opposed to the selection since they felt that of the three judges to be named one should be a democrat, especially since the retiring judge is a democrat.

There are conditions which arise in connection with the filling of offices or judgeships which call for the exercise of keen diplomacy. Ordinarily the high qualifications and the unimpeachable character of the nominee is sufficient to get ready endorsement. In this instance it was because of the preliminaries to the appointment rather than the fitness of the man named for the judgeship that actuated the general assembly. It was unfortunate that the conditions should have existed for it indicates that the governor has lost control and it places the nominee who has been turned down in an unenviable position through no fault of his own.

The action of the general assembly calls for another nomination and one outside any preliminary candidatorial skirmish whose qualifications can be used as the sole basis for action by the members of both houses of the legislature.

MORE SAFETY THE GREAT NEED

A few days ago the motor vehicles department called attention to the fact that automobile accidents show a decided increase in this state. It was preliminary to the institution of another effort for greater safety in the highway.

The statement didn't reflect favorably upon this state and its automobile operators. It indicated that safety is decreasing as the number of cars increases when the opposite should be the case. And still the increasing lack of safety doesn't appear to be restricted to this state.

The public service commission of Pennsylvania reports that while there were five deaths at grade crossings during the first three months of last year there were 33 during the corresponding period of this year. The tendency to an increase in the number of auto accidents isn't confined to crossing fatalities, for the same commission shows that there were 255 casualties from autos during the first quarter of this year where there were only 115 for the three months of 1922.

Are the people experiencing a wave of carelessness at a time when they need to be greater care exercised? Certainly it would appear that there have been enough horrible crossing accidents to warn others against rushing into similar conditions, and the frequency of auto accidents in general is such that each and every driver should be conscious of the importance of refusing to be a contributor thereto.

There are those whose recklessness is conspicuous and whose driving gives no consideration to the safety of others. Others are powerless to protect themselves against such individuals. Whether they can be reached by efforts for greater safety is a question. Some may respond to such an appeal but there are those hardened to taking chances who will require an appeal of a different character to bring them to a recognition of their responsibilities and the rights of others.

The need of safety movements is not confined to one state or section. It should be a permanent rather than a temporary policy however.

FIRE LOSSES.

Much food for thought is crowded into small space when the National Fire Protective association in annual session at Chicago declares that the anual fire loss includes 15,000 lives and $500,000,000 worth of property. This means a national tax of $1,000 a minute and 80 per cent of the fires are preventable.

Possibly if the members of the association were endeavoring to increase the number of fires and the number of lives lost in them there might be more attention paid to their efforts. Certainly there couldn't be such advocacy without arousing tremendous opposition, and yet there seems to be good and sufficient grounds set forth by the conditions that actually prevail to arouse the people of the country to greater preventive efforts.

If the large loss in life and property doesn't move people to action the statement to the effect that four-fifths of the fires can be prevented indicates a situation that certainly ought not to be ignored. This calls for the removal of fire hazards that are evident and the taking of precautions that are small in effort or expense in comparison with the loss which they might prevent.

There isn't much of anything that calls forth so much criticism as taxation and yet those who are contributing to the tax of a thousand dollars a minute seem not to be aroused because it is exacted in the form that it is instead of through direct taxation.

Bringing to light the statistics concerning fires permits of a grasp of the situation not otherwise obtained. By the direction of proper thought thereto by the many instead of the few remarkably beneficial results could easily be obtained. Due concentration on the fact that fire prevention is preferable to total or partial destruction of property would prove profitable.

CONSTRUCTION AT PEAK PRICES.

Some weeks ago Secretary Hoover urged the postponement of construction work by the government in order that it might not seem to compete with the large volume of private construction underway and thereby force skyhigh the cost of such work. There were the shortage of labor and the plans for building activity which had been taken into consideration in making such appleas, the aim being to distribute the building over a longer period instead of endeavoring to accomplish the impossible at once and at an abnormal cost.

Conditions developing in the building trades since that time have served to demonstrate the justification of the secretary's effort. Even though the government hasn't endeavored to take away those employes engaged in private work the situation has developed to the point where the costs are so exorbitant that millions of dollars worth of work which is desired done, and for which the money is available, has been postponed. Had the government construction work been competing the situation would have been much worse.

In New York alone decision has been reached to delay the expenditure of more than $40,000,000 for needed new buildings until conditions are more favorable. When that will be is decidedly uncertain but it indicates an unwillingness to attempt such work under the present conditions and that the goose that lays the golden eggs will not tolerate being imposed upon.

A FLYER IN HEADGEAR

"Well," said the serious young man as he unfolded his dinner napkin, "I did something today I've been wanting to do ever since we visited last summer down at Aunt Amanda's and she sighed so enviously over sister's pretty hat. You know she told us she had worn the same black bonnets with rosebuds across the front for the last ten years because they never seemed to have anything different in the village shop. So I sent Aunt Amanda a hat."

"What?" shrieked the mother and sister of the serious young man. "You sent a hat?"

"My wayward son!" said his father.

"Say!" objected the serious young man, "what's the matter with all of you?"

"I'm terribly worried over this affair," admitted his mother. "What kind of a hat?"

"There were a lot in the window," the young man explained. "It's a shop around the corner from our building and they have nifty headgear."

"A nifty hat," wailed his sister, "for Aunt Amanda who is 56, and has hips and an old-fashioned shape! Oh Edmund!"

"I was particular about that," the serious young man interrupted triumphantly. "When I went into the shop a very nice girl waited on me and I told her why I was buying it. She asked about Aunt Amanda's style of face and I recalled that every one always commented on my resemblance to her. I told the young woman that I bore a decided family resemblance to my aunt and maybe if she just sort of stuck the hat on me—there was nobody around—"

"You didn't!" wailed his mother.

"I did and she did," the serious young man said sternly. "I told you she was a nice girl and all nice girls have sense! She behaved as though it was perfectly all right, as of course it was, and I put it on. It was a sort of cerise velvety thing—the color of those flowers on your shade hat so admired so much—and it sort of dipped down on one side and up on the other and was low in front and I tried to imagine how it really would look with a bunch of hair stuck underneath it all around, you know—"

"Aunt Amanda wears her hair slicked back and up and finished with the wellknown knob," his mother said. "Fifty-five and cerise!"

"Well, she's tired of those old black things," defended the serious young man warmly. "I don't blame her! Her bonnet was a fright!"

"Well, a cerise hat will be something beyond a tragedy and just this side of a crime!" his sister promised him tartly. "I never heard of such a thing! How could you?"

"The young lady said she thought it would be very nice," further defended the serious young man. "She said nowadays age made no difference."

"I'll bet it had things dripping down off one side," prophesied his sister despairingly.

"Seems to me a ribbon or some flowers or something did sort of come down from it," said the young man eagerly. "She said it was right in style! I was bound that once in her life Aunt Amanda was going to have something that was gay and cheerful and warranted not to last more than one season."

"If she wears a thing like that to the Ladies' Aid it won't last even a day," his mother told him. "Why, they'll put her out! You should have asked your sister or me."

"Nix," the serious young man said hurriedly. "You'd have picked out something suitable, and if there's a word I hate it's 'suitable.' Aunt Amanda yearned for a bright gay hat and I sent her one, and that girl in the shop did it up just as carefully—"

"H'm," said his sister sharply. "I think I'll stroll into that shop myself and look that girl over! You've talked of her as much as the hat and—"

"Never mind," said the kind father, who also had suffered in his time. "I'll bet it's a stunning hat and Amanda will be crazy about it!"

"Oh, she'll be crazy, no doubt of it, when she sees it!" said the young man's unkind sister feelingly. "And it sounds just as though it was the kind of a hat I've been looking all over to find for myself!"

"I told you I knew about hats!" the serious young man agreed. "That girl said so, too!"

"Well, I'm going to look her up the first thing tomorrow!" his sister promised grimly. "This sounds serious!"—Exchange.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Admiral Robert E. Coontz, who is soon to become commander-in-chief of the United States fleet, has been filling the important post of chief of naval operations since 1919. The records of the navy department show that he was born at Hannibal, Mo., in 1864, graduated from Annapolis in 1887, and promoted to ensign the same year. From the date of his graduation, his promotion was steady, becoming commander, 1909; captain, 1912, and rear admiral, 1918. During the Spanish war he served on the U. S. S. Charleston and U. S. S. Boston. As he was commandant at the navy yard at Puget Sound until Aug. 31, 1918, he saw only about two months of active service with the Atlantic fleet during the World war. His general experience, it was stated, has given him a wide knowledge of naval policy and physical equipment, as well as good grounding in seamanship.

Stories That Recall Others

Desperate Situation

Mrs. A's husband had been very ill. For days he had been gradually getting worse, but at least there came a change for the better.

When the doctor called and had a look at his patient he announced:

"He is convalescent."

On hearing this Mrs. A regarded the physician suspiciously; and her suspicion was increased when he prepared to go without further comment.

"Well, doctor," said Mrs. A., "what are you going to do about it?"

"Do?" was the answer. "There ain't nothing to be done."

"Well, you are a doctor, ain't you?" retorted the enraged woman. "Ain't you got no medicine for this 'ere convalescence?"

Got Titles Mixed

Rita, age twelve was asked at school to name the successor of King Charles of England. She named the Duke of York, but unfortunately she pronounced it "duck."

The class was highly amused and observing this, she instantly corrected herself: "Aw, I mean the 'drake of York.'"

This nearly broke up the recitation.

Wives of Famous Men

Catherine de Medici, Wife of Henry II of France.

Catherine de Medici, arch-criminal of the ages, was born in the midst of intrigue, from which she never emerged. Famous as her French husband was, his name is a pallid thing next to her infamy.

A daughter of the Medici, most powerful family in Italy, and a French woman, Catherine was left an orphan when but a few months old, and was reared under the supervision of her maternal grandmother and her uncle, Cosimo de Medici, Pope of Rome. For the most part she lived in nunneries until her marriage with Henri de Valois was arranged between his father, Henry I, and Cosimo. Her husband was a gloomy, silent lad whom she hardly knew. And Catherine herself was only 15 at the time she married the young prince.

Shrewd in the extreme and above all ambitious, Catherine had an overwhelming desire, like that of the rascally Richard III of England, to rule her country. After her husband's death, which occurred when they had been married about 10 years, she plotted and schemed to have sole possession of the kingdom. Her greatest crime was the murder of three of her sons—Henry III, Francis II and Charles IX. At various times these men, all of whom stood between her and her desire, met death strangely, and always the death was attributed to Catherine.

Her enemies never lived long. She tried unsuccessfully to murder her son-in-law, Henry of Navarre, who later was made King of France. His mother, who in some way had offended the queen, came to her death in some mysterious way.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

SANTIAGO.

"Set San Francisco or Los Angeles down in the most beautiful inland portion of the valley of California, give the Sierra Nevadas four thousand feet more height and pile on them generous caps of snow, and you will get a conception of the importance, the lovely surrounding, and the climate of Santiago, capital of Chile."

So says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society in regard to the city in which the Fifth International Conference of American States is being held.

"Santiago, with its more than a half million population," continues the bulletin, "is comparable in size to the two cities mentioned, as well as to Buffalo and our own capital city, Washington. Among the Spanish cities of the world only Madrid and Barcelona in the old world, and Buenos Aires and Mexico City in the new, exceed it.

"But it is not on size that admirers of Santiago base their eulogies. The city, like our own capital, has a subtle charm all its own. Much of this is due to it location. Many travelers agree that it has the most beautiful and inspiring setting of all the great inland cities of the world. It is situated near the upper end of a mountain-rimed valley, 40 miles long by 20 wide. Ten miles to the east the Andes rise to heights greater than 18,000 feet, presenting a towering wall always snow-capped. On the west is a lower coast range; and to the south stretches a level expanse of fertile farm land divided into large estates.

"Santiago is built on the plain, but within it rises a 400 foot hill covering several hundred acres, which has been made into one of the world's most unique parks. Once nearly bare, the hill of Santa Lucia has been transformed into an enchanting modern hanging garden of groves and flower beds, winding roads and trails, cascades, terraces, sylvan theaters and observation kiosks. From its slopes one may obtain numerous charming vistas, and from its top Santiago lies spread out in all its lovely details.

"It is a city predominantly of low, flat-roofed buildings, for the hand of Spain lies heavy upon it in all matters of habit and custom. But for all that the old Spanish life has taken on a brinkness that must be bred of the west. There is a movement and bustle that modifies much of the influence of old Spain, and which at the same time stamps Santiago unmistakably a metropolis.

"The axis of life in Santiago is the beautiful Alameda de las Delicias,—'the tree-lined avenue of the delights'—which cleaves the city in two. Its great breadth of 350 feet is divided by four rows of stately trees. Down the center is the Paseo, a broad promenade, lined by many flower beds and statue-studded little parks, along which innumerable nurse-maids herd their romping charges. On either side of Paseo are the tracks of the electric street railway, and farther outside are broad driveways. The Alameda is lined with many of the finest residences and public buildings of the capital.

"The lover of fresh air comes into his own in Santiago's delightful climate. Great crowds promenade on the Paseo and, in the plazas each evening. Most of the dwellings are of the Spanish type with open courts in the center, in which much of the family's time is spent. The street cars, even, are double-deckers, with the upper seats open. Those who wish to climb the steps and enjoy the air and view pay a smaller fee than the passengers who ride on the lower level.

"Few great cities are so fortunate in regard to their water supplies. Sparklingly pure cold water from the high Andes is available in abundance within a few miles. The city could grow to a community of many millions without being faced with any great difficulty about this necessity for which some municipalities have had to reach out hundreds of miles. Through the city runs the Mapocho river whose floods were once a source of danger. Chilean engineers have tamed the river, however, confining it within a concrete channel, and it is now harmless."

A Little Talk on Thrift

Do It Well.

Not doing things well is no better than not doing them at all.

To perform one's tasks thoroughly is a very good exemplification of thrift because it is only through this thoroughness of performance that progress is made.

There is an old proverb to the effect that "the fellow with one idea generally grows rich, while he who calls him a fool dies poor". No matter what a man's occupation may be, if he excels in his work, you will find him steadily moving upward. He may only be able to do one thing, but if he can do it thoroughly and successfully, circumstances will drive him into more important duties.

A great many young men fail to get on in the world simply because of superficiality in accomplishment, which is but another name for thriftlessness in time and opportunity.

The problems of life are so large and complex and the range of human endeavor is so wide that individual effort to be effective must be limited to definite lines.

The young man of today has a limitless range of opportunity before him and he can fit into the scheme of progress successfully if he realizes that there is always need for those who can do things well.

Our schools and colleges will soon be sending their young men and young women out into the world. They have completed their academic lessons, but they still have before them those lessons which can be learned only in the practical school of life. In entering this new life perhaps the one lesson they should learn first of all is that it is better to know one thing well than to know a score of things superficially, and that it is better to be able to do one thing right than to have twenty slipshod accomplishments.

The slogan "do it now" is not as good advice as "do it well".—American Society for Thrift.

TREMENDOUS GROWTH OF SILK MANUFACTURE

The silk worm has apparently not heard that the war is over. At least, it is a fact that the prices which Americans are still compelled to pay for this product, four years after the close of the war, are nearly two and one-half times as much per pound as the annual average prior to the war. The latest full month figures of the department of commerce, those of August, 1922, show the average import price of the raw silk entering the country in that month at $7.14 per pound, against an annual average of $3.15 per pound in 1913.

Curiously, too, the quantity of silk being brought into the country even at these spectacular prices of over $7 per pound is approximately twice as great as in 1913, when the price was less than half that of today. Silk experts estimate that the quantity of raw silk entering the United States in the full year 1922 exceeds by 25 per cent. that of the former high record year, 1921; if so this would bring the 1922 total to 56,000,000 pounds, against 28,000,000 in 1913, and 45,000,000 in 1919 when the silk factories of the country turned out $688,000,000 worth of silk goods against $254,000,000 in 1914, and $107,000,000 in 1900. The total value of silk goods manufactured in the United States in 1919 was six times as great as that of 1900.

These values of the silk goods turned out by the factories of the country from year to year are, it must be remembered, those at the factory and by no means represent the sums paid by the consuming public. In fact, the head of a great silk manufacturing establishment of the United States is reported as estimating that over $1,500,000,000 worth of silk manufactures were sold in the United States in 1922, and that the total for 1923 will be still larger.

The United States has become by far the largest silk consuming and manufacturing country of the world, despite the fact that all of the raw material which we use in this line is brought half way around the globe, and experts are quoted as saying that we are today importing 80 per cent. of the raw silk of the world and using practically all of it in our own factories, for the quantity re-exported in the natural state is negligible.

This big increase in the out-turn of our factories means that we are building up a considerable market abroad for the manufactures produced from this imported material. The value of silk manufactures exported from the United States in the calendar year 1920 was approximately $27,000,000 against a little over $2,000,000 in the year preceding the war, while of course the 1922 figures are materially below those of 1920, the total value of silk manufactures exported in the calendar year 1923 is approximately six times as much as in the year preceding the war. Silk goods produced in the factories of the United States now go to over sixty countries and colonies, including considerable quantities sent to the countries from which we draw our raw silk, China and Japan.

The capital invested in the silk manufacturing industry of the United States was reported by the census of 1920 at $523,000,000, as against $310,000,000 in 1914, and $81,000,00 in 1900. The sum paid in wages in the silk industry in 1919 was $108,000,000, against $47,000,000 in 1914, and $20,000,000 in 1900.

ADVANCE IN PRICES IS WORLD-WIDE

Advance in prices, of which we are just now hearing so much, is by no means confined to the United States. The Trade Record of The National City Bank of New York, which has made a careful analysis of prices abroad at the end of 1922 compared with the same month one year earlier finds an evidence that price advances in all parts of the world are in nearly as large proportion as in the United States.

Seventy-five principal articles of imports were selected with which to compare prices abroad with those of a year ago, and about 60 per cent. of the number show advances during the year. The articles selected include representative manufacturing materials, foodstuffs and a limited number of manufactures, and advances are especially marked in raw materials and foodstuffs. Raw silk, for example, an extremely important manufacturing material for which we are entirely dependent on foreign countries, shows an average import price of $7.77 per pound in December, 1922, compared with $6.59 in the same month of 1921, and an average annual price of $5.90 per pound in 1919, $4.61 in 1917, and $3.09 in 1915. Spun silk averaged in December, 1922, $2.53 against $2.47; pig tin, for which we are entirely dependent upon the outside world, 39.4c per pound against 27.8c; india rubber 15 1-2c against 14.3c; cattle hides 16.8c per pound against 12c; sheepskins 21.4c against 16.7c; jute and jute butts $129.89 per ton against $74.19; copper 13.9c per pound against 9.9c; leaf tobacco for cigar wrappers $3.58 per pound against $1.85; combing wool 39c against 30.4c. In the foodstuffs, sugar, tea, coffee, wheat, rice and corn show advances, though most of the fruits and nuts, of which we are large importers, show decreases during the year. Among the manufactures cotton cloths show advances in the latest month for which a record is made as compared with the closing month of the preceding year, as do woolen cloths, burlaps, chemical wood pulp unbleached mats and matting, and shingles.

These import prices are distinctly representative of conditions abroad, since under the law the prices named when the articles enter the country are those prevailing in the foreign markets from which the merchandise is sent to the United States, and thus are a distinct and sharply defined picture of the average advances which have occurred in the various parts of the world from which the imports are drawn. About 60 per cent of the articles for which examinations were made show higher prices at the end of 1922 than at the end of 1921.

That our exports show evidence of advance in prices is slightly more apparent than in that of imports, for 65 per cent. of the articles included in the representative list show advances, including all grains, copper, coal, raw cotton, cotton cloths, binder twine, barbed wire, fresh and pickled beef, hams and shoulders, lard, butter and cheese, oranges and most of the other fruits, refined sugar, leaf tobacco, and lumber of various sorts.

"Mrs. King" Noted English Medium

The spiritualist medium known in English society as "Mrs. King"—who predicted the world war—is really the Hon. Mrs. Alfred Lyttleton, Dame of the British Empire, it has just become known. She is the widow of the late Hon. Alfred Lyttleton, brother of the eighth Viscount Cobham. Dame Lyttleton is not only interested in politics and active as the chairman of the Common Interests Committee of the English Speaking Union, but is also a dramatist of note, Mrs. "Pat" Campbell having appeared in two of her plays. She has been a member of the Society for Psychical Research for many years but screened her identity under the name of "Mrs. King" to avoid publicity.

Says Dizzy Spells Are Dangerous Symptoms of High Blood Pressure

"It may be fatal to ignore the warning which Nature gives when she causes frequent dizzy spells," said a well-known physician. "They are often the only signals given to tell us that the blood pressure has been increased to the danger point.

And High Blood Pressure is a condition not to be neglected. It is itself a symptom of auto-intoxication (self-poisoning). The heart, in its endeavor to overcome the bad effects of the wastes that are poisoning the entire system, pumps harder and harder until the dangerous condition of High Blood Pressure is present. A scientific preparation called Bi-a-lin has been recently prescribed with remarkable results.

It helps Nature to free the system of the poisons which have caused the heart to overtax itself in its efforts to overcome their harmful effect.

The benefits reported from Bi-a-lin have been so remarkable that it was decided to put it up in convenient tablets and make it available to everyone without a prescription. If you have dizzy spells, nervous attacks, frequent headaches, offensive breath or constipation, or feel generally run down, get Bi-a-lin at once from any good druggist such as the Lee & Osgood Co.

Heads War Against Boll Weevil

Dr. Miller Reese Hutchison, electrical engineer and inventor, who for many years was chief engineer of the Edison laboratories, has been chosen to lead a new war against the boll weevil, the pest that attacks and ruins the southern cotton crops. Dr. Hutchison will experiment with the violet-ray apparatus which he believes will prove efficacious. In the mean time he will use calcium arsenate, sprayed on the cotton blossoms in time to sterilize the eggs and kill the weevil. The engineer was tendered his present post by the American Cotton Association, a powerful organization of the South, composed of cotton growers, spinners and bankers, at a recent convention.

OBITUARY

David D. Murphy.

The long and peaceful life of David D. Murphy of this city came to a close Thursday morning at 11 o'clock at the home of his niece, Miss Mary Kane of Hillside, Montville. Mr. Murphy was visiting at the home of his niece when stricken with a shock four days ago and despite medical attention failed to rally.

He was born in Norwich, the son of Patrick and Johanna Teehan Murphy, and when a young man was an expert file cutter. Later in life with his brother, Dennis D. Murphy, he was in business on the West Side. His brother died Feb. 5, 1922, aged 70 years. For many years Mr. Murphy had led a retired life at his home on the West Side. He was a member of Court City of Norwich, No. 63, Foresters of America.

He is survived by two brothers both living in the west, one of them, Patrick Murphy, formerly employed here by the firm of A. W. Perrottet & Co. He is now in Kansas City. There is also one sister, Mrs. Francis J. Kane of New Haven, and nephews and nieces of Norwich, New Haven and Montville.

Mr. Murphy had many friends in this city who will learn of his death with sorrow. He was a quiet man who loved his home and was tenderly cared for during his last days.

Mrs. Walter Lewis.

Friends in Norwich learned Thursday of the death of Mrs. Walter Lewis of New London at Colorado Springs, Col., on Wednesday night.

Mrs. Lewis was on her way home with her husband from a trip to the Pacific coast. She had contracted a cold while in San Francisco which developed into bronchitis and later into pneumonia, and upon arrival at Colorado Springs she was taken to a hospital, where she died after an illness of only four days with pneumonia.

Mrs. Lewis was Miss Ellie E. Preston and was born in New London 60 years ago, the daughter of Job and Margaret Preston. Surviving besides her husband and daughter, Mrs. Clark Edgar, are two sisters, Mrs. Mary A. Bolles and Mrs. Margaret Newbury of Brooklyn, N. Y.

Mrs. Lewis was one of the prominent residents of New London and had many friends in this city, who learned of her death with profound sorrow. During the war she was very active in Red Cross work. Her husband is also well known in Norwich and conducts a crockery store in New London.

The body of Mrs. Lewis is to be brought back to New London for burial.

Miss Alice A. Taylor

After an illness of about two weeks with pneumonia, the death of Miss Alice A. Taylor occurred in this city Thursday afternoon.

Miss Taylor was born in England, the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Taylor, but came to this country when a small child and had spent all her life since then in this city. She was active in the affairs of the Greeneville Congregational church, of which she was a devoted member. She was also a member of the Eastern Star, the King's Daughters and the Ladies Aid society.

She is survived by a niece, Miss Florence E. Taylor of Washington, D. C., and two nephews, Harold M. Taylor of Pawtucket, R. I., and Ellis Taylor of this city. Miss Taylor was the last of her immediate family.

Solos were rendered by Miss Margaret O'Connel. Dancing was enjoyed and a pleasant evening was spent by all.

TEMPLARS ATTEND ASCENSION DAY SERVICE AT METHODIST CHURCH

Columbian Commandery, No. 4, Knights Templar, held its Ascension day service Thursday evening with Trinity Methodist Episcopal church. The sir knights, under command of Eminent Commander Ernest J. Jones, formed at 7.30 o'clock in front of the temple on Broadway and, headed by Tubbs' military band marched to the church. Over 85 sir knights were in line, all in full regalia.

The service opened with the prelude by Organist Miss Olive D. Linton, after which Rev. J. Harlow Graham, pastor of the church, called the congregation to worship and pronounced the invocation. The service continued with the singing of Ye That Stand in the House of the Lord, by the choir of the church, Mrs. William Crowe, Jr., soprano; Mrs. Henry Church, contralto, Lyle Fillmore, tenor; and William H. Rush, bass.

The gospel readings were from the Epistle for Ascension Day, Acts 1, and Gospel for Ascension Day, Mark 16, and were read by the pastor, after which Mrs. William Crowe, Jr., rendered a soprano solo, Praise Thou the Lord, O, My Soul, Allitsen. The collection of the evening was for the benefit of the W. W. Backus hospital.

The address of the evening was Christian Brotherhood For Today, the text taken from the story of the Good Samaritan, and was delivered in a forceful and convincing manner by Rev. Mr. Graham, who himself is a Mason, a member of Silver Leaf lodge, F. & A. M., of Elgin, Iowa.

The preacher took for his text, Luke 10, 37: Go and do thou likewise, and spoke in part as follows:

"You come as brothers in a Christian association or branch of Freemasons on a day whose significance and name in your calendar and in ours is derived from an event in the life of the Founder of the Christian religion. It is properly believed that you adhere to the traditions of the great military orders of the Crusades of the middle ages. Their symbol was the cross and their motto "In hoc signo vinces" (In this sign conquer).

"I trust you feel as welcome to this Christian temple as we feel it fitting that you should come here on a day that is meaningful to both church and fraternity. All higher interests are kindred and all men of higher interests are knit in a kinship doubly binding. Better still, the house of life is one house, a unity. Your particular ideal, Brotherhood, is not a detached unity, but a room in that structure. It has its proper orientation and it is in harmony with the whole. Indeed in it are doors leading to and from the other rooms in the house of life. And the church would be a guide and interpreter to men in the whole house of life.

"Let us remind ourselves that brotherhood is a noble ideal in any association, worthy of the sincerest obedience of men. But your interpretation of brotherhood is avowedly Christian and your regalia as your symbolism suggests militancy—your brotherhood therefore is active and aggressive in spirit.

"There may be other weighty reasons why you should choose Ascension Day for united worship. We add this one, true brotherhood on earth looks in triumph toward the stars. True brotherhood binds earth to heaven and men to God. True brotherhood has faith in the perfectability of man in his relations with his brother and in a progress of man toward his Maker who is also his Father.

"Two facts—your historically derived interpretation of Christian brotherhood on the one hand and the heaven-owned elder brother's matchless teaching of brotherhood by precept and example, on the other, draw the mind quite naturally to the story of the Good Samaritan as a text and to the topic "Christian Brotherhood For Today."

"Christian brotherhood today sees and speaks the truth. We live in a time that has witnessed the breakdown of brotherhood in many human relations. Family life was never more fraternal nor community life never more true to principles of brotherhood—in most of our relationships. Nevertheless ours is a broken, bleeding and bankrupt world. Surely it is not a time for prejudice and propaganda. We need the earnest searching for the truth that frees and saves from disaster. He would be shortsighted who holds that brotherhood has failed but he is blind who cannot see that brothers have failed. Before what crowds would the Master of Truth stand in woe-pronouncing majesty today and utter his withering invective? Where are the vencers of our civilization which pass for reality? Will the lesson of the whirlwind pass unheeded?

"A second mark of the needed brotherhood of today is suggested by the Crusaders. Theirs was a brotherhood which served. The self-servers have decreased in reputation with the passing centuries and long after they have been forgotten the servants of men will be remembered. Jesus girded himself with a towel and performed the most menial of tasks not in a servile but in kingly mood. The story of the text which comes to our minds as a beautiful and inviting story impressed the pagan Roman world as weakness and pious Hebrew of the first century as blasphemy.

"The third suggested element in brotherhood is drawn from the practice and from the precepts of our Elder Brother. It is the element which links brotherhood to eternity. Brotherhood divorced from worship denies its origin. 'God has made of one blood all the nations of the earth to dwell together.' Any other estimation of brotherhood narrows its limits, cripples its effectiveness and shatters its foundation. It is a significant comment on this fact that all fraternal bodies of continued existence demand faith in God as a requisite for membership. Brotherhood is best promoted by those who trace it back to God."

The speaker closed the message with Henry Van Dyke's story, The Lost Word, impressing the lesson that that brotherhood only survives which is linked with religion.

PLAN ON FOOT FOR PUBLIC WHOLESALE MARKET

Fourteen were present at the May meeting of the Norwich Market Growers' association at which Prof. Wilkinson gave an illustrated talk on Do you know the insects and diseases of vegetables and how they should be controlled?

It is probable that a definite locality will soon be designated as a public wholesale market in Norwich.

The association is about to begin its advertising in The Bulletin. This service is of great value to housewives as it enables them to get the true conditions of the supply of native vegetables and in the canning season to buy efficiently the various vegetables when in their prime and the supply is heavy. It is realized more and more that vegetables are necessary in the diet for greater health and happiness as they supply the much needed vitamines.

DR. PRATTE'S GARAGE AND AND AUTOMOBILE BURNED

The one-car frame garage of Dr. L. I. Pratte in the rear of his home on Hunter's avenue, Taftville, was badly damaged by fire about midnight Thursday and his automobile was practically destroyed.

The Taftville fire department fought the blaze with a stream of water and held it from spreading to other buildings.

The volunteer department made a good response with their pumper, arriving at the fire eight minutes after the alarm had been rung in. Chief Ralph C. Dion directed the operations of the sixteen men who were on duty and their work saved the garage from complete destruction besides protecting the adjoining buildings from flying sparks.

TO PASS HIGHWAY BILLS OVER GOVERNOR

Hartford, May 10.—The talk in the corridors this morning was concerning the action of the governor in vetoing the highway bill from Norwich to Hadlyme and in Ellington to Stafford. Representative Brainard, chairman of the committee on roads, rivers and bridges, said that the committee has had 158 bills before them and that they had turned down 110 of them. The committee was unanimous in their report and they considered them both meritorious. He had personally talked with nine members of the committee since the receipt of the governor's communication and they were all of the opinion that there was no reason for a change of mind. There was a rumor about that Commissioner Bennett had called up House Leader Buckley on the phone this morning and had denied that he had advised the governor to refuse to sign the bills. Later Mr. Buckley confirmed this statement. Commissioner Bennett refused to confirm or deny the statement.

The possibility is said to be that both highway bills which were vetoed by the governor will be passed over his veto. This action is favored by all of the committee on roads, rivers and bridges.

The reported statement by Governor Templeton in a morning paper today that he had signed house bill No. 673 providing for a state highway through the town of Union, and favored by House Leader Buckley of that place, in spite of written objections by State Highway Commissioner Charles J. Bennett, occasioned much surprise among those actively interested in the project, as it was generally understood that the highway commissioner had not opposed the project but on the contrary had pointed out that it would be advantageous to the town of Union, where little or no state road construction had been done.

The governor was reported as follows: "He (the governor) disclosed that he had approved Major Buckley's bill on April 17, although State Highway Commissioner Bennett had asked him to veto it and wrote out his objections to the project."

When asked today whether he would confirm or deny this statement, Governor Templeton refused to make a direct statement but after an interval of forty-five minutes issued the following statement:

"House bills 763 and 757 have evidently been confused. Highway Commissioner Bennett did not write out his objections to house bill 763 (the so-called Buckley Highway bill) when it came up for approval in April, but did so orally.

What Mr. Bennett did object to in writing was house bill 757, as well as house bill 97, which have been vetoed. Mr. Macdonald also stated that he thought these two bills were not desirable and that a veto would be appropriate.

Commissioner Bennett was asked whether he had opposed the so-called Buckley bill either in writing or orally as claimed by the governor, and he replied that he had no comment to make.

House bjH No. 757, which the governor vetoed Wednesday, is also a Buckley bill, having been introduced in the house by Mr. Buckley, and it is at present sponsored by him.

FREE EMPLOYMENT BUREAU PLACED MANY IN APRIL

The five free employment bureaus of the State Labor Department in April were able to place a large percentage of applicants for employment, according to the report made Thursday.

The applications for employment were: Hartford 934, New Haven 1,408, Bridgeport 1,160, Waterbury 875, and Norwich 427, a total of 4,804 of which figure 1,648 were women.

The applications for help were: Hartford 999, New Haven 1,418, Bridgeport 1,097, Waterbury 1,030, and Norwich 427, a total of 4,971 of which 1,725 were women.

The situations secured were: Hartford 891, New Haven 1,245, Bridgeport 1,011, Waterbury 649, and Norwich 427, a total of 4,223, of which 1,516 were women.

The Norwich figures show that 396 men and 31 women applied for employment, the same nubmer of persons applied for help and the same number of men and women secured situations.

CORN EXPORTS MAKE NEW HIGH RECORD

Exports of corn from the United States in the calendar year 1922 made a new high record when considered by the number of dollars which they brought to the American farmer. The Trade Record of The National City Bank of New York has issued figures showing that for the first time in the history of our exports, the value of the corn exported crossed the hundred million dollar line. For the year ending with December, 1922, the value was $115,097,000 against a former high record of $92,767,000 in the calendar year 1921. If we add to this the $7,000,000 worth of corn meal and other foodstuffs prepared from corn, the $5,000,000 worth of corn starch, the $6,000,000 worth of corn syrup sometimes designated as "glucose", the half million dollars worth of corn sugar and the half million dollars worth of corn oil and cake, the 1922 exports of the products of our corn fields would total nearly $150,000,000. The value of American corn exported during the last decade aggregates considerably more than a half billion dollars, an average of about $50,000,000 a year, while the 1922 total, as already indicated, exceeds $100,000,000, and if we add the corn "by-products" the total will approximate $150,000,000.

This increase of $25,000,000 in the value of our corn exports in the calendar year 1922, when compared with the former high record year, occurs chiefly in movements to Europe. To Germany alone the exports of last year were nearly $23,000,000 in value against a little more than $16,000,000 in the preceding year; to the United Kingdom $31,000,000, against $12,000,000 in the preceding years; to Netherlands nearly $16,000,000 against less than $14,000,000 in 1921; to France nearly $3,000,000 against only a half million in 1921; while Belgium, Italy, Spain, Norway, European Russia and the Ukraine also showed increases in the value of their takings of this big American product, corn. In fact, nearly three-fourths of the corn exports of this new high record year went to Europe, the remainder chiefly to Canada, Mexico and Cuba.

This increase in the European taste for corn is especially interesting to us of the United States because of the fact that we produce more than three-fourths of the corn of the world, and our possibilities in that line are almost unlimited. In fact, our corn crop in the latest year for which world statistics are available, the calendar year 1921, was in round terms 30 per cent. of the world's production. Argentina is next in rank to the United States as a corn producer, but her total output is in fact less than one-tenth that of the United States, her 1921 crop having totaled 231,000,000 bushels against 3,080,000,000 in the United States. Rumania produces about 100,000,000 bushels a year, and Italy about 90,000,000, and these are the chief corn producing countries of the world, the United States with three-fourths of the world's total, then Argentina, Rumania and Italy. The Orient produces practically no corn; Australia but a small quantity, while in Africa and South America the production is confined to the southern end therefore the temperate zone section of the continents in question.

While the prices at which our corn was exported in 1922 were of course slightly less than in 1921, the price reduction was far less than that of other grains, especially wheat, the average export price of corn in 1922 being 70c per bushel against 72c in 1921, while the export price of wheat in 1922 was $1.25 against $1.55 in 1921; the fall in the export price of corn being but 2c per bushel, while wheat showed a fall of 30c.

TALKING IN TRILLIONS.

The "trillion" has evidently come to stay as an every day term in our discussions of world affairs. Prior to the war we seldom had occasion to use the term "billion", but now we calmly accept the trillion (a thousand times as much as a billion), especially in the measurement of paper money, debts and deficits of certain countries which have enormously increased their currency during and since the war, and at the recent rates of growth their record may soon run into the "quadrillion" column. Figures published by The National City Bank of New York show that at least four of the European countries now measure their currency in trillions, and that a continuation of the rate of growth during the past year would soon bring some of them into the quadrillion class.

These enormous totals running far into the trillions and threatening in some instances to extend to the quadrillion column are especially notable in official records of the outstanding paper money of Russia, Germany, Austria, and Poland, all of which were counted in trillions at the end of 1922 and have in all cases made their chief gains within the last year. Russia's currency which stood at 11 trillion rubles at the beginning of 1922 was, according to high authorities, 27 trillion at the end of that year, being thus 40 times as much as one year ago. The German paper currency which totaled 145 billion marks in April, 1922, now stands at over 5 1-2 trillion marks, or 40 times as much as one year ago. Austria's currency is 18 times as much as one year ago and exceeds 4 trillion crowns, while Poland has quadrupled her currency in the past year and now shows a total of over 1 trillion Polish marks outstanding.

Outside these four countries of Central Europe, says the Trade Record, there is an evident disposition to at least check the inflation which developed during and since the war, and in certain instances an actual decrease has begun, but with the enormous additions made by the printing presses of the four countries above named the total face value of world paper currency at the beginning of 1923 was approximately ten times as much as one year earlier, though, as above indicated, a large proportion of the countries other than the four named are either decreasing their outstanding currency or are checking the growth which has characterized recent years.

The four countries showing big increases in their currency in 1922 have been already noted. Others which show a comparatively slight increase are Belgium, France, Switzerland, Greece, Finland, Jugo-Slavia, Hungary, and Brazil, while those showing greater or less decreases are Great Britain, Netherlands, the Scandinavian states, Spain, Czecho-Slovakia, and the United States.

"There is nothing too good I can say for Tanlac and the Tanlac Vegetable Pills, for the combination has ended all my suffering and built me up twenty pounds besides. I'm now in the pink of condition and feel fine in every way."

Half-Way from Main Street to City Hall

"Doesn't time change things?" he said. "Not long ago I made a brief stop at my birthplace, and, naturally I wished to visit some boyhood haunts. One particular spot I was anxious to see, for there I performed the first feats of daring, that eventually influenced my present business. It was a great, high shed from which I used to thrilling leaps, utterly startling the other boys and causing them to quake with fear. I rambled around until I found it. Yes, it was still there. I walked up and rested my elbows on the roof and laughed and cried at the same time."

And that reminded a hearer of the experience of another person who went through his birthplace on a train. He told a party of friends, "Just a few miles more and we'll go through my birthplace and I'll show you the old swimming hole. We go right over it."

All were eager to see that old swimming hole, but when it was reached it was nothing but a ditch. It could have been hurdled by a goat. The speaker blushed, fell back to his easy chair and sighed, "Well, someone's been pumping the water out of that creek."

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

There was a continental threat of snow here Thursday, while the mercury hovered around the 40 mark, but no snow came. No stretch of the imagination was required, however, to convince anyone that it was amazingly cold for the month of May. Possibly no records were broken, but if they were not they were closely matched. Men working at outdoor tasks complained of their hands getting cold, and one workman was seen beating his arms about his body as is the common practice with many during the winter period.

One consolation is that exceedingly few fruit trees hereabouts are in bloom, and it was believed likely late Thursday afternoon that the fruit crop has not been materially damaged. Throughout the day the sweep of the strong wind was out of the southwest, with a temporary veering to direct west for brief intervals.

Finding of the body of Beem Kershaw of Putnam floating in Alexander's lake just before noon Thursday clears up the mystery that has surrounded the case since his disappearance on Sunday, April 22. Coroner Arthur G. Bill, who viewed the body prior to its removal from this town to Putnam, said that he was not surprised that the body was found in the lake, as he has felt from the first that Mr. Kershaw was a victim of drowning, pointing out for one thing that the only hat that Mr. Kershaw had at the lakeside cottage he was occupying was found in the cottage after Mr. Kershaw had disappeared.

It would appear from the circumstances that the body came to the surface only a short distance from where the canoe from which Mr. Kershaw was drowned was found.

Dr. George M. Burroughs, medical examiner, went to an undertaker's rooms at Putnam Thursday afternoon to view the body.

Deputy Sheriff Charles E. Ayer of this town is in charge of a body of about a dozen men who are doing guard duty at the plant of the Manhasset Manufacturing company in Putnam, where a few more than 100 operatives—weavers and twisters—are on strike for an increase in pay. It is maintained by the company officials that the Manhasset company, which is in the same line of textile manufacturing as the Connecticut Mills and the Goodyear Mills of this town, is paying as high a rate as other mills in the territory, the first pay on the new advanced rate coming this week. The Manhasset is one of the mills in which union organizers have been seeking membership, and with considerable success, during the past few months.

Apparently daylight saving is a dead issue for this territory for this season. The first flurry relative to it has passed over without making a dent in the standard time arrangement. Last year the borough followed the new time schedule, and so did the majority of the manufacturing concerns hereabout, but some of the big mills remained on standard time and the conflict thereby created was such that its repetition was not relished for this year. This year standard time continues to rule throughout Killingly and in immediate adjoining territory and gives every promise of doing so uninterruptedly, regardless of how the trains are run or what other communities elect to do. It is not likely, if present sentiment is a safe guide, that daylight saving will figure much in future time reckoning hereabouts.

This week's meeting of the county commissioners at the county jail in Brooklyn, included consideration of what is to be done about enlarging and remodeling the county home for children this year. The county has made an appropriation for the work, but the bids for doing it are so high that the commissioners are seriously considering delaying the entire project for another year, or if anything is done this year to limit the work to what is really urgently necessary. No bid on hand is within the appropriation available. It is known that some county legislators have advocated delaying the work another year in the hope that building costs which have mounted rapidly in the last few months may recede. The county commissioners can arrange with the officials of the town of Putnam for such school accommodations as may be needed outside the home for county school children, and that course may be adopted, although this has not been definitely decided.

That traffic in the business section of Danielson may be properly controlled and regulated, the borough officials will take action to promulgate such regulations as are deemed required and will ask a borough meeting to give the necessary authority.

It is not that the borough officials have the regulating habit, but that something must be done to limit parking and otherwise specify means of keeping busy arteries of travel clear and safer than they are under present arrangements.

Academy and Center streets, as well as Main street, are two thoroughfares that are frequently cluttered up with parked cars, and the congestion is so great at times that it is impossible to get through them. Cars parked in that section of Academy street between Main and Mechanic was entirely blocked by parked cars one afternoon this week—closed to traffic until one great truck was moved. In the meantime drivers that wanted to get through had to use other streets. A similar condition frequently exists in Center street where parking is supposed to be on only one side of the street. Many times each day there is barely space to squeeze a car through the lane of parked machines.

Main street is all too narrow to admit of parking on each side and caring at the same time for the heavy local and through traffic from two trunk line highways.

All of these things have brought the borough officials to consideration of the traffic regulations which when in force will work no hardship on anyone inclined to be reasonable and having consideration for the public at large.

It did snow after all in Windham county Thursday though the fact was not generally known here during the day. Telephone men from this town who were in the town of Thompson during the forenoon told of seeing snow flurries there only 15 miles to the north.

Paul Meissner, formerly an agent of the Whitestone mill at Elmville, died the past week end at his home in Clinton, Mass., where he has been located for a number of years. Mrs. Meissner became ill while returning from a business trip to Providence.

Mothers' day will be observed at the Congregational, Baptist and Methodist churches at the services next Sunday. At the Baptist church Mrs. Ina Frost will sing at all of the services on Sunday.

There will be delegations from Danielson churches to the county Sunday school convention to be held at Moosup next Sunday.

Mrs. Mary E. Ballou, formerly of this town, died last Sunday at her home in Providence. She had been a resident of Providence for 40 years, but lived in Danielson and in Pomfret before making her home in that city.

This is another week that is not to the liking of the trout fishermen, few of them having the courage to follow the brooks during such cold and otherwise disagreeable weather.

Dr. Hugh B. Campbell of Norwich will come here next Tuesday morning to conduct a clinic at the health station in the town hall building.

Henry B. Gagnon of Fall River was a visitor with friends in Danielson on Thursday.

Reports from the recent state assembly held at Norwalk will be given this evening at the meeting of Dorcas Rebekah lodge.

At this week's annual convocation in Hartford of the Royal Arch Masons of Connecticut Attorney E. L. Darbie of this place was made grand scribe and he is now in line to become grand high priest in three years.

Elton E. Knight, principal of the Danielson graded school; Mrs. Lulu W. Bailey, Dayville; Miss Mary Reece and Mrs. Frances U. Spalding, East Killingly; Miss Gladys E. Salmon, Tucker district; Miss Marion B. Gammons, Brooklyn Center, have filed their resignations as teachers. Miss Arlene Babson of the West Side is filling the vacancy created by Mrs. Bailey's resignation at Dayville. The other resignations become effective at the end of the present school year.

Thomas Halpin, famous sprinter and a graduate of Killingly High school, visited friends here Thursday. Mr. Halpin is now engaged in the automobile business at Hyde Park. He has grown from the willowy boy he was when he was burning up the cinder paths to a super-heavyweight, weighing in excess of 200 pounds.

PUTNAM

All was peaceful during Thursday at the plant of the Mannasset Manufacturing company in this city, where 107 operatives of the twisting and weaving department regard themselves on strike. The remainder of the operatives at the big plant were engaged with their work as usual. Deputy sheriffs and special deputy sheriffs of the number of about a dozen and divided into day and night squads were on duty at the plant and will remain as guards until the present labor difficulty is adjusted. There was nothing for these officers to do during Thursday but remain on the alert, as the operatives who are out were perfectly orderly. Their only demonstration of the day was when they marched past the plant following their forenoon meeting—over 100 strong—and then turned and marched out of the vicinity. This little parade was entirely orderly and was not interfered with by the officers on duty outside the mill.

There was every evidence Thursday that the mill company is not a bit inclined to grant any further demands of the men and that it will sit tight and await developments. There is the possibility, of course, that a prolonged absence of employes of the twisting department will eventually force the closing of the big plant unless new employes for this department are obtained.

There was nothing outward at least during Thursday to indicate that the operatives who remain at work and they are reported to be more than two-thirds of the recent normal working force, are sufficiently interested in the situation that has developed to leave their work.

It is contended by representatives of the company that the wage scale at the mill, as will be shown by this week's pay envelopes, carrying the most recent advance, is as high as in any cotton mill in this territory and even higher than some, and that in view of this fact the company regards the demand for a further increase as unwarranted.

The men will hold daily meetings, it was stated Thursday and keep in close touch with each other and the situation in which they are so vitally interested. The city as a whole hopes that the trouble will be of short duration. In case it endures it is not unlikely, it was stated Thursday, that eviction notices will be served in the not distant future on certain families occupying mill company tenements whose members are prominently identified with the present labor trouble.

Only one of the company's motor trucks was operating during Thursday, this one driven by Frank D Thayer, in charge of outside work for the company. The driver of these trucks are said to have been receiving $47 ped week.

Near-winter weather returned Thursday to plague this territory and set up the spectre of damaged fruit crops by frosts, but there was optimism in many quarters that these crops will escape because of the abnormal lateness of the season.

Heaters and stoves were put back into service Thursday that homes, offices and stores and other places might be kept comfortably warm. Winter overcoats reappeared and a New York salesman who came blithely into town wearing a new straw sailor looked like a chorus man wearing his stage rig on the street. The temperature was down to 39 degrees at some places in Putnam Thursday morning, and this is believed to be close to a record for the 10th day of May.

During the coming week members of eastern Connecticut locals of the New England Milk Producers' association will hold conferences for the discussion of certain shipping problems now of paramount interest to them. These problems include the item of station charges and with the shipping regulation applying to cans that do not arrive in Boston filled. W. A. Davis, assistant manager of the N. E. M. P. A., will come out from Boston to address the meetings to be held.

The first of these meetings will be at Brooklyn next Monday evening. Tuesday afternoon there will be another meeting in Hampton, Wednesday evening a meeting at Pomfret, Thursday evening at East Woodstock, Friday evening at Jewett City and Saturday afternoon at Plainfield.

County Agent F. LL. Davis of this city is lining up the meetings, which will draw attendance representing practically all the producers who ship milk out of this part of the state to the Boston market.

With the tour for Franco-Canadians being arranged from this city and the appeal that attendance at the supreme convention of the Knights of Columbus will hold for many, there promises to be an exceptionally large number of Putnam visitors in Canada this summer.

Dr. Hugh B. Campbell of Norwich will come here next Tuesday afternoon to conduct a regular monthly clinic at the Day Kimball hospital, in the interests of those who are tubercular or fear they have a tendency to such trouble.

Resident in 53 tenements of the Putnam Manufacturing company are about to discard oil lights for electricity, the mill company having awarded a contract for the wiring and equipping of the tenements for electric lights.

Edward W. Mullan of this city is among eastern Connecticut men listed among the Connecticut state delegation to the K. of C. convention to be held in Montreal this summer. This convention will bring delegations from all parts of the United States and Canada.

The county commissioners may decide not to make projected additions and alterations at the county home for children this year on account of the high cost of material and labor. No bid for the work has been received that is not in excess of the appropriation available. The matter has been under discussion this week between members of the county commission and county members of the state legislature.

There was little change during Thursday in the condition of Captain Remi Delace, whose case continues to be regarded as very critical at the City hospital in Worcester.

May 19 is set as the date for the opening of Wildwood park this year, a fact that will be of much interest to the hundreds who regularly visit the pretty resort during the summer season.

FOUND HUSBAND'S BODY ON SHORE OF LAKE

(Special to The Bulletin

Putnam, May 10.—The waters of Alexander's lake gave up the body of Beem Kershaw Thursday just before noon. Mrs. Kershaw was first to sight it floating a short distance from shore at a point where the Attorney Harry E. Bacon cottage sits in. Mrs. Kersaw called some men who were nearby and they removed it from the water. Coroner Arthur G. Bill of Danielson viewed the body, which later was taken in charge by a Putnam undertaker where it was later viewed by Dr. George M. Burroughs, medical examiner for the town of Killingly.

Coroner Bill expressed the opinion that the body had come to the surface only a short time before Mrs. Kershaw saw it. She was a member of a party of women who had been invited to a little dinner that Miss Clara Deer was giving at her cottage at the lake and took a walk along the shore of the lake and was scanning it closely while dinner was being prepared.

Mr. Kershaw lost his life, it is now estimated, on Sunday, April 22, while out in a canoe. It is thought that the frail craft capsized in the half gale that blew across the lake during the afternoon, when he has since been reported as having been seen paddling along the eastern edge of the lake. He is said to have been inexpert as a canoeist and this may have figured in his being thrown out in the rough water being kicked up by the blow and the fact that he was a powerful swimmer seems to have availed little in the desperate situation in which he found himself after being plunged into ice cold water. The body was found floating close by the point where the canoe was located on the night of the day he disappeared. The fact that both paddles were in the canoe when it was found lead a great many to believe that Mr. Kershaw could not have been drowned without at least one paddle going over board with him, but that theory is now shown to be wholly incorrect.

The body, clad only in underwear, trousers, shirt and light shoes, was very much swollen when it came to the surface.

Mr. Kershaw was 38 years of age and leaves his wife and two children in his immediate family. A sister is resident in Danielson. Mr. Kershaw had been a mill superintendent and at one time was head of the textile department of the State Trade school in this city. At the time of his death, Mr. Kershaw was with the Nightingale-Morse mills of this city in a responsible position. He and Mrs. Kershaw had taken a cottage at the lake only about a week before his death. He was alone at the cottage on the day he went out on the fatal canoeing trip, his wife being engaged with her duties at a restaurant on Front street, this city.

HOUSE REJECTS BILL TO INCLUDE WOMEN FOR DUTY ON JURIES

(Special to The Bulletin)

Hartford, May 10.—The house was delayed in opening this morning on account of the judiciary committee holding an executive session and it was 11.40 before the speaker's gavel fell, calling to order.

Corrections were made in the certified laws concerning fish and game and in the bill concerning the proposed constitutional amendment so that the question could be voted upon by voting machines.

Against Peasley Nomination

The favorable report of the judiciary committee on the governor's nomination of Frederick M. Peasley was taken up and the vote by ballot resulted in 95 yeas and 113 nays. The bill regarding adulterated insecticides was clarified by amendments offered in the senate.

Woman Member Presides

Mrs. Lewis of Stratford was called to the chair by Speaker Nickerson and conducted in a very efficient and satisfactory way.

A resolution offered by Leader Buckley raised a committee of one senator and two representatives to notify the governor of the rejection of his nomination of Frederick M. Peasley to be judge of the superior court. Mr. Darbie of Killingly and Schatz of Hartford were appointed on the part of the house.

A bill was passed that will enable the one room schools to obtain the library grant which has been lost by consolidation of districts. It also increases the grant from $5 to $10.

Women on Jury Duty

Action on the woman jury bill was taken on an adverse report by the judiciary committee. Darbie of Killingly said that while the bill had some merit, the committee did not feel that this was the time for this legislation. Meech of West Hartford said that at one time he was opposed to this measure, but he had changed his mind and was now in favor. Hyde of Brooklyn was opposed. The jury room was no place for women. He would not like to have his wife or daughter sit and have to listen to testimony that is heard in many cases.

Nash of Norwalk had investigated the sentiment in this town and found that the women did not desire this duty.

He was of the opinion that a woman would prove as capable and as efficient as any man. Schatz of Hartford called attention to the hearing that was held by the committee. It was the largest hearing of the session and was strongly endorsed by scores of women from all parts of the state.

Paxton of Windham could see no reason why the bill should not be passed. The women had shown their ability to perform public service as was evidenced in the able way in which a woman had presided at the house this morning. Mr. Hyde further said he would take off his hat to the ladies for the way they had acted in the house but he was still of the opinion that the jury room was no place for women. Judge Hubbard, Greenwich said that the women should be granted this privilege. Twenty six states have granted the privilege.

Mrs. Nevins of New Fairfield was opposed to the passage of the bill as she was not convinced that a majority of the women desired such a service. Butler of Roxbury said that he had been requested by a great many women to support the bill. Woodford of Farmington was of the opinion that the women were as well qualified for this duty and in many cases, better so than some men.

Brinsmade of Branford was in favor of the bill if the women wanted it.

Buckley of Union said that the matter should be decided by the question whether the women of the state desired this duty. The question of qualifications did not enter at this time. He was of the opinion that a great majority of the women in the state did not wish this duty placed upon them.

On a vote taken under a call for the previous question, the motion of Mr. Darbie was carried and the bill was rejected.

For Seaside Sanatorium Laid

The appropriation committee reported a bill providing an appropriation of $25,000 for the purchase of land for the tuberculosis sanatorium at East Lyme or such portion of that farm as may be needed. The bill was passed and transmitted to the senate under suspension of the rules.

The nomination of Arthur W. Chambers and Elliot Watrous to be judges of the city court of New Haven was approved and confirmed under suspension of the rules. Mr. Bell of Salisbury at this point arose and said that thirty eight years ago today there occurred an event that did not appear on the calendar and presented House Leader Buckley a large bunch of of carnations as a flowery expression of the house on his thirty eighth birthday. Mr. Buckley responded in his usual felicitous way.

At 12.40 upon motion of Darbie of Killingly the house adjourned till Tuesday next at 10.15.

SENATE

The committee on claims reported unfavorably in the senate today on the claim of Edward P. Shea for damage done his automobile in an accident due to the condition of the highway in Plymouth. The report was accepted and the claim rejected.

On the motion of Senator Platt the senate reconsidered its action on the incorporation of the Sound Beach Electric company. The senate then adopted the house amendment relating to capital stock and as amended the bill was passed.

Calendar.

Passed: That boys between 14 and 16 years, and attending school, shall not be employed in bowling alleys after 6 o'clock in the evening and no boys shall be employed in the alleys after 10 o'clock in the evening; to require towns to pay for the expense of the schooling of children who attend school in other towns, or, as Senator Bakewell stated in explaining the bill, to require towns to accept the responsibility of the education of their children; creating the city of Milford, as amended on the motion of Senator Brooks in relation to the employment of the military to maintain order; amending the charter of the city of Stamford in relation to the board of health; concerning the election of officers in the borough of Wallingford; for the construction of the Jonathan Trumbull highway in this state; appropriating $25,000 to the general hospital society of Connecticut; amending the charter of the borough of Wallingford by providing a pension fund for policemen after twenty-five years' service and providing that a policeman must be retired after he has reached the age of 65 years; correcting clerical errors in the city charter of Meriden and providing for the election of comptroller by the people; appropriating $400,000 for the completion of disconnected sections of state highways; relating to the layout of highways and construction of buildings in Greenwich; amending the charter of the Meriden Permanent Building and Loan association by providing for the appointment of auditors, a board of management and giving the bank commissioner jurisdiction over the fund to be accumulated by the association.

The bill for repairs to armories was passed.

The sums to be spent on the different armories are as follows: Hartford, $20,000; New Britain, $10,000; Norwalk, $7,000; New London $10,000; Norwich, $2,000; New Haven, $20,000.

Salary Bill Passed.

Senator Rogers explained the bill which originated in the house, concerning increase in salaries. He said the bill increased the salaries of clerks of courts, state's attorneys, the salaries of the commissioner of motor vehicles and his deputy and of the commissioner of public health, etc.

Senator Brooks offered an amendment to strike out the concluding sentence in section seven relating to the motor vehicle department. The provision restricted the increase in the salary of the commissioner from $6,000 to $8,000 and of the deputy commissioner from $4,000 to $5,000 to the present incumbents. Senator Brooks said a much better man could be secured for deputy if the salary were $5,000 instead of $4,000.

Senator Ellis supported the amendment of Senator Brooks. He said the provision which it was proposed to eliminate was rather personal in its application and that was not desirable.

Senator Rogers said the committee on appropriations was very much in favor of the provision but he had changed his mind as to its desirability and he favored its elimination.

The amendment of Senator Brooks was adopted.

Senator Dignam asked for an explanation of the increase in the salaries of clerks of courts. He thought that since the enactment of the Volstead law the business of the courts had been less.

Senator Rogers replied that the committee on appropriations was guided by the favorable report of the committee on the judiciary.

On the motion of Senator Rogers an amendment was adopted to include the assistant superintendent of the capitol and fixing his salary at $2,400 a year.

The bill as amended was passed.

Calendar Bills.

Passed — Appropriating $1,000,000 for the construction of state aid highways, and for repair and construction of highways $1,000,000; relating to residence of plaintiff in a divorce suit; relating to the taking of land by condemnation proceedings by companies authorized to do so, appropriating $2,397.75 for the payment of deferred claims.

SPRAYING PREVENTS SCAB ON McINTOSH APPLE TREES

The McIntosh crop is becoming more valuable each year. McIntosh is a difficult fruit to grow on account of its susceptibility to apple scab, but several series of experiments and the experience of our most careful orchardists show that this disease which ruins the fruit and causes the leaves to drop off prematurely, can be prevented by thoroughly early spraying, while the trees are in the stage where the blossom buds are beginning to show pink. This is the stage of the trees at this time and for the next day or two. Farmers and home gardeners should see that their McIntosh trees receive a spraying during this stage with liquid lime sulphur at the rate of one gallon to 50 of water, or dry lime sulphur, four pounds to 50 gallons of water. It is well to add about one-half pint of nicotine sulphate or "black leaf 40" to each 50 gallons of spraying to take care of insects.

SPRAY WITH BORDEAUX.

The spraying of young seedlings once or twice before they have been transplanted with Bordeaux mixture in which lead arsenate has been placed will tend to keep the leaves and stems vigorous and healthy. A spraying of beans, tomatoes, celery and other vegetable plants will help you produce larger quantities of higher quality vegetables.

Small quantities of Bordeaux mixture for garden use may be easily made as follows: Use ten level tablespoonfuls of hydrated lime (can be obtained of any lumber company) and three tablespoonfuls of bluestone to four quarts of water. It is best to pulverize the bluestone before measuring. Dissolve the bluestone in about a quart of hot water and then pour it into a large jar—not metal—of some kind, adding sufficient water to make three quarts. Mix the hydrated lime with a quart of water and pour it into the bluestone solution, stirring vigorously. This is Bordeaux mixture and is ready to use.

To control chewing insects add six level tablespoonfuls of powdered lead arsenate to the four quarts of Bordeaux. Where lice or sucking insects are to be controlled add a teaspoonful of nicotine sulphate or Black leaf 40 to each gallon of spray mixture. Lead arsenate and nicotine sulphate may both be added to Bordeaux, then you have a mixture, if thoroughly [illegible] Prepared Bordeaux may be obtained of any seed dealer or drug store, thus eliminating trouble of making it.—F. C. Gaylord, Purdue University.

HINTS ON SETTING OUT TREES AND PLANTS

Just now thousands of trees and plants are being set out each day. The earlier hardy trees and plants can be put in in the spring, the longer the growing season, and consequently a better growth the first year. Before planting fruit trees one should take particular note of two points; first, as to whether the trees are in good condition or whether they are excessively dry from long shipment or exposure to wind and sun. If this is the case, it is best to soak the trees or plants in water for 24 hours before planting; the second point is to examine fruit trees, bush fruit and roses for root-gall. This appears on the roots or crown of the trees.

Any broken roots of the trees should be pruned off before planting; holes should be dug deep and wide enough to accommodate roots without crowding. The top soil should be saved and this placed next the roots after the tree is set in the hole. The soil must be trampled firmly about the roots to exclude air, and so that every root comes in intimate contact with the soil. About two inches of soil should be placed on loosely when the hole is filled and the ground level. The tree should be planted so firmly that it cannot easily be pulled up without considerable effort. No manure or fertilizer should be put in the hole in which the tree is planted, but two or three shovels of stable manure or a small amount of poultry manure or three or four ounces of nitrate of soda may be scattered in a wide circle on the top of the ground after the tree is set out.

The top should be pruned back about one-third of the last year's growth. It is a good practice to leave one central leader somewhat longer on the other branches. From three to five side branches are enough on the other trees at the start and these branches should be spaced out several inches apart on the stem and well arranged about it.

In setting out strawberry plants and other perennial plants, special care is necessary to form the soil well about each plant and to set the plants so that the crown or central bud is just level with the soil surface. All but two or three of the newer leaves should be removed. If the weather is dry, a little water should be put in each hole.

POPULARITY OF ALFALFA ON THE INCREASE

It is probable that alfalfa is not yet in its heyday. Enthusiasts, whose name is legion, believe that the possibilities of this crop are far from being realized. A great part of the nearly 10,000,000 acres now devoted to this forage is annually harvested for hay, and the conditions under which it is put up, the methods used, and the time of cutting have a great deal to do with the value of the cured product as a feed for livestock.

The number of cuttings that may be taken from an alfalfa field in a season varies according to the locality and the variety from eight or occasionally more, in the extreme southwest, to two, or sometimes only one, in the northern and semi-arid regions. Thirty to forty days of good growing weather are necessary to produce a hay crop.

There are conflicting opinions on the proper time to cut alfalfa for hay. Chemical analyses, says the United States Department of Agriculture, show that when cut in early bloom it has slightly more protein than when cut later, and that certain animals, such as hogs and cattle prefer it when cut in the earlier stages. These reasons and the belief that frequent cutting produced a larger total yield led to the old practice of cutting just before the flowers appeared. That practice has been discredited.

As the result of experience accumulated it was found that these early and frequent cuttings, although they produced greater yields the first season, usually reduced the life of the stand and the average yield over a period of years. Later the basal shoots were used as a guide, cutting being recommended when they had reached a length of 1 or 2 inches or when the plants were one-tenth in bloom. The two guides seemed to be needed as the basal shoots make very little growth in dry weather and blossoms are slow to appear in wet periods.

Recent experiments indicate that cutting at a later date than has generally been advised is more desirable, everything considered. At the Kansas Agricultural Experiment station a comparison was made of cutting at four stages—in bud, one-tenth in bloom, full bloom, and when the seed pods were forming. The earliest cutting was highest in feeding value, but the stand was practically killed out in one season. Cutting when one-tenth in bloom gave less hay than cutting when in full bloom and seemed to encourage grass and weeds. Cutting when the seed pods were forming gave less hay than earlier cuttings, but the stand was not injured. No damage resulted from cutting the basal shoots, although it has long been taught that clipping them off will reduce the succeeding crop. The Department of Agriculture has conducted experiments which verify these results.

AGRICULTURAL OUTLOOK GOOD.

The general agricultural outlook now is probably the best it has been in three years says the United States Department of Agriculture in its regular monthly review issued today. The domestic market for farm products is reported to have improved measurably as a result of increased prosperity in urban communities, and that the prospective foreign demand for American farm products is not as good this year as it was a year ago.

"When labor is fully employed and wages high," the department says, "farm products find a readier sale and better prices. This is what has helped to sustain the price of hogs this spring, likewise lambs, cattle, dairy products, eggs, and certain vegetables."

The outlook for next fall and winter is considered to depend upon continuation of the present industrial boom in cities. "Labor is being drawn from the farms to urban centers but there is as yet little evidence of serious farm labor handicap, the department says. The pinch is expected to come at harvest time should the movement continue. Spring planting generally is reported from two to three weeks behind, but the reported trend is toward increased production of cotton, sheep and possibly corn, and decreased production of wheat, hogs and potatoes.

Prices of leading crops show a contrast with [illegible] level of livestock prices is reported as stationary or tending to move slightly downward. Prices of commodities that farmers buy also show a continued upward trend so that the relative purchasing power of a unit of farm products remains unchanged, the department points out.

METHODS OF CONTROLLING STRIPED CUCUMBER BEETLE

The striped cucumber beetle attacks and injures seedling cucumbers, melons and related crops, but especially the cucumber, as soon as they appear. They even burrow down to meet them before they come above the ground. They devour the tender stems and leaflets before the plant is fairly started, gnaw the older stems and ripe fruits and act as carriers of cucurbit diseases. They make their appearance suddenly and in great numbers, and as they work rapidly an entire crop may be destroyed in a few days. The slender white worm-like larvae injure the plants later in the season by tunneling the roots and underground parts of the stems.

The control measures which have given the greatest promise of success preventives, repellants, farm practice, and the use of insecticides; perticularly nicotine dust and arsenate of lead.

In suggesting control measures, the department commends that young and choice plants in small gardens be protected with cloths covering [illegible] seem if seed is planted, the attack will be distributed, and some of the plants will escape the beetles. Nicotine dust should be applied directly, and arsenate of lead used as a spray, either alone or in combination with Bordeaux mixture. Care should be taken to cover every portion of infested plants, both surfaces of leaves, vines and stems. Clean cultura with trap plants is an aid. Active cooperation of neighboring growers of cucurbits in these methods is desirable. Community effort in observing these methods will undoubtedly lessen the danger of losses from this pest in the course of time.

M'SHEFFREY GIRL BLAMES FORT WRIGHT SOLDIER WHO DESERTED

New London, May 10.—Grace McSheffrey, the young woman on trial in the superior court, charged with manslaughter in having given birth to a child at the Fournier house, a rooming place on Bank street and then to have abandoned the child in a vacant lot at Reed and Blinman street last January, during bitter cold weather. The child was found dead there by a carpenter at work nearby who observed that the bundle left on a pile of stone had been there two days. The state had put in the testimony that is the foundation on which it hopes to build its case and on which conviction is asked from the court and the twelve men who are to hear the testimony.

The story of the hunt for the parties who abandoned the child has been gone over by the testimony of the officers who were active in the case and whose investigation led to the arrest of the girl and one John Guinan, a sailor at the submarine base who had lived with the girl as her husband at the Fournier house. Now Miss McSheffrey is denying important parts of that story and is representing that she gave the officers and the coroner false information to mislead them and to clear herself from the predicament in which she is situated.

The court room was well filled with spectators, among them many young school girls. The police officers were the first to testify today and their testimony, as might be expected, withstood any attacks made upon it by the lawyer for the defendant.

Miss McSheffrey was on the witness stand about three hours this afternoon and when the court adjourned till tomorrow she was still telling of her experience.

She admitted that when she was questioned by Police Sergeant Smith who traced her to arrest, and to Coroner Desmond, who heard her confession and who wrote down and then read to her before she, under oath, said it was true, was false, and that her purpose in telling them what she did tell them was to mislead them and to clear herself as she supposed she best could.

She still adheres to the story that Guinan is not the father of the child and that he is not responsible for putting her in the delicate condition in which she was. She declared that the child was not alive when she gave birth to it and that, to her knowledge, it did not show any signs of life by crying or breathing. That is to be the defense of the unfortunate girl.

She said she answered an advertisement in a Fall River newspaper which sought a girl to work in the laundry at Fort Wright. She obtained the position and after a brief time there found employment in the family of an officer stationed at the fort. Then she made the acquaintance of the soldier who was the cause of her ruin. Up to that time, Miss McSheffrey said, she had been a proper and virtuous girl. When she realized that she was likely to become a mother because of her relations with the soldier at the fort she told him of her condition and his conduct then was such that she told him she was coming to this city and was determined to make him acknowledge the paternity of the child and to support her and the baby. That frightened the man and he deserted from the service of Uncle Sam. She could not find him after that.

Then Grace says she went to New York where she met Guinan and was formally introduced to him. He was coming to New London and to the submarine base, as she knew, and he invited her to come here. This she did. She went to live with him at the Fournier house and was as a wife to him there. She declares that at the time the child was born she sent Guinan for a doctor, but he went only to the street and came back saying he could find only "a bunch of policemen." The baby was born and it was Guinan who suggested getting rid of it before daylight, she said. Witness says he knew all about the child birth and that it was at his suggestion that she took the child out and left it.

Guinan was in the court and at the elbow of his attorney, Thomas E. Troland, during the recital by the girl. That he is irritated by what she says is apparent to anyone who watches him. But it is not certain that he will take the witness stand to contradict her. He has a similar charge to face himself and he is likely to save his story till he can tell it for the first time to the jury in his own defense. He has made a confession to the coroner and it is understood that he claims he told the truth then and that he will repeat it when he goes on the witness stand to tell it all over again.

The case will be on trial the rest of the week and will go over into the coming week.

One of the largest cottages at Ocean Beach, a two-story wooden structure of fourteen rooms, was sold today by A. L. Jones of Baltimore to M. Norman and G. Leynovitch of Hartford. The cottage fronts on the board walk.

A walkout occurred at the shirt manufacturing plant of Berkowitz Brothers on Garfield avenue this afternoon because of a difference in the matter of wages between about fifty employes and the employers. A conference will take place tomorrow when it is believed that the matter will be adjusted satisfactory to the employes.

A quantity of railroad ties became ablaze in the Fort Neck yard of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad today and although the railroad's switch engines are equipped with fire pumps, a still alarm was sent to fire headquarters. The Ocford Hose company responded and subdued the blaze by deluging the ties with chemicals. It is believed that sparks from one of the yard switchers ignited the ties.

About sixty members of the Knights of Columbus were banqueted this evening at the home of the organization on Huntington street. The members to be feasted were those who participated in the pitch tournament which was concluded a few weeks ago. The banquet was served in the banquet hall and during the partaking of the cuisine outlay, prepared by Cornelius Leary, steward of the Thames club, the gathering listened to impromptu remarks from some of the attendants. Following the banquet two hours were passed in a social manner.

A man, who gave his name as Jack Stearns of Howard street, New London, was arrested on Worcester road, a short distance from South Framingham, Mass., this morning as a suspect who held up and robbed the paymaster of the Westboro state hospital of $3,000. Stearns does not reside in New London, nor is he known to the New London police. If the suspect is a resident of New London, he gave a fictitious name.

Mr. and Mrs. Sol Ockoneff of No. 20 Tilley street were bestowed with congratulations today, the occasion being their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary.

Continued search for John Devens of Fishers Island and Peter Ukas of Seymour, the two young men whom it is believed were drowned in the sound Saturday night by the overturning of a canoe in which they were attempting to paddle from Big Hay club to West Harbor, has not resulted in finding any trace of the probably doomed young men, nor the recovery of the canoe. There is no assurance that the canoe which was reported Tuesday as floating off Watch Hill, was that used by Devens and Ukas.

The junior high school will be erected on the site at the corner of Williams and Mercer streets probably this summer, or at least the work started if the structure can be erected within the appropriation made several years ago for that purpose. This was decided this evening at an adjourned meeting of the city council, called for the purpose of considering the matter and which was attended by members of the board of education.

The original appropriation was for $500,000 and of this amount between $16,000 and $18,000 has already been expended, most of this sum being paid architects. This amount was obtained from a bond issue of $250,000 and there remains bonds of a like amount available, but which have never been issued.

The high school matter was discussed at considerable length, both the members of the council as well as members of the board of education expressing their views. The members of the board were desirous of a new school being started and at once because of the congestion that now exists and has existed in some of the schools for a long time. With the debate of the matter concluded the council voted that the matter be referred to a committee composed of City Manager Barlow, Councillor Lucius E. Whiton, chairman of the committee on education, P. LeRoy Harwood, president of the board of education and Dudley St.C. Donnelly, the archetect for the purpose of modifying the present plans, together with the elimination of some of the decorative effects proposed in order to bring the estimated cost of the structure within the appropriation and if it can be done the council will vote to begin work on the structure.

Two other matters were taken up. One was the matter of paying the amount of the appropriation for playgrounds, $2,500, in the hands of an authorized party for expenditure and the method by which the money should be spent. Heretofore the money has been expended for this purpose by an individual not a member of the council and there is some objection to this method being continued. It was decided to refer the matter to the city manager the chairman of the committee on education and the president of the board of education.

The other matter taken up was that of the expenses of Superintendent of Schools Warren E. Hanson. An appropriation was contained in the budget calling for the payment of $750 for the expenses of this official, but this amount was not approved by the council when the budget was adopted, the amount being reduced. The members of the board of education pointed out that the appropriation that was made is insufficient to take care of the mandatory needs of the superintendent and urged that more money be allowed him if he was to efficiently perform the duties expected of him. The matter was ended for the present by being referred to the city manager, the chairman of the committee on education and the president of the board of education.

Miss Theresa Sheehan of Fair Harbor place, Miss Hannah Keating of Huntington street, Mrs. William Wadleigh of Granite street and William Chapman of Fort Wright, were patients discharged today at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital.

Mrs. Louise Crandall Meeker, widow of George W. Meeker, died early this morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. William A. Mercer of No. 24 Channing street. Mrs. Meeker was of advanced years and had been in feeble health a long time.

Mrs. Ellie Preston Lewis, wife of Walter Lewis, of No. 75 Granite street, died at a hospital at Grand Canyon, Col., late yesterday following a few days' illness of pneumonia. Mrs. Lewis was about 50 years of age and besides her husband, she is survived by a sister, Mrs. Albert Holmes and a daughter, Mrs. Clark D. Edgar. The body will be brought to New London and will be accompanied here by Mr. Lewis, who was with her when she died. Arrangements for the funeral will not be completed until the arrival in New London of the body.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis departed several weeks ago on a recreative trip. They had visited in the west and south and had reached Grand Canyon where Mrs. Lewis contracted a cold. She was confined to her hotel a day or two when pneumonia developed and she was then transferred to the hospital, where her decline was rapid.

Two youths were reported to the police today as missing from home. One of the boys was later found, but the whereabouts of the other has not been determined.

About 6 o'clock David Estey of No. 12 Methodist street, reported that his son, Richard, aged 13 years, had been missing since 7 o'clock Wednesday night. An hour after reporting the youth being missing Estey in passing through Golden street, observed his son and took charge of him.

This afternoon Arthur Powell of No. 499 Williams street, appeared at the police station and requested aid in locating his son, Albert, aged 15 years, who disappeared from home last night. A description of the missing boy was supplied the police.

Early this morning Patrolman William Graham in making his rounds on Bank street discovered an automobile, owned by H. L. Kirshner of Pleasure Beach parked in front of the residence of William Booth and as the auto occupied a portion of the sidewalk the officer was of the opinion that the car had been abandoned. The machine was driven to the police garage, where it was claimed about two hours later by Kirshner, who stated that he left his car where it was found while he made a call upon friends.

As a result of Building Inspector Benjamin L. Linicus ordering Samuel A. Goldsmith, owner of the Goldsmith building, corner of State and Main streets, to cause the metal ornamentations over the entrance to the corner store to be made secure, workmen were put at work today making repairs there. Several days ago one of the artificial marble slabs over the entrance fell to the sidewalk and others were in a loosened condition and likely to fall upon pedestrians at any time.

The cottage at Ocean beach, owned by Councilor Lucius E. Whiton, was discovered this afternoon to have been entered within a night or two, but so far as is known no plunder was taken from the place. The break was discovered by Patrolman John Hogan.

A pedestrian who refused to reveal his identity, fell partially through a defective hatchway on John street, near Main street, this afternoon. The victim climbed from his position and stated that he was uninjured, but refused to make known his name. The accident was reported at the police station by Patrolman Augustus Ray and the owner of the property, Mrs. Benjamin N. Pennell of Home street, was notified to cause the hatchway to be made safe. A few weeks ago Patrolman Howard Sloan was injured by falling through a defective hatchway on Main street.

Mazie Williams, who is no stranger to the police, had a wild night of it Wednesday and at 2:30 this morning she was whooping things up in the vicinity of her home. She wouldn't go in, but wanted to have satisfaction from one Carl Downey. The latter is a half-breed while Mazie is of the positively black race. Mazie didn't have the satisfaction of hitting Carl else he might have been in court this morning to have answered to a charge of breach of the peace. As it was he had given a bond of $50 for his appearance and when he did not come forward the bond was called.

Mazie has offended often and in various ways. She has paid fines and has been punished in other ways for her lapses from the straight and narrow path, but experience does not give her wisdom. Today she was fined $10. Mazie had the cash and she paid.

Robert Miller and Daniel Shepard came down here from Montville last night with the notion that hooch or "white mule" did not have much of a kick in it. They changed their minds this forenoon, for they learned that they were wildly drunk when Officer Salesinsky found them at 10:30 on Main street creating a disturbance.

Judge Prince asked them how many drinks they had taken and they each said "four or five." Then asked if they didn't know that a couple of drinks of that stuff would put them into happy land they said they were surprised at the effect it did have. It was their first appearance in court here so Judge Prince told them to start a new record and to cut out the booze. They promised they would do so. William Jacobs, a cigar salesman from New York, was found operating an auto without having a license and was fined $10.

DEALING WITH THE HIGH PRICES

(Written Specially for The Bulletin)

If "little Johnnie Jones and his sister Sue" would shut up their everlasting bawling and boo-hooing when things go wrong and prices go up, and set to work—making things go right and prices go down—why then something worth while would happen.

It would be a miracle. And we're told the days of miracles are past.

Nevertheless, it must be somewhat tiresome for any outside observers and listeners, assuming there are such beings to listen to the grouchings and see the contortions of the mob of scowling, squirming, snarling incompetents who seem to make up the larger portion of the human race, these degenerate days.

As a bunch we daily and hourly bear a crushing burden of labor and worry, simply because some one, some time, dropped it on our shoulders and we haven't the gumption to shake it off. As a bunch we stumble along over a crooked, a narrow, an ill-paved road, simply because somebody, sometime, pointed our noses along it and started us off with a kick and a blessing. As a bunch we throw our hands into the air when someone says "Stick 'em up," and let whoever has the nerve go through our pockets.

We seem to have lost both ability and desire to pick our own loads or roads. We expect the legislature or the town-meeting or the sewing society to select them for us. We are fast losing the capacity of self-defense. We expect the police to protect us even from straddle-bugs and strep-tococcus. We can't even get up an hour earlier in the morning to go to work, without a city ordinance or an act of congress to authorize it. We can't fish in our brooks or shoot rabbits in our own woods when the butcher fails us and we're out of meat, unless we first find out whether or no it's the "open" season. We can't carry a gun to protect ourselves from the always armed criminal, even when there isn't a lawfully armed peace officer within forty miles to do any shooting for us.

Our idea of self-government seems to be to neglect all our public rights and duties, to strip ourselves of all personal responsibilities, to load all our detachable burdens upon the police or the courts or the street commissioner or the legislature, and then howl like overspanked babies when something goes wrong.

Especially and universally do we direct this howl against the other fellow never by any chance against ourselves, who are fundamentally and primarily the chief sinners.

"The fault, dear Brutus, is not in our stars
But in ourselves, that we are underlings."

Ninety-nine out of every hundred of the troubles we humans whine over are due to human weakness or human wrong-doing. This means that, being humanly caused, they are perfectly amenable to human prevention or cure—whenever humanity gets ready to prevent or cure them. This world is very much like Ceylon's happy island, "where every prospect pleases and only man is vile." If there is any one thing more certain than another it is that what man has done, man can do—or undo. Don't ignore that last.

But he can't do good things by sitting in a hammock and wishing they were done. He's got to get up and do 'em. Nor can he undo wrong things by retreating to his own private and particular Cave of Gloom and whimpering about them. He's got to seize a grub-hook or a meat-axe and go after them with blood in his eye and a fairly developed biceps in his good right arm.

Apparently ninety-nine per cent. of the people I know or read about are simply broken over the high and rising prices of necessities. That's what they call 'em, "necessities" or sometimes "necessaries of life." They weep and they wail and they even go so far as to gnash their teeth, when excessively overcharged. And there they stop. That's the end of it for most of them. They dully wonder why God or government doesn't intervene to protect them. But they don't think and won't think and can't usually be made to think of any attempt to protect themselves.

They're read, somewhere, that "eternal vigilance is the price of liberty." They parrot off that phrase fluently enough. But they very rarely known what the sentence really means. And they still more rarely add the equally true and individually rather more important statement that eternal hard work and self-restraint are the wages that must be paid for success.

The New York city papers towards the end of last week reported that the sugar market was well broken up, confused, uncertain, out of bounds and out of control. Perhaps by the time this gets into print, the flurry may have subsided. Or it may have resulted in a big knock-down in the price of sugar. I am no prophet and won't undertake to assume anything as having happened in the five or six days which must elapse between my writing and your reading this. Anyway it makes small difference to our purpose just what happens. What has already happened is enough.

For months, now, the profiteers and speculators in sugar have been engaged in steadily boosting its price to sugar consumers. They have forced it up to about double what it used to be and fully double what it ought to be.

The consumers have kicked in their usual way, and whimpered with their usual imbecility—and the speculators have kept right on boosting prices and dropping the over plus into their own already bulging pockets.

Did you ever know a hungry hog, when he once got his snout into a trough of sloppy swill, to stop his gobbling because you leaned over him and wept salt tears at his greediness. That isn't the nature of hogs—or sugar speculators, either. The only argument the hog is amenable to is that offered by the effective application of a stout club. Same with the sugar speculator.

They don't either one of them care a whoop for tears or expostulations. But when a big lot of New York women got mad enough to serve notice on them that their sugar would be boycotted if they didn't stop squeezing consumers, then the market, as has been said, broke in two and fairly blew up. Whether this was just a temporarily flurry or the beginning of the end time will tell. It all depends upon whether the women stick to their broomsticks and use them freely enough.

In other words, when prices go skyhooting out of sight it is nearly always within the power of the price-payers not only to bring them down with the dullest kind of thud, but to tumble the price boosters alongside with emptied pockets and cracked heads.

It all depends whether the consumers are willing to do the work and take the trouble and make the sacrifice necessary. The game is wholly and entirely in their hands, whenever they see fit to use the royal flush they hold.

There are two misconceptions mainly at fault for all these speculative high price boostings and profiteerings.

The first is the almost universal assumption that we need what we want. Which is, in effect absolute poppycock. We usually want the moon with a ring around it. But we don't need it. We want everything we like. But there are many things we like which we don't really need and some we should be vastly better off without.

Take, for illustration, this matter of sugar. We all like sugar. From babes to grand-dads. From morons to sages. We want it in our coffee and on our fruit and as syrup on our cakes and in our bread and our pies and our tea and our chocolate and about "steen other ways. It is also, if we may believe the dietitians, a wholesome and nutritious as well as toothsome food. Wherefore we all want it.

But we do NOT need it. We could live without it. We might not have as much fun, but we shouldn't starve. We should pull through.

What, then, would a sensible and intelligent and responsible economist—if there were such a freak extant—do in the matter of sugar buying? Isn't it perfectly clear that, so long as the price of this pleasant and agreeable stuff but not absolutely needed, at hand hats. It was an all-day meeting. At the noon hour Mrs. E. P. Tucker made tea. Mrs. Cruickshank of East Greenwich farm bureau was present to instruct the ladies. At the close all the ladies had new hats. In the near future Mrs. Cruickshank is coming to instruct the same class in making a more expensive hat. The frames and material have been selected. Six have joined the farm bureau.

Mrs. Frank Briggs of Saunderstown was a caller here last week.

The W. C. T. U. met at the church Wednesday afternoon of last week. Mrs. Roberts, state president, was present and gave an address on Mothers' Their Influence in the Home and in the Nation. There were several present from Clark's Mills union.

Several ladies met at the church on Thursday of last week to make gingerbread but not absolutely needed, at exorbitant prices.

This holds, not only in the case of sugar, but of at least nine-tenths of our other domestic supplies.

We can have liberty just so long as we use vigilance in preserving it. We can have low prices for nine-tenths of our purchases just so long as we're ready to go without them rather than pay extravagantly.

It's up to us who buy, practically every time and pretty nearly all the time.

But we've got to pay the price of success before we can succeed. We've got to be willing to undergo some inconvenience, perhaps suffer some real privation.

The question for every consumer, when high prices begin to gall him, is whether he'd rather go without something he likes but doesn't absolutely need and laugh at the speculators, or whether he'd rather take it out in snivelling and let them laugh at him.

BIG ULCER ALL HEALED

"Now I Can Walk," Says Mrs. Southcott

"Here is another letter that makes me happy," says Peterson. "One that I would rather have than a thousand dollars.

"Money isn't everything in this world. There is many a big-hearted, rich man who would give all he has on earth to be able to produce a remedy with such mighty healing powers as Peterson's Ointment.

"Read this letter by Mrs. Albert Southcott. It seems like a miracle, but it is true, every word of it.

"I know because I get similar letters almost every day from people who have used my ointment for old sores, eczema and piles.

"Is it any wonder I am happy?" Peterson Ointment Co.

Dear Sirs:

"I was an untold sufferer from an old running sore and ulcer. I had tried most everything without any relief from pain. A friend told me of your wonderful ointment and the first box took away the pain that had not left me before in years, and after using just nine dollars' worth of the salve I am cured. The ulcer was 9 inches by 6 1-2 inches. is all healed and I can walk. Never, never will I be without Peterson's again.

"You may use this to recommend your ointment if you wish. I cannot say enough to praise it." Yours truly, Mrs. Albert Southcott, Lyndonville, N. Y. Price 85c.

By DAVID CORY

The Song of the Grasshopper

The Old Brown Horse pranced down the street,
As if he had wings upon his feet.
His tail and his head were held up high,
And he kicked out his heels as he passed by.

"What's your hurry?"

"Don't stop me," answered the old Brown Horse, "I'm going to buy a new pair of shoes and a pair of gloves. My master has just given me ten cents."

"Don't stop me!" answered the Old Brown Horse.

"Well, I hope you get fitted," shouted Uncle Lucky, as the Old Brown Horse disappeared in a cloud of dust, "but I guess you've only got enough money for a shoe lacing."

But the Old Brown Horse didn't hear him. If he did, he didn't care for he kept right on and pretty soon you could only see the tip of his tail.

Then, the two little rabbits began to feel hungry, so they stopped beside a clover field and hopped out of the Luckymobile and while they were eating, a long-legged grasshopper began to sing:

"Fiddle dee dee, and fiddle dee dum,
I fiddle all day while the honey bees hum.
And the pretty white butterflies flit to and fro,
While I fiddle away with my long-legged bow."

"You're a merry old grasshopper," said Uncle Lucky, "Don't you ever work?"

"No, siree," said the long-legged insect, "I fiddle and hop but never work."

However, before he could start singing again, who should come along but Professor Crow with his wisdom book under his wing.

"All through the summer
The grasshopper played,
No work did he do,
So no money he made,
And when the snow came
And the cold breezes blew,
The strings to his fiddle
Were broken in two.
He'd built for himself
No place to abide
So the poor little grasshopper
Very soon died."

"Nonsense!" answered the grasshopper, "you don't know what you're talking about. It's always warm in this clover field!"

"No use advising him," said Professor Crow, "all grasshoppers are alike. They do nothing but fiddle," and away flew that wise old blackbird, for he saw that there was no use in saying anything more. And in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

SIGNS OF SPRING

There's a bud on the bush by the lilac gate,
And a bird on the bough in the lane;
And, upon my soul, I can hardly wait
For the bloom in the valley again!
There's a knock at the door of the beautiful hill,
And a shadowy, far off note
Of a song on the stream from the lips of a dream,
And the robin is clearing his throat.

The eaves are a-drip and the sod grows warm,
And the trees are beginning to sigh;
The spirit of bloom's in the wake of the storm,
And there's infinite sweet in the sky;
Tomorrow, perhaps, when I wake I shall see
A catkin in velvet and brown,
And little Miss Daffodil, golden in glee,
A-stroll through the heart of the town!

O, whisper it, wind, to my heart once more,
There are snowdrops open you say,
And the streams are cleaning up house with a roar,
Each moment expecting Miss May!
"I know it, I know it," Sir Tanager cries,
And the meadows are waiting for me,
And the earth is in infinite love with the skies,
And the skies are in love with the sea!

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

Day's total sales, 1,121,900 shares. Twenty industrials averaged, 97.61: net loss .51. High 1923 106.33; low 95.41.

Twenty railroads averaged 82.15, net loss .14. High 1923 90.63; low, 80.57.

MARKET WAS ACTIVE.

Profit taking in American Locomotive on the announcement of an increase in the dividend from $7 to $10 annually and an increase in the common stock from 250,000 shares of $100 par to 500,000 shares of no par resulted in short interests increasing their offerings in other parts of the list, giving the market a weak appearance around noon. American Locomotive, which had crossed 129 to within a small fraction of its year's high, dropped to 125 1-4 and then rallied 1 point for a net loss of 2 on the day. Baldwin dropped from 131 1-4 to 127 7-8 and rallied to 129 1-2 in the last hour of trading.

Some selling came into the steel shares on the announcement of a reduction of 114,833 tons in the unfilled orders of the corporation, rumors of new financing, later denied, by the Bethlehem Steel Corporation and the suspension of several large building projects. U. S. Steel common broke below par for the second time this year but rallied later to 101, where it was off only fractionally on the day. In some steel circles the suspension of building in non-essential lines is regarded with favor because it is expected that such delayed business will fill the gaps that would otherwise occur with a slackened production in other lines.

Dismissal of the government's suit against the New York Coffee & Sugar Exchange was reflected in higher commodity and securities prices. Spot raws advanced 1-8 of a cent a pound and futures about 15 points. Cuba Cane Preferred and Cuban-American Common and Preferred each closed about a point higher but Punta Alegre, Manati and American forfeited their early gains on profit taking.

Woolworth was the individual feature, jumping 16 1-2 points to 235, a new high record. California Petroleum touched 21 and then reacted to 20 1-4, where it was up 4 1-4, on buying predicted on a reported increase in the annual dividend from $7 to $8. American Can moved up more than 3 points in speculative expectation of an extra dividend disbursement in the near future. Pittsburgh & West Virginia, which was heavily bought by soft coal mining interests, touched 50 1-2, a new top and then slipped back to 49 3-4 up 4 7-8 on the day. Union Bag & Paper, National Cloak and Suit and Atlantic Refining also were conspicuously strong.

Railroad shares generally failed to make any response to the publication of the total March earnings of Class 1 roads showing a return of 5.84 per cent. on valuation.

Call money opened and held at 4 1-2 per cent. all day. Time money continued quiet with some loans for three and four months maturities made at 5 1-4 per cent. Commercial Paper was in fair demand with prime names about evenly divided between 5 and 5 1-4 per cent.

Foreign exchanges exhibited a somewhat firmer tone. Demand sterling held steady around $4.60 1-2 and French francs hovered around 6.60 cents. German marks eased slightly to .0026 1-2 cents. Little business was done in the exchanges of Latin-American countries because of the observance of the religious holiday.

BOND MARKET.

New York, May 10.—Investment bonds moved to higher levels in today's trading and speculative liens also improved. Dealings were only moderate, the unsettled fluctuations in stocks causing buyers to limit operations until the immediate course of the stock market was more sharply defined.

Dismissal of the government injunction suit to restrict trading in sugar futures, and higher prices for the raw product were instrumental in carrying the sugar issues strongly upward.

Higher sterling and continental exchange rates infused strength to the foreign issues, especially the French and Swiss obligations.

Quite a number of seasoned railroad mortgages moved up in a spirited fashion, the diminished demand and easier tendency to money rates causing reinvestment of funds that had been employed in the stock market.

U. S. government bonds were without essential change, holding either steady or within a shade of yesterday's final figures.

Total sales (par value) were $14,732,000.

The St. Paul railroad has applied for authority to sell $13,500,000 five and one-half per cent equipment trusts.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, May 10.—Notwithstanding a show of strength at the outset, wheat averaged lower in price today largely as a result of weakness in the stock market. Wheat closed unsettled at 1-8 to 5-8c net decline, with July $1.17 3-8 to 1.17 1-2 and September 1.16. Corn lost 1-2c to 3-4c, oats 3-8c, and provisions 12c to 22c.

At first, the wheat market was bullishly affected by the refusal to restrain trading in future deliveries of sugar and by an upturn in Liverpool wheat quotations. Orders here for the purchase of wheat failed, however, to develop tht volume which might have been expected. On the contrary, selling pressure increased and the early gains were soon much more than wiped out with but little evidence given that the market possessed power to rally buyers appearing to be specially deterred through misgivings over setbacks in security values at New York and because of the bearish action of prices for cotton.

Dispatch of a British war vessel to Russian waters had no apparent influence on the wheat market. More notice in fact was taken of gossip that the soviet government has a large supply of wheat and other grain that was accumulated through tax payments in cereals instead of in money. It was asserted also that the new crop promised to be good in some parts of Russia, and there were predictions that Russia would be a factor in the export trade this coming season.

Corn and oats duplicated the action of the wheat market. Bulls in the corn market were handicapped by some lessening of shipping demand here for corn.

Provisions were depressed by selling ascribed to packers and by talk of slowness of cash inquiry.

Increased activity on the part of American manufacturers is evidenced by the latest foreign trade figures. They show an increase of 20 per cent. in exportations of manufactures and 32 per cent in importation of manufacturing material when comparing the figures with those of one year earlier. These figures, says the Trade Record of The National City Bank of New York, relate on the export side to the month of January, 1923, and on the import side to the month of December, 1922. They indicate that the exports of manufactures in the fiscal year which ends with the month of June will exceed by nearly $150,000,000 the total for the immediately preceding year, and will be 60 per cent. greater than the value of manufactures exported in the year preceding the war. The total exports of manufactures in the fiscal year 1923 will approximate $1,750,000,000 against a little more than $1,000,000,000 in 1914, three-quarters of a billion in 1910, and less than a half billion in 1900. This continuation since the close of the war in the growth of exportation of manufactures which was apparent in the pre-war period suggests that the closer acquaintance which the world obtained during the war of the product of the American factory is giving further assurance of the permanence of exports of manufactures.

Not only is there a steady increase in the total value of manufactures exported from the country, but manufactures form a steadily increasing share in the grand total of our exports, since our growing population demands a steadily increasing proportion of the output of our fields and mines. Foodstuffs and manufacturing material combined formed 24 per cent of our domestic exports in 1880, 78 per cent. in 1890, 64 per cent. in 1900, and 54 per cent. in 1922. On the other hand, manufactures which formed but 15 per cent. of our exports in 1880 were 21 per cent. in 1890, 35 per cent. in 1900, and 46 per cent. in 1922.

On the Increase.

Smoking is on the increase in the United States, according to figures from the department of commerce. The nineteenth amendment is evidently making up for what the eighteenth lost.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

No Advantage at All.

One disadvantage of being sure you're right before going ahead is the danger you run of being trampled on by several thousand people who are willing to take a chance. — Detroit News.

"Why do you say 'acres of land?" interrupted the fussy customer. "What kind of acres are there except of land."

"Well," said the agent. "I once got into a lot of trouble for selling a stranger 160 acres of water, and now I'm taking no chances."—Kansas City Star.

TAFTVILLE

A number of the village roque enthusiasts have banded together and by putting in their spare time and a bit of hard labor, have completed an up-to-date court on the summit of Ponemah Heights. This spot is known as the "double croquet ground" and was many years ago, the scene of many spirited contests, but after it fell into disuse, it was soon ruined the lawn fading on it and leaves and dead wood covering it. The Roque Club have removed all this debris, put in a new surface which they have smoothed off and rolled, and now the ground would be hard to equal in this section. In days of yore, when roque was a popular Sunday afternoon pastime, there were four grounds connected by bridges. These were the two known as the "double croquet grounds" the large court known as the Edge Ground and one known as the Little Croquet Ground, situated between the two others. After a time the St. Joseph's Roque Club was organized and they built a club house and made a good ground on Dion street. Now that the employes of the mills have an extra hour of daylight after work, many good games are enjoyed by the members of the club, and benches have been built bordering the ground for spectators.

Improvements have been going on rapidly at the Providence street grounds, so that they might be in shape during the coming season. Not only have the grounds been scraped and filled in, but the Ponemah Company men have been at work on the grand stand, strengthening it, and putting new boards along the front. New tops have been put on the players and spectators benches. Many of the aspirants for places in the Taftville team are holding twilight practice every evening in the week on the ground.

Among the insect pests which arrive each year to destroy foliage and fruit are the Tent Caterpillars. This year there seems to be an unusually large number of nests or webs in the woods surrounding the village. Usually these caterpillars can be found in every lilac bush in the town, but up till now they have not put in their appearance in the village, but every wild cherry tree in the woods is alive with them. Many of the pests are still small and it is pointed out that now is a good time to fight them. Farmers use lead arsenate for this work, mixing one and a half pounds of the powder in fifty gallons of water.

Alfred Peyerd of North B Street is the champion bullhead fisherman of the village. This week he exhibited a string of "ponts" that made many of the followers of this sport green with envy. Bullhead fishing is at its height now, and the Shetucket River is full of them. Every boy in the place it seems goes to the river at night to try his luck, and help reduce the family meat bill.

William Peltier of North A Street, son of Mr. and Mrs. Octave Peltier, broke his arm Wednesday evening when playing ball with some of his boy friends. In trying to catch a fly ball, young Peltier became overbalanced and fell backwards, and to save himself, put his arms behind him to break the fall. However he fell on his arm and fractured it. He will be laid up for some time, as the injury was both painful and serious.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Carter and their daughter, Mrs. Charles Caswell of Newmarket, N. H., and James Stubbs of New Bedford, Mass., have returned to their homes after spending a few days with the Misses Louise and Mary Stubbs of North B street.

The Thursday Evening Basketry class met this week in the Red Cross Rooms in the Ponemah Building.

Joseph Gladue of South A Street has been able to return to work after being confined to his home for some time with an injury to his hand.

Many local Masons were in Jewett City Wednesday evening to attend the reception and banquet in honor of

ANSWERS QUESTION HOW NORWICH GETS "ROSE" NAME

At a repast after the closing of the Elks' fair Wednesday night the small assemblage was nonplussed by the query of a visitor "Why is Norwich called The Rose of New England?" until a member of the party who evidently has a penchant for making notations and collecting data, produced a clipping from a Boston paper of no recent date, thus answering the inquiry "what city is called The Rose of New England, and why:"

Norwich, Conn., because of its natural beauties. The poet Stedman wrote of it as—

"Guarded by circling streams and wooded mountains
Like sentinels round a queen;
Dotted with groves and musical with fountains,
The city lies serene."

SLATER PORTRAITS PRESENTED TO NORWICH FREE ACADEMY

Two valuable oil paintings one of John F. Slater, the other of William A. Slater his son, were hung Thursday afternoon in the auditorium of Slater Hall at the Norwich Free Academy. The paintings were hung one on either side of the stage and are inclosed in artistic frames. They were the gifts of Mrs. William A. Slater, widow of William A. Slater.

John F. Slater was one of the original corporators of the Free Academy in 1854 and died in the year 1881. His son William A. Slater was a corporator of the Academy from 1870 until the time of his death February 26, 1919. He was also president of the Academy from 1891 to 1903.

The following menu was served:

NORWICH TOWN

John C. Hinrichs, D. C., of Norwich Town gave a lecture on the "Truth of Chiropractic", before an enthusiastic audience Wednesday evening, in the Poquetanuck school house, by invitation of the Teachers and Parents association of Hallville. The lecture was received with a great deal of interest and at the close Dr. Hinrichs answered many questions.

A former Norwich Town, young man, Frank Gardner Hale who is dean of the arts and crafts association of Boston, with Mrs. Hale, are on a two months tour of the west.

Dean Hale is holding exhibitions and giving lectures pertaining to his profession of which he possesses wonderful ability and skill, having visited some of the larger cities as follows:

STORRS HENS HAVE LAID 3,883 EGGS

At the end of the twenty-seventh week of the egg laying contest at Storrs the total production to date was 83,883 eggs. The total for the week was 4691 eggs or a yield of 67 per cent. This was 297 eggs more than they laid last week, 8 eggs more than last year's production and 172 eggs more than the eight-year average. The production was greater than the 100 pens have made during any previous week in the present contest. A pen of Rhode Island Reds owned by Fernside Farm, Foxboro, Mass., has been relegated from first place by an English pen of Wyandottes owned by Lady Anderson of Harrold, England. The Fernside pen of Rhode Island Reds have been leading the contest for the past eight weeks.

In the period of high production it is natural to see keen competition among the pens in the contest at Storrs. It was impossible for any one pen to take the lead during the past week. Consequently we find a pen of Rhode Island Reds owned by E. Newton Searles, Pomfret Center, Conn.; a pen of the same breed owned by F. S. Chaplin, Longmeadow, Mass., and Hollywood Farm's White Leghorns from Hollywood, Wash., all tied for first place with a production of 61 eggs each. Pinecrest Orchards Rhode Island Reds from Groton, Mass., were an easy second with 60 eggs. A pen of White Wyandottes owned by Lady Anderson of Harrold, England, and Mrs. J. L. Theusen's White Leghorns from New Haven, Conn., were both tied for third place with a yield of 58 eggs each. Fellows Brothers' Rhode Island Reds from Norwich Town, Conn., a pen of White Leghorns owned by Beck Egg Farm, Woodcliff Lake, N. J., and a pen of the same breed owned by D. B. Walls, of Petaluma, Calif., were tied for fourth place with a score of 57 eggs each.

STATE'S DEATH RATE MADE SLIGHT INCREASE

Although the death rate for Connecticut increased six-tenths of one per cent. during 1922, the year was extraordinarily healthful, according to the comparison of figures just made by the state board of health. The death rate was 12 to each 1,000 population and was lower but once before when in 1921, a most unusually healthy year, it dropped to 11.4.

There were 17,423 deaths during the year among a population estimated at 1,447,836, thus making an excess in deaths in 1,256 over the number in 1921. Two-thirds of the increase was due to just three diseases—influenza, pneumonia and cancer, 125 more than in the previous year.

The birth rate fell off 3,209 during the year as compared with 1921. There were 30,888 births as against 34,091 in 1921. This is due to economic conditions, the board believes, pointing to the fact that most of our industries were practically idle for long periods early in 1921. Marriages also fell off by 822, there being 12,094 in 1922 as against 12,916 in 1921, the same economic conditions being held accountable for the decrease.

This year didn't get away with a very good start in birth rate, either, it is pointed out, the number in January falling off 470 from that of even 1932, which if the average is followed out, will bring a decrease of more than 6,500 for the year. The average for the month for five years back is 2,968, while last year there were but 2,404, it thus being 564 below the average.

Deaths increased also there being 1,822 as against 1,595 for the same month last year. It is not quite up to the average for the last five years however, that being 1,851. Marriages also fell off from 767 to 756, while the average for five years is 890. Infant mortality also increased at 237 from 210 a year ago, making a rating of 82.9 or 1,000 living births as against 81.1 deaths per 1,000 a year ago.

WILL LIFT RAILROAD EMBARGOES ON MAY 19

That it has been deemed advisable to defer action on issuing any further permits for the movement of freight through existing embargoes until May 19, upon which date the general embargoes are to be removed entirely, was the content of a report recently made public by the superintendent of transportation of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Co. and the Central New England Railway Co. and sent to the Manufacturers' association of Connecticut.

In discontinuing permits the roads wish to accomplish several things that will tend to lessen the heavy congestion of the New England roads. One of the most important of these is the reduction of the number of foreign cars on the system, which is now 8,000 in excess of that necessary for the prompt handling of business. This change is also hoped to make a reduction in the number of cars en route to the New Haven lines on connecting lines to a more normal figure, as the number now represents an excess of from 2,500 to 3,000 cars.

As is pointed out in the announcement, this will also aid in the return, on a larger scale of equipment to western lines, which must be hurried to its owners, in accordance with the program set up by the American Railway Association and committee of railway executives to meet the requirements of shippers in the west. If this is not accomplished arbitrary order for the return of such equipment will be necessary and this, in the long run, will seriously react on New England consignees and shippers. The lifting of the embargo will also reduce the average time of cars at their destination, which is now averaging considerably in excess of similar averages in the past.

The assistance of shippers and consignees is also requested to the end that when the embargoes are removed that freight will be offered with moderation to meet the present necessities so that the system will not be overtaxed while the congestion is being removed, thereby obviating any necessity of having to clamp the embargoes on again.

Doubt was expressed by some shippers as to whether the lifting of the embargo would clear up the muddle along the system at present, as the removal will mean that shippers will in all probability rush goods through now that they will not have to trouble over obtaining permits to bring consignments into New England on the New Haven lines from the various gateways. The general congestion all along the line would not very well permit the handling of shipments that might result, it was said. If this is the case, it was pointed out, it would mean that the connecting trunk lines would be forced to place embargoes, thereby making it harder for New England shippers to secure transportation, as they will be dealing with foreign lines.

PRIZE BROOK TROUT SHOWN BY L. M. YOUNG

A large brook trout on exhibition in the windows of the Eaton Chase company has attracted considerable attention. The beauty was caught by Louis M. Young of Broadway in the spring of 1922 near the mouth of the brook of Upper Dam, Rangeleys, Me., and was only recently returned by the taxidermist.

The fish weighs 5 pounds and 4 ounces and is 22 inches long, having a girth of 13½ inches. It took third prize for large trout in the Field and Stream competition for 1922. Charles Weaver of Stratford, who was in the same camp caught a trout on the same day with measurements and weight the same as the trout caught by Mr. Young. His catch took second prize as it was entered in the contest before that of Mr. Young.

First prize went to a woman who took a trout that weighed 5 pounds and 12 ounces, also caught in the Rangeleys.

Mr. Young brought in his catch with a four ounce Leonard rod, using a fly tied by himself. The trout was played for 20 minutes before it was killed, a swift current making the catch quicker. The fish was netted by Joseph W. Curtis, who was with Mr. Young when the trout rose to the bait.

Appeared Before Police Court.

In the city court Thursday morning a man living near Norwich paid fines and costs totalling $16.90 for drinking to excess. Two boys aged 16 and 17 who had stolen chewing gum from a store at the Falls were ordered to pay the owner $3 in settlement for the gum. They also were given some good advice by Judge Libby.

The arrangements were by the members of the camp and the subscriptions for tickets by many who did not attend the whist brought in a goodly sum of money to be used by the Camp Fire for camping purposes this summer.

RAINBOW CIRCLE MET AT PRESIDENT'S HOME

Rainbow circle of the King's Daughters was entertained at the home of the president, Miss Marie Atterbury, of Greeneville, Thursday afternoon with a good attendance present.

The circle cut and sewed patchwork for the bedquilt which is in process. A short time was devoted to business, when it was voted to hold an informal social evening the latter part of this month in the parlors of the Greeneville Congregational church. Members are each expected to bring their mother, and also are privileged to invite one friend.

The hostess, assisted by her mother, Mrs. John C. Atterbury, served cake, fancy wafers and ice cream at the close of the meeting.

GOOD TROUT CATCHES BY NORWICH ANGLERS

Several good sized catches of trout have been reported by fishermen in and around Norwich during the past few weeks. Frank A. Cilley of 157 Franklin street recently took a trip to Ledyard and in about two hours collected a string of 14 beautiful trout. A second fine catch of 19 trout was reported to have been made Wednesday by Nelson Adams of Baltic. The trout seem plentiful this season and some catches have been made of trout weighing two pounds, a large fish for this section of the state.

Too many people set examples that should not be hatched.

CRUSHED STONE ARRIVES FOR WATER ST. WORK

Cruthers had the street department employes taken off the work on Laurel Hill avenue and transferred to Water street in order to handle the delivery of the stone there.

HOME REMEDIES OF OUR ANCESTORS.

Almost every man and woman in America can remember the botanic recipes of our mothers and grandmothers for the treatment of disease, and they were wonderfully dependable, too. Even a few weeks ago Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable compound was first prepared from one of these botanic recipes, and the demand for it has increased to such an extent that hundreds of tons of roots and herbs are now used annually in its preparation. It has recently been proved that 98 out of every 100 women who use it have been benefited by its use, which is a marvelous record for any medicine to hold.

CARD OF THANKS FROM THE SACRED HEART CHURCH

Words cannot express our gratitude to the multitude of kind friends of all denominations who came so nobly to our rescue and took our sorrows upon themselves in this trying time when our church was ruined by fire. We feel more deeply than we can say the kindness we have received from the press, societies and the many kind souls who have done for us what we could not do ourselves. Thanks to them we can make a fresh start to serve our beloved country and our Divine Master. May His heavenly blessing rest upon them one and all.

MISS ALDRICH NARRATES HARROWING EXPERIENCE

Was Forced to Sleep in a Dog Kennel Outside a Chinese Village—Was Ravenous for Food and Clad Only in a Night Gown and Dressing Gown—Finally Abandoned by the Brigands, Miss Aldrich Fell Into the Hands of Kindly Peasants.

Shanghai, May 11 (By The A. P.) — How the sister-in-law of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., Miss Lucy Aldrich, one of the victims of the Suchow train bandit raid, was forced to sleep in a dog kennel outside a Chinese village, ravenous for food, clad only in a nightgown and dressing gown, and without a single person to befriend her, was told to the Associated Press today by Dr. Jacob G. Schurman, American minister to China.

Dr. Schurman met Miss Aldrich at Tsinanfu after her release by the bandits and, in her own words, retold to the Associated Press the graphic story of her harrowing experience after the capture.

Miss Aldrich's account of her experiences immediately following the wrecking of the Shanghai-Peking express last Sunday morning was practically the same as the stories related by others. When the train was derailed by the bandits she thought at first it was an ordinary wreck, and then a thought flashed through her mind the commotion might indicate an outbreak of one of China's incipient wars.

Her first though was for the jewels she had with her—family heirlooms—and these she was able to hide before she was seized by the bandits.

Having done this, she was barely able to put on her slippers and a dressing gown when a brigand entered her compartment. The robber, a dirty, ragged, truculent coolie carried a rifle and bayonet.

"Then," said Miss Aldrich, "I was marched off the train and herded outside with the other passengers. We all were cold in our night dresses and gowns.

"The succeeding hours were a nightmare. There were about twenty bandits in our convoy, all carrying bundles of loot.

"I tried to forget my own suffering in the chilly air and with my feet bruised by the rough trail through my thin slippers, for others were more scantily clad than I and many of them were barefoot.

"We toiled on through the night, sometimes along narrow footpaths, and sometimes over rough fields.

"Dawn showed the outlines of the mountains ahead and my heart sank as I contemplated the distance we had to go, strung out along the way in single file.

"In the gathering daylight I noticed that several men who had started in our party from the train among the prisoners no longer were with us and I asked our guards where they had gone. I was told that they had been sent in another direction.

"Under the pitiless beating, prodding and sometimes stabbing of the guards to make the Chinese prisonbrigands, several of these began to cry piteously.

"Just when I felt that I must drop from exhaustion, one of the Chinese prisoners near me sank to the ground unable to rise again. A bandit poured out a torrent of oaths and abuse, dropped his bundles of loot and fired his rifle point blank into the man on the ground.

"This act terrified the remainder of the prisoners and we began to realise our desperate plight.

"We trudged stolidly on, nobody speaking and finally we reached the wooded foothills. We climbed upward and when we reached the top, sank down in my tracks.

"Then the bandits began sorting out their plunder. It was a miscellaneous array, jewels, clothing, bedding, money, door handles, brass fixtures taken from the train, one mattress and some pillows.

"It was only then I discovered that throughout the terrible march from the scene of the hold-up I had been carrying some of my rings clenched in my hand.

"Some of the articles they had stolen puzzled the brigands. They passed a hot water bag from hand to hand in a vain effort to fix its use. A tube of tooth paste, not only baffled them, but frightened them as well, but when I undertook to demonstrate its use they laughed aloud.

"One of the marauders tried on Miss MacFadden's hat and I was watching him when another walked toward me and poked his carbine into my face. Despairingly I mustered a smile, trying to convince him that I was not afraid to die. This caused him to laugh and he even paid me the compliment of patting my shoulder.

"A group of the gang's leaders held a parley. Then one of them turned to me, pointed back into the distance the way we had come and all marched off leaving me alone.

"I waited for some time, fearing they would return, and then set out on the back trail.

"My feet were so sore that I could hardly walk and my wrists were black and blue from being dragged along by my captors.

"I trudged along throughout the day seeing only an occasional inhabitant of the country and all these invariably fled at my approach. Then it began to rain but just as darkness fell I discovered a village ahead. I managed to drag myself painfully forward it only to discovef that it was a walled community and that the gates evidently had been closed for the night.

"I feared I would not be able to survive the hunger, pain and exposure until another dawn and I beat upon the gates with stones to attract the attention of the villagers. But it was useless."

"Bitterly disappointed, I staggered along the outside of the wall until I encountered what appeared to be a dog kennel. Fearfully I crept into it and there I spent the night.

"Dawn brought curious countrymen, timidly at first, to look at me. Some of them ran away but I permitted others to search me—they evidently wished to make sure I was unarmed—and when they thus were reassured they escorted me into the village, the populace turning out to look me over as I passed along."

"Completely surrounded by the villagers I was able to make known my need of food. When they understood my needs they could not do enough for me. They [illegible] and simultaneously offered me food, the while jabbering ceaselessly.

"These peasants truly were wood Samaritans. When I had rested they took me to a larger town where there were some foreigners and there I was provided with clothing. From there I reached the railroad and took the train to Tsinanfu."

SWISS FEDERAL COUNCIL DEPLORES ASSASSINATION

Lausanne, May 11 (By the A. P.).—The Vorovsky tragedy has acted as a warning to the delegates to the Near East conference that the conference is dragging out too lon gand that the delay is paving the way for new complications instead of tending toward peace.

The Swiss federal council today issued a communique expressing indignation over the attack on the Russians and regretting especially that it occurred at the seat of a peace conference. The council has decided to express its sympathy to the families of the victims of last night's shooting.

Fears are expressed here over the safety of a delegation of Swiss watchmakers in Moscow to reopen the watch trade with Russia. Members of the soviet group here are said to have threatened reprisals against the Swiss.

The police department asserts that it never received any complaints from the Russians that a plot had been formed against M. Vorovsky, who was shot and killed in the Hotel Cecil dining room by Maurice Alexander Conradi. It was recalled by the department today that the Russians came incognito to the first conference, and that even Georges Tchitcherin, the bolshevik minister of foreign affairs, arrived unannounced.

Conradi was examined by the authorities today. He was educated in the Protestant schools of Petrograd, where his father ran a chocolate factory. He fought in the Russian army and was decorated with the Cross of St. George. Subsequently he fought under Lieutenant General Korniloff against the soviet forces and with General Baron Wrangel, the anti-bolshevik leader. Conradi settled in Zurich in 1921.

OUIMET LOSES OUT IN BRITISH GOLF PLAY

Deal, England, May 11.—(By The A. P.)—British golfers today got rid of the last of the Americans who sought to take their amateur championship trophy across the Atlantic ocean.

Francis Ouimet of Boston, former American open and amateur champion, was beaten this afternoon in one of the semi-final rounds by Roger Wethered, a tall, slim son of England. Douglas Grant, also an American but who has lived for some time in England, lost the other semi-final to a short, sturdy Scotchman, Robert Harris, by a score of 5 and 4.

Tomorrow's final of 36 holes will be but another of those frequent golf battles between England and Scotland. Ambitious America will play the less thrilling role of an interested spectator.

APPOINTMENTS MADE BY PRESIDENT HARDING

Washington, May 11.—Appointments to four offices having to do with the railroad industry, three to the railroad labor board and one to the interstate commerce commission, were made today by President Harding.

To the labor board the president reappointed R. M. Barton of Memphis, Tenn., and Horace Baker of Chicago, as representatives of the public and managements groups, respectively, and named E. F. Grable, formerly grand president of the United Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Employes and Railway Shop Laborers, as a representative of labor. On the interstate-commerce commission the executive appointed Frand McManamy of the District of Columbia.

Guests from the realms of the church, parliament, journalism, stage, are, literature, diplomacy and law, attended. A number of labor members of the house of common and their wives were also present.

MANHASSET MILL LOCKOUT REMAINS AT STANDSTILL

(Special to the Bulletin)

Putnam, May 11.—The labor difficulty besetting the Manhasset Manufacturing company appeared to be settling down to an endurance contest Friday. Leaders of the unionized former employes of the company assert that their ranks were increased by a following of about a dozen during Friday while at the mill it was learned that there was little change from the situation as it was on Thursday.

Those who are out declare themselves on strike, while the mill company takes the attitude that the absent employes are in effect experiencing a lockout. Up to Friday afternoon there had been no further conference between representatives of the mill company and representatives of the workers who have left their jobs in the big plant in a concerted effort to secure a further advance in wages than the 5 1-2 per cent. recently granted and which would show in this week's pay envelopes

There is a discrepancy in the statements of the contending forces as to the number of workers who are out. Oliver Christian Lawrence, member of the executive board of the American Federation of Textile Operatives with which the local union involved is affiliated, said Friday noon that the Putnam local has a membership of 319 of former Manhasset employes and that every last one of them is out. This is a little more than twice as many workers as the mill operators say are away from their jobs.

The strikers, as they may be termed for the purpose of convenience, held a meeting Friday morning in a hall in the business section and after the meeting marched practically in a body down into the Manhasset section of the city and past the plant of the mill company. An observer who counted said 119 were in line. They marched quietly and there was no demonstration of any kind, everything being 100 per cent. orderly. During the afternoon a second meeting was held by the strikers.

There was no evidence of wavering in their ranks during the day, even in view of the fact that eight families occupying dwellings in the Manhasset village were served with notices to vacate by May 21. Their representatives have retained legal advisers.

Mr. Christian, who is leaving Putnam tonight for a few days and who will be succeeded as strike director here by John P. O'Donnell of Salem, Mass., general secretary of the American Federation of Textile Operatives, said Friday that the strikers are merely asking that they be given an advance in wages sufficient to make up the difference between the 5 1-2 per cent. that has been granted here by the Manhasset company and the 12 1-2 per cent. that has been granted generally in New England. Mr. Christian contends on behalf of the organization he represents that if the Manhasset company can allow the full advance in its Taunton plant, where the operatives work only 48 hours each week, that it also can do it here in Putnam, where the operatives work 55 hours each week, and his viewpoint is that Taunton operatives of the company have received the full advance that the strikers here are asking for.

One point that the individual strikers wanted to cleared up Friday was the printed statement that the truck drivers who are on strike received $47 per week. "When we get that much," one of the drivers said to the representative of The Bulletin in an interview Friday, "we get in practically two weeks work in one, working 18 and even 24 hours a day and averaging up to 94 to 96 hours a week. My straight pay without overtime is $34 a week and I get time and a half for over time". Another of the truck drivers who is out said his straight pay for 55 hours per week was $27.25.

The mill with its reduced force of workers continued to operate during Friday. Guards are about the big plant, but they have nothing to do but keep a constant watch for anything that may develop. The strikers are not inclined to be other than peaceful. Only one instance of heckling a worker has been reported—a weaver who had company home in the way of about a dozen who are on strike. This was more or less of a silent demonstration.

Mr. Christian said Friday that the American Federation of Textile Operatives is not affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, but is an independent organization with a membership in excess of 30,000, chiefly in Fall River, New Bedford, Lawrence, Lowell and other Massachusetts textile centers. It has been recruiting membership in the Quinebaug valley section of eastern Connecticut for many months. Mr. Christian said, and now has strong organizations in this city, Danielson, Wauregan, Plainfield and other mill towns along the valley. Mr. Christian is himself an actual operative, being engaged as a loom fixer in his home city. He was sent here, he said, as a member of the general executive committee to direct matters temporarily. Mr. Christian is a mild-mannered man with nothing of the radical apparent about him and advocates only peaceful, though effective means, of bettering conditions for the people who make up his organization.

GOVERNMENT OFFICIALS EN ROUTE TO EUROPE

New York, May 11.—Carrying a large list of government officials as passengers, the liner President Harding sailed for Cherbourg and Bremen today. Paul Bowerman, vice consul at Berlin; Alfred Cameron, vice consul at Marseilles; Charles W. Lewis, vice consul at Manchester, England; Major Campbell B. Hodges, military attache to Spain and Portugal; Rufus S. Day, Jr., special assistant United States attorney general, and Senator David I. Walsh of Massachusetts were among the passengers.

DIVORCE GRANTED TO ETHEL MARSHALL THOMSON

Bridgeport, May 11.—Accepting the recommendation of State Referee Milton A. Shumway, Judge William B. Maltbie in superior court today granted a divorce to Ethel Marshall Thomson; well known Greenwich resident, who alleged intolerable cruelty against her wealthy husband, Lewis Thomson.

No alimony was allowed. Thomson was granted custody of the two children, James, 12 years old, and Jessie, 8 years old, during the "school year," and the mother during the spring, summer and winter vacations.

"Poison Pen" Weapon Of Craven Humanity

Cause of Suicides, Disrupted Homes and Insanity — Prominent New York Club Men Involved.

New York, May 11.—Existence in this city of a vicious band of well-to-do clubmen who have specialized for years in sending to wealthy and socially prominent persons scurrilous letters attacking their relatives and friends, was disclosed by District Attorney Banton today, after news of the indictment of George Maxwell, president of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, had leaked out.

Activities of the band, Mr. Banton declared, have resulted in one or more suicides, the disruption of at least nine homes and the incarceration in private insane asylums or the banishment of several persons whose families were misled by the circumstantial nature of the stories concerning them.

The district attorney's office already has obtained possession of 157 of the scurrilous letters and more than 100 persons have been questioned by the grand jury which indicted Maxwell, and which is still being held for further developments. A number of witnesses whose stories Mr. Banton was eager to lay before the grand jury, have departed for the Bermudas and other foreign places, unwilling to face the publicity their connection with the case would be sure to bring. Mr. Banton said he feared publicity given the matter, despite his efforts to keep it secret, would result in the departure of other witnesses.

Investigation of the "poison pen" plot began when Allan A. Ryan, financier and son of Thomas Fortune Ryan, went to Mr. Banton with letters he had received connecting the name of Mrs. Ryan with that of Maxwell. Declaring he had full confidence in his wife, and was willing to face any amount of publicity necessary to bring the writer to justice, he urged Mr. Banton to push an investigation

The results startled the district attorney. Every lead furnished the investigators with a new lead, and within a short time it was learned that more than 100 persons had received letters attacking the reputations of friends or relatives.

John Drew had received a letter casting aspersions on Mrs. Albert Fallatin of this city. Mrs. Enrico Caruso received one attacking in the most scurrilous way a half dozen of her closest friends. Thomas M. Gridler received one attacking a relative in such a vicious manner that his health was broken and he died a short time later. Among those about whom letters were written were Mrs. John B. Stetson and Mrs. L. R. Page of Philadelphia.

Although evidence strong enough to warrant an indictment has been secured only against Maxwell so far, Mr. said, it was certain that a number of other men were involved in the scandal. Steps, Mr. Banton said, already have been taken to obtain the extradition of Maxwell, who is now in Europe.

OPERATORS IN RAW SUGAR SERVED WITH SUBPOENAS

Subpoenas Were Served by Agents of the Department of Justice—Probable Grand Jury Investigation Into Trading in Futures on the New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange—News on the Exchange Caused a Break in the Price of Sugar.

New York, May 11.—Investigation by a federal grand jury of the trading in raw sugar futures on the New York coffee and sugar exchange was forecast today when several operators in raw sugar were served with subpoenas of the department of justic.

Federal attorneys investigating the high cost of sugar refused to affirm or deny that the subpoenas were for appearance before the grand jury. While none of the sugar men subpoenaed would disclose the nature of the summonses, the news spread through the exchange and caused a general liquidation of raw sugar futures, prices closing at 29 to 35 points lower than yesterday's close.

HARVEY DIPLOMATIC IN ANSWERING QUESTIONS

New York, May 11.—George Harvey, American ambassador to Great Britain, came home today on the George Washington for a vacation and answered a barrage of newspapermen's questions with such diplomatic phrases that he left them still wondering what was the answer to reports that he has resigned or plans to resign, to handle the 1924 campaign for President Harding's renomination and reelection.

"I have heard nothing about the reports," was his first answer.

"Will you flatly deny that you have come home to resign?" he was asked

"I have come home on leave. I am going to Peacham"—the Vermont home town he put on the front pages recently in an address in which he declared everybody in Peacham had British ancestors—"and I hope to go fishing."

"Will you make a categorical denial of the rumor?"

"I do not see any reason for doing so," he retorted.

The cross-examiners veered off to other topics, to return suddenly to the resignation business.

"Yes, I am going to resign," the ambassador smiled. "All of my predecessors resigned save one—and he died. I shall resign."

"When?"

"I am not prepared to say."

Another high spot in the interview was his answer when the reporters told him the legislatures of Massachusetts and New York had been called upon to act on resolutions demanding his recall because of his alleged pro-British attitude.

"I am an American, but I am not a damned fool," he flared, then laughingly:

"I can guarantee the first part of my answer, but am not so sure about the second part."

Colonel Harvey said he would remain in New York a few days before going to Washington to report to Secretary Hughes and President Harding. After that, he added, he would go to Peacham for a rest.

DRIVER LOSES CONTROL OF SPEEDING MOTORCYCLE

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, May 11. — Samuel Bjork, a member of the crew of one of the ocean going yachts being fitted out for the summer in Shaw's Cove, is a patient at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, he having been admitted to the institution this evening for treatment for a fractured left leg and a probable broken collarbone, received when the motorcycle he was operating crashed through a fence on Ocean avenue near Glenwood avenue.

Bjork and a companion started to enjoy a ride early this evening. About 9 o'clock while the machine was traveling at a fast rate of speed, Bjork lost control of the cycle in attempting to avoid a collision with an automobile, the cycle speeding across the highway and through the fence. HULTZ WAS BRUTALLY BEATEN TO DEATH

Redding, Conn., May 11.—State police today redoubled their efforts to solve the mystery of the slaying of George Hultz, aged recluse who body was found last midnight in Umpamwaug pond, a short distance from the blood stained ruins of his burned cottage in Topstone.

The finding of the body by a party of voluntary searchers using a grappling iron of special design settled the question of whether Hultz had actually been killed or had disappeared voluntarily as had been suspected. The examination of the body conducted by Dr. Ernest H. Smith, medical examiner for this town, showed that Hultz had been brutally beaten to death with a blunt instrument, probably the head of an axe.

While police have been working mainly on the theory that Hultz was killed by robbers, the finding of $11.18 and a gold watch in his pocket has served to throw some doubt on this belief. As a result police are investigating two other angles, one that he was slain after a quarrel with a companion in his cottage, and the other that he was killed in revenge.

The body was removed to a stone vault in the cemetery at Branchville near here where it will remain pending the inquest which may be delayed until further investigations have been made. John Dandone, a fellow worker with Hultz at Topstone, [illegible] identified the body.

Hultz's house, where he probably was killed, is in Ridgefield, while Umpamwaug pond is across the border, or the town in Redding thus bringing the authorities of both towns into the case.

NORWICH BULLETIN
24 Church Street Telephone 488

A decision made by Attorney General Frank Healy and accepted by the board of selectmen carries the information that since April 1, the town of Windham has had two dog wardens and that neither one had the authority to perform duties, due to the fact that under Chapter 173 of the Public Acts of 1921 the dog warden must be appointed by the chief of police and this has not been done.

The decision states that as the dog warden receives his salary or fees from the city and as he is a city official, his appointment must be made by the chief of police. In 1919 a slight change was made in the law, giving the selectmen the authority to appoint dog wardens, in case the appointment is not previously made by the chief of police. If the chief of police or the selectmen fail to make an appointment within about ten days after the first of April, the dog warden is to be named by the commissioner of domestic animals.

For many years the appointments were made by the selectmen but in 1922 they failed to do so and consequently it was left to the commissioner who named Roderick Lussier, replacing Constable Thomas J. Killourey who had held the position for several years.

On March 6 of this year the present board of selectmen appointed Thomas J. Killourey as dog warden of Windham for the year ending March 31, 1924. Lussier did not put in an application. The selectmen on April 11 received notification that as the chief of police had failed to appoint a dog warden, Commissioner Whittlesey had reappointed Roderick Lussier. No mention was made of the appointment of Killourey by the selectmen. Application was then made to Town Council Thomas J. Kelley for an opinion on the matter.

Town Clerk Frank P. Fenton called on Commissioner Whittlesey recently and asked why no attention had been paid to the fact that the selectmen had sent a notification of the appointment of Thomas J. Killourey. The commissioner then stated that no such notification had been received in his office or any mention of it made to him or to any attaches of his office. The files in his office were then searched and the selectmen's letter was found. The discovery made Commissioner Whittlesey indignant and he stated that stringent measures would be taken to find out who had pigeonholed the selectmen's appointment.

One of the deputy commissioners is expected to arrive in this city within a few days to get the inside of the situation. The selectmen and the town clerk have announced their support of Thomas J. Killourey and there is a possibility that Mr. Lussier will not be retained. According to the change in the law the city of Willimantic is to pay the dog wardens charges or fees. A bill for $238.50 which was Dog Warden Lussier's bill for the year following his appointment in April, 1922, will be sent to the city. The selectmen are further holding up a bill for $50 from Warden Lussier for fees since his appointment in 1921. Mr. Lussier believes that he will receive his fees.

A session of the Windham county superior court was held in this city Friday forenoon for the assignment of cases. Judge James H. Webb was on the bench. Cases were assigned as follows: Wednesday, May 16, Elmer E. Richmond vs John F. Conway; Allen M. Bayles, adm., vs The N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R.; Thursday, May 17, Annie B. McGregor vs Caroline B. Fisher; Tuesday, May 22, Mary E. Pike vs Benjamin Brown et al; John W. Armitage et al vs Victor L. Biscoe ette; Victor Buckinsky vs The Jones Auto Company; James M. Wittier, appeal from probate; will of Henry L. Wittier.

The case of L. Backman & Company vs River Weaving company, Inc., was stricken off the short calendar list. In the case of W. & H. Walker, Inc., vs Robert Stanley and Edward J. Tryon, Attorney Thomas J. Kelley for Mr. Tryon was given the privilege of having the case reopened. The defendant, Mr. Tryon, his attorney, seeks to have the court set aside the judgment by default entered against him on May 14, 1923.

Only one of the three uncontested cases on the list was heard. It was that of Hardy Warhurst against John W. Warhurst. They were married in New Bedford 18 years ago and following their removal to Plainfield a few years ago, the husband began to drink and abuse his wife, Mrs. Warhurst told of the abuse when he husband was apprehended, of his being arrested and assaulting her. Two women testified to the trouble between the couple dur-

Shepard, were in charge of the arrangements.

The remains of Price H. M. Brooks were conveyed to Springfield, Mass., Friday afternoon on the 2.30 train. Burial will be in the Oak Grove cemetery there. Avery & VanZandt are in charge of the local arrangements.

On account of the increased cost of building materials it has been found necessary to again change some of the plans for the erection of the new Salvation Army citadel, which is now being constructed on Walnut street. The building must be so built as to conform with the appropriation of money made for it. About a year ago a drive for $7,500 was made and that amount and a few hundred dollars over was secured and it was believed that the amount would be sufficient to build, but since that time building materials have increased in cost. The contract price for the erection of the citadel is $6,860 and the extra expense is that of installing electricity, heating and plumbing.

Among some of the changes will be the doing away of fancy moldings on the front of the building in exchange for plainer ones.

WESTERLY

At the May meeting of the Westerly Board of Trade last Monday evening in the council chambers of the Westerly town hall there was a considerable opposition manifested to the pending bill in the Rhode Island state legislature relative to the Plotting act, so-called, for which work an appropriation of $2,500 was voted at the last financial town meeting. It was even suggested that the town council be asked to give a public hearing before the bill was allowed to proceed, but when it was found that it had already passed the senate it was thought the time would not be sufficient. By others it was thought that the bill might be allowed to pass and then amended to incorporate the ideas expressed by the elimination of some parts thought too drastic or undesirable.

This act was taken up in a previous board of trade meeting and passed on to the town council which body changed the original reading, as it was stated to conform to similar one in Providence. At first the committee named contained a larger proportion of membership from the trade board and the committee was later changed to make it three from the council and two from the board. Very desirable feature are contained in the bill it is agreed by both sides of the argument but then it is contended there are numerous undesirable ones.

Among the latter are named the minimum fifty foot road, the necessity of reporting to the council, to have the act begin with the threat of a lawsuit, to have an individual pay for recording of deeded property to town, and the round corners where the council can require conditions to be met and "there be no guarantee or assurance of "follow through" on the council part. It is thought that a careful reading of the act would be mutually beneficial.

Section 1. No plan of any private land or lands situated in the Town of Westerly, showing thereon a street or way as open or to be opened to travel or otherwise dedicated for public use, shall hereafter be accepted for filing or record by the town clerk, of said town, unless such street or way shall have been first approved by the town council of said town, or on appeal therefrom by judgment of court as hereinafter provided: Provided, however, that nothing herein shall apply to any plan approved or adopted by order or decree of court in any judicial proceedings, or made, approved or adopted by or pursuant to due action of any public authority.

Section 2. With every application to said town council for such approval, such plan shall be filed in duplicate with said town council, or if the said town council is not in session, with the town clerk. Such plan shall include a profile of said proposed street, and shall show its location, width (which shall not be less than 50 ft.) and grades and the location and grades of all connecting streets and drawn to such scale and upon such material as said town council may require and to its satisfaction.

Section 3. Upon receipt of such petition the same shall be referred by said town council or said town clerk to the board of highway commissioners of said town who shall as soon as may be report thereon to said town council. Within thirty days from the time of such filing of any such plan, if such street or way is reasonable in its location, width and grades, with due regard to both the public and the private interests involved, said town council shall approve the same, and upon such approval the town clerk shall endorse and certify the facts of such approval by said town council on each such duplicate, but shall not file or record the same until requested by the owner of such land or lands and until the fees therefor are paid. If said town council finds that such street or way is not reasonable as aforesaid, it shall disapprove the same and shall cause the reasons for its disapproval to be recorded in the records of its proceedings.

Section 4. Any person aggrieved by any such action of said town council may appeal from such action, to the superior court for Washington county in the manner and subject to the provisions as prescribed by law for appeals from the orders and decrees of town councils; that upon such appeal, instead of a copy being included in the record of the proceedings to be filed in said court, the original plan in duplicate shall be transmitted by said town clerk to said court, and said court, and said court or the court with a jury, if a jury trial is claimed by either party within ten days after the filing of the reasons of appeal, shall try the case, and upon any final judgment approving such street or way, the clerk of court shall endorse and certify on each such duplicate a copy of such judgment or the substance thereof, and shall transmit both such duplicates to said town clerk, who shall receive but not file or record the same until requested by the owner of such land or lands and until the fees therefor are paid.

Section 5. Upon the filing or recording of any such plan pursuant to the provisions hereof such street or way shown thereon shall not be open to travel or otherwise dedicated for public use until such street or way shall be cleaned of stumps, rock, ruts and other superfluous or objectionable material; and all work in excavation and embankment shall be brought accurately to such subgrade as said board of highway commissioners may require and all corners of intersecting streets shall be rounded, and granite bounds shall be set at all angles, curves and corners of such street or way and those made with such connecting streets, according to the direction and approval of said board of highway commissioners. Until the provisions of this section shall have been complied with and until such street or way is reasonably safe for travel the board of highway commissioners may close the entrance thereto from a public street.

Section 6. Upon the filing or recording of such plan and compliances with the provisions of section 5, such street or way shall be thenceforward a public highway to all intents and purposes, and be liable to be opened by the board of highway commissioners of said town in the same manner as highways which are laid out by said board of highway commissioners, but said town shall not be liable to repair such highways nor shall said town be liable to any person or persons who in any wise suffer injury to their person or property by reason of its neglect to keep said highway in repair until said board of highway commissioners shall decree and order that the same shall be repaired at the expense of said town.

Section 7. Said town clerk shall not receive for record nor record any deed to said town of any land in said town which deed is made for the purpose of having the land therein described become a public highway pursuant to section 25 of Chapter 82 of the General Laws, unless said town council shall have first accepted such deed to said town; that this provision shall not apply to any such deed of any kind that is shown as a street, or way and as open to travel or otherwise dedicated for public use, on any plan then on file or recorded in the office of said town clerk; that no acceptance of any such deed by said town council shall be deemed to impose any liability upon said town to repair any such highway, nor shall said town be liable to any person or persons who may in any wise suffer injury to their person or property by reason of its neglect to keep said highway in repair, before said board of highway commissioners shall decree and order that the same shall be repaired at the expense of said town. Said town council shall cause any deed accepted by it to be transmitted to said town clerk who shall record the same.

The regular weekly session of the third district court was held in the district court room on Union street at 9 o'clock Friday morning. Clerk of Walter Flynn read the docket with the following new cases entered: Walter C. Hiscox & Co., vs. Anna Burstorf, a non-resident, continued one week; and twelve cases continued on the previous week's docket. The case of Perrin Bros. vs. Berth, set for trial this day was then called and Judge Michael J. Turano took the bench.

Walter L. Perrin, one of the partners in Perrin Bros., Ashaway, testified that as owner of the building he had let the premises to Frank L. Berth as tenant for the purpose of running a garage. That on Jan. 11, 1923, Mr. Berth made a three month note with interest at ten per cent., for which he received from him $300 in cash and which was not paid when it came due. A note signed F. L. Berth was presented in court. The premises were rented from month to month and money has been paid on the rent account as well as for various supplies against which was a contra labor charge leaving a net amount due $162.02.

The witness, when asked, said that he had seen but one note and that he did the bookkeeping, producing the ledger of his accounts. Frank Leonard Berth testified that he had made the note and when it had become due had arraigned to take $100 from the bill and make a new note for $400 with Clifford Perrin and that Walter Perrin was present as was his own father, James L. Berth, of Mystic. The witness said he had neglected to get the old note when the new one was made and offered his account book to show transactions. When in Attorney Ferguson's office a sheet of paper was offered him which he refused to take.

James L. Berth testified that he was the father of Frank and was present at the above time. Judge Turano inquired if it would be possible to have Clifford Perrin in court and upon finding it would not, directed the case continued to next Friday that he might be present. Several juvenile cases followed the session of court.

The following transfers have been recorded in the Westerly town clerk's office: James A. Koulbanis, lot of land on west side of Newton avenue; Charles P. Lawson to Mary Reed Harris, New York, lot No. 33 and 34, Shelton Harbor; Lillian M. Pitcher, et al., to Angelo Parnigoni, et ux., lot and dwelling house east side of George street; Lillian M. Pitcher, guardian, Anna Elizabeth Cameron of Red Bank, N. J., to Angelo Parnigoni, rights as before; Annie L. Edmond, et al., to Charles P. Crandall, lot of land and buildings on north side of High street; Louis Castagnaro to Joseph Castagnaro, lot of land in Central Park; Agreement: Genaro Delmorte, et ux., and Norman Nibbling, three lots of land, Washington Park; Thorpe and Trainer, Inc., to Ambrose K. WHEN PEOPLE LIVED IN THEIR STOVES

A STORY OF PRIMITIVE TIMES

In the early days man lived in his stove! An astonishing statement, no doubt, but it is true. Because in the primitive times his crude shelter was devised that he might have a warm place in which to shelter himself and in which he might do his simple cooking away from the interference of the unfriendly element.

In fact, we are told that the word "stove," in its original form, meant "a heated room."

Just visualize this ancient ancestor of ours. He roamed the woods at will, living on the berries and fruits he found at hand, and sleeping under the stars or in the kindly shelter of the rocks or in caves.

From his still more primitive ancestor he had received the great legacy of fire, and his simple mind learned how it was possible to start a new fire at will. He realized that he was comfortable near a fire; his body was warm and glowing and it chased away the evil spirits of cold and numbness.

But there was a constant battle between heat and cold. A fire built out in the open had to combat fierce winds and icy blasts. Gradually he learned to protect his fire—first with large stones, placed close to the blaze. Then came the time when he constructed rude shelters, large, conical structures made from branches of trees held together by clay, mud and grass. These rude dwellings protected him from the rain, but they were cold and damp until he began kindling his fire within them.

Now he had a heated room—"a stove." Imagine his delight with this great advance in civilization. He had a place where he was assured of being dry and warm, and he did not complain of the dense smoke that filled his room. Some of the smoke, it was true, curled out of the little opening at the top, but if he was annoyed by the smoke, he was soothed by the warmth, and our ancestor was not given to complaining.

And in this heated room—this stove—he did his cooking. Above his fire he suspended a pole, held in place by props driven into the ground at either end. On this pole he hung the fish he caught in the nearby stream or the small animal he had captured or killed with his rough weapons.

He was content. His home was a warm place and a place where he could cook. His home was his stove.

Contrast this picture with the modern home, and its many varied rooms. Now we have our living rooms, our dining rooms, our sleeping rooms. Modern invention has showed us how to distribute heat without the attendant discomfort of smoke.

Then we have our kitchen, an entire room set aside for the modern "stove," and, if the housewife is wise, it is a Sterling.

A sturdy, never-failing range, finished attractively in glossy black or soft gray enamel. It uses either coal or gas, and uses them economically. In fact, the Sterling Range, by actual performance, will bake a barrel of flour with a single hod of coal.

No smoke, no annoyance, no uncertainty! Think of the transition from the heated room of the dim ages to the Sterling of the present century—yet the Sterling may be placed in your kitchen with less effort than was expended by that primitive man in building one weak little fire in his primitive home—his "stove," because your Sterling Dealer offers a convenient budget plan of payments which enables the Sterling to practically pay for itself by the savings it effects.

BREED THEATRE

"There was downright inspiration in that role!" exclaimed Mary Alden when that well-known star of the screen completed her work in Daniel Carson Goodman's great equity production, "Has the World Gone Mad", which comes to the Breed Theatre on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

And so Miss Alden, perhaps unconsciously, spoke a word of commendation for Mr. Goodman's entire production. The story has to do with the experiences of two American families of influence who become entagled in illicit romances and the results of their indiscretions upon their lives. Mr. Goodman goes, however, far beyond mere individuals and makes of his subject a vast human canvas upon which he depicts his solution of one of humanity's greatest problems in a most entertaining fashion.

Miss Alden—you have her own word for it—was so inspired by her own role that she was able to give one of the finest characterizations ever contributed to the record of the screen.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway, Sunday

A Rupert Hughes picture is always awaited with the keenest anticipation, and his latest one, "Gimme", written in collaboration with his wife, promises to be fully as fine as any of its predecessors. It is another of those delightful comedy dramas of married life scintillating with Hughes humor, and at the same time with an occasional touch of pathos.

Helene Chadwick and Gaston Glass have the leading roles in this Goldwyn production which will be at the Broadway Theatre Sunday night. Miss Chadwick, whose impersonations of the role of a young wife in other of Mr. Hughes' pictures have been a rare delight, has a similar role in this one. She plays the part of Fanny Daniels, who finds herself upon the marriage to Clinton Ferris, the son of self-supporting son of money parents, in the humiliating though not uncommon situation of being obliged to say "Gimme" for every cent she needs, for household thing as well as finery.

A debt of $500, borrowed from her employer before her marriage, for the purpose of buying a trousseau, is still hanging over Fanny's head, and she finally goes back to her old job in order to pay it off. But Lambert, the employer, seems to see in Fanny's return to him an excuse for making love to her; and then things are more complicated than ever. In desperation Fanny draws $500 on her husband's account in order to pay off the debt—and discovers later that the $500 is all he had. Lambert's attentions to his wife rouse Clinton's jealousy, and a quarrel follows. But eventually the misunderstandings are all cleared up, there's a reconciliation, and Fanny comes out victor, with the promise of a regular weekly allowance.

An unusually fine supporting cast was engaged for this production, including H. E. Wallball, Kate Lester, Eleanor Boardman, David Hadboden, May Wallace, Georgia Woodthorpe and Jean Hope. The settings are by Cedric Gibbons, Goldwyn's are director, and the photography by John Mescall.

The latest Joe Rock Comedy, Oliver Twisted, will also be shown.

Another picture of exceptional entertainment value is coming to the Strand Theatre next Monday. It is Marshall Neilan's latest production, "Minnie", released by Associated First National. In this picture Neilan has featured the beautiful Leatrice Joy and popular Matt Moore and has backed them with a cast that fits nicely into his story of the happenings in a small town hotel.

Minnie's father owns the hotel but he is more interested in a radio invention that will give off power to run trucks, water pumps, and other necessities that require motivation. So Minnie becomes the drudge. In taking this role Miss Joy has to cover up her beauty, has to dab her face with grease paint and powder and let her pretty hair hang loose. She wears a mole, too. But she's funny. She does the oddest things in her anger against the people who are constantly sneering at her homeliness.

For the first time in his screen career Matt Moore steps out of "straight" roles to do a character part. He's the inquisitive but forgetful reporter. And he's full of fine humor, too. Those who see the picture at the Strand will agree that Matt Moore was never more delightful.

Short subjects are also included.

Mother in Law Wrecks Happy Home Author of "Brass" Justified a Queer Contradiction

That the place of the mother-in-law may be in the home, but not in the home of the daughter and son-in-law is a truth proved time and time again in divorce courts all over the country.

It leads to bushels of trouble in "Brass", the screen adaptation of C. G. Norris' novel of marriage and divorce coming to the Strand Theatre for a week's run beginning next Thursday. Philip and Marjorie Baldwin, the principal characters in the story, get along beautifully. Then the mother-in-law interferes in many little affairs, such as the proper time for the couple to put out the lights, and who they should receive and what they should buy. The young Baldwins are struggling along on a small income and have to live at the mother-in-law's home.

How the whole business flares up and ends in a divorce, with strong results, makes up the big points in this Warner Brothers production, in which Monte Blue has the featured role of Philip, and Marie Prevost the part of Marjorie.

HARD HITTING CARDINALS WILL GIVE EXHIBITION AT FAIR GROUNDS SUNDAY

After Friday's record-breaking game between the St. Louis Cardinals and the Phillies in which the Cards got 22 hits, they should prove a decided attraction at the Fairgrounds on Sunday against Manager Ed O'Leary's Norwich club. The Cards although they lost yesterday ran on a batting rampage and have plenty on any pitcher and Eddie Boyce will prove no exception.

St. Louis will send the regular lineup against the local team and if the Cards hit the way they did yesterday the fans will see plenty of action and the fielders will have to wear rubber shoes to field the balls. The Cardinals are going better than ever before and the predictions in baseball circles are that they stand a good chance of being in the pennant race from start to finish. Manager Jacque Fournier is after each is preparing himself to be at least of a first baseman and is developing into a real slugger and if he continues his clouting streak he will give his teammate, Rogers Hornsby, a hard rub for National League batting honors.

Speaking of Hornsby there is no one better than he in baseball today. He is a wonderful second baseman, a timely hitter, and a smart general. It is a pleasure to watch Rogers, the popular leader of the Cards and since his appearance here two years ago local fans have watched his progress with satisfaction.

Then there is Tompkins, one of the few players to wear "specks" on the playing field. Little does this bother the snappy little infielder and neither does it bother his hitting as can be seen from the box score of yesterday's game. Old Doc Lavan and Milton Stock are boys who have hung up their names in the hall of baseball fame.

Blades, a youngster who recently broke into the major show, is going strong and is developing into one of the stellar outfielders of the majors. Blades is a fast man in the field, has a good eye and a powerful throwing arm, three requisites for a good outer defense man. Besides this he is a hard hitter. He will be with the Cardinals on Sunday.

It will be a great array of baseball talent that will assemble at the Fairgrounds on Sunday and will be well worth seeing these boys perform. The Norwich club is no slouch of a team for a semi-pro aggregation but they cannot be spoken of in the same breath with the Cards, one of the best teams in the country. However, the local team will putup a good exhibition against the Cards and it is a safe bet that the Cards won't get as many runs off Boyce as they did at Philadelphia yesterday.

The local team played a bangup good game last Sunday against Canavan and will prove just as good tomorrow against the faster organization. There are some pretty good pitchers on the local team and they should come through with several hits off the big leaguers.

The Cards will give an infield exhibition before the game which is scheduled to start at 3.30 o'clock (D. S. T.) There will be plenty of parking space for automobiles and Manager O'Leary has made adequate arrangements for handling a large crowd.

The weather predictions are for showers and cooler weather on Sunday but it is hoped that the weather man is wrong again.

NINE TEAMS POST BONDS IN TWILIGHT LEAGUE

Only nine teams in the Norwich Twilight league posted bonds Friday evening which creates a little mix-up in the schedule. The teams to post bonds were the Cornets, Professional Men, Nuggets, East Ends, Harddigs, Atlantic Carton, Swanee Stars, Duwells and Jail Hills. The team that did not report was the Whirlwinds from Thamesville.

The Nuggets and Cornets were drawn to start the league Monday evening with the Atlantic Carton and Whirlwinds for Tuesday, East Ends and Harddigs for Wednesday, Duwells and Swanees for Thursday and Jail Hills and Professional Men for Friday. As the Whirlwinds are out of the league the Atlantic team is without opponents. Unless there is another team brought into the league one team will be without games for two weeks at a time if the league is run with nine teams.

PHILLIES AND CARDS PLAY RECORD BREAKING GAME

Philadelphia, May 11.—Several records were broken or equaled at the National League park today when Philadelphia defeated St. Louis, 20 to 14, in a hard-hitting contest.

Ten home runs were made by the two teams, which is said to be a National league record for one game. "Cy" Williams hit three of them, tying the mark of "Butch" Henline, a teammate of the Philadelphia slugger, made last year.

Williams now has twelve circuit clouts for the season and leads both major leagues in this respect. His third home run today was in the left field bleachers, the only time he has ever performed this feat.

St. Louis made 22 hits which gives the visitors 70 hits for the four-game series, beating the record of 69 hits for four contests, made by Boston here recently. The 14 runs made by the Cardinals gives them 41 for the series, beating Boston's mark by one run.

Mokan hit two home runs, both times with two men on base, and doubled on another trip to the plate. Mann also made two home runs while Bottomley had four hits, one a double. Eight pitchers were used by the two teams and 27 players participated in the contest. The score:

ZACHARY PROVES TOO STRONG FOR TIGERS

Detroit, May 11.—Zachary was too good for Detroit today and Washington beat the Tigers, 4 to 1. HEAVYWEIGHTS READY FOR ACTION THIS AFTERNOON AT NEW YORK

FIGHT RETURNS TO BE MEGAPHONED AT BULLETIN

The returns of the Willard-Johnson bout and the Firpo-McAuliffe bout at New York this afternoon will be megaphoned from the Bulletin office this afternoon. A direct wire will run to the Yankee stadium where the bouts will be held and every detail of the fight will be received at The Bulletin office, almost immediately.

New York, May 11—(By the A. P.)—Yankee stadium, the world's biggest baseball plant, was converted today into the world's greatest listic arena when tomorrow more than a ton of heavyweights will do battle for the free milk fund.

Room was made for 100,000 persons if that many cared to see Jess Willard, the aged former champion, try to prove his claim of pugilistic fitness against Floyd Johnson, a Des Moines youth of 22 years; see Luis Firpo, the powerful Argentinean against Jack McAuliffe, 2nd, a Detroit youngster who never has been floored for the full count, and three other contests.

A great block of seats has been purchased by society folk and another set aside for city and state officials. Thousands of general admission seats to be sold at the arena, will be placed on sale at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. Sale of other seats had passed the $300,000 mark at noon today. Promoter Rickard estimated that the receipts would total more than $500,000.

The Willard-Johnson and Firpo-McAuliffe matches are booked for 15 rounds each. Fred Fulton, the Minnesotan, who once was reckoned a championship contender and Jack Renault, Canadian champion, are to go in a ten-round match. Al Reich, one of the men who expected to whip champions but didn't will try his punches on Tiny Herman, a westerner, in six rounds. The opening engagement a four round match has Joe McCann, one of Firpo's mates, and Harry Drake, sparring man of Willard's camp, for principals.

Greatest interest is centered in the major engagement, Willard, beyond the 40 mark in years, has had three fights since he won the title from Jack Robinson in 1915, but for all of that appears to be in fine fettle. He has trained hard for months and believes that he can fight his way to Dempsey and past him. The mauling Dempseyite gave him at Toledo on July 4, 1919, still hurts his pride. He has admitted he was foolish and trained improperly for that affair. His opponent of the morrow, while not a thoroughly schooled pugilist, has ambition and youth.

Firpo, the South American, conqueror of Bill Brennan, who stood aghast at Firpo's rushes, champion, longer than any other man, the natural hitter of great punching power and some skill. Under the direction of Trainer de Forest Firpo has developed a better than fair defense and has learned to punch straight. He no longer uses the hammer-like blows that characterized his earlier style.

McAuliffe, 22 years old, who has been boxing since he was 18 knocked out a majority of his opponents and holds a 6-round decision over Floyd Johnson. He has been well trained, is fast and punches heavily.

Fred Fulton in his last contest, was stacked by Floyd Johnson in 12 rounds. He had Johnson near a knockout at the end.

Renault is a heavy puncher and one of the best boxers of the heivyweight division.

The first bout will be started at 3 o'clock daylight time. The Fulton-Renault match will be called at 3:45 o'clock, followed by Firpo-McAuliffe and Willard-Johnson.

Weather prospects are for a clear, cool day. In the event of rain the and if a second postponement becomes show will be held Saturday, May 19 necessary, on May 26.

WILLARD HAS ADVANTAGE OVER FLOYD JOHNSON

HOME RUN RSCORD FOR MAJOR BROKEN

New York, May 11—St. Louis and Philadelphia National league slugger's set a new major league record today when they knocked out ten home runs in a game at Philadelphia.

The best previous mark for two clubs in a single game was nine circuit clouts, established by Cincinnati and Boston National league teams in 1894 and duplicated the following year by Cincinnati and Chicago. The latter record was made in a seven-inning contest. The best American league mark was eight home runs, registered by Philadelphia and Detroit in 1921.

Cy Williams' feat in walloping three homers ties the modern record, made last year by Ken Williams, of the Browns, and deplicated by Walter Henline, of the Phillies, but is one less than the all-time record of four homers in a single game, hung up by R. L. Lowe of the Boston club, in 1894, and equalled in 1896 by Ed Delehanty, of the Philadelphia Nationals.

"RABBIT PUNCH" BARRED IN TODAY'S BOUTS

New York, May 11.—The New York state boxing commission today made a new ruling prohibiting use of the "rabbit punch" in all future bouts in the state, including those at the Yankee stadium tomorrow.

Experts pointed out that Luis Angel Firpo, the South American who battles Jack McAuliffe, 2nd, of Detroit, has employed it prominently in his past bouts in this country.

The commission's definition of the "rabbit punch" was a blow delivered from above, descending virtically, or nearly so, to land on the back of the neck at the base of the skull.

Most critics have define dthe punch as any blow on the back of the neck. It always has been regarded as a severe if not dangerous blow.

MOTHERS' DAY.

Back in 1908 Mothers' day was inaugurated in a quiet, inauspicious manner for the purpose of paying tribute to a woman who had been particularly active in the Sunday school of a Virginia town. Asked by the superintendent of that school to arrange a memorial service for her mother, Miss Anna Jarvis complied with the request. The thought was expressed that it would be fitting to pay tribute to all mothers as such. The idea was advanced by Miss Jarvis in Philadelphia and there on the second Sunday in May 1908 there was the first observance of Mothers' day.

Tomorrow we mark the 15th anniversary of a day which must have its special appeal to every individual. It is not to be imagined that all the sentiment that is aroused by such an idea can find expression in the observance of any one day. Mothers' day is every day and to those who are fully conscious of what a mother's influence, care and sacrifice really means it must ever be so regarded.

And yet the observance of a special Sunday has its excellent points. Perhaps there are some who have failed to get the same viewpoint as others concerning mothers. It might easily come from thoughtlessness or because individuals have been pretty closely wrapped up in themselves and have not awakened to the great debt due to their mothers.

Let there be, therefore, a general participation in the day, a real public expression of love and reverence for the mothers. It will be eagerly joined in by the many who have not forgotten and it may tend to encourage others who may have forgotten to loosen a little bit of that love and reverence not only for one day but throughout the year. It couldn't be better utilized.

THE IMMIGRATION PROBLEM.

Conditions are such at the present time that the immigration question is bound to get much attention. It cannot be said that the country isn't in danger of being flooded with great numbers of those in Europe who are dissatisfied with the unsettled conditions there should there be a letting down of the bars that were erected by the present restrictive law. Europe hasn't reached that point where all its people are entirely satisfied and desirous of remaining at home. It is easy to imagine what a flood of immigration there would be were it possible to dodge the restrictions.

Representative Johnson of the immigration committee of the house would change the restriction from three per cent to two per cent and have it figured on the basis of the nations here in 1890 instead of those here in 1910. That would not only greatly decrease those who might come but it would shift the bulk of the immigrants from one part of Europe to another.

Such an effort might get more support were it so that the unemployment situation here was the same as it was a year or so ago. Happily it is not. The situation today is such that we are in need of workers in excess of the supply. That may not warrant opening the gates but it provides an opening for the advancement of the idea of changing the restriction so that the situation can be better met.

An idea that is meeting with much approval is that which would leave the limitation at three per cent but would add to that a two per cent quota to be determined by selection. That would mean a total of five per cent of the nationals here in 1890 but two-fifths of them would be allowed to come in only after it had been determined that they were physically, mentally and normally fit and that they are of a class of immigrants that would provide desirable material for the melting pot. The idea of selection is sensible. It is in keeping with Americanization efforts. Whatever is urged in behalf of such relief will be sure to get opposition from certain directions quite the same as that which favors even greater restrictions than exist today.

CHINA'S NEED.

Efforts have been made to bring it about and hope has been entertained that conditions were improving in China. Such, however, doesn't appear to be borne out by the developments that have recently taken place there. Rather does it seem to be a disclosure of the real situation, annoying though it may be.

China is today suffering from too many factions to pull apart instead of a general desire to get together. With two or three governments fighting each other, sparring for advantage, and each in themselves handicapped by the division a state of irresponsibility is certain to develop and an excellent field for banditry created.

If the situation had not been discussed previously it has been emphasized by the seizure of a train load of subjects of other countries who have been held as hostages for [illegible] ransom. Still representations by other countries have moved the Peking government to order the ransom paid that the foreigners may be released. That may relieve the present emergency but most of all it should bring China to the realization of the fact that it is headed in the wrong direction, that its great need is unity and it is only through the strength that comes with such unity that it can expect to meet its responsibilities.

Paying the ransom is not going to end the situation that has arisen through the seizure. It operates to weaken the standing of any government there and it serves to create a demand for intervention on the part of other governments for the termination of a dangerous situation.

There is of course no heart for such a move. Japan has but recently retired from the Shantung province and there is no desire to revive any more complications in the far east. The time is ripe for China to rise to the situation if it is able and demonstrate the fact that it can protect itself as well as others within its limits without outside assistance. It remains to be seen whether it is willing to bury the factional differences that would be necessary to do so.

THE REPUBLICAN TICKET.

Not only harmony but good judgment was manifested at the republican caucus held Friday evening. Men of experience who have faithfully served the city in various capacities have properly been rewarded with a renomination. Other places on the ticket have been filled by the nomination of young men, actively and successfully engaged in the business affairs of the community, and the result is a ticket that should receive not only the endorsement of all republicans but of those conscientious citizens who are desirous of a proper administration of the affairs of the city.

Good government is the object in the presentation of such a ticket. Norwich is entitled to the best that can be obtained. It has reason to strive at all times for greater efficiency and economy in the administration of its affairs. When there is placed before the voters a ticket made up of those who are directly concerned in such a development, who are keenly alive to its needs and its shortcomings and who can be relied upon to devote their efforts to the faithful discharge of whatever trust is imposed upon them they are entitled to community support irrespective of party.

From the top to the bottom the republicans in caucus have nominated a ticket that should be successful on election day.

HOSPITAL INSPECTION DAY.

What do you know about the hospital? What do you know about the facilities that are there provided for the care of the sick and injured?

Those are questions that have been asked in every city of the country this week and in an effort to answer them the hospitals of the country are to be thrown open to public inspection today on what has come to be known as National Hospital day.

Instead of making an effort to tell the people about the institutions and their facilities, it is believed that they can get a much better idea from personal observance. In no other way is it possible to get the same general idea of the workings of a hospital, its facilities, provisions for the comfort of the patients and possibly its lack of equipment.

A hospital means much to any community and it is quite important that the public should have a thorough understanding of the work such an institution is called upon to do. Invariably those who have some knowledge of a hospital are astonished at the provisions that are made for the treatment of those who are dependent upon the availability of such an institution. At the same time in no better way is it possible to have set forth the opportunities that exist for the public to make even more efficient just such a community institution.

Those who visit the W. W. Backus hospital today are assured of a cordial welcome, between the hours of ten and four, and likewise an inspection, department by department, that is certain to be educational and profitable.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Sunday is Mothers' day. Don't fail to make the best possible use of the occasion.

Don't change your summer or vacation plans. You'll have good chance to use them yet.

Now that they are talking about old home week in New Hampshire again summer can't be far off.

The man on the corner says: Thus far the weatherman hasn't said anything definite about straw hats.

Lenine is sick but that is not the only thing that is the matter with the soviet government in Russia.

Possibly De Valera is disappointed over the refusal of his offer by the Irish Free State. Not many others are.

Those sugar operators who figure that women cannot stand together bid fair to have their opinion changed.

It will be only a short time now before those who have been frozen this week will be deploring the terribly hot weather.

Removing the limit on the amount of liquor the doctors may prescribe will not affect those who do not use up their present blanks.

Now that the caucus has named a city election ticket it remains for the republicans to get out in numbers and give it the support it deserves.

Those who want new buildings in New York and have got millions to build them with have decided they prefer to wait rather than be robbed.

Russia seems to be fearful that Japan will withdraw recognition. But that is more concern than it manifests relative to mistreatment of the British.

The one great trouble with the predicted surplus in the treasury for the federal fiscal year in the minds of the treasury raiders is that congress isn't in session so that could spend it.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

What is the cause of so many failures in life? Is it lack of interest, want of power, or failure of purpose in tackling the job like a real red-blooded man? The experience of the school room helps us to an understanding of the matter. The pupil (presumably a boy) opens his book to a hard problem, gives it a hasty glance, and as it seems too hard for his headpiece, gets cold feet, and gives it up as an impossible task. Nearly every teacher, if not all, will tell you that the chief cause of failure in the schoolroom is not lack of ability, but lack of proper application. Of course now and then there will be a pupil of subnormal mental power, but the lazy or weak-kneed pupil almost crowds him out of existence. If the pupil will only consent to look at the problem squarely in the face and keep looking at it he will, in most cases, begin to see into it, and seeing into a thing means eventually seeing through it, and that is mastery.

In 1742, David Hume, the skeptic, published a remarkable volume entitled "Essays," which made a profound impression on his age. One of them deals with "The Jealousy of Trade." Now jealousy is a bitter, selfish spirit aroused when somebody else has something that we don't have but want, or does something that we would like to do but can't. With this idea in mind Hume writes, "Nothing is more usual among states which have made some advances in commerce, than to look on the progress of their neighbors with a suspicious eye, to consider all trading states as their rivals, and to suppose that it is impossible for any of them to flourish, but at their expense." Hume goes on to show the folly of this narrow and malignant opinion. Commerce enriches a state so that it can enter into general trade relations. If France or England raises a minor power to commercial activity it benefits the United States because that power will have the means of buying what we have to export.

Bishop Joseph Hall of Old Norwich from 1641 to 1656 has this pertinent passage in regard to the use of time. The only defect in his statement is the failure of the prophetic note. He fails to specify whether he is talking about standard time or daylight saving time. Let it be granted though the good bishop wrote his essay some two hundred and seventy-five years ago, he ought to have had the far vision to see the degenerate times when wicked hands would boost Old Father Time along. Still the bishop's words are wise. "Every day is a little life: and our whole life is but a day repeated; whence it is that old Jacob numbers his life by days; and Moses desires to be taught this point of holy arithmetic, to number not his years, but his days. Those, therefore, that dare lose a day are dangerously prodigal; those that dare miss-spend it, desperate." This is good advice for those who tamper with God's clocks.

What a lesson of regularity is taught by the seasons! While we may have some seasons colder than others, and we call them backward, still the sun crosses the equator at the same time, with only a mathematical difference. And of course we have had the seasons as long as we have had the revolution of the earth around its own axis, and in the yearly journey around the sun. What can beat that for regularity! especially when we think that this has been kept up ever since the solar system has been functioning for millions of years. Yet science tells us there is a variation exceedingly minute. This old world of ours is slowing up a bit. Something is tugging at it to keep it back. But we should worry because we shall have been dead as long as old Tut before anybody but the scientist will find it out. If you and I plant corn and potatoes "seed time and harvest shall never cease."

The shock that came to the Daughters of Veterans and the allied societies at their state encampment recently held in this city can hardly fail to make one think. How true it is "whilst in life we are in the midst of death." Perhaps you feel like saying: "Oh, don't speak about it, let us forget it!" Now there are things of human experience that we ought to speak about; things that we can't forget if we try, simply because we ought not to forget them. If we are living according to the highest accepted ideals of life, the sudden translation from the world's preparatory school to God's university—such as came to the good woman the other night—ought not to fill us with gloom, much less with horror. After all isn't it a beautiful way to go for the one taken? Scarcely a conscious twinge of pain? No pathetic period of decline! No lingering, wasting of the body or decline of the mind! Isn't there a beauty in such a translation?

The posterity of Jonathan Edwards gives evidence that it is from good homes that the brightest children come; not necessarily from the wealthiest or the most highly cultured, but from those where the living conditions make for the highest type of character. Or, as another has very succinctly put it, "it is the best homes that uniformly yield the best products." That is at least a clear scientific statement of the matter. As far as there are any available statistics, Jonathan Edwards was the progenitor of a larger number of men and women of unusual talent than any man this country has yet produced. His was the average home as far as wealth and poverty were concerned, but it was exceedingly rich in mental and moral ideals, and most of those who sprang from him were similarly blessed. The number of college presidents who descended from him is amazing. It pays in every sense to live the higher life.

We make a good deal of sport about the slow-moving, plodding, methodical ways of the fathers, but they seemed to get no small degree of comfort out of life. Perhaps they did not live as broadly as we, but they certainly lived as deeply. They did not have so many books and magazines as we, but they mastered more thoroughly the material they had. They did not attempt to do so many things that we do, and especially along the lines of church work. Were they to watch the activities of some of our churches, they would wonder if it was much more than the rattle of empty machinery. They would see how possible it is to keep things going without doing anything, or getting anywhere. They were certainly free from the fret and worry, the rush and hurry, the jump and the gallop to reach the top of the hill that has nothing on it. But our churches are not the only sinners in this direction. The schools have a much higher fever than the churches. The hectic flush is seen everywhere from kindergarten to university. The weight is on the top pushing the higher studies down, and if this keeps on it will not be long before they will be teaching psychology and the calculus in the fourth grade. We need a little of the old time leisure to mingle with the fire in our blood. We need to "take time to be holy" and to think.

A dancer from the House of David amusement park told the special grand jury investigating at St. Joseph, Mich. the cult that "King Benjamin Purnell, 60-year-old leader, made improper advances to her in Shiloh, the home of Purnell and his wife, "Queen" Mary, last July.

THE WILLINGTON-WESTFORD-NORTH WOODSTOCK ROUTE.

David B. Chism of Westford, a native of Ashford and a thoughtful student of natural conditions, contributes the following interesting reminiscences concerning the so-called Central Turnpike in Tolland and Windham counties scheduled as part of the trunk line highway of the state:

"The observing traveler is impressed by the enterprise of past generations. One may still find relics and landmarks of the old stage-coach days when this Willington-Westford-North Woodstock route was alive with traffic and by-way industries. The decline was due to the coming of the railroads. We learn that through stages were discontinued five years before the New London Northern railroad was put in operation in 1854. Business on the 'Central Turnpike' (as this stage route was then known) had fallen off, due to the competition of the Boston and Albany and the Norwich and Worcester roads, and other lines were under construction or projected. It is easy to understand that Messrs. Child, Richmond and Shell, who received the charter to build and operate the section of turnpike, could not foresee that the then-coming railroads would so utterly fail, seventy-five years later, to take care of the cross-country traffic now done by autocars and trucks.

"Traveling today from the Stafford highway (at the point mentioned above West Willington) and along the seventeen-miles strip, about half a mile east of Brown's Crossing you may see traces of the old time 'Eldridge Mill' (shingle and grist) and of the Parker Brothers' thread and spool shops, which must have made a good use of the water power of Roaring Brook. To the right, as we proceed, silica quarts sand was procured on the G. A. Frink farm (now owned by W. D. Ruby) for the nearby glass factories. The samples of glass available indicate the presence of iron oxide, and reports state that the quantity is ample.

"The new Roaring Brook schoolhouse of recent years, costing twenty times as much as its predecessor—still standing adjacent—would lead one to suppose that ambition is not dead except in the trifling matter of earning money! The Athol and Norwich turnpike, now abandoned in this section—it crossed the Central Turnpike about one-third mile north of the new schoolhouse—was the site of a toll-gate, later moved to a point near the Moose Meadow church, by special act of the legislature.

Estings Mill.

"On a cross-road a few rods to the left was the Estings mill, where the once-famous Estings scythes were made, and remnants of the dam and foundation walls may still be seen. The name Estings was a symbol of quality in scythes. It is interesting to recall that in 1834 the general assembly granted a charter for a turnpike starting at the Ben Lillibridge house—not on the Central Turnpike, but on the old road from Westford to Stafford about half a mile west of Moose Meadow church—and going north and east in Willington, Stafford, Ashford, Union and Woodstock, and later amended to permit junction with Central Turnpike at any point between Brown's Crossing and the Eastford line. Our friends from the north might profitably look into this—especially the grade from the axe factory! The broken-down dam at Moose Meadow pictures a reservoir of large capacity.

"Fenton Brook, with Bishop sawmill and steel-yard works; Ward grist mill, at the present Beaver dam; a stocking mill above; the sand and grist mill not far below at Tinkerville—all these show that the earlier industries of stage-coach days knew how to make the water work for them. Tradition has in that Esquire Richmond over-ruled in his desire to have the turnpike follow the top of the dam, thus greatly improving plan and grade.

"Passing into Ashford, we come to the site of the Burley hotel, now burned. Situated as it was at the highest point on the Central Turnpike with two beautiful ponds in front, itself sheltered from winter winds by hills and timber, it indicated that its founder was endowed with a rare sense of favorable location. Little is now left of the old George Lincoln tannery at the next four-corners. One shoemaker's leather apron in good condition can still be seen—a gift of Mr. Lincoln to Andrew Chapman, life-long friend and neighbor who excelled at the shoemaker's art.

"At this point stands the last-remaining toll-gate keeper's house, convenient to the gate and to the dwelling, the latter now occupied by George Urde. Of the numerous tanner's and curry shops in this section, the Lincoln shop was probably the last to produce leather.

Boston Hollow.

"Geologically, Boston Hollow, still a most picturesque spot just northeast of Westford village, deserves a special volume by trained observers—who in fact will come in numbers when the opening highway brings realization of the wonderful formations to be observed here — but in those days of which we now speak the industrial activities, including the 'gold mine' near the west end, Boiling Rock, maple-sugar making and shingle-splitting near midway of the 'Hollow,' were scenes of earnest endeavor. A casual examination of the mine opening shows a low-grade pyrite (marcosite) with small quartz lens. It is not clear whether the iron and sulphur (fool's gold) misled the 'miners' who exploited this rugged hillside—with disappointment.

"A transverse path intersecting the Central Turnpike midway in Boston Hollow and bears the name of Varnum, who was the last Indian to survive in this part of the Wabbaquasset country.

"All along the way, something visible from the highway, or not far therefrom, traces of steam sawmills sites are to be found; but the most convincing evidence of the destruction of the forests is the lack of grateful shade overhead as one travels in midsummer. It is recalled that in the days of the broad, level and smooth turnpike a considerable portion of Boston Hollow road was once used by sporting men with horses, as a race course and its reputation as an available track spread to neighboring states.

"At the axe factory (east end of Boston Hollow) the Central Turnpike is crossed by a much older north-and-south road, the old-time Ashford and Union highway; and at 'Ashford Town' on the hill to the east beyond 'Pompey Hollow' (now Warrenville) the Ashford post office was the post-center for all this section, including Union, Eastford and Westford, in the days when Ben Franklin was postmaster general. A little less than one hundred years ago axes were made at seven different waterfalls in this general neighborhood, but the name clings especially to the point where the Central Turnpike crosses the Bibelow river—perhaps because the product Michael Richmond excelled. A prodigious grindstone seems about the only remaining evidence of this activity.

"Travelers on the southward road mentioned above will pass a stone chimney which stood for fifty years after the house was torn down and the mortar weathered out. A symmetrical oak, whose shadow spreads 150 feet and is tall in proportion, stands by the roadside, and is eighteen feet in diameter at the stump line. Farther back from the road stands a chestnut which measures 27 feet in circumference: but like all chestnut trees it is now making a losing fight, after centuries of existence. A former owner sought to preserve this ancient landmark by reserving title to it when selling the farm. It is doubtful if its equal in size can be found east of the Rocky mountains, an elm mentioned by Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes at Wethersfield being the nearest.

"Beginning at Boston Hollow by the big hemlock, Samuel Curtis built the portion of the Central Turnpike for nearly two miles to the east and beyond the Charles Walker place, making a smooth path 22 feet wide, or one foot wider than elsewhere along the line. The balance of his account, after paying costs, showed sixteen cents per day for his time and enterprise! After 93 years, there is still evidence that he did a good job. Many of the roadside fences have disappeared, but measurements across from wall to wall show 99 to 100 feet as the width of the right of way.

Old Schoolhouse.

"At that axe factory there still stands, in a good state of preservation, a schoolhouse built by the community and loaned to the town for school purposes, reserving the right to hold public worship therein. Repeated repairs have been made by donations in the neighborhood. At one time the 'Millerites' gathered there for miles around. Later, 'union services' were held on Sunday afternoons and midweek prayer meetings in a dozen homes in the vicinity, sometimes with forty or fifty persons in attendance.

"In later days, when the telephone people sought out the most direct route for the big forty-wire system from Boston to Hartford, they followed the Central Turnpike for its entire length. The big copper connection of the French-American cable diverges at Westford for a point on the coast near Sandwich, Mass."

SUNDAY MORNING TALK

A FULL REWARD.

"Look to yourselves that ye lose not the things which we have wrought, but that ye receive a full reward," 2 John 8. Such sublimity, majesty, and perfection of beauty, grace and power attaches to the Divine character, that it compels the soul to a high conception of any rewards he may promise. As the friends of Cyrus declared of him that he knew dow to bestow gifts worthy of a prince, so the soul avers that the rewards offered by one so exalted must be worthy of His high estate; and fancy at once takes wing to measure the value, the rarity, the loveliness and beauty of His rewards. A full reward can be gained only by a full service. No half service will do here. If we are to gain this fullness of approbation there must be a fullness of surrender, a whole-heartedness of service. Is there not here a motive to arouse the most heroic self-denial, not merely to have a place in Heaven, be among the redeemed, but to be of the number of those who receive the hand of the king of kings and lord of lords the full reward?

Let us look at its nature. We get some glimpses of its fullness from a study of the seven "overcometh" of the second and third chapters of Revelation. We find, first, immortality promised (Rev. 2:7); second, immunity from the second death (Rev. 2:11); third the promise of a secret source of life and strength, "he shall eat of the hidden manna," and a certain personal relationship with Christ mutually known to them two only (Rev. 2:17, power and glory are added in the 27th and 28th verses, "To him will I give power to rule over the nations and I will give him the morning star'. He shall be clothed with Heavenly robes (Rev. 3:5) and shall be a pillar in God's temple, his citizenship in the holy city shall be acknowledged publicly by the Divine One; he shall be a pillar in God's temple, his citizenship in the holy city shall be known, as also his heirship with the Divine One (Rev. 3:12). But more than this, Oh! infinitude of love, mercy compassion and tenderness, "He shall sit with me in my Throne!" What love is this? Surely none but the great creator could so see into the heart of man as to discover any latent possibility of goodness, any hidden germ of holiness that could so reach the possibility of Divine recognition. None but God could have been Savior of Man. By none other could man's susceptibility and capability for righteousness be known. But note, the latter clause of this verse opens to us a great scope for strength, "To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my throne even as I also overcame and am set down with my father on his throne". We find here the possibility in human service, even as I overcame. Yes! we poor, helpless mortals, lost in sin and self, may be so gloriously saved, redeemed, transformed by the power of an in-dwelling Christ that we may overcome even as He overcame. Here is a glorious salvation. Do you wonder that the heavenly host never tires crying, "Worthy is the Lamb that was slain," and He is "sit with me on my throne, as I also am set down with my father on his throne." Does your faith rise to the height of this conception? "Eye hath not seen nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man the things which God hath prepared for them that love him". 1 Cor. 2:9.

It was revealed to Abram by the words of Gen. 15:1, "Fear not, Abram, I am thy shield, thy exceeding great reward," not gifts alone, not worlds to be ruled, nor bowers of lilies beside purling streams of crystal clearness, not only bread from Heaven, hidden manna, and a blessed personal relationship mutually known and enjoyed, the new name; more than this more than citizenship with God, more than shining raiment, more than the new name, yes, even more than a seat on the Heavenly throne, far more than this, "I am thy exceeding great reward". He, the giver gives himself. Do we grasp it? Do not our hearts stand still while we think and ponder, He gives as none other can

Gen. H. J. E. Gouraud, who has accepted an invitation to be the guest of the Rainbow Division at its coming reunion in Minneapolis, is the French military leader under whose command the famous division served for a time in the World War. General Gouraud was one of the younger men whom Joffre selected during the early part of the war for important commands. He had already made his reputation as a soldier before the beginning of the great war. Selected to suppress the rising at Fes in 1912 his success on this occasion brought him into prominence. At the outbreak of the war in Europe he was placed in command of the Moroccan division of the Colonial Corps. In 1915 he was given command of the French expeditionary forces in the Gallipoli campaign, in which he lost an arm and was badly wounded in the right thigh. Then he was sent to Morocco as French resident-general, but was soon back in France and continued in the thick of the fighting until the armistice was signed.

TO EXPECTANT MOTHERS

Springfield, Ohio.—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound proved a splendid medicine for me before my fourth child was born. With the first three I had been sick and weak, and had sick headaches twice a week. I couldn't keep enough food down to do me any good, and my work was left undone many a time. My sister-in-law told me to take the Vegetable Compound when I began to have the same old dreadful sickness and headaches and was so worn out. Since then I have only had two headaches, had a good appetite and scarcely lost a meal. I have a fine, healthy baby girl who has never had a sick day. The nicest part is that I am healthy, too. It did me a lot of good, and if I should ever have another baby I will take your medicine at once."—Mrs. Bessie Ward, 1027 Park Avenue, Springfield, Ohio.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is an excellent medicine for expectant mothers and should be taken during the entire period. It has a general effect to strengthen and tone up the entire system.

Stories That Recall Others

Hopeless.

Modesty is regarded as a virtue in a schoolroom, although it is not always practiced there. Now and then instructors have thought of devising a course on the subject for adoption as part of the curriculum, deeming it equally important as rhetoric or some other study that might be productive of a flow of speech.

Recently a teacher had his experience with the rhetoric class. The pupil, somewhat younger than his classmates, and with an unconscious egotism that needed to be squelched for his future benefit, persisted in answering out of his turn. His classmates might have answered the questions, but he would not give them the chance. In exasperation the teacher said:

"S——, suppose you were out hunting and the gun you were carrying was discharged accidentally. What would you do?"

Failing to note the sarcasm because of his inability to see beyond the personal pronoun "I", the pupil spoke up quickly:

"Why, I'd load it again."

"That fellow's hopeless," said the teacher to another pupil after the class period was adjourned.

Davis, domestic secretary of the department of missions, of the national council of the church. The toastmaster will be Judge Gardiner Greene.

The general committee organization consists of Walter E. Gilbert, chairman; E. Allen Bidwell, treasurer and John W. McKinley, secretary.

The sub-committees are as follows: On speakers, Archdeacon Brown and Rev. Frederick C. Williams. On music, William J. Banfield and James Johnson. On invitations and printing, J. FORMER NORWICH BOY BECOMES ATTORNEY GENERAL

Irving A. Hinckley of Lancaster, N. H., son of Mrs. Walter A. Hinckley of Worcester, Mass., has been appointed attorney general of New Hampshire by Gov. Fred H. Brown. Mr. Hinckley is a Norwich boy, having been born in Greeneville about 32 years ago, and was graduated from the Greeneville grammar school in 1903. Later he removed to Hartford with his parents, his father, Walter A. Hinckley, being a railroad man, in the employ of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad. Mr. Hinckley will be remembered by many Greeneville residents who will be pleased to learn of his success.

He is a graduate of the class of 1910, Clark college, and following his graduation received his master's degree from the university, and then was principal of high schools in Maine and New Hampshire. He entered the bar in 1918 and has since been affiliated with the law firm of Shurtleff, Oakes & Hinckley of Concord, N. H. He is a brother of Arthur D. Hinckley, manager of the men's department of the Porteous & Mitchell company.

CUTTING SHANNON CORNER STOP FOR TROLLEY CARS

Pursuant to a vote by the common council in its meeting last Monday night, which was a request to the Connecticut Co. to discontinue stopping its trolley cars at Shannon's corner to take on or let off passengers, the trolley company is to put such an order into effect on Sunday morning.

The order also complies with the request that there shall be no stops for trolley cars in Main street between Shetucket street and Market street.

This action by the council was taken in the interest of avoiding traffic congestion at that corner, but it has evoked considerable criticism. Some of the adverse comments has been on behalf of aged people who ride to the corner on their way to church services, who will thus have another block added to their walk to church as they will be obliged to get off either at Franklin square or at Market street. The same would apply to theatre and bank patrons as well as to those intending to visit many of the principal stores in the business center of the city.

ALL NOMINATIONS UNANIMOUS AT CITY CAUCUS HELD BY REPUBLICANS

In one of the most harmonious caucuses in many a year the republicans of Norwich nominated their candidates for city offices for the election in June, Friday night at the town hall. It was the concensus of opinion that the ticket this year is one of the strongest ever presented for the approval of the electors of Norwich and is made up of men of high calibre who, if elected, will serve the city with credit.

The meeting was called to order at 7 o'clock, standard time, by Arthur F. Libby, chairman of the republican town committee, and Judge Nelson J. Ayling was unanimously elected chairman of the caucus and Attorney Josiah Greenstein by a like vote was elected clerk by the 45 men present.

On the call for nominations for aldermen, Ex-Mayor Herbert M. Lerou arose and stated that he had in mind a man, a buy man, yet one who had always found time to give to public and civic affairs. He took pleasure in placing the name of E. LaRue Bliven before the caucus as a man who would serve with credit to himself and to the city. Mr. Bliven was unanimously nominated as were all the other candidates named in the meeting.

For second alderman, L. A. Geer placed the name of Edward Crooks befre the caucus, a man, he said, who has served for six years as councilman for the city and has served efficiently.

For councilmen, Edwin W. Higgins proposed the name of Martin Rozycki who has already served two terms as councilman; Weston C. Pullen proposed the name of F. Russell Smith, a man who served his country and France in the World war, and late a member of the governor's staff; Stephen H. Reeves placed the name of Alfred G. Lillibridge before the caucus and A. J. Bailey proposed the name of Lee Clegg, both popular young business men of the city.

For city treasurer Adelard Morin said he had in mind a man well capable of taking care of the office, Stephen H. Reeves.

For city clerk, Lee Roy Robbins proposed the name of Weston C. Pullen, present incumbent, who, he said, would have the vote of many local democrats this June and was well liked by everyone.

Harold T. Robinson, who for several terms has run on both the republican and democratic tickets for city tax collector, was nominated by Robert McNeely, who said Mr. Robinson had served the city faithfully and satisfactorily and should be continued in office.

For two city sheriffs the names of Charles H. Raynes was proposed by William Murray and that of Morris B. Looby by Judge John H. Barnes, both being unanimously elected. In placing the name of Mr. Looby before the caucus Judge Barnes caused considerable amusement when he said Mr. Looby was a popular man in the "City of Greeneville."

For a member of the water board Telley E. Babcock and Charles F. Wells rose at the same time but Mr. Babcock placed the name of Reuben S. Bartlett before the caucus before Mr. Wells could name the same man. In speaking of Mr. Bartlett Mr. Babcock said as clerk of the board Mr. Bartlett had served with honor and his re-election would be best for the city.

At the close of the meeting G. Warren Davis, who had arrived at a neutral time, about half way between the time for the opening of the caucus, (7 o'clock standard time, and 8 o'clock daylight time), arose and asked if anyone knew what time the candidates were really nominated. The warning was read for his benefit and adjournment followed quickly at 7.20 o'clock, standard time, and 8.20 o'clock, daylight time, before any more time, standard or daylight, could be lost by arguments.

LAST WEEK WORST IN STATE'S AUTO ACCIDENTS

As a fitting introduction to its safety campaign which will start next week, the Department of Motor Vehicles has announced that last week was the worst this year for automobile accidents. The 161 serious accidents in the seven large Connecticut cities last week showed a jump of nearly 50 per cent over the 110 reported a week ago and an increase of over 100 per cent over the number reported for the same week last year.

New London, which was commended in the last two reports for its absence of serious accidents, now appears as the worst locality in Connecticut for major mishaps. A total of fifteen accidents of a serious nature happened in the sea port town for the seven days under consideration, and figuring the matter out on a population and registration basis, the Department has assigned the city a grade of 10 per cent of perfection.

A year ago today the Department issued a report on accidents which showed 160 for the preceding week in all Connecticut, 122 in 1921 for the same week. That makes these, exactly, occurred in the seven large cities for the first week of May 1921, 80 for the same week in 1922, and 161 in 1923.

The number of accidents occurring in the individual cities for this year in comparison with last year follows:

City	1923	1922
New Britain	12	7
Bridgeport	24	16
Meriden	6	5
New Haven	32	20
Waterbury	15	9
Hartford	37	26
New London	15	7
	161	80

BOYS LEARNING FAST IN Y. M. C. A. SWIMMING CAMPAIGN

The boys attending the "Y" swimming campaign classes at the Y. M. C. A. this week are having real summer sport even though the weather has not been any too balmy outdoors. Lots of fun is being injected into the instruction work and there are stunts galore, such as imitating a floating turtle, steamboat, diving for objects, blowing bubbles under water and the like.

Following the fifth lesson which was given Friday, 17 boys swam the required distance of 50 feet, which is almost the length of the big Y pool. They were Frank D'Atri, Benny Bruckner, Joseph Falcone, George Chapelle, Lawrence Foster, William Piak, Robert Hall, Rudolf Thumm, Hoyt Taylor, Anthony Golimbiewski, William Thumm, George Lambert, John Agiluco, Ernest Stevens, Clyde Hayden, Hustin Junkins, Max Goldfarb.

The final lessons of this week's classes will be given today (Saturday) and the new classes will be initiated Monday. Many boys who were too late for this week's classes have signed up and next week's classes will be large, from all indications.

SEDGWICK RELIEF CORPS RECEIVES THREE APPLICATIONS

Sedgwick Woman's Relief corps, No. 16, held its regular meeting at the Buckingham Memorial Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock with President Jayne E. Seed in the chair. The secretary's and treasurer's reports were read and accepted and one candidate was initiated and papers received from three others. It was voted to assist in getting the luncheon for Memorial day for members of the G. A. R. The meeting closed with repeating the American's Creed and a salute to the flag.

Eighteen members of the corps attended the convention held in Hartford this week. The members are also planning for a rummage sale to be held at the Buckingham Memorial in about another week.

POLICE FORCE TO BE ON DAYLIGHT SAVING

Police Chief George Linton announced on Friday that the Norwich police force is to go on a daylight saving schedule, beginning next Monday morning.

Other departments of the city, including the fire department, the street department and gas and electric department, have been on the daylight saving schedule since that went into effect this year, but the police have been working along on standard time, the same as they did all last season during the daylight saving period.

MOVING PICTURES AND MUSIC AT THE Y. M. C. A.

Fine scenic pictures with an educational value will be shown at the Norwich Young Men's Christian association tomorrow at 4 p. m.

There will also be delightful music by John Swahn and his orchestra. A brief talk will be given in connection with the pictures. The hour will be a profitable one, and all men and older boys are cordially invited.

If some people did nothing but mind their own business they would soon become narrow minded.

CHAMLEE CHARMS AUDIENCE IN CONCERT PROGRAMME

Mario Chamlee, leading tenor with the Metropolitan Opera company, closed the season of the Slater hall concert course Friday evening at Slater hall with a programme that was a succession of insistent encores from end to end for the talented artist.

In a brief word of comment after the concert he spoke with enthusiasm of the reception that had been given him by the crowd that filled the hall, saying that Norwich had given him a wonderfully appreciative musical audience before whom it had been an inspiration to sing.

Greeting him with a volume of applause that brought him back to bow acknowledgement after his first number, his audience gave him unbounded approval with each succeeding number. His was a voice that the audience agreed deserved all the praise that has been showered upon it, rich in tonal beauty and perfectly rounded throughout its register of power, and used with consummate ease and lack of effort by the gifted singer.

The following was the programme:

Aria: La Boheme	Puccini
Che gelida manina
Triste Soir	Sinigaglia
Chanson Poul le Petit Checal	Severac
Il Neige	Bemberg
Vignettes of Italy	Winter Watts
Addio
Naples
Capri
Ponte Vecchio-Florence
Stresa
Aria: Carmen	Bizet
Flower Song
The Last Hour	Kramer
Dreams Dimly Lying	Roxas
Red Roses	Quirke
Aria: Martha	Flotow
M'Appari

For an encore after the first group of songs he gave Memory (R. Ganz) and after the Italian Vignettes he sang a delightful little sketch, On Sunday (Walker.)

The encore number after the aria from Carmen was a beautiful ballad, Your Voice, of which the composer was Conan O'C Quirke, the accompanist of the evening, and after a splendid rendering of Mr. Quirke's Red Roses, Mr. Chamlee gave for an encore Leoncavello's Mattinata.

An encore number that closed the programme was Tosti's Parted, which was interpreted with admirable feeling by Mr. Chamlee.

Mr. Chamlee is the youngest of the tenors of first operatic rank, having been born in 1892 in Los Angeles. His career has been a meteoric one, beginning with his appearance, after three years of study, with the National Opera company, after which he sang for two seasons on the Pacific coast with the Scala Opera company. Just before his service in the war he sang with the Aborn Opera company and upon his return to civilian life he joined the Metropolitan Opera company and also toured with the Scotti Opera company, singing the principal tenor roles. This past season his prestige has steadily increased and New York critics have been lavish in their praise of him.

BRINGS $10,000 SUIT FOR DEATH OF MICHAEL SHEA

Suit against the city of Norwich for $10,000 damages for the death of Michael J. Shea on Oct. 19, 1922, has been brought in the superior court by the administratrix of his estate, Mary Shea. The suit is returnable in June.

The claim is made that Mr. Shea's death was due to injuries he received in a fall on North Main street about 9 o'clock on the night of Oct. 7, for which the city was to blame through the alleged rough and defective condition of the street and a fence through which Mr. Shea fell onto low land about 10 to 15 feet below the street level.

The accident happened at a point about 150 feet southerly from the Norwich Belt Manufacturing Co. office and the injuries which Mr. Shea received were a broken collarbone, dislocated shoulder, internal injuries and shock.

More Traffic for Alaska.

One more step in "opening up" Alaska will be taken when the government begins operation of river boats on the Yukon and Tanana this summer.

"Thus Fairbanks, interior metropolis of Alaska, becomes officially the place where rails and rivers meet," says a bulletin from the Washington D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society. "Fairbanks marks the apex of a traffic triangle with one leg planted at Seward, southern terminus of the Alaska railway, and the other on Bering sea where flow the waters of the Tanana and the Yukon.

"The Yukon is one of the world's great rivers. If its mouth were at New York city its source would be near Salt Lake City.

"The Tanana, the less familiar portion of the new government boat route, is the Yukon's chief southern tributary. It drains the vast Tanana valley, rich in gold, other minerals, and virgin farm lands.

"This imperial valley of the far north, as large as West Virginia, now has a white population of less than 7,000. In a dozen years after the first substantial gold output, in 1903, yellow ore ware $66,000,000 was mined.

"Steaming up the Yukon in summer time the visitor will reach a town of many flowers, where numerous homes have hothouses, some have bird boxes on their peaks, and practically all have vegetable gardens. Wild roses and Scotch blue-bells grow in the fields.

"He rubs his eyes and exclaims 'This can't be Alaska!' But it is, and Alaskans would have their fellow-Americans recover from the idea due to misleading textbooks of generations gone that theirs is a 'forbidding, ice-covered, glacier-crowned land of dog teams and polar bears.' The quotations is from the most recent report of the territorial government, and it is repeated at every opportunity.

"The Alaskans are not denying marked climatic differences from the States. A novelist recently sent the proof of a serial story he was writing to a native. This writer had the pitch-dark of a Fourth of July night illuminated by fireworks. The fireworks were all right, the Alaskan celebrates with the rest of us—but there is no night in June.

"Fairbanks had to pass a curfew law that all children must be put to bed summer evenings by 10 o'clock, lest the youngsters get inadequate rest. After your host has tucked the children to bed and takes you to a dance or to the 'movies' is a queer sensation to walk home in daylight.

"The town of flowers and birds and gardens is Tanana. Turning into the river of that name the visitor is assailed by less pleasant evidences that Alaska is not all winter. Mosquitoes and moosoflies abound.

"The Tanana is broad and placid. Green willows and populars push out over the water's edge, for the earth banks are soft and the dirt melts away as in many places the water digs a cave beneath.

"Often turning and twisting, your boat will pass Tolovana where, on a clear day Mt. McKinley, a hundred miles away, is visible. Farther on is Nenana, now the terminus of the broad-guage Alaska railroad from Seward. Today passengers must change here to the narrow guage line to Fairbanks. With the opening of the 700-foot, single-span bridge across the river at this point, the narrow guage will be converted to the standard track width and trains will run through.

"The government railway made Nenana a busy little town of neat buildings and up-to-date stores. So anxious are its citizens for a 'spotless town' ideal that they prohibit dogs within a mile of their community.

"The next town is Chena, which hopes to wrest future laurels from Fairbanks as the St. Louis of inland Alaska.

"Then Fairbanks! Here, as in Dawson, sandwiches once cost a dollar apiece, fortunes were dug up and squandered, and the hilarity of a big city's night life extended through the 24 daylight hours.

"Today Fairbanks retains little trace of a mining town. It has electric lights, stores, telephones, an agricultural college, jitneys run out to nearby towns and camps, and its women are reputed to be the most modishly dressed in the territory.

"The electric lighting plant is used for the chicken houses as well as the homes in the dark winter, small farms and dairies are springing up around the city, and their celery, growers insist, is on Fairbanks tables before that of Massachusetts reaches Boston consumers.

"Fairbanks has its slogan, too, like its sister cities back in the states. It wants more roads and railroads, and capital for development of its surrounding coal fields. Therefore its appeal, about to be realized in part, 'Give us the railway and motive power, and we will pay the nation's war debt!'"

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

It is of special interest to manufacturing concerns and others to know that cotton mill operatives in Danielson and various nearby communities have been organized in some degree by the American Federation of Textile Operatives representatives within the past few months. This appears to be the introduction of unionism in textile factories in this corner of the state, where mill labor has been unorganized as far back as memory goes.

Such organization as now exists here among the workers has been brought about largely through the desire of the workers to be in a position to co-operate with textile unions in the large industrial centers like Fall River, New Bedford, Lowell, Lawrence, Manchester and other places in New England. There is a well grounded feeling among the majority who have joined the textile union in this field that much that has been achieved in the way of better working conditions, higher pay and shorter hours has been due to union pressure and influence and that the unions will guard what has been gained for the future.

Investigation here also establishes that the 55-hour week now in force has as much as any other one factor made possible the birth of unions in this territory. It appears that the great majority of the workers are intensely earnest about wanting a 48-hour week and feel that the best means at their command for obtaining a return to it is through organized pressure. Admissions of mill operators that it is already very difficult to compete against southern mills and that working a shorter week would make it more so, watch the probability of killing the textile industry in New England in favor of the south, fall largely on deaf ears among the workers, a statement that can be checked up by anyone sufficiently interested to go among these workers and get their opinion on the matter.

What the union strength is in the territory between the Quinebaug and Jewett City is not definitely stated, but union organizers say it is considerable and is constantly being recruited through meetings such as were recently held in Danielson and through personal canvass among employes of mills hereabouts. Manufacturers have kept more or less closely in touch with the situation, but have made no comment upon it.

Mothers' day special—$1.00 box of chocolates and two gold fish in a globe for 79 cents today at Mose the Druggist.—Adv.

Wilfred Tetreault, 12, of Moosup died at the Backus hospital in Norwich this week. The boy was seriously ill when admitted to the institution and lived but a day. He had been ill the past winter, underwent an operation and had been a patient at the hospital for about four months. The body was brought to Moosup in charge of Undertaker L. E. Kennedy.

Another week end is at hand. To those thousands who motor or walk along state highways it may be said—be careful of each other. The dangerous season is at hand and only the careful and the alert may hope to avoid injury or death. Saturday and Sunday are the days of the week on which the greatest number become victims of motoring accidents many of which are avoidable by the exercise of due care and discretion. Some motorists have arrived at a state of mind where they will not drive at all on Sundays unless forced by the pressure of necessity. But for the great majority of car owners it is a field day. And for those who troop along the state highways for a stroll it is likewise. With highways choked with motor traffic the danger of accidents is greater this season than during any since the birth of the motor age and drivers of long experience do not relish th chances they have to take on week end trips.

The next week end will bring the opening of Alexander's lake for the season. During the past few weeks Manager Sheridan has been busy about the resort and has made improvements that will help maintain the popularity of the place. As has been the rule for several years, dancing will be the principal pastime at the lake during the coming summer.

Pierre Boulaine, one of the borough's business men who has been a patient at a Worcester hospital, is expected to return to his home here tomorrow. Mr. Boulaine is now very much improved after a very serious illness, but not sufficiently to be able to resume his business activities for some time to come.

D. E. Jette and A. P. Woodward are among the Danielson people who recently have been at West Gloucester, R. I., a few miles east of Putnam to view the havoc wrought by a thunderbolt during the early hours of last Sunday morning. Mr. Jette says the sight is well worth going to see and said that it would seem impossible if the evidence were not there before one's eyes that lightning should cause such damage at one stroke. He was particularly impressed with the fact that a stone as large as a peck measure was torn out of the ground and hurled through the air to where it alighted on the limb of a tree where it since has remained. Thousands have viewed the locality during the present week. It may be reached by motoring out on the Chepachet highway and taking a side road near the Bowditch reservoir to a point near the home of James Reynolds, whose house was damaged by the lightning, though members of the household escaped injury.

Killingly High school will be represented by a worthy team of young athletes when the Windham county field meet for Y. M. C. A. groups and high school students is held at the fair grounds in Brooklyn next Saturday, May 19. Killingly High will be represented in the majority of the events and supports of the team look forward to some of the members winning the ribbon prizes that will be awarded.

While it was materially warmer during Friday than on Thursday the day did not bring a restoration of normal temperatures in this section. Few realized it was so cold Thursday morning, but the mercury went down to the freezing point and shims of ice were found in a number of places in the borough. Plants and shrubs however, do not appear to have been blighted by the cold and looked thrifty Friday.

Pilate's Daughter, an impressive religious drama, is to be presented by a cast of St. James' parish under the auspices of the Children of Mary at St. James' hall Sunday afternoon. The cast has been coached by Rev. J. E. Shelley, M. S., and with great success. The story of the drama has to do with the period of the Christian era and especially with the episode of Christ's triumphal egtry into Jerusalem and the subsequent events leading to His death.

Members of the Danielson Rod and Gun club will be at their shooting grounds on Allen Hill road today putting the finishing touches on buildings that have been erected near the traps and making ready for the two shoots scheduled for Thursday and Saturday of next week. It is expected that these two practice shoots will bring out a large number of members, especially numbers who are not familiar with trap shooting, that they may gain form for the big shoot the club is to hold on Memorial day, when it is hoped to have 100 or more members on the grounds.

Late in the season it is possible that professional trap shooters will be brought here to give an exhibition of fine shooting for the members.

Sergeant C. W. Byers of Fort Wright, Fishers Island, is rounding out a week of recruiting work in Danielson. He is seeking men for the service and special positions are opened to young men who are interested.

Reports from the recent continental congress at Washington will be given when Sarah Williams Danielson chapter D. A. R. meets Thursday afternoon of next week.

Chautauqua will come to Danielson this year during the late days of June and the arrangements for holding it will be much the same as in recent years.

PUTNAM

Hope for the recovery of Captain Remi Delage was dwindling rapidly Friday when the injured officer lay in a semi-conscious condition at the City hospital in Worcester and seemed to be constantly growing weaker. No encouragin word was said at noon by the assistant superintendent of the hospital relative to the case. Captain Delage has been unconscious and semi-conscious since late Thursday and has failed to show recuperative power. It is recalled that he was very seriously ill during January with an ulcer of the stomach and for three weeks was a patient in St. Joseph's hospital at Willimantic. Splendid care at the institution brought about what appeared to be a full recovery, though he was 52 pounds under normal weight when he returned here, but he had regained much of that and appeared very well just prior to the automobile accident in which he was so desperately injured. The illness is regarded as having sapped his vitality, however, and as counting against him in the active fight he has made for life since he was hurt May 2.

Of interest is the statement that Captain Delage told a Massachusetts state police officer at the hospital on Thursday that he was not driving the car at the time of the accident, the wheel being in the hands of Alderman Honorius Magnan, his only companion, who was killed outright.

Forty women representative of Putnam, Pomfret, Thompson and Woodstock met at the rooms of the Chamber of Commerce here at 3 o'clock Friday afternoon and pledged themselves to actively assist in a drive to raise $20,000 to be used in constructing a nurses home at the Day Kimball hospital. The meeting was addressed by John J. Whitehead, who is directing the campaign for the fund.

Mr. Whitehead said that it is the intention to have the fund completed by September 1. A system under which the figure set is divided into 400 units of $50 each has been devised for use in raising the money. Individual workers will pledge themselves to raise one or more units. This may be done through personal giving, solicitation, through bridge parties, socials, dances entertainments or in a hundred other ways. The group that heard Mr. Whitehead's organization talk Friday afternoon represented only about half the territory embraced in the field to be covered. Later another group of women representative of Killingly, Eastford, Abington, the Grosvenordales and other communities to the south will be brought together and enthused with the project.

What is being done is really very important to the people of all eastern Windham county, so well served by the Day Kimball hospital. The proposed home, which ground will be broken during the summer, will be a three story brick structure in colonial style. In use it will provide comfortable quarters for the entire staff of regular nurses at the hospital and for all special nurses who may happen to be on duty there. It will release 21 hospital rooms intended for patients and now in use as nurses quarters and so provide for the hospital organization that the benefits in many ways will be almost immeasurable.

At the present time the fund amounts to several thousand dollars and there is every reason to believe that the drive now being launched will be 100 per cent. successful.

Friends here have been informed that Peter Millette, 36, was killed at New Bedford on Tuesday of this week when several tons of rock and sand toppled from an embankment at which he was working, crushing him to death. Mr. Millette formerly was a resident of this city.

Edward Murray, son of Dr. and Mrs. T. Morris Murray of Pomfret, has been honored by having one of his paintings hung in the Royal academy exhibit in London. The artist comes into particular prominence by achieving this distinction by reason of the fact that he is very young, not as yet having reached his 21st birthday. Mr. Murray is accredited with having remarkable talent and gives promise of a brilliant career.

Reports coming in from the surrounding country indicate that the temperature went down to the freezing point—32 degrees—at about 6 o'clock Thursday morning. One blessing is that few crops have been planted and fruit trees are not as far advanced as is usually the case at this period of May, so the resulting damage will be comparatively slight, it is said.

Lieut. Ambrose I. Moriarty, formerly of this city, is now at Fort Andrews, Boston Harbor and will remain there during the summer months.

State Treasurer and Mrs. G. Harold Gilpatric have been at their cottage at Juniper Point, Me., this week getting their cottage ready for the summer season.

Prof. Dallas Lore Sharpe of Hingham, Mass., noted writer, lecturer and naturalist has been secured to give the commencement address at the graduation exercises of P. H. S. to be held in the Bradley Theatre Thursday vening, June 21.

A special meeting of the Putnam school committee will be held next Monday evening at which time it is expected that a successor to rincipal E. H. Snow of the Putnam High school will be elected. Thirty-three candidates have made application for the position. These have been narrowed down to four men selected for special consideration.

Mrs. Ralph C. Jenkins and son Ward are spending a week with Mr. Jenkins' parents in Springfield, Vermont.

There will be few vacancies to fill [illegible] force of the Putnam schools next year. Miss Edith Cutler and Miss Marion Renshaw have resigned. Miss Josephine Estes will return on condition that she secures another town near Putnam for the re[illegible] days of the week when she is not employed here.

A new teacher will be engaged for a fifth and sixth grade in the Israham school. This is a new room to be opened as a overflow from the overcrowded rooms in that school. A new teacher w[illegible] in the first grade in the Sawyer school.

Leon T. Wilson Jr. who is a member of the senior class of Putnam High school will enter the Rennselaer Polytechnic Institute at Troy in the fall.

Tribute to Poetry.

Poetry is simply the most delightful and perfect form of utterance that human words can reach. Its rhythm and measure, elevated to a regularity, certainty, and force very different from that of the rhythm and measure which can pervade prose, are a part of its perfection. The more of genius that a nation has for high poetry, the more will the rhythm and measure which its poetical utterance adopts be distinguished by adequacy and beauty.—Matthew Arnold.

Two of Them.

"What's it the sign of when your girl refuses to kiss you?" asks a hurt contemporary. Well, it used to mean she had a split lip or had been eating onions, and we don't believe the feminine nature has changed any.—Buffalo Times.

JOHN ALDEN FLOUR

Make Crisp Waffles This Way

You can make waffles as crisp and light as you ever tasted by following the recipe printed below.

To prevent them from sticking to the iron be sure to grease it after baking each waffle.

By following this recipe carefully, using John Alden Flour, you will have no trouble in obtaining a batter of the finest texture. John Alden Flour, with all its creamy whiteness, purity and strength, is the favorite of New England cooks in waffle making as in all cooking or baking.

The millers of John Alden Flour guarantee you satisfaction and your grocer is so instructed. For, like John Alden of old, they believe that "the name of friendship is sacred."

Waffles

A light, crisp waffle is one of the most popular breakfast or luncheon dishes. To get a crisp waffle, the waffle iron must be very hot. It will take about 20 seconds (count 20 slowly) to brown the side first next to the fire. Turn the iron and allow about the same time for browning the other side. If the waffle iron is well greased after the baking of each waffle, there will not be any trouble with sticking.

2 cups John Alden Flour,
4 teaspoons baking powder,
½ teaspoon salt,
1¾ cups milk,
2 eggs,
1 tablespoon melted shortening

All measurements are level.

Sift the John Alden Flour once before measuring.

Sift together flour, baking powder, and salt, add the milk to slightly beaten egg yolks. Mix well and add to dry ingredients. Add melted shortening and fold in stiffly beaten whites of eggs. Bake in well greased hot waffle iron.

M'SHEFFREY CASE WILL GO TO JURY NEXT TUESDAY

New London, May 11.—Grace McSheffrey, the woman who is accused of having abandoned her new-born baby to die in a heap of stones in a vacant lot on Reed and Bliuman streets last January when the temperature was near the zero point, is approaching her fate in the superior court. Today the jury and the court listened to the testimony that is to decide the girl's fate. Miss McSheffrey was on the witness stand a good part of yesterday and this morning he was being interrogated for about an hour.

Then followed the doctors to tell of the condition of the little body when they saw it after life had fled. The testimony was largely technical in nature for the doctors told of the body in terms of medicine and surgery. At the adjournment of the court the understanding was that the arguments should be made Tuesday. They will take up the entire day with the charge to the jury, which will be delivered by Judge Hinman, who has heard the testimony.

The accused stood the ordeal of testifying and listening to others testify as to what she did in the case of the child's birth and death. She has found little in what was told on the witness stand to cheer her or to lead her to the belief that she could escape punishment for what she is accused of having done. She has not lost courage and has done no weakening that was apparent.

John Guinan, the young man she has accused of being her partner in what was done, has been in attendance every minute of the trial. He must face the charge that Grace has met and has answered, for she has said that he knew of the child's birth, that he was aware of her condition and that he suggested that she should make way with the body before daylight should come that no one might be aware of what had occurred. Guinan has watched the girl closely in all that she has said. There was a belief that she was sparing him when the crime was first brought to the attention of the public for the girl told stories that placed all the blame upon her shoulders. It was said that she was so unfortunate that she had become disheartened and seeing nothing of hope in the future she had accepted the fate that was in store for her. The attorneys in the case will study the testimony during the next seventy-two hours and they will be prepared to go before the jury with their arguments imploring an honest verdict in accordance with the testimony. Two arguments will be made for the state and they will both claim that the girl is guilty as charged and that she should be punished in a way that will teach her the lesson of her folly, that will impart a lesson to others who may be tempted that they may not yield.

The defense will come to the aid of the girl with all the power possessed as shown by the testimony and will show her as more sinned against than sinning. Hers is a life, it will claim that should be spared in society that she may do great good which she is capable of and which by nature she naturally should do.

The arguments are expected to consume three hours of the court's time and the charge to the jury will take another hour. It is probable that the verdict will come before the court adjourns at the end of the day. No trial in recent terms of the court has attracted more attention than has this one. It has not been a long trial, but the circumstances attending the case were such that people generally were interested.

New London tonight took on something of the Hollywood appearance because of the number of screen celebrities here. They were in New London to witness the production of a new picture before it shall be shown in New York and then put on the screen for a long run. In the party, which came by special train were D. W. Griffith, Mae Marsh, Carol Dempster, Josephine Victor, Ivor Novello, Neil Hamilton, Kate Bruce, Porter Strong, Lucille La Verne, Herbert Sutch, Erville Anderson, Charles Emmett Mack, Albert L. Grey and wife, James and Rose Smith and a host of mechanicians and men who have been active in the production of motion pictures.

Lieut. Barnett, stationed at Fort Wright, sought the arrest of Private Glover, stationed at the post, this forenoon when the officer went to the government wharf on Water street and discovered that Glover had driven an army truck away without the consent of Barnett. While the police were making a search for Glover, Barnett found the private, who explained his act by stating that he was endeavoring to locate the officer so that orders could be carried out. Barnett withdrew his charge against the soldier.

Employes of the Southern New England Telephone company and members of the local council, assembled in Elks hall this evening where they were entertained by degree work as exemplified by Waterbury council. The work was conferred by a team of twenty of the visitors. Following the ceremony the gathering enjoyed several hours socially.

S. P. Peterson, proprietor of a State street store, will be arraigned in the police court tomorrow morning, charged with violation of the automobile laws. Peterson was ordered to present himself in court by Officer William Babcock, who made charges against Peterson of operating his automobile by intersecting streets without reducing the speed of the machine and for failing to give a signal. Peterson was driving through Broad street at the time that he was apprehended by the officer.

Samuel Kozlen was ordered to appear in the police court tomorrow morning by Detective Sergeant Charles Hammond, following Kozlen's automobile being in collision with another machine on State street late this afternoon. The charge against Kozlen is reckless driving.

Kozlen was operating his car on State street when it collided with a machine owned and driven by Louis Margolis of No. 670 Bank street. Margolis' machine escaped damage, but Kozlen's will have to be repaired. In the car operated by Margolis was a gas heater and this was damaged.

The police continue to report defective highways throughout the city. The latest place claimed to be dangerous to the safety of vehicles is at the corner of Meridian and Church streets. Patrolman Augustus Ray observed the danger spot today and reported it at the office of Highway Commissioner Darrow.

It is known to be a fact that Lieutenant Benjamin Beebe will perform police duty again before he is placed on the veteran reserve list and it would not be surprising if the oldest member on the force assumed charge of the night squads within another seventy-two hours. Lieut. Beebe, who has been absent from duty about two months because of an attack of neuritis has now regained much of his former strength and as soon as the present cold snap vanishes, he will report for duty, probably Sunday or Monday.

With Lieut. Beebe's contemplated retirement being known to the personnel of the force, some of the officers have taken steps to secure their promotion. It is naturally presumed that the successor to Lieut. Beebe will be one of the sergeants and the probable successful candidate lies between Sergeants James C. Sullivan, James D. Gaffney and Samuel Hick. The two former sergeants are among the oldest members of the force, while Hick has been a bluecoat but about four or five years. With one of these three appointed to succeed Lieutenant Beebe a vacancy would exist among the sergeants and for that office it is stated among the patrolmen that Motorcycle Officer John Cavanaugh would seek the berth.

R. Fine of No. 66 Faystone street, Roxbury, Mass., reported to the police that he recently lost from his automobile a suit case containing a quantity of wearing apparel somewhere between New London and New Haven.

It is rather strange that there are no more burglaries of stores in the business section than really occur, for hardly a night passes that one or more places of business are found unlocked or with windows open. In some instances the same places are found of easy access to crooks three or four times within a month. Last night two places were discovered with entrances unlocked and one of the places was found in this condition twice before within three weeks.

An automobile owned and driven by George R. Bannigan of Montauk avenue and a commercial truck owned by the Darrow & Comstock company, were in a collision late this afternoon at the corner of Colt and Reed streets. Neither car was damaged.

A Connecticut company trolley car, of the one-man type, caught afire this afternoon through defective wiring beneath the car, near Main street, at the corner of Williams street. A still alarm caused the Thomas Hose company to be sent to the threatened car. With the arrival of the firemen the floor of the car was ablaze and a quantity of chemical was necessary to subdue the flames. Motorcycle Officer John Cavanaugh was on the scene at the time of the fire and stated that there were about fifteen passengers on the car at the time and that they had to alight from the rear door to escape the fire.

Peter Weske has sold a house and lot on Vauxhall street to John T. and Catherine A. Brigham.

Joseph and Giovana C. Montelbano and sold to Ludwig and Victoria Drenzewsky a dwelling house on Cedar street.

The body of George F. Casey, son of Mrs. Ellen Casey of Potter street, whose death occurred a week ago at Vallejo, Cal., of kidney trouble, it is expected will arrive in New London, accompanied by his mother, late tomorrow or Sunday. The funeral will occur next week at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church, but definite arrangements for the service will not have been completed until after the arrival of the body. Mrs. Casey advised relatives today that she expected to reach New London some time tomorrow.

Charles Grill, an employe of the Otis Elevator Company of New Haven, and Joseph Ward, an employe of the Gager-Crawford company of Main street, suffered painful, but not serious injuries this morning when they were precipitated into an elevator shaft while at work installing a freight elevator. It was at first believed that Grill and Ward had sustained terrible injuries, but an examination at the Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, to which institution they were hurriedly moved, revealed only severe contusions, abrasions and bruises. These injuries will, however, keep the victims under treatment a number of days.

Grill and Ward were at work perfecting the installation of the freight carrier, when a chain holding the elevator parted, allowing the elevator to drop a distance of about ten feet and carrying the two workmen with it. Fortunately the massive elevator did not fall upon the workers, but they landed upon the wreckage. Medical treatment was given the men and, fearing that they had suffered internal injuries, they were transferred to the hospital.

John Rynoszky, an auto truck driver, was fined $25 in the police court this forenoon for speeding. He was operating his truck at a speed of 35 miles an hour when Officer Babcock called on him to halt. He pleaded guilty.

The colored man who was snarled up with Maxie Williams, when the latter was found drunk in the street Thursday morning at 2.30, was in court today. He said he got mixed up in the two times used to designate the hour of the day. His explanation was satisfactory and the complaint against him was nolled that he might get back to his work in New Haven.

The walkout of about fifty employes of the plant of Berkowitz Brothers, shirt manufacturers, doing business in the former almshouse on Garfield avenue, yesterday did not result seriously for all of the employes were back at work today and the plant was running with a full number of hands. While the wage question, which was the cause of the walkout, has not been adjusted, it is expected that it will be tomorrow.

Following the walkout the employes held a conference with a member of the firm in the quarters of the employes in the Dart building on Bank street, where the question of an increase in wages was discussed. Because of the absence of one of the members of the firm, being in New York, a settlement was not made, but will be undoubtedly when that member reaches New London tomorrow.

NEW LONDON CHILD HIT BY AUTOMOBILE

New London, May 11.—Charles House, a lad of about six years of age and residing with his parents at No. 140 Main street, was struck and run over by an automobile, owned and operated by Thomas J. Weir of No. 5 Bruggeman place, Mystic, on Main street, this afternoon. Although the wheels of the machine passed over the little fellow, he sustained only bruises and contusions.

The child was playing with companions at the corner of Church street and as the automobile bearing Weir approached and headed for Mystic, the child suddenly darted into the street to join other children on the opposite sidewalk. As the child stepped from the sidewalk, he ran directly in the path of the approaching auto and before Weir could stop the car, it struck the little victim. The boy was placed in the automobile and conveyed to his home where the injuries were revealed to be of a trivial nature.

An automobile, owned and driven by Ellery Thompson of No. 38 Crystal avenue, in backing upon the municipal pier late yesterday, struck and felled Louis Montzvoures of No. 28 Starr street, Montzvoures being knocked down and run over. Luckily the victim sustained but slight bruises.

By practicing methods taught by Miss Macdonald, these women should be better able to handle ordinary accidents and illness until a doctor can be obtained. LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

Meeting Teddy Turtle.

Now, let me see. We left the two little rabbits in a clover field, didn't we? I'm glad to say that nothing dreadful happened since I wrote the last story. No sir, strange as it may seem, Danny Fox never came around.

So, when these two dear little rabbits had eaten all they wanted and Little Jack Rabbit had filled his knapsack with nice clover tops, they both jumped into the Luckymobile and drove away, and by and by, after a while and a bump and a smile and maybe a smile for every mile, they saw Teddy Turtle crawling along the side of the road.

"Where are you going?" asked Uncle Lucky.

"Where are you going?" asked Uncle Lucky, "and why are you taking yourshall house with you."

"I always take my house along
Wherever I may go,
For then I needn't worry
If I am pokey slow.
For I am always safe at home
No matter where or how I roam."

"Ha, ha!" laughed Uncle Lucky, "you're almost as wise as Professor Crow, but I'm glad I don't have to carry my little white house on my back. I'd rather have it on the corner of Lettuce avenue and Carrot street, Rabbitville. I like to have some place to go to when the day is over."

"Who just said something about me?" asked a voice, and there sat Professor Crow on a tree.

"Why, we just left you a story or two ago," said Little Jack Rabbit, "where did you come from?"

"Wait a minute till I read you something out of my little Wisdom Book," said that wise professor bird as he put on his spectacles and turned over to page umpty-leven.

"The rabbit and the turtle,
Together ran a race.
The rabbit got so far ahead,
He stopped to wash his face.
And, while he wiped his whiskers
And smoothed his tangled hair,
The turtle passed him by and won,
While he stood prinking there."

"But don't be too sure of yourself, Mr. Teddy Turtle, even if you do carry your hose around on your back. I know of a turtle who was turned over on his back and there he had to stay for he couldn't touch the ground even with the tips of his toes till a kind old rooster turned him right side up again."

"Goodness me! What a scandal, do you know," said Little Jack Rabbit, "I wish I knew as much as you do, Professor Crow."

"Don't wish—just learn," answered that wise old bird and in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

Howdy All!

There are some who give their greetings
In an arctic sort of way;
Some who make us kind of doubtful
As they "pass the time of day;"
But there's one we'll always cherish,
For we like his cheery call
As he passes by each morning
Singing out his "Howdy all"!

It's the same to rogue and righteous,
It's the same to cad and churl;
It's a joy to man and woman,
It's a thrill to boy and girl.
He will make you feel as royal
As a king in palace hall,
As he waves his hand and greets you
With his smiling "Howdy all"!

At the wedding feast his presence
Gives good omen to the day;
He is welcome where there's sorrow—
Where he is no tear can stay.
Why, perhaps poor Humpty Dumpty
Still might be upon the wall
Had he never lost his balance
Chuckling at some "Howdy all"!

Howdy all's a joy-magician
Welcome everywhere he goes;
Where he plants a friendly greeting,
There a day of gladness grows.
I've a thought that when the curtain
Called Eternity shall fall,
He will start the angels laughing
When he sings out "Howdy all"!

Over the Great Hills.

Oft when the world and I were younger,
Oh, we are old, so old today,
I longed to go over the great hills yonder,
Into the world, so far away.
When the years came I met them gladly,
Oh, but they seemed so long to stay,
I hoped that each over the hills would lead me
Into the world, so far away.

Care they brought me, and bitter sorrow,
Long grew the nights, and long the day,
But I dreamed of the path of the great hills over,
Into the world, and far away.
"Soon they shall seek it," my heart said to me,
"Bide thy time till the happy day:
Thou shalt go wandering the great hills over,
Into the world and far away."

Ah.. But still I bide in the valley,
Darker the nights and longer the day;
And I never shall pass the great hills over,
Into the world so far away.
Many a dream had I of its beauty,
The great, fair world, so far away,
And many a song I wove about it,
I have forgotten them all today!

Mother

There's an old fashioned mother, way up on a hill—
She's trying, and tender and true.
Like Ruth, in the gloaming—when all the world's still,
She's calling—yes—calling for you.

I love that dear mother way up on a hill,
God bless her—she talks me of you.
She's a memory to me. Ah, my eyes fill!
Yes! They'll fill!
God keep her! She's precious to you.

If once had a mother, so fond and so true
A light in my long night of dread—
Is gleam in my gloom—my dream the night through.
She left me. But still I've no fear.

Ah mother! I love you—way up on God's hill,
A-standing by God's sacred tree.
Some day I will come—yes, I promise I will
I know you are waiting for me.

Why take our mother way up to the sky—
When we need them so much below?
Why should it be that mothers should die,
And leave us to sorrow and woe?
Why should it be that mothers should cry?
Why should their eyes drip with tears?
Why should they sorrow? Or why should they sigh?
Oh God! Keep them still through the years.

Why did they take Christ up to a hill?
Why did they torture Him so?
Only to prove that the light shineth still,
In the heart filled is laden with woe.

A TEAPOT HOLDER

Dear Editor and Sisters: Probably Delish Deal is partial to a particular teapot holder. I am sorry I cannot give her the directions desired.

Like the storekeeper, who offers something just as good, I am going to send directions for a holder which others might like even if she does not care for it.

A half skein each of yellow and green four fold Germantown yarn, two ten inch bone needles and a number three bone crochet hook are required:

With green yarn cast on 31sts. Row 2—Knit seven sts. green, six yellow, six green, six yellow, seven green and repeat this for six rows. This makes three squares of three sts. each, two yellow and one green. Now transpose —making two green and one yellow. Continue these squares until you have nine squares in length, then bind off the stitches. Crochet a chain of three and one single crochet stitch in third stitch from starting point. Do this all around, drawing in the three squares at the ends, by omitting the chain. Next crochet a scallop around, make a cord and tassels for each end of squares.

Best wishes.

MOTHER'S DAY

Dear Editor and Social Corner Friends: Once again the month of May has rolled around and with it Mother's day, the day on which we especially honor that greatest and best of beloved ones, our Mother.

A wonderful belag is a mother. Other folks may love you, but only your mother understands. Mother works for you, cares for you, loves and forgives you, and when you leave her like a guardian angel her memory is always with you.

How thankful we ought to be, those that still have mothers, but how many of us appreciate all that she has done for us and in a great many instances what she is still doing for us.

Who do we turn to when we are in need of a friend and councilor? Why mother of course! Who comes to us when we need help or comfort? Why mother, of course! Then why do so many of us forget her so quickly when we ought to thank God every day of lives that we knew our mother and had so many happy years of her love and devotion.

When we hear the young folks nowadays speak so disrespectfully of their mother, don't it make us want to shake them up and tell them to wake up before it's too late, for once their mother is gone it is forever. There is no bringing her back to tell her how sorry we are and how much we love her, no bringing her back to tell her we will do better and try to make things easier for her. Once she is laid away we can be sure that never again in this life will we see her to tell her anything. So tomorrow (Sunday) our dear mother's day, let us not forget one and all to do something to let mother know that we still love her and appreciate her. Don't wait until next mother's day to do it. Do it now, for perhaps when next mother's day comes around many of us won't have our mothers.

God must have kept one kind of clay apart from all other, and mingled it with faith and love filled it with patience from above, then made it into mother, so I say thank God for my mother.

BRINGING UP LITTLE RABBITS.

Dear Social Corner: It is a long time since I have written, but I have been sick.

I read an item about coal the other day which I am sorry I didn't see sooner but will pass it along, as you can remember it for another winter. I burn wood so have not tried this out, but it looks reasonable to me. If you burn pea or buckwheat coal, put two thicknesses of wire window screen on the bottom of the grate and the small coal will not drop through. The fire will last longer and burn less coal. The screen lasts about three weeks, then it will need renewing, but the saving in coal should more than pay for the screen.

It is housecleaning time but I do not have any special time for it. If you make a practice of doing a little every day there will be no housecleaning bugbear. One day was a window, the next a little paint, the next clean out a bureau drawer, and the next clean a shelf, and then repeat. It takes very little time each day and gives you a chance to get out doors in the spring and fall. I have not practiced this preachment this year as I have been too sick, but shall start in new and try and keep it up all the year. Having no carpets is a great help. Rugs are so much easier to keep clean.

I must tell you of my latest pets. The other day when the men were drawing out some logs from the woods they knocked over an old stump and under it was a rabbit's nest. It scared the mother away but did not hurt the four babies. As it was necessary for the men to use this same path for the rest of the logs, we could not leave the babies there, so I took them in the house and they are the prettiest pets we ever had. I feed them diluted cow's milk with a very small rubber tube on the end of a medicine dropper. The medicine dropper is better than a bottle for you can keep the milk from running too fast. There is not any nipple made small enough for such small animals, and I was at my wits' end to know how to feed them. I had used a medicine dropper before but the edge of the glass is apt to make their mouth sore. I tried to make a nipple of cloth, also cotton, but they would not work very well, and finally my son suggested I use the small rubber tube from his chemistry set, and it works splendidly. They are getting quite lively and this morning ate some clover. I don't just know what I shall do with them if I raise them, for being raised in captivity they will not fear people and cats as they would if wild, and if I let them go they are liable to be shot or caught.

A while ago a friend introduced me to another woman as Roxanna. She asked me if I were Roxanna Wince. When I said No, she looked at me queerly, and twice more during the conversation asked me the same question. I think she left me fully convinced I was lying. Perhaps it will avoid more confusion if I take the rest of my grandmother's name, so I will sign myself

Dear Social Corner: A short time ago I was calling on a friend whose good nature and kind manners I had always admired.

As I was about to leave the house, the mother reminded the son of some simple task she had asked him to do for her, and to my surprise he spoke sharply to her, causing the dear old lady's eyes to fill with tears.

How many of us are like him, nice to everyone we meet and not caring how we treat the one we should think the most of. How often we hear a young lady say "Don't be silly, mother," or a young fellow say "Aw, forget it," or "Why isn't dinner ready?" or "Where is my hat?" We don't realize how much pain we cause her, but wait until she's gone. Then sadly we'll remember how small and unfair we really were. We'll be only too willing to offer half our years, just to kiss her once again. We'll remember just how many times we invited her to a show or gave her a little extra money. It will not be very hard to recall those things. It won't be hard to recall, either, how long she wore a certain hat or how run-over her shoes were while we've had the newest and latest styles. We won't be able to forget how she slaved so we could have the advantages of an education, and then how we corrected her and made fun of her old fashioned manners.

Remorse is a terrible thing. Don't imagine it is only temporary and can be thrust aside. It clings through a lifetime. Before it is too late let's be more considerate and kind to our mothers. I'm so thankful God has spared my mother to me for another year.

Wishing the sisters and editor good health.

BONIE.

GREETINGS FROM L. T. H.

Kind Editor and Social Corner Friends: I was glad to read Stillwater's letter to the corner and think now I know some of the writers that did not belong or come to Corner gatherings when Elco, Bell, Violet and I went. Bluebell and L. did last guess much as we should have had a big time if been good for as soon as we got home, and Bell be was better off at home. We went to Aunt Abbie's gathering and had a fine time with Chesterfield cheese.

Red Clover: Think I can guess who you are and I think I met Olga and Jannie on Tuesday last March. Am always glad to read any of the Corner members' and think all who have been so kind to write me such kind word never dies. I would like to meet at the Buckingham with you all, but it is so far and daylight saving time makes it hurry, hurry to get anywhere on it to catch a train or car. But I hope to see you some time this summer there.

Kitty Loul: I was glad to read your letters in Corner. I have the doll and parrot yet. The little one you gave the parrot to is with me now. We often speak of the pleasant call with you that day. That was the last time I was on the West Side. Washing all the Corner friends health and happiness I will include a poem in memory now of my three absent ones instead of one:

As we gather at the table
And watch each smiling face,
The heart fills with emotion
To see the vacant place.
We may strive to hide our longings,
In the midst of mirth and fun,
But we're thinking, thinking, thinking
Of the loved—the absent one.

When we gather 'round the fireside
With merry laugh and jest,
How we wish the absent dear one
Was here with all the rest,
Still we join in all the frolics
But we wish the day was done,
For we're thinking, thinking, thinking,
Of the loved—the absent one.

Yet when the day is over
And they all have gone to rest,
We feel the Heavenly Father,
Does all things for the best,
So we cheer our drooping spirits
With the rising of the sun,
But we can't help thinking, thinking,
Of the loved—the absent one.

I know I am not the only one to be thinking of a loved and absent one yet I feel it is hard enough for all I have to live for now is dear Violet and her four little boys. One is with me now, a dear little ray of sunshine and happiness to me.

SOME THINGS I'VE BEEN DOING.

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Here I am again, and I'm going to tell about all the things I've been doing since I wrote last.

1. Here's a formula for "salt modeling clay" for children to use on rainy days. Two tablespoons salt, two tablespoons water, one tablespoon white flour. Mix and heat together in a saucepan, stirring all the time. When thick, take it off. It is ready to use when cool.

2. A ten cent asbestos mat, the kind with a tin rim, can be made into a nice hot dish mat by painting the rim black, one side of the mat light blue, stencil a design just inside the rim or in the center, and use with painted side up.

3. If you need more shelf room, do as I did. I have a table in my closet and I put a shelf underneath it by fastening the shelf brackets to the insides of the table legs.

4. Have just finished a lamp shade in natural round reed. Stained it brown and lined it with lemon yellow silk. The shade fits a lamp three and one-half inches where shade rests. Directions are free for the asking.

5. Been making a sweater too. Slip-over model. Five inch band around bottom, of basket stitch, then up to yoke is knit over and purl back. Yoke is plain knitting. It has long sleeves. You can have directions for this, too.

6. I found that a pastry brush cleans my typewriter and also the glasses under my range better than any other brush.

7. If you like coffee and it disagrees with you, try this substitute. Two-third cup corn meal, two cups bran, one-half cup boiling water, one-third cup molasses. Mix dry ingredients in bowl. Add hot water to molasses and mix well. Pour wetting on grain, rub between hands, mix thoroughly. Put into pan and bake in good oven until well burned, stirring often to make color uniform and almost black. If it cakes, run through chopper. Use the same as ordinary coffee.

Spry Bird: I said I didn't believe in signs, but wait. I've got one sign that I like and believe in. I saw it the other day tacked to a garage. It had letters a foot high and read

FREE AIR (May 12th).

BUSY WITH THE FLOWERS.

Dear Corner Members: Those who are not busy indoors are putting in much time with their flower beds, if they are as fond of them as I am. There is nothing more beneficial than getting out into the air and dirt and spending much time in their cultivation. I can get just as good a tan that way as at the seashore and enjoy it more.

In considering the layout of the flower garden, one of the principal factors is the nature of the flowers desired and the use to which they are to be put, together with the location in relation to light and shade.

Shade is undoubtedly the most difficult problem to consider, for only a few annuals will thrive in shade at all, and a few which will do wonderfully well in full sun will give only a slender crop of bloom in a shaded position. Some of the perennials, however, like shade, and flourish there, and the main dependance must be placed on hardy plants for such a situation.

Snapdragons will give bright color in a shady bed if it gets only a little sun during the day. They will give longer and looser growth than in full sun, and will not give the profusion of bloom with which the dwarf and half dwarf varieties are usually covered, but will make an effective decoration. Pansies and bedding violas are the ideal annuals for such a situation, particularly if provided with plenty of moisture, as they are cool situation plants and not a great deal may be expected of them in the hot days of mid-summer.

Asters will give fair bloom in a half-shaded position. The torenia, sometimes known as the wishbone plant, gives fine bloom in purple and lavender, and the musk plants or monkey flowers, mimulus, are often the sunshine box that Club No. 2 white, cream, yellow and copper flowers, some of them beautifully marbled, mottled and spotted with maroon and mahogany. They, too, need moisture. The handsome butterfly flower, schizanthus, is likewise useful in such a situation. The annual forget-me-nots will give a fine sheet of their celestial blue in the shade. The godetia, which flourishes in a poor soil, may be given a place in a half-shaded situation with good effect.

Yours for the good of the Corner.

DORIS.

CANNING RHUBARB

Dear Sisters: If any of you rely on canning rhubarb do not be discouraged because sugar is high.

Rhubarb can be stewed up without sugar and without cooking. If it spoils there is no loss except feeling deprived of it for pies and sauce.

Thirty-Two Jacks:

Peel, wash and cut up rhubarb in small pieces. Pack jars very full. Draw a pail of water or iron kettle full of cold water. Sink jars to bottom. After jars have been sunk put on the top under the water. The jars must be submerged and rubbers must be on, and cover tight before jar is lifted above the water. This keeps out the air. Mine kept fine last year.

I'll be glad when the house cleaning season is over for then I shall look for more letters in the Corner. There are many members who never seem to write at all though there always is room enough.

MARY.

DELIGHTS IN THE COUNTRY AND FRESH AIR.

Dear Sisters of the Corner One and All: I thought I would sit right down in the midst of my house cleaning and write a few lines to the Corner. Wish I could say like some of the sisters, that I am all through cleaning, but I am in hopes I will be able to say so before long. It has been a beautiful day today. It makes anyone think she would just like to get out of doors and stay in the beautiful sunshine. I think it seems the most like summer to go into the stores and see the strawberry boxes piled high with the red berries. I feel so happy to think the dreary winter has gone, not that I want the time to pass too quickly, but it seems a relief to think that we are to have a few days of milder weather which I enjoy so much. I often think of city people in very hot weather living in some small tenements and how they would like to get out in the country and get the pure air. I am thankful that I live in the country where we can get the fresh air. I live on the highest land in Windham county, or nearly so. How often I think of good old days on the farm where I was born. A little verse which I have always remembered ever since I was quite young is as follows:

I remember, I remember,
The house where I was born,
The little window where the sun,
Came peeping in at morn.
It never came a wink too soon,
Or brought too long a day,
Which ever in my memory.
Though time has flown away.

Hope to meet some of the sisters this summer.

Good luck to the Corner.

RURAL AUNTY.

UPHOLSTERING AT HOME.

Dear Cornerites: One often hesitates to send a piece of shabby looking furniture to the professional upholsterer, as his fee is apt to be more than the worn piece seems worth. If, however, the piece is needed, or is valuable, one does not wish to throw it away, or to use it in a shabby condition when a little work will make it presentable.

The alternative is to make or upholster at home. This is really not a difficult task, and can be done by anyone who will take pains to cut and fit the material carefully and fasten it in place on the chair or other piece of furniture that you are covering.

I have upholstered chairs, couches and corner seats. While I have graduated from such work now, I can tell you how I used to cover them.

First I determined the use to which a chair or sofa is to be put and that determined its covering. A seldom used parlor chair, covered with satin damasse, will probably wear as satisfactorily as an everyday rocker covered with tapestry or leather.

I would select something that would harmonize with the rug and wall covering. Upholstery materials usually come in goods 54 inches wide. Before buying material, measure carefully with tape measure the piece to be covered, to learn how much to buy. For a chair, measure the back from the top to the bottom, and the seat from the front to the back. Add the length of the seat and the back to find the amount to be bought.

Also note the width of the back seat If the seat and back are 27 or less inches wide, one width of 54 inch material can be cut in two to cover them.

Gimp to match the material must be bought. Measure around all the edges of the covering to know how much gimp to buy, and allow more to turn all corners easily. You will need a quantity of upholstery tacks, gimp nails, and the smallest tack hammer obtainable. When everything is ready, remove the old gimp, then the covering. Use the old covering as a pattern by which to cut the new. I have found that across the springs stout strips of burlap, criss-crossed, are excellent over the top of the springs; sometimes across the bottom also.

If the inner lining is worn out so the springs came through, I tied down the spring with a strong string. To replace what had become matted or sagging, I used excelsior, hair or other filling which I bought at a furnishing store.

Now we have the new pieces all cut. Fasten the material at the top of the back of the chair first, then draw it down smoothly and fasten it at the bottom. Fasten it at the sides last. No edge should turn in, as the upholstery material is firm, and professionals do not turn the raw edges in. The tacks should be placed quite close together.

The gimp is used to cover the tacks and the raw edge of the covering. Begin to attach the gimp to the least noticeable place on the chair back at the center of the bottom; on the seat, at the center back; use gimp nails, which have very small heads. The outside edge of the gimp should come a very little over the raw edge of the material.

To cover the seat, fasten the covering to the back first, draw it over tightly, and then fasten it at the front edge. If there are arms to work around, the material can be folded under and pushed into the cracks with a knife blade. No tacking is required for this. When the seat and back join in a seam, as in some rocking chairs, the covering of each should be fastened at the joining with an upholstery needle and linen thread.

I have covered sofas, couches and chairs. I would advise anyone who wants to upholster for the first time to try and cover a plain chair before attempting a couch or lounge.

ETHELYN. (May 9th).

RAISING CHICKENS.

Dear Social Corner Folks: I want to speak up for Ma of Greene Gables on the chicken discussion. We have about eight hundred chicks and am glad that my husband considers it worth while to be responsible for the main care of them. He has other business but always cares for them morning and night and looks after housing, fencing and heating. Of course there is plenty of tending I can do for them. They are in two flocks, one of five hundred in one house and a coal burning brooder and the others in a homemade brooder in which we use ordinary lamps. Our equipment is not a very expensive one and our hens number only two hundred odd, but from our accounts they net from one to three dollars a day besides what eggs and fowls we consume, and it counts seven days in a week. I spend more of my time out of doors with the flower beds and vegetable garden or berries all summer. We get so much of our living from the garden I feel quite justified in having my sewing done for me as other work I enjoy less. It is surely good to be alive when one can live out of doors!

THIRTY-TWO (Sept. 7th.)

REMEMBER MOTHERS' DAY.

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: First of all I wish to thank the sisters who sent me birthday cards. I was very glad to get them for they were the first from any Corner member.

Mothers' day is near at hand and may we all who are so fortunate as to have them in some kind way remember them for we never can repay our mothers what we owe them. It takes not the richest of gifts to make one's heart glad and many times a few kind words often do more than any material gift can do so that her home-interior and furnishings may have a fresh and germless start after the long stuffiness of the winter.

Light rugs should be thrown over the clothes line, as well as door hangings, bed clothes, and other fabrics, upholstered furniture should be moved out into the sunshine to be freshened and purified; the drawers of all chests and closets should be carried out into the fresh air and there washed with strong soap-suds and water and allowed to dry; large rugs should be laid on the ground and be thoroughly sun-baked.

Nor is there any need to hurry this program of sunning and airing. Let it take several weeks, if necessary, rather than wear the housekeeper out. Extra bed blankets might be attended to one day, for instance—washed, dried in the open air, then packed away for the summer—and heavy window draperies could be aired the next day, they too being stored, while lighter hangings take their place for the hot weather (many women, however, use only the glass curtains during the summer months, not bothering with over-drapes.)

The third day the upholstered pieces of furniture may be moved out of doors and then brought in and encased in their summer slip-covers. The fourth day the long napped rugs might be given a thorough sunning and then rolled up in camphor while rag rugs or oblong painted matting-rugs are put down in their place—to give a cooler effect.

The fifth day might find the portieres flapping on the clothesline (after which they will be wrapped with moth balls in an airtight bundle for the summer months so that the home may seem more spacious and therefore cooler); and the sixth day could be given to scrubbing and sunning bureau and closet drawers.

There we have a week of tasks which are not too much for the housekeeper to accomplish in conjunction with her regular household duties. (Let another week or two of such gradual work, the entire spring "sunning and airing" will be accomplished and the home will be ready for the hot weather.

Well, I must close before the editor says "Too much!"

MARTHA.

PLEASED WITH SUNSHINE BOX.

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I have thought for some time that I should write to the Corner and when I got planted to good effect. They have sent me last week, decided I must write right away. How it surprised me and right now I want to say "Thank you" to you all. During the month of April I had more or less sickness. At one time four of the family were sick, and to end it, my husband sold the farm and we moved the first of May and when the box came it showed that some one thought of me. Would have liked to have been with you at the Buckingham. Perhaps I can before long.

U. C. E.: Many thanks for remembrances. Think that I will be down to see you before long. Why can't you come up?

Golden Glow: We are coming over before long.

Nespa: Why don't you get busy and write a few lines? Some time since I have read anything from you. Think this is enough for this time.

QUEEN ELIZABETH.

THE MAY MEETING OF CLUB NO. 2

Dear Editor and Social Corner Friends: Those of you who could not meet with us at Buckingham Memorial May 2d missed a jolly good time. It was a beautiful day, and the beautiful magnolia tree in the yard was early at its prettiest. The largest number of the season was present—two hundred in all. They came from Mystic, Jewett City, Franklin, and there were guests from New Haven. Aunty No. 1 was hostess and we all know what means when she is—a smile and a kind word for everyone. It was a great day as We were very much in evidence. Calla-Lily wondered if it was Wonders or Workers, but Weavers were in the majority. Then there was Wightman, White, Woods, Wrights, Wheeler and others too numerous to mention, and should have been there to welcome us forget our duty to mothers. And to those whose mother has gone to a better land take courage, for they may be more comfortable and much happier than they were on earth.

Hoping the sick will improve with these beautiful spring days and may God's blessing rest upon each member of the Social Corner and our editor.

GENE.

IN 1923 SAVE SOME MONEY.

Dear Social Corner Editor and Sisters: It is now the fashion for an interesting letter writer to picture out reproductions of famous pictures.

I am going to contribute a picture from a newspaper and I shall know if you read my letter for I ask you to make it your special art study for 1923—to hang it not in your parlor, but in your bedroom, where you will see it morning and night. It will be a complete panorama of "American" life.

There is a man with an automobile income riding ahead with his wife. Then right back of him is a man with a motorcycle income; he is hectically travelling to keep up with the man with the automobile income.

Have you this picture in your mind? If so, why is he doing it? Because he enjoys traveling so fast? Not at all. I think he is afraid that if he does not travel so fast, people will think he is slow.

Do you know the curse of American life is that only one man in a thousand has the courage to live his life independently, without regard to what people say or think.

James B. Duke was that one man in a thousand. He was not afraid of living different. When his income was $50,000 a year he still lived in a small apartment in uptown New York and ate his meals at an inexpensive restaurant, putting back into his business everything he could save.

No doubt the neighbors thought him queer; but out of his queerness came one of the greatest businesses in America.

You no doubt have read time and time again how Hugh Chalmers was considered crazy by the boys who found he was saving money out of his five dollar salary, and how a lot of those same boys are working for Hugh today.

I am a great believer in luxuries—automobiles and motorcycles and all the rest—and in saving up and having the fun of buying the things I can afford.

But the most foolish luxury in the world is the luxury of "pretense"—of trying to travel at a twin-six rate on a four-cylinder or two-cylinder income; as Bruce Barton says, "Of doing things because other people do them, of being afraid that folks will think you queer."

We stand on the threshold of what will probably be, in some way, a prosperous year and yet if we do not cater to every whim and want everything the latest we might find some way to open a bank account if we haven't one already and add to it regularly week by week.

When the panic time comes, as sooner or later it surely will in some way, sickness, etc., the money you have saved will increase so that you will be able to stem the tide until the good times return.

The foolish family will look over its expenses and find no possible way to save without doing something that people will think queer. They will go aimlessly along, doing as other folks do.

And the good days will pass and when the blue days come, the foolish family will look about them pitifully and complain.

"Some people," they will say, "have all the luck."

KITTY LOU.

FIRELESS COOKERY.

Dear Sisters of The Corner: I fear I am one of those delinquent Corner members so I will try and help fill the page which I like to see filled every Saturday. I realize when it is not full of letters there is no one to blame but The Corner members.

We are getting to that time of the year when more are going to depend on their fireless cookers. Economy of time and fuel and the ability to use cheap cuts of meat satisfactorily are three of the virtues of fireless cookery. Of course, some heat has to be used, and the more used, the quicker the time of cooking. Additional heat, aside from the preliminary cooking, is provided by radiators. If these are used in the homemade fireless cooker, the housewife must be sure that the cooker is properly insulated with a metal or asbestos lining to prevent fire.

The radiator may be a soapstone, a brick or an iron plate such as a stove lid. A metal plate has to be heated about 50 degrees hotter than soapstone because it cooks more rapidly. This disk is heated and placed under the cooking vessel. An additional radiator may be put over the vessel. Everything should be as snug as possible to prevent loss of heat. In any case, cooking is begun on the stove and continued to completion in the cooker. The container used should be in portion to the amount of food cooked. To take care of two or more foods, use small tight containers such as baking powder cans. Place them in boiling water in the larger container or a basin which just fits in the top of the large container may be used, with a radiator for the cover. Cook something else in the water below.

A fireless cooker may retain heat for eight hours, but in that time the temperature drops from 212 degrees Fahrenheit — the boiling point of water—to 145 degrees Fahrenheit. Food which has been in the cooker for this length of time is cooked, but is not ready to serve. It must be reheated before serving.

Ordinary utensils may be used providing that they have tightfitting covers or a tight cover may be made with a top radiator. For some things, it is well to have a trivet between the cover and the radiator. For cake, use a tube cake pan. Casserole, bean pot, custard cups, etc., may be used.

Wish some of the other members would tell of their experience with the cookers. Best wishes from

SPRING CLEANING.

Dear Corner Folks: I presume you are all at it or just over it. However the old fashioned term "Spring Housecleaning" is no longer exactly compatible with modern ideals of housekeeping. For the good housekeeper of today keeps her home clean; paint is washed at regular intervals throughout the year; upholstered furniture, heavy draperies, rugs, pillows and mattresses are kept dust-free with the vacuum cleaner; walls are wiped down every few months; floors are done over constantly. For the new idea of cleaning the home is to take one room at a time—perhaps one a week, perhaps one a month—and clean it thoroughly; in this way the entire house is kept clean—instead of having to be turned upside down in the spring and fall of the year as was our ancestors' custom.

But in the spring I believe every woman feels the need of, and takes delight in giving her home a sun bath. Instead of giving it the old "spring cleaning," she gives it the "spring sunning and airing." Her possessions should be moved out into the sun and wind, and the doors and windows should be open to admit

GALES FERRY

The May meeting of the Woman's Home Missionary society was largely attended at the home of Mrs. Andrew P. Miller on Tuesday afternoon. The president, Mrs. W. D. Woodward, presided. The meeting opened with singing the hymn Bringing in the Sheaves, Rev. W. D. Woodward at the piano. Mrs. Harmon L. Perkins conducted the devotions. There was roll call and the minutes of the last meeting by the secretary, Mrs. Fanny A. Molthrop, and the treasurer, Mrs. C. E. Colver, read her report, and it was approved. A reading by eleven different members, Why I Should Attend the Missionary Meeting, each a different version, was given. A paper, Why Should We Tithe? was read by Mrs Rufus W. Hurlbutt. Another paper, A Missionary Conscience, was read by Mrs. Nelson Parker. My Becky's Thank Offering was a story read by Mrs. C. E. Colver. Mrs. Henry W. Hurlbutt read about My Conversion to the Mite Box. This was the day for opening the mite boxes which, in the absence of the mite box secretary, Miss Sarah T. Latimer, through illness, was done by Mrs. Harmon L. Perkins, assisted by her daughter, Mrs. J. A. Birch. The total amount was $32.57. A nominating committee was named by the president to prepare a list of officers for the annual election in June for the society, this meeting to be held at the home of Mrs. Henry W. Hurlbutt. During the social hour following the meeting afternoon tea was served by the hostess, with dainty refreshments. Mrs. R. Irving Hurlbutt assisted in serving.

The Tuesday Evening Progressive Pinochle party of the Gales Ferry Pinochle club was held at usual in the Country club house. Players attended from Uncasville, Norwich, Fort Point and Ledyard. Mrs. Chapman of Uncasville won the first prize for the ladies, and the second was won by Mrs. J. Lumis. W. Fred Smith won the first prize for men. The consolation prize went to Miss Helen Lumis. Luncheon was prepared by Mrs. Gertrude Latimer, consisting of escalloped oysters, cake and coffee, and was served by Mrs. William Austin. Mrs. Olive Sargent and Miss Dorothy Lester. Other entertainment was furnished by selections on the piano by Philip Bock and Ned Malone of Bridgeport gave a lecture on Fish and Their Habits. Several solos were sung. Miss Clara Wheeler was scorekeeper for the playing.

Miss Mary Birch of this place entertained for one W., for which she was very grateful.

The dinner was a feast of good eats as usual. One feature was a loaf of cake with the letter W in an orange frosting. It was served in homeopathic doses, so all could have a taste. It was made and presented by Ever Ready, who has promised to make another, decorated with cupids, when the occasion requires it. Will see that she is given timely notice.

After dinner, and the tables were cleared, the entertainment followed. Stillwater spoke for "the good of the order" and gave some good advice, which we hope will be acted upon. Betty Brown read a funny story. Chocolate, Stranger and others read short stories. Joan favored us with piano selections, as did another sister, and a guest entertained us with selections also.

Lone Man: Sorry you were not able to meet with us.

Sally Sycamore and Comfort: Was glad to see you.

Ma of Greene Gables and Bug: Was disappointed at not seeing you

Olga and Lonesome Pine: Was glad you could be present.

I. J. B.: Hope you and your sister enjoyed the meeting.

Ines and Pa: Congratulations. May you have many more anniversaries.

It has been such a long snowy winter, and so many of our dear friends have been called away, it seems good to see the fresh green grass, foliage coming on the trees, and the birds singing. It makes us glad we are alive to enjoy the beauties of spring.

Best wishes for success of the Social Corner.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Snowstorms and heavy frosts made conditions anything but pleasant for growers of produce in Norwich in 1873.

The activities for the week were mostly of a general nature and are taken from the files of the Bulletin in part, as follows:

Monday, May 5, 1873—"Old Probs" came very near the mark on Friday night in his prognostications of the weather for Saturday, his only mistake being that he did not make it strong enough. He called for increased cloudiness followed by rain. Saturday was cloudy and kept getting worse until finally rain fell in torrents and then turned to snow, covering the ground with a thick coating and made people think of sleigh rides and skating. Merchants closed their shops for the day as no one cared about buying for Sunday.

Sunday dawned bright and clear and it was then that the merchants find the lauch on the people who had refrained from buying Saturday for fear they could not wear the new clothes on Sunday. The church attendance was large, people not being afraid of the snow even at this late day.

A snow slide that occurred on Market street early Sunday morning gave two young sports a good wetting, much to the amusement of their friends who were walking just back of them.

The Rev. Dr. Haines of Boston occupied the pulpit at the Central Baptist church yesterday morning.

Some local girls have a novel way of getting rid of young sports who endeavor to become their suitors. They have their big brothers dress up in female attire and keep the appointment for them which is a fine way of ending the courtship. One girl recently had her brother meet a suitor and according to the story, big brother threw off his shawl and veil and gave the gallant a severe beating.

Tuesday, May 6, 1873—The steamer City of New York is now nearly finished and will probably take her place on the line on the 10th inst., when the City of Norwich will be taken off for renovation. The New York has always been considered by the traveling public one of the fastest as well as one of the most comfortable boats that cross the sound, and she will be gladly welcomed back to her place by the patrons of the line.

A baseball match between the Governors of the Bacon Arms Co., and the Blue Jackets, from the Hopkins & Allen Manufacturing company's shop, held yesterday on the plain, resulted in a victory for the Governors, 36 to 16.

A group of boys have been indulging in the sport of throwing stones and shooting at the nose of the veteran on the soldiers' monument, thus far without inflicting any damage. Complaints have been made and the police will see to it that this thing is stopped.

A trial of Olmstead's patent electric car brake was made Sunday on the Providence & Worcester road. Among the railroad men present was Richard Colburn of this city, master mechanic of the Norwich & Worcester railroad company.

Wednesday, May 7, 1873—News of the crashing of the Truesdell bridge at Dixon on Sunday caused some little excitement in Greeneville for the bridge there is of the Truesdell pattern. The Truesdell bridge, according to some engineers, has points of construction that cause them to doubt the strength of structures built on this plan. Mr. Truesdell built a bridge at Elgin, Ill., that fell before a load was placed on it, and the second one when strained gave way also. A third bridge fell at Rockford, Ill., when a crowd was watching a boat race. Let's hope the Greeneville bridge will at least be one Truesdell bridge that will stay put.

Miss Estelle Martin of this city has been engaged for one year to sing in St. Paul's church, New Haven, taking the place of Miss E. E. Kimberly. We understand that the congregation of the church are very much pleased, and well might they be, at having secured the services of one of the best singers in this city.

Col. Converse and family sail on Thursday of next week by the Algeria of the Cunard line. They will remain in Europe for about 2 years and it is expected that other local people will follow them overseas.

Thursday, May 8, 1873—The Third Regiment, C. N. G., of this city took part in the inauguration parade at Hartford yesterday and made as fine appearance as any other company in line. The parade was a big one and many Norwich people were in Hartford to view it. The local men said they were treated royally by the Hartford hosts during the day. After the parade Governor Ingersol dined with ex-Governor Jewell.

Charles B. Harvey, who has been the freight clerk on the steamer City of New York for some time, has succeeded to the New London agency of the Norwich & New York Transportation company. William F. Woodward, formerly clerk of the City of Norwich, succeeds Mr. Harvey on the New York.

The Rev. William E. Merriman, president of Ripon college, Wisconsin, is to preach Sunday at the Broadway church.

H. H. Potter has commenced the manufacture of soda water and sarsaparilla in this city.

William N. Beebe, formerly of this city has leased the old Niantic House at Niantic, which he is to open as a place of summer resort.

Friday, May 9, 1873—Mr. Pixton's house in Hardscrabble caught fire Thursday morning about 2 o'clock and was burned to the ground, a total loss, as Mr. Pixton had no insurance on the building. Marcellus Spencer a colored gentleman who had moved in the day before, also lost all his belongings. The firemen were somewhat disturbed after the fire when the court house bell started to ring in the same alarm. It was later found that the alarm was for the fire they had already been to and seen put out before returning to their stations.

A dog, Hero, owned by Burnham's circus, got in among the small animals yesterday and when he got through all that was left was the cage and balancing wheels.

People having plants set out, lost many of them Thursday morning when the ground was covered with a heavy frost. The weather has been backward at times during the past ten days.

John H. Cranston, superintendent of the printing press establishment at Thamesville is soon to leave for Europe where he will take in the Vienna Exposition.

Saturday, May 10, 1873—Two Spaniards were around town yesterday working the age old trick. They claimed to be dead broke, but offered for sale some genuine Havana cigars. The weeds were cheap things with Connecticut wrappers and as far as can be learned they found little business.

The Norwich Chess club has received a challenge from Capt. O'Farrell of Hartford for a game of chess by correspondence. It is hoped that someone in Norwich will take up the challenge.

Murray's Great Railroad circus is in town today and the youngsters were out bright and early watching the show unload.

Gurdon P. Cottrell died yesterday at his home on Cliff street. Mr. Cottrell was a member of the firm of Cottrell, Dyer & Co. He was one of the originators of the project of erecting a grain elevator in Norwich, making the city a center for the grain business. Although he failed and lost considerable capital he went into another business and succeeded. He also served on the common council for a number of years.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

Total sales (par value) were $9,845,000.

Day's total sales, 852,000 shares.

Twenty industrials averaged 96.45, net loss 1.16; high 1923, 105.38, low 95.41.

Twenty railroads averaged 82.20 net gain .05. High 1923, 90.63; low 80.37.

Reaction in Industrials

New York, May 11.—Concentrating their efforts on the steels, equipments and few highly speculative automotive shares, professional interests, succeeded in forcing another sharp reaction in the price of industrial stocks in today's market. They were aided by some heavy profit-taking on the part of recent purchasers and the diversion of speculative interest on the long side of the market into the railroad shares, which showed moderate strength.

United States Steel common broke more than 2 points to 98 3-4, a new low record for the year, and Bethlehem established a new bottom below 55 and then rallied slightly, showing a net loss. Mogle and Republic lost 1 to 2 1-4 of 1 5-8. Crucible, Gulf States, Repoints. Cancellation of orders because of the suspension of several proposed building projects was one of the reasons assigned for the weakness of these issues.

Baldwin dropped 3 points to 127 1-3, or within a small fraction of the year's low and Studebaker established a new low price at 111 5-8, rallying later to 112, where it was off 2 5-8 on the day. American Car and American and Lima Locomotives and General Electric yield 1 to 1 1-2 points.

Other outstanding weak spots among the active industrials were Mack Truck, Willy Overland preferred, Hayes Wheel, International Harvester, Mathieson Alkali, Dupont, Eastman, Kodak, Associated Dry Goods, American Cotton Oil preferred, American Agricultural Chemical, Davison Chemical, Cuba Cane Sugar preferred and U. S. Realty, the losses ranging from 2 to nearly 4 1-2 points. Woolworth added 4 1-2 points to its 16 point gain yesterday, touching 23 1-2, a new top, and then broke to 325 for a net loss of 10 points, recent buying being attributed to speculative expectation of a stock dividend or an increase in the regular rate.

Pere Marquette was one of the leaders of the railroad group, touching 43, a new top, and then dropping back to 41 5-8, where it was up 1 5-8 on the day. Buying of this issue was based on a speculative expectation of an early declaration of a dividend of $3 to $4 on the common stock and attributed to the same interests which recently had been buying Pittsburgh & West Virginia, which incidentally reacted 3 3-4 points on profit taking. Chicago & Eastern Illinois common and preferred, and Chicago & Northwestern each advanced about a point.

Call money at 4 1-2 per cent., throughout the day, little time money came into the market and the demand was small. A few loans being arranged 5 1-4 per cent. for three and four months maturity. Prime commercial paper commands 5 an 5 1-4 per cent.

The foreign exchange displayed a better tone. Demand sterling advanced over a cent to $4.611 3-4, and French francs again sold above 6.60 cents. German marks dropped below .0025 cents. Swiss francs dropped to 17.94 cents, a new low record for the year.

BOND MARKET

New York, May 11.—Bond prices continued firm, with evidences of increasing demand for foreign securities and railroad mortgages. In today's dealings on the New York stock exchange. Whel there were few gains of more than large fractions, the undertone was decided firm, and prices seemed benefited by the small volume of new issues offered this week.

Active U. S. government bonds were steady with the trading relatively quiet. Marseille 6's led the advance in the foreign group, closing up a point after rising nearly two points at one time.

Railroad mortgages were helped by the speculative interest displayed in the rail stocks, although the gains were not large. St. Paul 4's and Reading General 4's each gained a point. Western Maryland first 4's sold off 1 1-4.

Trading in the industrial group was dull with price movements confined to narrow limits. International Mercantile Marine 6's were up a point and Wilson & Company 7 1-2's dropped 1.

Announcement was made that the "Katy" organization syndicate formed to underwrite the reorganization plan has been closed. An issue of $2,560,000 Erie railroad 6 per cent. equipment trust certificates was sold during the day and the books closed. The interstate commerce commission authorized the St. Louis Southwestern railroad to issue $2,700,000 in equipment trust certificates.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, May 11.—Beneficial rains over dry sections of the middle-west led to free selling of wheat today, and put prices on the downgrade. The market closed unsettled, 1 1-4 to 2 1-8 cents net lower, with July 1.17 3-8 to 1.15 1-2 and September 1.14 1-4 to 1.14 3-8. Corn finished unchanged to 1 1-4 cents off, and oats lost 1-8 a 1-4 to 3-4 cent. In provisions, the outcome was a 2 cents to 7 cents decline.

With rain reports coming in from Illinois, Indiana and Ohio, there was a rush to sell wheat when the market opened, and although numerous rallies in price were subsequently witnessed, no lasting recovery took place. Buying support failed to develop except at material set backs and appeared to be due the almost entirely to short collecting profits. On the other hand, the selling was vigorously pressed, houses with eastern connections taking the lead. Fears adopted the view that the drought in the central district of the winter crop belt would be effectually broken.

Seeding of spring wheat was reported as making god progress, and this circumstance gave added impetus to the selling movement. Besides, export business lacked volume, the total amount in all positions being estimated at only 250,000 bushels. Sales of wheat to go into store here attracted notice likewise, and so too did continued deliveries on May contracts here.

In the corn market, the fact that premiums are at present the highest yet on the crop gave relative stability to prices. Cash demand was active, and rural offerings scarce, but the weakness of wheat had an evident bearish influence. Oats followed corn.

Scattered selling some of it by packers, made the provision market tend lower with grain, even though hog values held steady.

METAL MARKET

New York, May 11.—Copper easy, electrolytic, spot and futures 16 a 16 1-4. Tin easy. Spot and nearby 43 12; futures 43.25. Iron steady, prices unchanged. Lead steady. Spot 7.00 a 7.25. Zinc easy. East St. Louis spot and nearby delivery 6.65 a 6.75. Antimony, spot 7.50 a 7.62.

MONEY

New York, May 11.—Call money steady; high 4 1-2; low 4 1-2; ruling rate 4 1-2; closing bid 4 1-2; offered at 4 3-4; last loan 4 1-2; call loans against acceptances 4.

COTTON

New York, May 11.—Cotton-spot quiet; middling 25.30.

Hard Telling.

The new servant was as truthful as she could be. The first caller asked to see her mistress. "She's not at home," was the answer. "When will she be back?" asked the caller. "I don't know, mum. She's not gone out yet."

The Mayas.

Who were the Mayas?

How the chewing gum habit stimulated the finding of important Maya ruins is a bizarre chapter in their story.

Expeditions to find more about this pre-Columbian people arouse keener interest in them. They are credited with the "foremost intellectual achievement of ancient America" and they have been called "The Greeks of the new world."

Sylvanus Griswold Morley, writing to the National Geographic society says of the Mayas:

"During the first millennium before Christ, while yet our own forbears of northern Europe were plunged in the depths of barbarism, there developed somewhere in Middle America, probably on the Gulf coast of southern Mexico, a great aboriginal civilization called the Maya, which was destined to become the most brilliant expression of the ancient American mind.

"Their priests and astronomers were gathering from the stars the secrets of time and its accurate measure, the revolutions of the moon and planets.

"Their mathematicians and chronologists devised a calendar and chronology which was without peer on this continent and expelled by none in the old world at that time.

"Their builders developed an architecture at once unique, dignified, and beautiful.

"Their sculptors carved the most elaborate compositions and designs in stone.

"Their leaders mastered the problems of social and governmental organization and administered the state adequately and well. In short, a great national life was quickening to its fullest expression.

"The zenith of their civilization, however—indeed, the intellectual climax of all civilizations—was the development of a hieroglyphic writing which, moreover, was the only system of writing in the new world worthy of comparison with the earlier graphic systems of the old world, such as those of Egypt, of Babylonia, and of China, for example.

"Buried in the vast tropical forests of northern Central America, and especially in the state of Guatemala, these splendid memorials of a forgotten people are slowly coming to light.

"Year after year expeditions sent out by American scientific institutions are penetrating deeper and deeper into these virgin fastnesses and are discovering new ruined cities.

"The only other business which brings man into these tropical forests of northern Guatemala is one of our most important American industries, what might be termed, perhaps, our national sport—chewing gum.

"The principal ingredient of chewing gum is 'chicle,' which is obtained from a tree called the 'chico-zapote,' growing in these forests. Indeed, the archaeologist is deeply indebted to the chicle business for bringing him first news of new cities found in the bush from time to time by the chicle-hunters.

"The writer has a standing reward offered to all chicleros for 'information leading to the capture, dead or alive,' of any new group of ruins where there are hieroglyphic monuments, and already this expedient has resulted in the discovery of several important cities.

"It is the chicle-operators who keep the trails open; who locate the waterholes for camping-places; who maintain mule-trains, the only means of transportation possible in the region; whose activities bring labor into the bush. In short, in this field, at least, the archaeologist could scarcely pursue his profession were it not for our popular pastime of chewing gum. But to return to our subject.

"The peculiar importance of the Maya ideroglyphic writing lies in the fact that it represents a stage in science of expressing thoughts by graphic symbols not exemplified by the writing of any other people, ancient or modern. It stands at that momentous point in the development of the human race where graphic symbols representing sounds were just beginning to replace symbols representing ideas."

April Fools' day is celebrated in this country at the same time the people of Hindostan end their Feast of Hull by merrily playing jokes on each other.

Are we a nation of self-indulgent lunatics swept off our feet by the scarlet tidal wave of jazz? Are we blind to the consequences of our terrific pace? COMMISSIONERS ISSUE WARNING ON CITY'S FUTURE SUPPLY OF WATER

The time is not far off when the water supply of Norwich must be increased, says the board of water commissioners of the city, in their annual report which was submitted to the common council this week, which is the 50th annual report of the Norwich water department.

The operating profit for the year ending March 31, 1923, was $81,283.-93, total income having been $111,-976.30 and total expenses $30,744.31. The business of the department was better than the estimates that were made at the beginning of the year. Receipts exceeded the estimates by $3,975.36 and expenses were $348.-34 less than the estimated, which will enable the department to turn over to the city the estimated sum of $48,000 and have a balance of $4,259.-84 remaining.

Commissioner's Report.

The following is the report by the commissioners, John J. Corkery, Frank H. Quinley, R. S. Bartlett, Arthur E. Story and Charles A. Hagberg:

Norwich, Conn., April 1, 1923.
To the Honorable Court of Common Council of the City of Norwich:

Gentlemen: In compliance with the provisions of the city charter we herewith present our report for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1923. Accompanying it are the reports of the supervisor of outside work, and the reports of the cashier and inspector.

Financial Statement.

Receipts	$97,375.36
Disbursements	45,715.52
Balance	$52,259.84

At the beginning of the year the board estimated the receipts at $94,000, the disbursements at $46,-000 and the balance to be turned over to the city at $48,000. As will be seen by the above statement, the receipts exceeded the estimate by $3,-975.36, the disbursements were $243.84 less than the estimate and the amount turned over to the city, together with the balance on hand April 1st, will exceed the estimate by $4,259.84.

The fiscal year of the water department and the other departments of the city end at different times—the water department year ending March 31, and the year of the other departments, except the gas and electric department, ending May 31. For many years it has been the custom for the city treasurer to obtain money from the water department after the close of the water department's fiscal year and before the fifteenth of May following. Any money thus taken has been included in the estimates of the water department for its fiscal year and if not taken into consideration by the finance committee of the court of common council will result in a shortage of receipts. The board of water commissioners would recommend that the balance of the department be turned over to the city treasurer at the end of each quarter only.

This arrangement would avoid any mistake in the estimates and would relieve the water department of any possible financial embarrassment.

The board feel that attention should be called at this time to our reservoir supply and our water consumption. Our total water shed is now 4.8 square miles—2.5 square miles at Stony Brook and 2.3 square miles at Fairview and Meadow Brook. This amount of water shed can be depended upon to furnish a daily supply of 3,000,000 gallons every day in the year. The draft of water from our reservoirs has increased very rapidly during the past ten years. We are drawing water from them at the present time at the rate of 4,000,000 gallons a day. The large consumption is fairly well accounted for by a study of the quantity of water used and paid for by the large consumers. During the last quarter of our fiscal year the eighteen largest consumers on our books used about 20,000,000 cubic feet of water—about 150,000,000 gallons—and paid about $6,000 for the above named quantity. This consumption is at the rate of about 2,-600,000 gallons per day, which is about two-fifths of our average daily consumption and the revenue derived from the eighteen consumers is about one-fourth of the department's total revenue. At the end of our fiscal year, we have stored in our two storage reservoirs about 880,000,000 gallons of water and the analysis, recently taken, shows the water before chlorinating to be up to the standard for drinking purposes. This surplus should insure us against any shortage for the coming year, but the time is not far off when our water supply must be increased.

Supervisor's Report.

Norwich, Conn., April 1, 1923.
To the Honorable Board of Water Commissioners of the City of Norwich:

Gentlemen: I submit herewith my report as supervisor of outside work for the year ending March 31, 1923:

Fairview Reservoir.

During the spring and summer the fences and road around the reservoir were put in good condition; the grass and brush were cut and burned and the rip-rap cleaned of all growth; about 800 feet of new wire fences—four strand—were built and the entrance gate moved up to the dam. The entire water shed has been inspected frequently and every possible effort made to keep the water free of contamination. There are no houses on the water shed except near the dividing line and they are so far removed from the reservoir and tributary brooks that there is not much danger from that source.

Water taken from Fairview at different times during the year before receiving the chlorinating gas has been shown by analysis to meet the standard set by the U. S. treasury department for drinking water.

Meadow Brook Reservoir.

During the summer, the growth along the top of the dam and the rip-rap was cut and burned. The roadway was improved and a portion of the brook was cleaned. About 3,500 feet of new wire fence was built and about 800 feet of old fence repaired. There was need of more work at Meadow Brook than the estimate would allow and I would recommend a larger appropriation for the coming year. The Meadow Brook watershed is the main supply for Fairview and any money spent for its improvement will be well spent. I have inspected this watershed several times during the year and consider it free from any such possible contamination as either Fairview or Stony Brook.

Stony Brook Reservoir.

The brush and weeds around the entire basin were cut and burned; the roadway was repaired and a small portion of the upper brook cleaned; the watershed of Stony Brook reservoir contains 2 1-2 square miles and during the past ten years there have been many transfers in the ownership of some of the buildings on the watershed. I have inspected this watershed several times during the year and at times have found fault with the condition on some of the properties. The greatest danger of contamination is during the summer months, when a large number of people are in the neighborhood. I would recommend that this matter be given close attention during the summer months.

Rainfall.

The rainfall for the past year is about the average for the past fifty years and at the close of the year our two storage reservoirs are full to the top of the new twelve-inch flash boards.

We have about 880,000,000 gallons of water stored which amount should insure us against any shortage of water during the coming year. If we could rely upon an average rainfall every year there would be no danger of a shortage of water for many years to come, if at any time; but experience as taught us that we cannot do so.

In the years 1908-1909, 1909-1910, 1910-1911, the rainfall was 37.94, 32.49 and 33.35 inches respectively. They were three dry years in succession and were the cause of our shortage of water at that time.

I have received many complaints during the year from residents of Orchard street and Boswell avenue because of the lack of pressure. This condition has existed for a long time due to the elevation of the houses and is becoming worse as the consumption of water increases. The matter has been before the board during the year and has received earnest consideration. It is hoped that means will be found to improve the conditions in the above named places during the coming year.

To Make Rich Red Blood

Revitalize your worn-out exhausted nerves and increase your strength and endurance take organic iron; not metallic iron which people usually take, but pure organic iron—Nuxated Iron—which is like the iron in your blood and like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples. One dose of Nuxated Iron is estimated to be approximately equivalent (in organic iron content) to eating one-half quart of spinach, one quart of green vegetables or half a dozen apples. It is like taking extract of beef instead of eating pounds of meat. Nuxated Iron is partially predigested and ready for almost immediate absorption and assimilation by the blood, while metallic iron is iron just as it comes from the action of strong acids on small pieces of iron filings.

Over 4,000,000 people annually are using Nuxated Iron. It will not injure the teeth nor disturb the stomach. A few doses will often commence to enrich your blood. Your money will be refunded by the manufacturers if you do not obtain satisfactory results.

Beware of substitutes. Always insist on having genuine organic iron—Nuxated Iron. Look for the letters N. I. on every tablet. Sold by all druggists.

The fortieth annual convention of the Relief Corps closed its two-day session Thursday afternoon with election and installation of officers at the Central Baptist church. Mrs. Harriet Hodge of Hartford, past department president, installed the officers as follows:

President, Mrs. Eva A. Ruoff of Glastonbury; senior vice president, Mrs. Flora Warriner of Bridgeport; junior vice president, Mrs. Maude Deming of Willimantic; treasurer, Mrs. L. P. Hayden of Meriden; secretary, Mrs. Mattie Case of Glastonbury; chaplain, Mrs. Anne Littlefield of Hartford; installation and instruction officer, Mrs. May Ogden of Waterbury; patriotic instructor, Mrs. Emma D. Fisher of Pine Meadow; counsellor, Mrs. Bertha Morse of Hartford; chaplain, Mrs. Sarah Verdenburg of Westerly; executive board, Mrs. Dorothy T. Hanover of West Haven and Mrs. Clara McNichol of New Haven.

The morning session was occupied with reading of reports and final transaction of convention business. National and department past officers were introduced to the delegates and then the convention proceeded to elections.

WOMEN OF MOOSEHEART LEGION.

Norwich Chapter, No. 124, held its regular meeting Thursday evening at Moose home on Laurel Hill avenue, with a large attendance of members. Senior Regent Mrs. Rose Carter was in the chair, and considerable routine business was transacted. Harry Jeffers of the Grand lodge attended the meeting and spoke about Moosecheart, and the wonderful work that is being done there. The chapter voted to hold a whist at the Buckingham about the middle of this month.

Announcement was made that the next regular meeting of the chapter would be held on May 24th, at Moose Home, beginning at 8 o'clock daylight time, to continue on the new time until further notice.

EASTERN STAR.

Sachem Chapter, No. 57, met in regular session Wednesday night at Odd Fellows hall with Worthy Matron Mrs. Frances A. Geer in the chair. Routine business was transacted and initiation took place. The altar was draped in memory of Mrs. Susan M. Parr, past worthy matron of the chapter, who died suddenly last week. The chapter also made plans for a dance to be on May 23, and it is expected that a large number of members and their friends will attend. The sewing circle of the chapter met Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Arad R. Manning of Yantic, and considerable work was done. The next meeting of the sewing circle will be held on Tuesday afternoon, May 22, at the home of Mrs. Adelbert Maynard, 94 Laurel Hill avenue, and it is expected that much work will be done before the sale in June.

On Tuesday evening, 16 members of the chapter were guests of Dorah chapter of Westerly, on the evening of the visitation of the worthy grand matron and suite of officers.

FORESTERS.

Early Tuesday afternoon the delegates who were representing the different courts of the Foresters of America in Connecticut began to arrive in Torrington preparatory to the opening of the state convention.

The last meeting of the 22d executive council was called to order at 5.30 p. m. at the Conley inn by Grand Chief Ranger Robert L. Lodge, with every member present. Routine business and the naming of committees for the convention occupied the members. Just before the meeting was closed, Brother Cavanaugh in a few well chosen words presented Brother Lodge a traveling bag. Mr. Lodge thanked the members of the E. C. for their kindness, and then all adjourned to the city hall, where before some 800 delegates and local members of the Foresters, the degree team of Court Welch of Waterville initiated a class of 75 candidates. After their work they were very highly commended by both supreme and grand court officers who were present.

The entertainment which followed was given by Mack's Merry Men of Hartford and Paul Seery of Torrington. They pleased every one and insistent encores were demanded. After the entertainment all adjourned to Deland's hall, where a buffet lunch was served, and a blackface entertainment was presented by Williams and Dowd of Waterbury.

Promptly at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning the delegates to the convention were called to order by Grand Chief Ranger Robert L. Lodge. While waiting for the credentials committee to report, the warden of Torrington was introduced and welcomed the delegates to Torrington and gave them the freedom of the town. Town Clerk Gleason spoke briefly and interestingly. Supreme Chief Ranger George P. Sullivan of Derby proved very interesting in his talk upon the order in general. Supreme Secretary T. M. Donnelly of Jersey City spoke on the funeral fund and told of the vast amount of good it has done since it was instituted a few years ago. Congressman P. J. O'Sullivan of Derby took for his subject Kindness, and he handled it in a very masterful and convincing way, and delighted all of his hearers. Supreme Chief Companion Mary A. Starr of Norwalk, of the Companions of the Forest, addressed the convention and told of the benefits to be gained by the different courts of Foresters that had the circle of the Companions of the Forest affiliated with them.

Then followed the reports of the different officers, and they were very ably written, and were accepted. The membership was reported at 16,100, and the finances have increased greatly during the past year, all of which pleased the delegates as well as the grand court officers.

The session then adjourned for dinner which was served in Deland's hall by the Companions of the Forest. The ladies made the New England dinner their contribution to the convention. It was very appetizing and they were given a vote of thanks as well as being termed "master cooks."

When the delegates reconvened the different committees made their reports and several very important matters were referred by the delegates to the supreme convention to be held in Cleveland in August.

Then came the election of officers, which resulted as follows: G. C. ranger, P. J. Cavanaugh of Torrington; S. G. C. ranger, J. G. Fitzgerald of Ansonia; grand treasurer, J. J. Walsh of Meriden; grand secretary, Thomas O'Loughlin of Naugatuck; grand recording secretary, William H. Dunlavey of Waterville; grand lecturer, H. A. Congdon of Norwich; senior woodward, John F. Dacey of Bridgeport; junior woodward, A. J. Walsh of Simsbury; senior beadle, Richard Buttner of Meriden; junior beadle, Richard Johnson of Manchester. There were 16 delegates elected to the supreme convention and among them was Joseph R. Portelance of Norwich, with Edward Lambert of Norwich as alternate.

Court City of Norwich was represented by eight delegates and all of the delegates from Norwich, Taftville, Baltic, Jewett City and Voluntown left here at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon by auto and all reported that they were royally entertained by the brothers in Torrington, and expressed themselves as satisfied with the manner in which the convention was conducted.

The convention committee recommended Norwalk as the place of the next convention and their recommendation was accepted without a dissenting vote.

U. S. W. V. AUXILIARY

Major L. B. Almy auxiliary, No. 15, met in the Buckingham Memorial Friday night with President Maude E. Baker presiding. The following delegates were elected to go to the department convention to be held in New London in June: Mrs. Elizabeth Donahue, Mrs. Lottie Skinner, Mrs. Elizabeth M. Houston and Mrs. Annie B. Turner.

It was voted to hold a whist at the Buckingham in the latter part of May.

At the close of the meeting one of the members surprised the meeting by presenting to Mrs. McKenzie, nee Sadie Earl, a beautiful wedding gift of silver. A social time followed which was greatly enjoyed.

MOOSE

Norwich Lodge, No. 950, met in regular session Friday night at Moose Home Laurel Hill avenue with Dictator George J. Goepfert in the chair. Considerable routine business was transacted following which George J. Goepfert and Herman A. Bruckner were elected delegates to represent the lodge at the convention and field day of the Connecticut State & Field Day association to be held in South Manchester June 15 and 16th. It is expected that the field day will be one of the largest ever held by the Moose and affairs will get off to a fine start Friday morning June 15th at 9 o'clock. The big parade is to be held on Saturday starting at 1.30 o'clock from the Manchester Depot. Many local members not delegates to the convention are planning to attend and take part in the parade.

A special treat of the evening was the visit of Harry Jeffers, supreme auditor, who spoke of the fine work at Moosehcart and congratulated the local lodge on its record for the past year, also on the way in which meetings were conducted. He spoke of the principles of the lodge and said that the lodge was in excellent financial standing.

POETRY

MOTHERS' DAY—MAY 13.

The wide world over, we see it penned
"Man's mother is ever his dear best friend."
And it's likely that each who says it, too
First learned for himself, the words were true.
When Success turned off with the ones he thought
Would give him aid—till the aid was sought—
When his plans went wrong, and he burned with shame.
She PROVED that she loved him just the same.
And he told her all, and he raised his head
And she smiled, and he found that he hurt had fled.
He went to her when things all seemed blue,
And she gave him courage to try anew
"His one best friend"—so the saying goes.
He says it, because he's learned. SHE KNOWS.
With a love through all, to the very end—
What a gift, to be born with that sort of a friend!

THE AUTOMOBILE.

It's fine when the world is an automobile
That merrily whirls you along.
Where the sunshine is bright and the stars seem to feel
In humor for laughter and song.
It's fine when the motor with steady refrain
Keeps up its reliable pace.
And there's never a reason to fret or complain—
But it's fierce when a breakdown takes place.

A puncture is a trifle. The flight is so swift
That we scarcely know how it was made.
Nor think of the chance to give someone a lift
Who is toiling on foot up the grade.
It's fine when the world like a motorcar glides.
With nothing its progress to balk.
But it's fierce when it skids or it stalls or collides.
And you find you must get out and walk.

So let's bear in mind when it's our turn to speed
At a rate that is swift and secure.
The fellow compelled on his way to proceed
At a rate that is plodding but sure.
Then stifle your pride as you thoughtlessly plan
A spare with the whistle or gong.
And remember to leave right of way for the man
Who has to keep trudging along.
—Philander Johnson, in Washington Star.

BRITAIN REJECTS GERMANY'S RECENT REPARATIONS OFFER

Note, Signed by Lord Curzon, Informs Germany That the Proposals of the German Government Came as a Great Disappointment—Admonishes Germany That an Expansion of Proposals Must Precede Any Further Discussion—Great Britain Ready to Act With Her Allies When Suitable Moment Arrives—Italy Disappointed by the German Proposals.

London, May 13—(By the A. P.)—The text of the British government's note to Germany in reply to German's recent reparations offer was made public today. It is signed by Lord Curzon, secretary for foreign affairs and says:

"His majesty's government have given careful attention to the memorandum of your excellency, communicated to me May 2, in which the German government put forward proposals for a settlement of reparations.

"This action on their part is well known to have been a sequel to the suggestion I made in a debate in the British Parliament April 20, and his majesty's government therefore have special interest in the response returned to that appeal.

"I cannot conceal from your excellency that the proposals of your government come as a great disappointment.

"The main grounds for this legitimate disappointment are the following:

"First—The German government offer no total payment of their acknowledged debt a sum which, falling far below the moderate amount forming the basis of the British scheme submitted to the Paris conference in January last, must have been known in advance to be altogether unacceptable to the allied governments. Furthermore payment of even this inadequate sum is made dependent on a series of international loans, the success of which in the conditions predicated must be largely speculative. So much so that the scheme proposed by the German government actually contains provisions dealing with the contingency of the loans not materializing.

"Second—The failure of the German reply to indicate with great precision the nature of the guarantees they are disposed to offer is more particularly to be regretted. The allied governments, instead of receiving concrete and substantial proposals in this respect, are confronted with vague assurances and references to future negotiations.

"The disappointment is enhanced by the belief, which his majesty's government would like to entertain, that indications are to be found in the German memorandum that the German government recognize the responsibility resting on them to make an earnest effort to discharge their obligations under the Versailles treaty in a manner which the allies could regard as both equitable and sincere.

"His majesty's government are persuaded that in her own interest, Germany will see the advantage of displaying a greater readiness to grapple with the realities of the case, and, discarding all irrelevant or controversial issues, will proceed to reconsider or expand their proposals in such a way as to convert them into a feasible basis for further discussion.

"In such a discussion his majesty's government will, at a suitable moment, be ready to take part by the side of its allies, with whom they share a practical interest in this question, which they have no intention to abandon, as well as a desire to terminate a situation of international peril.

"But they cannot conceal from the German government that the first step forward to a realization of any such hope must be recognition by Germany that a contribution much more serious and much more precise is required than any which yet has been forthcoming."

ITALY DISAPPOINTED BY GERMAN PROPOSALS

Rome, May 13—(By the A. P.)—Italy's reply to the German note on reparations begins by expressing disappointment over the proposals. It defines the Italian attitude as a sequel to the plans submitted by Italy at the last conferences at London and Paris.

Italy, it says, by reason of her economic and financial position, is obliged to consider the problems of reparations and inter-allied debts at all times closely bound up with each other, and cannot refrain from insisting that they be settled as soon as possible, taking into account the expenses of reconstruction in her invaded regions.

"That necessity," continues the note, "clearly explains her attitude both as regards the deliberations of the reparation commission and as regards events which followed the last Paris conference, it being understood that her interests and requirements in the solution of so grave a question are not inferior to those of any other allied state whatsoever.

"As is proved in several official manifestations and explicit documents of the royal government, Italy is disposed to bear her share of sacrifices in order to insure a general economic settlement, but she cannot agree to the imposition of such sacrifices as are beyond her reasonable capacity.

"It must not be forgotten that Italy's relative position in the percentage of German reparations is based on the greater share reserved to her in the reparations due from the small states, in regard to which, Italy, in conformity with generosity and moderation, and taking into account their difficult situation, agreed to concessions without so far invoking or claiming her right to have recourse to Germany's joint liability as sanctioned by treaties.

"The German proposal thus does not offer a methodical or complete plan, such as is indispensable to form the basis of even discussion of principle. It resolves itself into a series of vague and inaccurate indications which are the more worthless when compared with the great importance of the questions to which it refers.

"In view of a general settlement, such insufficiency is a cause of regret to the royal government because of the delay and the detriment to all and any progress toward a solution of the problem and because it may strengthen the opinion, which finds certain credit, that is to say, that Germany influences certain internal political currents and seeks to escape the accomplishment of her just obligations."

ORATION BY POINCARE AT DEDICATION OF MONUMENT

Comeroy, France, May 13.—(By The A. P.)—France will stak in the Ruhr until she is paid, said Premier Poincare in an address here today. The premier did not refer to the notes which are being sent the Berlin government by Great Britain and Italy, but he emphasized his determination to stick firmly to his previously announced policy.

"We are in the Ruhr," declared M. Poincare, "so long as Germany does not pay she will not get us out."

The premier was speaking at the dedication of a monument erected to the memory of 217 men killed in the war, all whom he had known.

"We have known the Germans for more than 1900 years," said M. Poincare in explaining why he considered guarantees from the German government were required. "We have never noticed that they have greatly changed. They are a people woh whom war is eternally a national in ldustry and for whom peace never was anything but a truce between combats."

Remarking how Germany had failed to learn her lesson, M. Poincare asked: "Must there ben Germa catastrophe to awaken the country to realize that if it wishes to merit the world's confidence it first must keep its word and fulfill its promises?"

M. Poincare answered the recent suggestion of David Lloyd George, former British prime minister, that France was ungrateful to Great Britain, whom she again might need.

"Certainly we remain eternally grateful to all peoples who cam eto our invaded country to support a common cause," said the premier. "But we say quite openly that the same gratitude is due us by all our companions in arms."

MH. Poincare said the dead, of whom the French were the most numerous, barred the road of the Germans to Paris. "But they also barred that to Calais and London and prevented the Germans from attaining world hegemony," the predier added.

OBITUARY.

Rt. Rev. Mgr. Joseph F. Mooney.

New York, May 13.—Rt. Rev. Monsignor Joseph F. Mooney, senior vicar general of the Roman Catholic archdiocese of New York and pastor of the Church of the Sacred Heart of Jesus, died tonight after an illness of eight weeks.

Monsignor Mooney was born in Mt. Hope, Pa., in 1853, and was a graduate of St. John's college and Fordham university. He was ordained to the priesthood at Troy seminary in 1871 and became pastor of St. Patrick's church at Newburg, N. Y., in 1879, where he served until 1890, when he became pastor of the Church of the Sacred Heart of Jesus here.

He was made chancellor of the archdiocese of New York in 1892 and in the same year became vicar general. Monsignor Mooney became domestic prelate of the Holy See in 1895 and prothonotary apostolic in 1904.

He was stricken with pneumonia eight weeks ago.

It was announced that pontifical mass would be held by Archbishop Hayes, assisted by Bishop Dunn, on Wednesday, at which time the funeral will be held.

Production Close To the Maximum Rate

Car Loadings Last Week Established a New Record for This Season of the Year—Slump in Textiles.

New York, May 13 (By the A. P.)—With speculative sentiment still unsettled and with commodity prices still showing much irregularity, reports received in business quarters during the past week indicate that production is continuing to go ahead at a rate close to the maximum. The latest figures for loadings of railroad freight cars, those for the week ending April 28, showed a total of 964,000 cars, which sets a new high record since the middle of last November and is only 5 per cent. below the greatest weekly movement in history. The week's loadings establish an entirely new record for this season of the year. Unusually heavy shipments, of merchandise and miscellaneous freights were, furthermore, responsible for the larger part of the gain.

Additional evidence of sustained industrial activity is furnished by the steel industry. Although the tendency toward a falling off in forward buying has continued, output has, if anything, increased. The United States Steel corporation, for example, is reported to be working its plants at 97 per cent. capacity. Consumption of steel also seems to be going on a high rate. With the mills working at so high a rate, they naturally are catching up on orders and, with new forward buying held somewhat in abeyance, are able to offer prompter deliveries. As a result, premium prices have disappeared to large degree. On the other hand, the mills also are working off old contracts taken at lower prices, so that the average contract price of the material being delivered is rising.

An exception to the general trend is offered by the textile industry, where curtailments have been announced by a few New England cotton mills. While these announcements have had a depressing effect on the price of the raw material, they probably do not represent any great falling off in the aggregate production of cotton cloth.

WEEKLY REVIEW OF THE BOND MARKET

New York, May 13 (By the A. P.)—Marked improvement was shown in the prices of railroad mortgages and a majority of the industrial company liens in the trading last week on the New York stock exchange. U. S. government bonds, however, were inclined to be reactionary and most of the foreign bonds sagged slightly.

The decline in new offerings, the new issues aggregating only $31,128,000 as compared with $82,478,000 the previous week, undoubtedly had a considerable influence on the increased demand shown for listed issues. Market observers attributed the relative heaviness of U. S. government bonds to a natural readjustment of prices in view of a higher rate to be paid on the government's forthcoming new financing which was announced last Monday.

The new government issue at the rate of 4 3-4 per cent. was somewhat of a surprise, the general expectation having been that the rate would be 5 per cent. So, while the 4 3-4 rate was considered a favorable factor, it was natural to expect the Liberty issues to adjust themselves to the new interest rate.

WEEK OF REACTION IN FINANCIAL MARKET

New York, May 13.—Stock prices, after recovering nearly one-third of the ground lost in last week's violent decline, ran into a secondary reaction this week end which carried many of the leaders, including U. S. Steel common, Bethlehem and Studebaker to new low levels for the year. While a relaxing tendency in commodity prices, a slowing down of industrial expansion and a suspension of several important building projects have had a sentimental effect, many market observers were of the opinion that the reaction was largely the readjustment of the weakened technical structure of the market. Bond prices held fairly firm.

Commodity and foreign exchange markets also developed a reactionary tendency although the dismissal of the government's suit against the New York coffee and sugar exchange resulted in a brief rally in the prices of the raw product. Demand sterling broke below $4.60 to a new low level for the year but rallied later to $4.61 3-4. German marks sold as low as $23 a million, or only $4 above the extreme low made in the collapse which followed the French occupation of the Ruhr last January. Swiss and Norwegian exchanges also touched new lows.

Money rates were somewhat easier, the ruling rate for call money during the week being 4 1-2 per cent., with 5 as the top price. The time money market was quiet with a few short term loans arranged at 5 per cent., and the longer maturities at 5 1-4. Prime commercial paper was about evenly divided between 5 and 5 1-4 per cent.

FOUR PERSONS INJURED WHEN BRIDGE COLLAPSED

The passengers, two men and two women, managed to free themselves from the machine and climbed to safety.

Anderson Takes Gov, Smith to Task

Declares the Governor of New York is the Enemy of Everything the Anti-Saloon League Stands for.

New York, May 13—Governor Smith is the enemy of everything the anti-saloon league stands for, William H. Anderson, state superintendent of the league in New York, told an audience from the pulpit of Elmhurst Methodist Episcopal church in Brooklyn.

Mr. Anderson said the management of the league had no intention of asking the governor to veto the measure passed by the state legislature repealing the Mullin-Gage prohibition enforcement law, but would confine itself strictly to a formal protest against his giving encouragement to outlawry by approving it.

One of the chief reasons for the anti-saloon league's position, Mr. Anderson said, lies in the fact that many believe the "hearings" to be given by Governor Smith before acting on the bill, is a "piece of stage play to give the impression to the gullible that the matter is being very carefully weighed, when in fact, in my judgment, Tammany and the wet interests generally have been assured from the beginning that the governor would approve the measure if it were passed by the legislature."

PLAN TO CONSOLIDATE PRESBYTERIAN AGENCIES

Indianapolis, Ind., May 13.—Consummation of a plan for consolidating the numerous Presoyterian agencies dealing with benevolent and educational work will be announced at the 135th general assembly of the Presbyterian church in the United States. All of the old boards will make reports to the assembly for the last time.

The committee to reorganize the boards was appointed two years ago. The merging of the different boards has been accomplished gradually, according to Dr. Stone, and with little confusion in the work.

TREASURY'S CALL FOR $400,000,000 OVERSUBSCRIBED

Washington, May 13.—The treasury's call for $400,000,000 with which to complete the refunding of Victory notes has brought subscriptions in excess of a billion dollars in cash and offers to exchange old securities for new.

As a result of the oversubscriptions the next financing of the treasury probably will be on a decidedly moderate scale. A further flotation of short term obligations will take place in June, but this issue may not exceed $250,000,000.

While there have been numerous replacements in the outstanding issues of government obligations during the year, the tendency of the financing has been generally downward. Secretary Mellon has predicted that the public debt will about to about $22,400,000,000 at the end of the fiscal year, June 30, a reduction of more than $1,600,000,000 in the last two years.

ARREST MADE FOR THE 1920 WALL STREET EXPLOSION

Noah Lerner Held Without Bail—Had Boasted, While Living in Siberia, That He Was the Man "Who Drove the Little Red Wagon"—Hearing in Homicide Court Has Been Set for Thursday—Lerner, Employed at Soviet Headquarters, Declares He is Innocent.

New York, May 13—Noah Lerner, arrested last night on information that he had boasted, while living in the Kuzbas colony in Siberia, that he was the man "who drove the little red wagon that exploded in wall street" September 16, 1920, when forty people were killed, was arraigned before Magistrate Frothingham today and held without bail. His hearing in homicide court was set for Thursday.

"I have absolutely nothing to do with this whole thing," Lerner said to newspapermen. "All I ask is a full investigation of the facts and the stories that have been told against me. It is all a great error and I am sure a full police investigation will clear me of the charges."

Detectives investigating the prisoner's record said they have information that he is an active member of the communist group and the I. W. W. in this country. An I. W. W. card with his signature showing he had paid dues to December, 1922, was found in his possession, the police declared.

Lerner asserted that officials of the Kuzbas colony gave him a million rubles last August to return to the United States. He arrived here on the Homeric, May 3 last and since then, the police said has been employed at the soviety headquarters, 110 West 40th street, as assistant purchasnig manager. Three countries, Belgium, Italy and France, are represented in what promised to be the greatest lighter-than-air race since the Gordon Bennett cup was founded until a squall struck the Tuilleries gardens, and some of the balloons, which were just beginning to be filled, were carried away like feathers.

No lives were lost, and Blanchet, Cormier and Bourdariat of France and Scratzky of Italy watched their balloons disappear while they were standing on the ground.

The consuls added that the messengers from the Peking authorities were then with the bandits, having crossed the message on the way. As the terms include the drawing off of the troops, and the troops are not pressing the bandits, the consuls believe the captives are not in danger.

KILLED WOMAN WHILE SHOOTING AT ABDUCTORS

Pine Bluff, Ark., May 13.—Mrs. J. K. Snow of Eldorado was killed by officers who were shooting at two men who had abducted her Friday night, Sheriff Burks of Drew county said late last night.

Mr. and Mrs. Snow had left Eldorado by automobile to return to Mr. Snow's home in Cincinnati, O. Their automobile was stalled in Moro Bay bottoms, near Eldorado, when the two men came up in their car and suggested that they take Mrs. Snow to Warren and send back a mechanic. Meanwhile Snow repaired his car and drove to Warren but could not find any trace of the others.

Late last night the two men, with Mrs. Snow, presumably gagged, in the automobile, stopped in Monticello to buy gasoline. They refused to pay for it and Marshals J. D. Rateree and Price were called. The men sped away, the officers firing one shot after the automobile. This shot, it was later discovered, killed one of the men.

The officers took up the chase and overtook the automobile three miles from Monticello.

Mrs. Snow, it is said, ran towards the officers and the alleged abductor attempted to escape. The officers fired and the woman, almost in safety, crumpled and fell from a bullet sent after the escaping man. She died almost instantly.

BULLETIN BY NEW ENGLAND CROP REPORTING SERVICE

Wakefield, Mass., May 13.—The late spring has retarded growth throughout New England, but no frost damage was reported up to May 11, says a bulletin made public today by the New England Crop Reporting Service of the United States Department of Agriculture here. There has been much stripping of fruit buds by partridges in sections of New Hampshire, Massachusetts and Rhode Island where these birds are numerous, the bulletin adds.

"Maine potato growers feel encouraged by recent prive advances and prospective acreage decreases elsewhere so that they hope to get good prices for a full crop," the bulletin says.

Unsatisfactory returns for last year's crop of Connecticut valley onions has caused a considerablecut in this year's acreage, the report says.

"Scarcity of farm labor and high wages are accelerating the shifting from unprofitable into more profitable lines of farming," it adds. "Farmers must utilize their own time and the services of their families more fully. Machinery, teams and help must be used more fully and efficiently and management of the farm business must be better."

ASPHYXIATED YOUNG NIECE WHOM HE LOVED

New York, May 13.—Love for his niece, Anna Hjedie, 21, led William Brunner, 42, to asphyxiate her with illuminating gas and fire a bullet in his head in their basement apartment in the Bronx today. Their bodies were found when neighbors, attracted by the shot, broke in the door.

A letter signed by both declared they had decided to die because of their persecution. Court records show that Brunner had been arrested on a warrant from Union Hill, N. J., charging abandonment of his wife, whom he married two years ago, also were found. He had been released from the Hoboken jail a week ago, it was said.

The girl, Brunner's niece, came from Germany a year ago and lived with the couple until March, when both she and Brunner disappeared.

ALLIED NOTES NOT PLEASING TO GGERMAN PRESS

Paris, May 13.—(By The A. P.)—The British and Italian notes to Germany have been received lukewarmly by the press, which, however, had them too late for detailed analysis. There is regret that the Ruhr occupation is not mentioned, but satisfaction over the strong condemnation of the German terms as too low.

The Tempa, far from giving Lord Curzon the credit for inducing the Germans to make their proposals, says the offer would have come anyway, and contends that the British and Italian efforts to induce Germany to seek peace are partly responsible for the inadequate proposals.

WILLIMANTIC

NORWICH BULLETIN
Willimantic Office
21 Church Street Telephone 1051

Due to the fact that Mr. and Mrs. Albert MacNeill, whose automobile was struck by the pumper of the local fire department, were using every caution to get to safety and that they were strangers in town, Judge Foss absolved them of any guilt for the accident, at Saturday morning's session of police court. The case was that of Albert McNeill of Whitinsville, Mass., who was charged with violation of one of Willimantic's traffic ordinances, namely, that every vehicle should come to a standstill upon hearing the sounding of the fire alarm.

The accident in question took place Monday afternoon shortly before 5 o'clock, when the defendant and his wife, Lottie McNeill were coming up Main street in a Buick roadster which was struck by the pumper as it swung from Main into North street. Mrs. McNeill was slightly injured and the roadster sustained a demolished left side. A warrant was made out for the arrest of Mrs. McNeill, who was driving the machine at the time, but as she was unable to attend, her husband offered to appear for her. He was charged with violation of one of the city traffic ordinances and pleaded not guilty.

Charles A. Reynolds, the driver of the LaFrance pumper, was the first witness. He asserted that he had received orders to proceed down Main and up North streets. He started to make the turn about 75 feet from the intersection of the streets and due to the length of the pumper he intended to go to the left of the silent policeman at the foot of North street. He noticed that the roadster was proceeding up the main thoroughfare and was of the opinion that it would come to a stop as the siren was being sounded. The roadster was run into when it was about two or three feet from the curbing and in a diagonal position on North street intersection.

Other firemen on the pumper at the time were Chief James J. Tighe, Assistant Chief Harry Kelley and Hosemen Martin and Grimes.

Captain Tighe told of seeing the oncoming roadster and said that it was in motion when struck. He saw Hoseman Grimes pick Mrs. McNeill from the street. He said that the truck was going at a moderate speed and the brakes were in good condition.

Traffic Officer Thomas Grady testified to seeing the roadster approaching but that it could not draw alongside the curbing.

Albert McNeill, the defendant, stated that his wife tried to get to an unoccupied space alongside of the curbing, thinking that the pumper would continue down Main street. He said that when the crash came Mrs. McNeill had felt the danger and applied the brakes, bringing the car to a stop. The defendant alleged that if the truck had taken the right side of the silent policeman, the accident would have been avoided. He further stated that while the firemen were making an attempt to back the pumper away, Mrs. McNeill was just crawling from under the fire truck.

Prosecuting Attorney Harvey was of the opinion that although there was a technical violation of the ordinance the Buick could not be brought to the curb under the present parking conditions. They were seeking safety and no doubt they had suffered from the experience. The case was then discharged.

Why People Become Nervous and Run-down

Prominent Health Official Explains

By G. H. Lipkind, M. D.
Former Member of Philadelphia Health Department

"The reason why persons who approach, anaemic, nervous and run-down have gotten into that condition is because they exercised that they used up their vital energy and nerve force quicker than their bodies can replace it.

"Their systems fail to extract from the food they eat and retain in sufficient quantity those mineral elements without which the body is absolutely unable to create vital energy and nerve force. And so they go on expending, day by day, their vital energy without adequately replenishing the supply until their systems become completely run-down, their blood gets impoverished and their nerves are starving. The mineral elements which are essential in the creation of vital power are particularly calcium, potassium, sodium, phosphorus and iron. And these elements must be administered to those patients whose systems do not extract them in sufficient quantity in Organic form by home-made food. That is why I always recommend Wincarnis to nervous, anaemic persons and run-down people. For Wincarnis contains all of these vitally necessary elements in a form that nearly the system is readily assimilated, and also because it is the most delicious tonic."

WILLIMANTIC MAN COMPLAINS AGAINST WARDEN LUSSIER

Willimantic, May 13.—The disputed question of dog wardens in the town of Windham took on a new phase when it developed that Rodolph Lussier, appointed dog warden by Commissioner James M. Whittlesey on April 11, must now answer to several charges preferred against him by a local man.

Commissioner Whittlesey had notified Mr. Lussier that he should call at his office at the state capitol on Monda yafternoon and show cause why he should not be removed as dog warden.

Dear Sir: I have been informed in writing by John H. Wilson, No. 99 Monticello street, Willimantic, that in the course of the performance of your duties as dog warden you informed him that you did not recognize the selectmen or the town clerk of the town or any other city or town but that you were working for the state and that if Mr. Wilson did not like it, have your statement lapsed into profanity which was not proper to repeat.

This statement is substantiated in writing by the first selectman and one of the representatives in the town of Windham. He further stated that in impounding dogs you did not notify the town clerk as in the law provided, consequently if you wish to make any statement, regarding these charges preferred against you, will be glad to see you at this office on Monday, May 28, in the afternoon, to show cause why you should not be removed as dog warden.

Very truly yours,
J. W. WHITTLESEY,
Commissioner.

Mr. Lussier told a representative of the Norwich Bulletin that he intended to call on Commissioner Whittlesey Monday afternoon but he had little to say on the matter, wishing to reserve his version of the question until Monday afternoon at Hartford.

Arthur Dunston of Baskerville was struck and knocked down about 5.30 o'clock Sunday afternoon by a Hudson touring car driven by Frank Ptak of 200 Pearl street, Hartford. The car bore the Connecticut registry number 12276.

Dunston had started to cross Railroad street at its right intersection with Main street and upon hearing the sound of an automobile horn he waited. One machine turned into Railroad street when Dunston started over the cross walk and he was struck by the Ptak car which was in the rear of the first machine. Dunston was thrown to the ground and besides being badly shaken up received cuts on his head and hands. He was taken to a physicians office and given treatment.

Traffic officer Thomas Grady was on the scene at the time and Ptak agreed to settle with Dunston.

Lee Hedrick of East Hampton will be arraigned before the local police court Monday morning for speeding within the city limits and having a driver's license. Hedrick who was driving a Ford coupe was placed under arrest by Motorcycle Officer Bombara about 4.30 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

The heavy rain storm Saturday evening about 7.45 o'clock was a cause of an accident when Leopold Auclair of this city was struck by a Star Sedan jitney driven by Arthur Clark of Bellevue street, Auclair was walking across the Railroad street at the junction of Union and Jackson streets just as Clark rounded the corner. The automatic windshield wiper on the Clark machine suddenly stopped working and as a consequence blurring of the glass he could not see Auclair. The latter was struck and knocked down and sustained a badly bruised knee and a lacerated left hand.

FIVE AUTO CRASHES IN NEW LONDON OVER THE WEEK-END

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, May 13—Saturday was a record day in New London for automobile accidents and of the five crashes to occur, but one resulted in serious injury to occupants of the colliding vehicles, S. Elbert Geer, a well known contractor, residing at No. 264 Broad street, was the victim of the crash and Paul Du Brou of No. 550 Garden street, Hartford, whose automobile collided with a team driven by Mr. Geer, will be arraigned in the police court tomorrow morning, charged with reckless driving and failing to have his registration in his machine.

Geer's injuries have not been fully determined, for it is possible he has sustained internal injuries. His son who was also in the vehicle escaped with a few minor bruises.

The accident occurred when Mr. Geer was driving along Broad street to his home. As the vehicle reached the corner of Centre street, the elder Geer instructed his son to give a signal that the team was to turn into the intersecting street. As the youth lifted his hand, the father caused the team to divert its course and head across the highway to enter Centre street.

At the same time Du Brou's automobile was approaching and not heeding the signal. Du Brou attempted to drive the automobile in front and around the team. He was unsuccessful in carrying out his plan and was forced to drive his machine into Centre street to endeavor to avoid a collision. The machine was going at a fast rate of speed and instead of making the detour of the team, the automobile struck the wagon between the front and rear wheels, smashing it and continuing against a stone wall, wrecked the car. Geer and his son were hurled from the wagon, the father landing on the sidewalk and the son on the lawn of his home. The horse did not receive injury, nor did the animal attempt to run away.

A three cornered automobile collision occured late Saturday afternoon when machines, owned by Mrs. Nancy B. Morgan of No. 194 Hempstead street and operated by her son, Edward, aged 16 years; and cars owned and operated by Emmett R. Gates of No. 49 West Pleasant street and Francis Marcilli of No. 33 Garfield avenue, collided at the corner of State and Kensington streets. All three machines escaped damage other than a slight disfiguration.

A machine owned and driven by Percy Neff of Waterford and an unidentified car were in collision on Bank street. No damage resulted.

An automobile, operated by Thomas F. Connors of No. 31 Berkley avenue and a car owned and operated by Arthur W. Bruce of East Lyme collided on Bank street, near Tilley street, with but slight damage.

An automobile, owned and operated by Leonardo De Lillo of No. 35 Shaw street and a car owned and operated by Charles Larson of Pleasure Beach, collided on State street, near the Union station. Neither machine sustained damage of consequence.

Jeremiah Twomey of Garfield avenue, who sustained lacerations of the wrist by being thrown from an automobile owned by the New London Glass Company on the outskirts of Norwich a fortnight ago, and who has since been under treatment at the William Backus hospital, Norwich, returned to his home Saturday.

Mrs. Claude Cornell of Weiden avenue, Mrs. Dora Keaney of Jay street, Cadet John Lord of the United States Coast Guard Academy, Englebert J. Sauter of Masonic street and Mrs. Charles Smith of Potter Hill, R. I., were patients discharged Saturday at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital.

The first work towards the widening of Meridian street, between State and Church streets, was started Saturday when men started removing a huge elm tree that has graced the corner many years. Because of the narrowness of the street and the great number of automobiles that pass through the thoroughfare, the street is to be widened eleven feet.

The number of cases of a contagious nature to develop in New London the past week was the least in many weeks. But six cases were reported to the health department, one each of scarlet fever, gastritis, pneumonia, measles, tuberculosis and diptheria.

Councilor Malcolm M. Scott, who has been confined to his home on Broad street a week by illness, has so far recovered that he intends to be present at the weekly session of the city council, to be held Monday evening.

Thomas J. Hanley, Arthur Beran and Lawrence Shaw were taken into custody late Friday night, charged with assault upon George Howard and Jacob Kleinnona. They were arraigned in the police court Saturday forenoon, but the charge against them was continued until Monday morning because Howard was unable to attend court owing to the severe beating he received. The trio of fighting men were released upon securing surety on their bonds for their court appearance tomorrow.

Hanley, Beran and Shaw, it is alleged, were passing through Main street, when they were accosted by Howard and Kleinnona and one of the latter requested a loan of $1 from a member of the trio. The loan was refused and harsh words followed with the result that Hanley, Beran and Shaw, it is claimed, set upon Howard and Kleinnona, administering a severe beating to the pair. Patrolmen George Perkins and Carlos Selesnitsky came along while the battle was raging and placed Hanley, Beran and Shaw under arrest.

The police of Waterbury are anxious to locate an imposter, who defrauded a firm of that city of a small amount of money and have requested the New London police to assist them in the apprehension of the crook, although it is apparent that the man will not be found in this vicinity.

Last Monday the crook went to the Waterbury store and represented that he was "Commander C. R. Rogers U. S. N." of New London. He purchased a quantity of crockery and left instructions to forward the purchase to "Catherine Rogers, care of Col. Thomas Winchell, New London." In tendering payment for the crockery "Rogers" gave a check for $145, which was about $13 in excess of the amount of the bill. The check was cashed, and the change given "Rogers". The check was deposited in a Waterbury bank and Saturday it was returned as being worthless as "Rogers" was not known at the bank upon which the check was drawn. An investigation at the commercial rating agencies and at the local force of the New London Artillery District, did not reveal "Rogers" or "Winchell" being known.

The grocery is now at the office of the American Railway Express Co. here and will be forwarded back to Waterbury, so that the firm will lose but the difference between the amount of the check, together with such expense as will be incurred in the transportation of the crockery between Waterbury and New London.

The crook is believed to be one of several who have operated in the state several months, posing as naval officers.

Miss Frieda Anderson of No. 207 Huntington street reported to the police Saturday that recently, a silk night gown and silk underwear had been stolen from a trunk in her room. Miss Anderson suspected the thief, but cannot prove the theft.

Funeral services for Mrs. Louise C. Meeker, widow of George W. Meeker, were held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. William A. Mercer of No. 14 Channing street. Rev. J. Beveridge Lee officiated. Interment was in Cedar Grove cemetery.

James Moran, a well known resident of New London, died this morning at his home, No. 17 Huntington street, death resulting from but a few weeks illness and from infirmities attending old age. Mr. Moran was a real estate and insurance business man and at one time was in the lumber business. He was about 78 years of age and is survived by his widow and three children.

Mr. Moran had been active until about six weeks ago, when he was compelled to abandon activity and became confined to his home the greater part of the time. Within a few days his condition became much worse and the end came at 5.40 o'clock.

National Hospital Day was observed at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital Saturday afternoon and evening and there was a large attendance of persons interested in the welfare of the institution. Student nurses acted as a reception committee and were assisted by graduate nurses of the alumnae. Tea was served by the ladies' auxiliary. In the children's ward flowers were distributed among the patients by members of the junior league.

The police discovered the barber-shop of Thomas F. Robertson of No. 30 State street, easy of access last midnight, when the entrance was discovered unlocked by Patrolman David Nagle, who caused the place to be made secure for the remainder of the night. The entrance to the establishment has been discovered unlocked by the police three other nights within a month. Patrolman William Graham also discovered entrance to Nameaug school unlocked.

Walter Vogt, a youth residing at No. 92 Truman street, reported to the police Saturday night that his bicycle, which he left in front of the Empire theatre early in the evening, had been stolen. No trace of the cycle was found.

Desk Sergeant Frank Howard was compelled to give up his duties at the police station Saturday night and return to his home because of illness.

Richard H. Marzdorf is to answer in the police court Monday morning for the reckless operation of an auto in this city. He was to have appeared in the court Saturday, but he failed to do so and steps were taken to have him on hand Monday. Stavros Petersen was fined $5 in the court Saturday for running his car at a speed of 30 miles an hour past the Bartlett school building at an hour when children are leaving the school and grounds.

Jacob O. Kestin was fined $5 failing to head traffic signals given to him on Bank street and becoming mixed in a collision. John McDonough was charged with the theft of tools and admitted that the accusation was an honest one. He had no excuse to offer for his acts in taking the property of D. C. Doyle of Groton. The plunder was not of much value but McDonough was sent to jail to stay 30 days. He has a record for appearance in the court though he has not been accused of stealing before.

Will Grace Mulhaffrey, accused of having abandoned her baby after it had been born but an hour or so, to die in a vacant lot on a heap of stones, came out of the century old court house in this city a free woman or will she be condemned to a term in prison for the alleged crime.

That question will be answered after a jury of twelve men have listened to the arguments of attorney for the state, and the lawyer who this accused woman or her friends have secured to do all that he can do to secure her acquittal. Upon the assembling of the superior court Tuesday forenoon at 10 o'clock the lawyers, two for the state and one for the accused girl, will make their appeals to the jury which has been selected to impartially decide the case upon the testimony presented.

When the court adjourns Tuesday the accused is likely to know what the fates hold for her. It is expected that arguments will have been finished when the court takes its noon-day recess. Judge Hinman will not occupy more than an hour in delivering his charge. Then the case will be with the jury and on what they shall find will determine the future for Grace McSheffrey.

It is probable that the state will place John Guinan on trial on a charge of manslaughter after the McSheffrey case is disposed of. This is not certain, but it is believed that program will be followed.

The retirement of Lieutenant Benjamin Beebe of the New London police department, which has been contemplated for some time by City Manager Barlow, may occur sooner than expected, for although it had been anticipated that the lieutenant would return to duty, City Manager Barlow stated Saturday that he "might" recommend to the city council at its meeting to be held tomorrow night, that the officer be retired and placed on the veteran reserve list. If the council should approve of the recommendation, the veteran officer will draw a pension annually of half his present salary.

The retirement of Lieut. Beebe would cause a vacancy in personnel of the force to exist and that vacancy would be filled by the city manager, for that authority is conferred upon him by charter and he has stated that he would fill the vacancy and not have the council make the appointment. Of the four candidates for the position Sergeants J. P. Sullivan, James D. Gaffney, Frank Howard and Samuel Hick, it is known that Howard and Hick have the best chance of securing the position, with the chances favoring Hick, who is the youngest sergeant in years of seniority, only having been a member of the force about five years. His activity since prohibition in chasing bootleggers and illegal sellers of liquor, it is understood, have made him a favorite for the office which he seeks.

Frank Knight of Colchester, will be arraigned in the police court tomorrow morning, charged with violation of the automobile laws in operating a car without a license to do so. He was apprehended this evening by Motorcycle Officer William Babcock when the officer observed him driving a machine bearing a Virginia registration. When interrogated it was revealed that Knight possessed a 1921 license issued at Norfolk, Va., but did not have a Connecticut registration.

STAFFORD SPRINGS

At a special town meeting to be held in Borough hall Tuesday afternoon at 1.30 action will be taken in regard to extending the state aid road now under construction as far as the Monson town line. The total cost would be about $80,000, one-fourth of which would be paid by the town and the balance by the state. If the road is built this year it would have to be paid for by the town and the town would be reimbursed each year by the state until the state's share would be paid. There is also an article in the warning to see if the town will vote to sell the large house in Hyde park.

Frank Johnson has accepted a place as bookkeeper in the office of the Fabyan Woolen company.

Miss Beatrice Roberts is substituting as teacher in the Staffordville school for Miss Willett, who is out on account of illness.

A subscription paper is being circulated for the purpose of raising funds for the local baseball club. The solicitors are being well received and quite a sum of money has already been pledged.

The many calls have exhausted their supply and they are turning to you for help. Everything in the line of men's clothing is very much needed, there is an almost constant demand for it. Now that you are in the midst of looking over the clothes in your own family, will you not give liberally, and instead of laying some things away, won't you put them into immediate use and help some one more needy than yourselves?

Mother Advises Son to Marry Working Girl.

"When you marry," said Mother Baldwin, "pick out a woman that's willing to work. They're not so crotchety."

That was the advice Mrs. Baldwin gave to her son, Philip, the hero in the Warner Brothers' classic of the screen, "Brass," which comes to the Strand theatre for four days, beginning Wednesday. But Philip followed the dictates of his heart, lands on the rocks and finds himself as stranded as Robinson Crusoe before the famed sleuth found the footprint on the sand.

"Brass," adapted from Charles G. Norris' "best seller" novel, deals with Philip and Marjorie Baldwin, married but unhappy. Philip is a home-body and stays home with the baby while Marjorie goes gallivanting about cafes and cabarets with a crew that believed in fast tempo. When he remonstrates she retaliates by suing for divorce.

After the divorce, Philip finds himself entangled in other love affairs, from which he emerges a wiser—if not a better—man. In addition to the affairs of the heart, the picture shows Philip's climb from a struggling clerk in San Francisco to a wealthy business man.

Broad Theatre.

Choosing his cast with the same high discrimination with which he has produced his latest and greatest offering for Equity, "Has the World Gone Mad!" Daniel Carson Goodman has assembled an illustrious cast for his striking and powerful indictment of the whims and foibles and unbridled excesses of the present generation. It is scheduled for exhibition at the Broad theatre today and tomorrow.

In order to tell his story with that degree of realism for which he is ever striving, Mr. Goodman spent weeks in selecting the players who make up his cast. For every role he created in his moving story he insisted upon having the perfect type. After fine-combing the screen field with the most utmost caution he finally chose a group of players whose finish of histrionism is one of the outstanding features of his unusual production, which finds its way to the screen at the precise moment it is most needed.

Such players as Robert Edeson, Hedda Hopper, Charles Richman, Mary Thelen, Elinor Fair and Vincent Coleman take part. Mr. Edeson is remembered by thousands of theatre-goers throughout the world. His name for years has been one with which to conjure in the world of the theatre. He has played in many Broadway successes and is known in the hinterland as well as on the Great White Way.

Charles Richman is another artist of high distinction. Like Mr. Edeson he has been identified with the best plays in the history of the theatre. Stalwart, handsome, an artist to his finger tops, Richman adds a note of virile charm to "Has the World Gone Mad!" Mary Alden has won a position of high rank in the cinema world, as has Hedda Hopper, better known perhaps as the charming wife of De Wolf Hopper, Elino Fair and Vincent Coleman rank high in the younger generation that is right now making history before the footlights of the American stage.

Other pictures on the bill include the Pathe News and an Educational comedy.

ANNOUNCEMENTS
AT THE BROADWAY

Another excellent B. F. Keith vaudeville show is promised for the first half of this week at the Broadway theatre in:

Clara Theodoros Trio, a novelty comedy gymnast offering.

Dauscha and Joyce are two lady entertainers with song and comedy.

Brown and Monohan offer a novelty in "Some Dancing."

Harry Bussey is called a Versatile Vendor of Variety and lives up to his name.

The Singing Three offer a Blend of Smith and Tunes.

Alice Lake's latest picture, "Environment," an Irving Cummings production for Principal Pictures, written by Harvey Gates, is a photoplay of unusual interest, for it is a drama containing all the elements which make for popularity and yet which does not put a strain upon credulity.

It is a picture bound to entertain the most discriminate patron—the most blase fan. Surely no one can deny that Alice Lake gives a performance which tugs at the emotions, while Milton Sills, who is featured with her, demonstrates again why he is called one of the most capable actors of the silversheet. His here is human, rugged and vital. Gertrude Claire, long known as a creator of mother roles, is thoroughly in character as the old lady of the farm, who never gives up her faith in human nature, while Richard Headrick, as the youngster, lends a fine juvenile appeal. Mention should also be made of the fine study of the cavalier proprietor by Ralph Lewis. His acting is more than competent. "Environment" is a picture for any type of audience and will be the feature attraction at the Broadway theatre today, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Leatrice Joy at the Strand in "Minnie".

Are you interested in radio? Do you believe it has great possibilities? If so, see what Marshall Neilan does with an idea he has put into his new First National release, "Minnie," now being shown at the Strand theatre is worth seeing.

Neilan gives a demonstration of the suggestion that some day the radio will be used to transmit power to motivate trains, trucks, water pumps, automobiles. He shows an elaborate radio set in a barn back of a small town hotel where the main part of the picture takes place. Minnie's father is the owner of this hotel but he pays so much attention to his radio that Minnie is the drudge, the slavery of the place. But that isn't all of Minnie's troubles. She's homely. Everybody tells her so. In seeking revenge she gets herself into a mess of trouble—trouble that puts considerable humor into the picture. Matt Moore as the inquisitive, forceful reporter adds more fun.

When Minnie's father gets the power radio working it does some wonderful stunts and shows what the results will be if the idea is ever perfected. And it may be made to work as the picture shows—by accident.

Ed Wynn "The Perfect Fool."

A. I. Erlanger will present Ed Wynn, "The Perfect Fool"—under the management of Bertram C. Whitney, at the Broadway theatre, for one night only, Wednesday, May 23rd. The new book, lyrics, and music for the new Ed Wynn vehicle is the result of "The Perfect Fool's" vacation period. When closing the Ed Wynn Carnival, after a solid two years' tour, two seasons ago, Wynn labored industriously at his newest effort. He is solely responsible for the major portion of the material in the two acts and nineteen scenes required to properly present this musical surprise. To Julian Mitchell must be given due credit for the elaborate staging and production portion in which this clever dance director holds a reputation second to none. Mitchell has arranged a series of artistic ballet divertisements in which novelty predominates. Wynn actually sings and does acrobatic dances for the first time in his historic career, besides doing mind reading, and in the "understander" is a Three Brother Acrobatic Act in this new Ed Wynn production, "The Perfect Fool."

Mail orders are now being accepted. No phone orders and no tickets will be laid away without advance payment.

NUGGETS AND CORNETS WILL OPEN TWILIGHT LEAGUE THIS EVENING

The Norwich Twilight League will get under way this evening when the Nuggets and Cornets meet in the first game of the season at the Fairgrounds at 6.30 o'clock. These two teams were drawn to open the season with the Atlantic Carton team and the Whirlwinds for Tuesday evening, the East Ends and Harddigs for Wednesday evening, the Swanees and Duwells for Thursday and the Professional Men and the Jail Hill A. C. for Friday.

It has been planned to open the league in grand style and special arrangements have been made to have additional attractions at the grounds tonight. Either Mayor Milo R. Waters or President Hill will throw out the first ball and there will be a special base running match between George Madden of the Nuggets and one of the fleet men of the Cornets. This will take place just before the game and there is no little interest in this match.

Endeavors are being made to secure a band for the opening game and no doubt these will be completed today. It is expected that there will be a large crowd on hand to witness the opening game which bids fair to be a close one. Both the Nuggets and the Cornets, formerly Spencer's Colts, have been practicing for the past two weeks and recently met in a practice game in which the Nuggets won by the close score of 2 to 1.

Mike Kelly, veteran of last season's team, will pitch for the Nuggets and will be opposed by Tommy Simcox. Simcox was at one time rated as one of the best local pitchers and even now has plenty of speed and curves. Nat. Mulholland will do the catching for the Cornets and Les Manchester will be on the receiving end for the Nuggets.

The lineups for the game tonight will be as follows:

Nuggets.		Cornets.
Kelly	p.	Simcox
Manchester	c.	Mulholland

The Nuggets will have as utility men [illegible] Manchester, Warwick, Cromwell and Tracy.

The Cornets will have Camden, Gideon and Gagnon.

The game will start promptly at 6.30 o'clock.

WILLARD CONFIDENT HE CAN MAKE A COMEBACK

New York, May 13.—A new gray [illegible] his skyscraping fame, the boy [illegible] punched Floyd Johnson to [illegible] stuck deep in his pockets, Jess Willard [illegible] in the yard of old Jack [illegible] home at Yonkers today, [illegible] spoils in quest of [illegible] championship he left on the banks of Maumee Bay a little less than four years ago.

A man, [illegible] away, on the edge of the [illegible] the ambitious youngster whose [illegible] championship honors Willard [illegible] yesterday in the eleventh [illegible] of their fistic engagement in Toledo, sat disconsolately on the doorstep of his training quarters while his mates prepared to break camp.

Jess Willard is as confident of his ability as a fighter as he was twelve years ago when he stalked out of Kansas for his first ring engagement. He believes that he can carry on to win back the laurels he won at Havana, in 1915, from Jack Johnson, the negro and lost to Jack Dempsey at Toledo, June 4, 1919.

"I reckon I showed 'em I was fit," said Jess. "They said I wasn't, that I was too old. Years don't mean a thing. Its the life a fellow leads. I'm just as young, physically, as a majority of ordinary men. I'm younger, physically, than a great many. The fight with Floyd Johnson proved to me that I'm fit. I'll be better than yesterday for my next fight."

Willard intends to go to Los Angeles to visit his family, and then he will return here to resume training for the proposed contest with Luis Firpo, the Argentine who won his fight victory in the United States yesterday shortly before Willard's defeat of Johnson.

Firpo, one of the most powerful punchers since Jim Jeffries, is being trained by old time pugilists as the latter prepares for his knockout of Jack McAuliffe, 2nd, the young Detroit boxer in the third round, was a shrewd display of his great power.

Firpo is a natural fighter and under the direction of James DeForest, famous trainer, is learning how to make the most of his natural talents. There is the possibility that Trainer Deforrest may be able, with Firpo, to duplicate the feat of Billy Delaney, trainer of champion heavyweights years ago.

Delaney, the master instructor, who trained Jim Corbett for several years carried Jim Jeffries to fame. He found Jeffries in Carson City, Nevada, took him into his fold and went on to the championship with him. They quarreled then, and parted. Then in 1910 when Jeffries, who had retired undefeated, was induced to come out against Jack Johnson, Delaney became the negro's trainer.

The story of the 15-round battle at Reno, one July 4, 1910, in which Jeffries, no longer the terrible puncher, was mauled to defeat by the negro, has been told many times. Delaney had made one champion and then developed another to defeat him. Deforrest trained Jack Dempsey for his smashing victory over Jess Willard in their title bout in 1919.

As between Delaney and Jeffries there was a quarrel, and Dempsey and Deforrest parted. Now Deforrest has one of the greatest natural fighters of all time. If he defeats Willard, Firpo will surely be matched with Dempsey.

MOORE'S PERFORMANCE IS CONSIDERED REMARKABLE

State College, Pa., May 13.—Charley Moore, the Pennsylvania freshman who won the 120-yard hurdle event of the recent Pennsylvania relay carnival at Philadelphia, caused as much surprise among members of the track squad here by his performance during tryout for the team as he did among the general public when he distinguished himself in the race at Philadelphia, Coach Cartmell revealed today.

Moore won his first heat in 15 2-5 seconds, his second in 15 3-5, and the final in 15 2-5, all on a water-soaked track. Until last spring, he had never run in a hurdle event, but concentrated on the quarter mile run.

FILLMAN SHUTS OUT ALBANY IN FAST GAME

Two base hits, Leary. Home run, Baker.

WET GROUNDS CAUSES POSTPONEMENT OF GAME

Owing to the rain of Saturday night and Sunday morning the game between the Norwich club and the St. Louis Cards was called off as the grounds were too wet to play on. The Cards, however, arrived in town about noon and left shortly afterwards for Boston where they open the series with the Braves today.

The Cards were all present including Rogers Hornsby, Bottomley, Blades, Toporcer and the others. Hornsby was limping around with a cane owing to his recent injury. LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

Going to Uncle Lucky's.

"You mustn't grumble if the rain
Is beating on the window pane.
Tomorrow morning you may see
The sunshine on the apple tree," sang the little yellow canary one morning as Little Jack Rabbit looked out of the window and saw the rain falling on the Old Bramble Patch.

"It's all right for you to be contented," answered the little bunny, "but you never go outside except when I

"Don't wear out my mat," said Uncle Lucky.

bang your cage on the front porch."

"Please don't grumble, little bunny
Eat some bread spread thick with honey.
There are lots of things to do
When it rains and you feel blue."

Just then the telephone rang and Uncle Lucky's voice came over the wire.

"What are you doing this rainy day?"

"Nothing at all," answered the little rabbit.

"Well, put on your rubbers and your raincoat and come over to my house," said the old gentleman rabbit.

So off hopped the little bunny and by and by, after a while, he met Ducky Waddles. He was having a fine time waddling in a mud puddle. Oh yes, indeed, he liked the rainy weather. His feathers were better than all the raincoats, let me tell you.

"Where are you going?" he asked as he gobbled up a tadpole and two little fish.

"Over to Uncle Lucky's," answered Little Jack Rabbit.

"Well, I guess I'll go with you," said Ducky Waddles. "I want to see your uncle about my bank account."

So off they went, these two, Ducky Waddles and Little Jack Rabbit, and every time the little rabbit gave two hops he had to stop and wait for Ducky Waddles, for he was a very slow walker. He could swim pretty fast but on dry ground he was as slow as Teddy Turtle. Well, maybe he wasn't quite as slow, but almost.

"What are you going to do at Uncle Lucky's?" asked Ducky Waddles as they turned in at the little white gate in front of the old gentleman's house.

"Oh, I don't know," answered Little Jack Rabbit, "maybe he's got a surprise for me."

Just then Mrs. Swallow looked out of her nest on the front porch and said:

"Your Uncle Lucky is so neat
You must be sure to wipe your feet
Upon the mat before the door,
So you won't smudge his parquet floor."

"All right," said the little bunny as he and Ducky Waddles rubbed their feet up and down the mat until Uncle Lucky himself opened the front door and said: "Don't wear out my mat," and next time you shall hear what happened after that.

Clark Dies After Operation

Montreal, May 13.—Sheridan Clark, [illegible] New York, well known race track [illegible], who underwent an operation [illegible] ominal trouble last Friday, died today in the general hospital.

Confidence.

The following scrap of conversation was overheard in a London motor bus, and deeply impressed those fortunate enough to catch the words. Said one fair passenger to another: "Between you and me, I don't seem to like your husband so much as I did." "And between you and me," said the other, "neither do I."—London Morning Post.

Expected Daily "Run" of Babies.

Baby had prayed for a little brother and was disappointed when a sister came instead, but the nurse explained there were four babies born in the hospital that day and they were all girls. The next day he was somewhat reconciled and asked the nurse: "Well, how are they running today?"

Jud Tunkins says he likes a man who minds his own business unless he's in a kind of business that compels him to be remorseless in taking up other people's time.

One Consolation.

All theories of life beyond the grave are in one respect cheery. There is no belief in the existence of a cost of living problem in the hereafter.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

THE GREATER SAFETY CAMPAIGN.

This week there is to be inaugurated by the motor vehicles department another campaign in behalf of safety on the highways. In view of the many accidents, including fatalities, that are reported from day to day and the deplorable records which the department has to announce from those cities where a record is being kept there is a great and growing need for just such efforts.

This endeavor to lessen the highway accidents, and the disrespect for the rules which govern such, calls for cooperation of the broadest kind from all vehicle drivers on the highways throughout the country and suburbs quite the same as in the cities, and it likewise must be apparent to the pedestrians that they must exercise greater care for their own protection.

Progress in the wrong direction is made when it is shown that there are twice as many accidents due to automobiles as there were last year. It doesn't explain away the situation by claiming that there are more machines. That very fact makes it evident that there is reason for the exercise of greater care instead of displaying less.

The great menace of the automobilist continues to be the other fellow. If everyone was disposed and willing to abide by the rules which have been established to govern the uses of the highways there would be a marked reduction in the accidents and the fatalities. This is invariably disclosed by the accident reports. Speed, unwillingness to consider the rights of others, the disposition to make the other fellow, or the pedestrian, do the waiting if any is to be done, hogging the road and failing to abide by established rules tell the story. And it is a sad one in too many instances.

Good results have been obtained from a safety campaign before and there is even better reason to expect just as good this time. Certainly there is a chance for more to do their part.

It is not enough to carry a safety first sign. The desired results are gained by putting safety first into action.

CUTTING THE TAXES.

For several years there has been a loud and long wail against the high point which taxation has reached. Its tendency has been upward and therefore all the more aggravating. It is something that everyone feels in one way or another.

In his address at Mansfield, O., last week on the centenary of John Sherman's birth, Postmaster General New had something to say in regard to federal taxation which must have awakened widespread interest. Following the reference to the prosperity that is existing in the country and the recent statement by the treasury department of the manner in which the national debt has been reduced and the portended deficit for the year turned into a surplus, the postmaster general had this to say: "I happen to know that it is the belief of the administration—certainly the hope—that all these prosperous conditions will permit the unexpected to happen in the form of an early reduction of taxation. If our customs receipts continue at anything like the present rate, and if better business brings to the treasury a surplus, which it is at least temporarily doing, the reduction will be certain."

Such of course doesn't mean that we have eliminated our big war debt or that we are soon to get the benefit of the foreign loans, but it indicates the way is being opened, through the highly capable manner in which the administration is handling the affairs of the country, for the cutting down of the federal taxes. How it will be done, or how much it will be rests with the future to disclose.

This cutting of federal taxation is likewise being supported by the cutting in this state of a half million from the amount to be drawn from the towns of the state. It doesn't mean ending the state tax but reducing the demands upon the towns is some relief, for every cut in taxation is an advantage and bound to be welcomed.

PERSONAL VENGEANCE.

Look at it from any angle whatever, the assassination of Mechislav Vorovsky, the representation of the Russian government sent to Lausanne, was most unfortunate. Assassinations cannot be countenanced, even though they may be the outcome of other evils.

Vorovsky had come to Lausanne against the wishes of Switzerland, got his admission to the country through a trick and been refused admission to the conference. He was there for the purpose of lending every bit of Russian influence that was possible. He was on the ground and spreading propaganda, even though he could not get into the conference. Though Switzerland may have ambitioned such an end because of the feeling known to exist, the assassin had been clever enough to outwit the guards and carry out his act. Personal vengeance is what he sought and yet it was to be expected that the first thought would be to suspect others, and to even suspect Switzerland of being lax in the protection of this leader. Because there had been talk about putting him out of the country a plot within the country which was displeased at his presence might easily be imagined.

This deliberate murder of the propagandist, even though he was not welcomed at Lausanne, might easily be the cause of trouble making for which more than the individual directly involved would be held responsible.

From such facts as have been reported there appears to be no ground for considering the Swiss to blame. Because they didn't want him there doesn't justify the view that they killed him or permitted another to do so. The death of the representative under certain circumstances might prove the flame that would set Europe at gripe again, but the personal vengeance sought by the assassin can hardly be twisted into anything for which the Swiss of the conference can be held blameworthy.

THE BRITISH AND SOVIETS.

Along with other situations in Europe interest is now being manifested in the reply of soviet Russia to the British note and the manner in which the British receive it.

There exists at the present time a trade understanding between London and Moscow. Although efforts have been made to bring it about Great Britain has not recognized the soviet government. The intimations are that Moscow has not complied with the British note but has maintained that there are misunderstandings. This may make possible an adjustment of the matter and it is not impossible that it will mean a termination of the agreement.

But should the trade understanding be ended it would mean little loss to the British in foreign trade. When the agreement was entered into it was believed that it would result in great advantage for Great Britain. That country has, however, been disillusioned. It has in the period since the agreement was made sold about a half billion dollars worth of goods to Russia, but only under much difficulty. Some time ago it was declared by Secretary Hughes that Russia was an economic bubble and the British have reached about the same conclusion.

Certainly that trade is not going to be sufficient to prevent the British from ending all relations with the soviet government if the continuance of it must be obtained at the sacrifice of the rights of its subjects. When it comes to interfering with their fishermen, when they are known to be in international waters, the British can be expected to display special interest and make more than a half hearted protest.

PROBING INTO COAL.

While it will be admitted that the difficulty experienced in getting coal was not caused within the state it is not improbable that some good may come from the investigation which is to be made by a special committee in Massachusetts. This committee will devote its attention to the fuel situation as it exists within that state and it is likely that it will be able to unearth some facts that will aid in a better handling of the commodity and its distribution when it is obtainable.

Just how much assistance this committee can be to the federal committee which has long been at work is uncertain. Possibly it will be of no help, and yet it is in a position to be of benefit to the coal consumers of the state, if through its efforts it can get in touch with the facts so that it may be able to deal with any state problems that need to be handled in order to get the desired results from the federal investigation.

Whether it is the national or a state probe the object must be to get at the facts and to use such as are obtained for the improvement in the future of the situation that has existed in the past.

The coal problem has existed for a considerable time. Whether the investigation now underway will serve to settle it remains to be seen. That is the desire of the coal consuming public and whatever state effort serves to hasten that end will have its advantages. It isn't as if the subject had never been investigated but it is evident that there still remains an incompleted job.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

At a fraction the cost of feathers you can make sofa pillow fillings as light as down.

Cut a package of cotton into small squares, put them in a pan and keep them in an oven for half an hour, being careful that they do not scorch.

Each tiny piece will swell to twice its original size and have practically no weight.

Remove the oder of fish or onions from frying pans by scalding vinegar in them, then washing in the usual fashion.

If you will sprinkle a few cloves in the fat in which you are frying doughnuts you will find the result pleasing.

When stewing very sour fruit add a little salt. This will greatly diminish the amount of sugar you need to sweeten it.

The juice of one lemon and one orange mixed together makes one of the most healthful drinks imaginable. It is excellent to take upon arising.

Glassware in which milk has been kept should be rinsed in cold water before it is washed in hot if you wish to avoid the appearance of cloudiness.

The basins in which you keep milk should be kept scrupulously clean. Scour them with salt at least once a week.

When you put your roast in the pan do not add water then. Wait until the meat begins to brown, then add the liquid. The flavor will be greatly improved by the delay.

A coffee stain may be lured from the most delicate materials by brushing the spot with pure glycerin, then rinsing in lukewarm water and pressing on the wrong side.

Crystal vases often become discolored when they have been frequently used to hold flowers. The dark stains may be removed by moistening tea leaves in vinegar and scrubbing with them.

Cut your old pieces of oilcloth into squares and make linen covers for them. Then use them under hot dishes at the table and keep your table cover from becoming spotted by heat from the dishes.

LABOR-SAVING DEVICE.

A handy little article to have for the house is a small heavy board on casters. You can put your bucket on that when you are scrubbing and give it a kick forward with your toe instead of lifting it each time. Heavy boxes or baskets can be trundled safely over your floors with that instead of being carried.

SIRUPS FOR CANNING.

A great saving of sugar may be effected in preserving and canning if sirups are made, fruit carefully packed in cans, and then boiling hot sirup poured over fruit, brimming the can. A thin sirup made of three quarts of water and three pounds of sugar, thoroughly dissolved and stirred until the whole boils, then cooked for fifteen minutes, is enough sirup for a bushel of fruit. A heavy sirup may be anything from two to three of sugar to one of water, cooked to sirup stage.

Often a portion of fruit may be cooked in this, the fruit packed in a can, some of the hot sirup poured over—to brimming—and more fruit cooked until all the sirup is used. Alum was formerly used for hardening melon and similar sweet-pickle foundations. If these are cooked first in plain water and then in a sirup in which half of the sweetening or more is of corn sirup they will be stiffer than in a sugar sirup.

Even the wet strawberry cooked in a corn sirup will hold its shape and be quite stiff.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

An excellent plan is to rub a little cream into the elbows every time you rub any over the face.

The teeth should be brushed up and down from the gums to the ends with a moderately stiff brush and a generous amount of good tooth paste. The brush should run over the gum a trifle, so that the bristles will stimulate and make the gums healthier.

Youthful nails help keep the hand young looking, and a young looking hand has much to do with the youthfulness of your appearance. You cannot seem to be in your twenties, even with a wonderful face, if your hands are thin and the nails ragged and full of ridges. Buffing alone will not do away with ridges in every case, neither will constant massage and oil treatments. But these things help greatly.

There is a good exercise that will help strengthen weak arches. It should be done without having shoes on. First, stand with feet parallel, then raise the inside part of the instep up and out, knees straight toes and heels on the floor. Come back to original position. Repeat this proceeding 10 to 30 times, resting after each five.

EXERCISE FOR BABY.

An authority on infant care has the following to say of exercise: Many people do not realize that the young baby needs exercise as much as older children do. A good plan is to remove the baby's clothes, except his band, place him on a large bed or in creeping pen with a wadded floor, in a warm room for a half hour each day, and allow him to roll and play. There is nothing to be gained in wheeling a young baby outdoors except for the exercise it gives the attendant. Plenty of fresh air can be obtained on the porch or in a room with the windows open.

BABY'S DAINTY BIB.

Bibs for the infant of sheer linen or soft silk are more beautiful than ever. The bibs tie at the back of the baby's neck with a piece of ribbon that is run through a buttonhole at the neck ends. A piece of embroidery or the linen buttonhole stitched at proper intervals forms the bottom of the bib and runs well back under the arms. Ribbon run through ties in the back hold the bib in place.

RIBBON ROSES ON CAPES.

The spring cape displays a number of conventional flowers used in rows for its sole decoration. They are made of grosgrain or moire ribbon swirled around in circles until they resemble huge, flat roses. These, fastened around the bottom of the cape, give a scalloped effect and a most unusual finish to the cape. They are used around the collar also. One advantage of the conventional ribbon flower is that it can be adapted to the short or long coat and the large or small collar.

MENDING.

If you desire to mend broken crockery, melt a teaspoonful of alum. Dampen the broken edges in it and hold them firmly together until cold and dry.

DICTATES OF FASHION.

A novel earring effect is a flower of steel beads, hanging inverted from a fairly long stem.

Colored leghorn hats have crowns of taffeta and are trimmed only with ribbon bows or pompons.

Lingeries of black glove silk has bands of cross-stitch about the top of the camisole and on the edges of the bloomers.

Fruit and foliage arranged into bandeaux and worn low over the forehead are said to be a popular headdress in London.

Youthful and charming summer frocks are made of striped flannel, figured silk or cotton, or of challis or calico.

Instead of an embroidered monogram, some very smart sport frocks of heavy crepe have a cut-out effect filled in with a fancy design in braid or silk covered cord.

An organdie frock of figured material is trimmed with tiny ruffles of plain blue, green and orange colored organdie, picoted on the edge. These are the colors that appear in the frock.

The batiked silks shown this season make very lovely costume slips instead of plain pink, or flesh colored ones. They are also liked for hat trimmings, sashes and neckerchiefs.

The young girl is delightful in the new Eton jacket suits with Buster Brown collars and ties. They have detachable skirts and blouses of white crepe de chine.

A summer frock of green crepe is distinctively trimmed by not being trimmed at all, save for an organdie collar and cuffs and a belt of white kid flowers.

Scalloped cuffs outlined with tan leather are featured o na smart pair of brown suede gloves. Others have godet inserts and form a circular ruffle over the wrist.

The wide bertha which falls over the shoulders and makes the only attempt at providing sleeves is very popular this season. This is a very attractive way to trim the simple gown of crepe or cotton.

RIBBONS AND PERFUME.

Because there seems to be an affinity between ribbons and perfume the ribbon sachet makes its appearance in many new and unique places. The ribbon sachet is easily made. Merely sew together two bits of ribbon, leaving the ends raveled or having them picoted, and stuff with cotton in which is a small portion of a good sachet powder. These may be used in innumerable ways. A half dozen of them may be connected by narrow ribbons to the interior of the wardrobe trunk, or glued in the corners of the drawers of the trunk. Or numbers of them may be combined to make the petals of a flower on a couch cushion.

MAKE NEGLIGEE IN HOUR.

There are few negligees of greater charm than the simple one made entirely of one piece of silk, uncut save at the neck. A single piece of forget-me-not georgette is bound with Cleopatra blue satin ribbon on each side. The neck is cut low and similarly bound. Through slits under the arms a girdle of the same ribbon is drawn about a low waistline and tied to the right front. It will leave the desired uneven finish at the hem, where it may be turned up and hand stitched or finished with ribbon.

LAUNDRY HINTS.

One housewife keeps a small whisk in her kitchen and when she wants to sprinkle her clothes she dips the whisk in a pan of warm water and shakes it over the garments. It sprinkles evenly and rapidly.

Fashion the snaps of a garment together before putting the article through the wringer. This will protect the little knobs from being crushed and broken.

A six-pound electric iron is the best choice for laundry work, as it retains the heat longer.

Add saffron to the rinsing water when washing ecru curtains. It will make them a much prettier and softer shade than when coffee is used.

Wash your chintz or cretonne coverings in warm water to which bran water and dissolved soap have been added.

TO REMOVE STAINS.

Iron rust may be removed from delicate fabrics by covering spot thickly with cream of tartar, then twisting cloths to keep cream of tartar over spot; put in a saucepan of cold water and heat water gradually to boiling point.

To remove grass stains from cotton goods wash in alcohol.

Cold water and white soap will remove grease spots from cotton and woolen fabrics. Castillian cream is useful for black woolen goods, but leaves a light ring on delicately colored goods. Either is always sure and safe to use.

To wash mirrors and windows rub over with chamois skin wrung out of warm water, then wipe with a piece of dry chamois skin. This method saves much strength.

COCOA OR CHOCOLATE.

When a recipe calls for chocolate and you wish to substitute cocoa use two level tablespoonfuls of cocoa for each square of chocolate called for. Increase the amount of fat a little, as cocoa has less fat than cake chocolate.

Mix cocoa and sugar together thoroughly—an easy way is to shake them together in a glass jar—it makes them easier to add to the other ingredients called for in a recipe for a cooked chocolate dessert.

PLENTY OF CUSHIONS.

A charming note in the present-day scheme of interior decoration is seen in the number and variety of sofa cushions which may occupy place in the easy chair, davenport or even the floor.

One woman has solved the problem by making cushions that are thoroughly usable and yet good to look at. They are shaped in the popular round and oblong styles. And the covering is merely a sun-fast drapery material of changeable blue and orange.

The pillows are simply covered flat, except for an inch and a half tuck that surrounds the edges. Used on a day bed of black and gray jacquered velour against a background of gray wall paper and a plain gray rug, the effect is interesting as well as decidedly restful.

CELERY.

Roll the celery in brown paper, then wrap a towel around it and put it in a dark place. Put it in a basin of cold water for an hour before using. Celery thus treated can be used after it is a week old.

CONCERNING WOMEN.

In Japan, as well as China, women are actually forming business clubs of their own, smiliar to those we have in America.

Warrentown, Ore., is said to be the first city to select a woman city manager. She is Mrs. R. E. Barrett, a prominent business woman.

At the age of 104 years Mrs. Sarah G. Yarnall of Philadelphia is the oldest stockholder in the Pennsylvania Railroad company.

A feature of a recent musical festival in London was the singing by combined choirs from three mother's clubs of the metropolis, many of the choristers being over 70 years of age.

The name of Queen Victoria of Spain is to be added to the list of 21 queens who have received the Pope's golden rose, the highest temporal honor it is possible for the Catholic church to bestow.

An association of women has been formed at Fredericksburg, Va., to raise $30,000 for the purchase and preservation of Kenmore, the historic home of Betty Washington, the sister of the great revolutionary chieftain.

In spite of their entrance into politics the women of Egypt are not abandoning their veils.

KEEPS RUST OFF.

A few drops of linseed oil applied with a cloth to the outside of the gas stove or the inside of the oven will keep the stove from rusting and make it easier to care for.

BATH FOR THE PLANTS.

Your household plants will flourish and bloom if you give them a bath about once a month in water to which ammonia has been added—say a teaspoon to a quart of liquid.

RECIPES.

Baked Macaroni with Cheese: Prepare two finely minced green peppers, two finely minced onions, one-half cup of finely minced parsley, one cup of grated cheese, one cup of thick cream sauce.

Add the above mixture to one package of cooked macaroni. Turn into a baking dish and bake for 35 minutes. Cook the macaroni in boiling water for 20 minutes. Drain and then rinse under cold running water.

Green Gooseberry Pudding: Boil 1 pint of green gooseberries till soft, in water to cover; then sweeten them to taste; let the berries and their liquid cool, then mix into them 2 well-beaten eggs and 1 tablespoon of melted butter. Butter a baking dish, sprinkle its bottom and sides with equal quantities of sugar and fine bread crumbs mixed, then pour in the gooseberry puree gently so as not to dislodge the crumb coating of the dish. Sprinkle on top, to the depth of 1-2 inch, more of the fine bread crumbs mixed with an equal amount of sugar. Set this dish in a pan of hot water and bake in a slow oven until firm (which may be determined by pressing top with finger). The baking dish should be only 3-4 full, as the pudding will rise. Serve hot with a lemon sauce.

He has been president of the National Society of Automobile Engineers, and he also has been a prominent member of the Aero club of America. Stories That Recall Others

She Kept the Relics.

They were rather triumphant in their attitude toward her, this group of eight married women having lunch together. She, by the way, is a very capable business woman, and she ignored all their thrusts at her spinster state, until one of the women, in a feline way, said: "Oh, well, Mary, if you haven't a wedding ring, you have four lovely diamonds. Shall we call them consolations?"

"Oh, you'll have to judge that for me," Mary laughed back. "Since four of you married the men who presented them to me, you're more capable than I am of determining whether they shall be called consolations or rewards."

In No Position to Question.

"For five out of six months my gas bills showed exactly the same number of cubic feet consumption each month," said a consumer recently, "and I inquired of the gas company whether this indicated anything wrong with the meter or whether it was a remarkable coincidence."

Verily, a soft answer turneth away suspicion, for when I received a reply it said:

"While this is a coincidence, it only indicates a well ordered and regularly conducted household routine."

"When my wife saw that I was in no position to question the meter reading."

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

Lassen.

"Americans are accustomed to thinking of Uncle Sam as an owner of volcanoes because of the array of them on the Alaskan Peninsula, headed by huge Katmai, and their occurrence in the Hawaiian Islands and the Philippines," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"Volcanism, however, is not a far-away thing after all. The renewal of activity at Mt. Lassen, in northern California, early in March, emphasizes the fact that we actually have a live volcano within the boundaries of one of our most populous states. This example of one of nature's most powerful forces is only about 200 miles north of San Francisco and 300 miles south of Portland.

"When Mount Lassen became active in 1914 it was an epoch-making event, for it was the first volcanic eruption within the borders of the United States proper known to have taken place within historic times. Stones and mud were thrown for half a mile from the crater, while ash drifted for 15 to 20 miles. Previously the region had been a sort of yellowstone with boiling mud springs emitting sulphurous gases; and a few agitated springs that approach geysers in activity.

"Mount Lassen does not present a case of a volcano appearing enexplicably in a peaceful countryside. It is on the edge of one of the greatest ancient lava-flows in the world—a flow which covers large areas in northern California, Oregon, Washington and Idaho. Upon another edge of the same lava-flow is situated Yellowstone National Park with its near-volcanic phenomena.

"On this same flow, farther north, are the huge volcanic cones, now extinct, of Mount Rainier, Mount Hood and Mount Shasta. The activity responsible for these large peaks and for the extensive flow took place hundreds of thousands, or even millions of years ago, before the last ice age. The region immediately around Lassen, alone, apparently has preserved a channel with the deep fires.

"A few miles north of Lassen is a cinder cone from which probably took place the latest eruption in the United States before 1914. Traditions among the Indians of the neighborhood tell of a time believed to have been 200 or 300 years ago when smoke and cinders belched forth from this peak darkening the sky for days and scattering ashes over a large area. The age of trees growing in the crater of this cone indicate, by one interpretation, that there also was a slight eruption about 80 years ago but the American of that day, without telegraph wires and news services, was ignorant of an eruption if one actually took place. Material from one of the eruptions of this vent dammed a small valley, creating a lake in which the standing stumps of drowned trees still are to be found.

"In 1907 when all volcanic vents were believed to be extinct, Lassen and Cinder Cone were set apart as small national monuments to serve as examples of recent volcanic activity. Since 1914 when it became known that there was present activity in the region, an area of 125 square miles around the craters has been made into the Lassen Volcanic National park. Automobile roads have been constructed from the nearest railroad station about 40 miles away, and hundreds of tourists have visited the region."

OBITUARY

Henry Clarke.

Henry Clarke died at his home in the village of Rockville, at 6 o'clock Tuesday morning, May 8, 1923, at the age of 89 years. He had been in feeble health for the past three months, but was only confined to his bed for one week. Mr. Clarke was born in Hopkinton, R. I., May 29, 1834 and was the youngest of five children of Ephraim and Mary (Coon) Clarke, and the last of his generation. He enlisted in Company G, 12th Reg., R. I. Volunteers, and served nine months in the Civil war. Previous to his enlistment he was a farmer, and after his return from service he followed the same pursuit.

He was a man who idolized the landscape of his nativity, and he always lived within a very few miles of the spot where he was born, therefore was well known in that vicinity, and a familiar figure to both old and young, and never for over 40 years did he remain away from his home over night except twice, and then for only one night each time; and likewise was unassuming in all of his affairs. He had one brother who died in Libby prison, and the other two brothers died over a generation ago, and his only sister died some eight years ago at the age of 90 years.

In 1867 he married Emily Green of Hopkinton, R. I., who died in November 1882. They had six children, all of whom survive him. They are: William Henry, of Hope Valley, R. I.; Rosa Emily, wife of Fred G. Rogers, who is general manager of the Flynt Granite Co., of Monson, Mass. All of his children were constantly at his bedside from the time he was stricken until the end, rendering to him their constant, attentive and tender care, a service which he greatly cherished and appreciated. He is also survived by six grandchildren, and five great grandchildren.

The funeral was held at his late on Thursday, May 10, at 2 o'clock p. m., where all of his children, and their wives and husbands, his six grandchildren, and two if his great grandchildren were present. ARMY TRUCK PLUNGES OFF BANK, DRIVER HAS FOUR RIBS BROKEN

Peter Buogdan, 44, of Bank street New London, is a patient at the Backus Hospital in this city suffering 4 broken ribs and possible internal injuries, and several of his companions have minor cuts and bruises, as the result of an automobile accident at Round Hill on the Norwich-Jewett City highway about 11 o'clock Sunday morning.

The travel over the highway was unusually heavy Sunday and special officers were stationed at the spot to keep the traffic moving, hundreds stopping to view the wreck after first reports had stated that one man had been instantly killed and another was dying as a result of the accident.

Buogdan, it is alleged was driving the White truck, No. 20991, owned by the U. S. Army, and was accompanied by two soldiers of the 7th Coast Artillery and other friends, when it crashed through a heavy white wooden fence on the highway plowed into a group of small trees and rolled down a ten foot embankment, landing on its side in the hollow running along side of the Norwich & Worcester railroad tracks of the New Haven railroad. What caused the accident is not known, for as far as could be learned there were no eyewitnesses. The truck was evidently traveling at a high rate of speed when it left the road and crashed into the fence, causing it to spin entirely around and head back in the direction of Jewett City. It is believed possible that the steering apparatus on the machine broke, causing the car to shoot across the highway into the fence, as there is nothing else about the car that would tend to show the cause of the accident, all four tires being in good condition.

Buogdan and two of his companions were picked up by Houstan McCluggage of Jewett City who was coming toward Norwich and they were rushed to the office of Dr. George Thompson of Taftville who found two of the men suffering only minor bruises but immediately sent for the ambulance of the Backus hospital for Buogdan who was suffering broken ribs and possible internal injuries.

The other occupants of the truck, evidently made quick time in getting away from the scene of the accident and little information can be secured to show how many were in the party.

It was also rumored that evidence of liquor was found about the truck but this could not be verified.

The truck with its passengers was headed from New London to Worcester, as far as could be learned and the men had lost the road ending up in Baltic. Taking the back road from Baltic to Jewett City they were heading back toward Norwich in hopes of locating someone to give them directions when the accident occurred.

The truck was badly wrecked; one front wheel was knocked off, the fenders and sides ripped away and the top crushed in onto the frame. The windshield was smashed and lamps and extras on the truck were strewn about the ground for some distance. The fence along the highway was ripped up and broken for a distance of about 15 feet.

Plans were being made Sunday evening to take the parts and equipment in the truck to the armory at Norwich for safekeeping until someone from the 7th Coast Artillery came to Norwich to arrange for salvaging the wreck.

In the truck was a raincoat on which in ink was printed the name Roy Wilson and on another piece of clothing were the initials R. O. W. evident the initials for Roy O. Wilson. An army button U. S. 7th C. A. No. 26 was also on another piece of clothing. Whether Wilson was in the truck at the time of the accident could not be learned.

EUROPEAN STUDY CLASS BY REV. A. N. FOSTER

The regular meeting of the European study class was held at the Church of the Good Shepherd Friday evening.

The subject announced was English Castles and Shrines. Rev. A. N. Foster traced the historic connection between English and American life. Despite certain differences in history, the common elements have been very strong and important in the life of the two peoples. There has always been in England a very strong friendliness toward America, although Americans have at times strongly resented certain governmental policies.

In language and law and social institutions we are decidedly English in our inheritance and many Americans especially enjoy a trip through the British Isles.

The special interest attaching to three historic centers of English royalty was sketched, the three places being the Tower of London, Windsor castle and Frogmore and Hampton court. Interesting comparisons were made with the royal palaces at Versailles, at Potsdam and at Dresden.

The other three places described as shrines were Canterbury, the location of some of Charles Dickens' characters and the place of the martyrdom of Bishop Thomas a Becket within the confines of the splendid modern cathedral; Stoke Pogis, the country churchyard immortalized by the poem of Thomas Gray, and also the ancestral home of the Penn family; and Stratford on the Avon, the home of Shakespeare, and near by, in rural England, the ancestral homes of George Washington and Benjamin Franklin.

Mr. Foster gave readings in this connection from Chaucer's Canterbury Tales and from Gray's Elegy.

NORWICH COLLEGE CLUB HEARS SMITH COLLEGE DEAN

A meeting of the Norwich College club was held Saturday afternoon at the Osgood Memorial parish house, President Mrs. Frederick P. Shenk presiding. Mrs. Shenk opened the meeting with a welcome address to the members of the Eastern Connecticut branch of the Smith College Alumnae association and members of the New London College club who were present, after which Henry LaFontaine delighted the audience with a group of vocal selections, as follows: The Crescent Moon, William Sanderson; Harbour Night Song, William Sanderson; The Great Awakening, Walter Kramer; Rapture, Bowker-Andrews. The piano accompaniment was by Frederick W. Lester.

The address of the afternoon was by Miss Ada S. Comstock, dean of Smith college and future president of Radcliffe college, of whom Dr. Neilson, president of Smith college, has said, "Miss Comstock's leaving is the greatest loss Smith has ever had." Her subject was Activities of the American Association of University Women. Miss Comstock covered her topic from three angles, first, the international relationship of university women; second, national club houses; third, social privileges of the college clubs.

After the meeting an informal reception was tendered Miss Comstock who had so graciously honored the club with a visit.

BACKUS HOSPITAL HAD THRONG OF VISITORS

In the observance of National Hospital day the doors of the W. W. Backus hospital were thrown open to the public Saturday from 10 a. m. until 4 p. m., and hundreds of people took advantage of the opportunity to inspect the local institution to see what Norwich has in this line, also to learn of some of the good work done by the hospital.

As the people arrived they were met by the receiving committee, comprising Supt. F. L. Hutchins, the student nurses and officers of the institution, and were escorted over the building, everything being described to them by the committee.

Don Houghton, technician of the hospital staff, exhibited plates and photographs of the hospital work. There were also exhibitions of surgical dressings, materials used for the operating rooms, the linen and garments used by the hospital, the surgical instruments and many other things used in the work at the hospital.

The nine serving kitchens were opened, the laboratory, the X-ray room, the steam laundry, boiler rooms, nurses' home, in fact every part of the institution was open for inspection.

One of the features was the room furnished complete by the hospital committee of the United Congregational church, opened Saturday for the first time. The room is known as the United church room and is one of the nicest in the hospital. There is a built-in clothes press for the wardrobe of the patient, a wash stand, a modern Mt. Sinai bed with furnishings, complete up-to-date lighting system, and many other home-like touches, all making the room bright and cheerful. This room, although known as the United church room, renovated by money raised by the people of the church, is open for use at any time for any persons desiring the same, whether a member of the church or not.

The decorations at the hospital this year are exceedingly beautiful, all arranged for by the flower committee, comprising Mrs. George A. Comeau, chairman, Mrs. Archibald Mitchell, Jr., Mrs. Edmund W. Perkins, Mrs. Abraham Levine. Cut flowers are seen in all parts of the hospital and a bouquet of pansies graces each nurse's room. A large basket of flowers in the semi-private room was the gift of Miss Jane E. Bill.

The visitors expressed themselves as pleased with the hospital, and assured the committee that Norwich was indeed fortunate in having such an institution within its limits. The equipment in the hospital is without doubt equal to that in any hospital in the country, of corresponding size, and is of the latest and most efficient type.

CHELSEA SAVINGS BANK AT 65TH ANNIVERSARY

Several important anniversary dates for the Chelsea Savings bank were celebrated Saturday, when the directors, officers and bank force were guests of one of the officers at an informal luncheon at the Wauregan house at 1 o'clock. Covers were laid for twenty-three.

The luncheon marked the 65th anniversary of the bank and the twelfth anniversary of the beginning of the occupancy of the new building at the corner of Main street and Cliff street, which, from its commanding location on Franklin square and Railroad square, perhaps does as much or more than any other building to create a favorable impression on the minds of people entering the city.

The luncheon also marked the acquirement of $5,000,000 in real estate loans, $11,000,000 in deposits, and 16,000 depositors.

Following the luncheon, Treasurer Frank Hempstead, who has been with the bank since 1878, holding every position successively, gave a brief history of the bank and its accomplishments.

The Chelsea Savings Bank opened for business July 1, 1858, in Merchants Hotel building, with the following officers: Lorenzo Blackstone, president; John Dunham, treasurer. It moved to new bank building on Shetucket street in pril 1864, where it remained until the Shannon building fire February 9, 1909. It occupied a part of the Norwich Savings Society banking room for a few days through the courtesy of the officers of that society, and then took temporary quarters in the Geer building on Broadway.

In November 1911, it moved into its present fine quarters which have won praise from scores of people from all over the country.

This bank has the distinction of having one of the best balanced financial investments in the state. In the last three years, it has gained in deposits $1,041,590.25. Surplus $200,000.

Through its loan department, many new homes have been built and improvements in real estate have been made in Norwich. It now has over $5,000,000 invested in real estate loans—being an increase of $1,680,000 since 1920.

During the great war, this bank played a very important part through the sale of U. S. Liberty bonds. At this time 7,835 individual subscriptions for bonds were received, and bonds subscribed for amounting to $1,363,550. Many persons were enabled to buy bonds through the easy installment system which The Chelsea used, who otherwise would have been unable to do so.

During the past year a most modern safe deposit department has been installed providing absolute protection for all kinds of valuable property. The vaule and safe equipment are the finest that can be procured and equal in strength to any in the United States.

The Chelsea Savings Bank is primarily a bank of community service with special departments which fulfil the different needs of the people of this community. Through the Chelsea Thrift clubs which are operated in nearly all the mills in this vicinity, a special service is given the mill employes; a special mercantile reserve department is operated for the convenience of the mercantile houses of the city; 118 schools in eastern Connecticut have Chelsea school clubs. The bank also operates very successful Christmas and vacation clubs, and has recently installed a special Home Owners' club to aid property owners in meeting their taxes, coal and repair bills.

Mr. Hempstead's interesting and instructive talk was followed by remarks by many of the other guests.

Archibald Mitchell, of the board of directors, was unable to be present on account of illness and those in attendance sent him a message of regret and sympathy. Chief Howard L. Stanton was unavoidably absent on account of a fireman's convention in Chicago and a vote of regret was telegraphed to him. Directors Willis Austin and Arthur M. Brown had other engagements, and the twenty-three persons in attendance sent them regrets.

Interesting addresses on subjects with which they are connected were made by the directors and others actively connected with the bank.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

It would appear that the worst handicap that textile unionists in this territory are afflicted with is their leadership. Recently one who speaks for the textile unions that are being built up in this territory told an assemblage of about 100 gathered in the town hall that this paper would not print any labor news. The speaker that told those people that never in his life has asked for one line of publicity in this newspaper through the writer of this column, and he is very well aware of the fact. But he indulged in great indignation and waving of arms when he told his trusting followers that union labor items were taboo in The Bulletin and he succeeded in making the majority of his listeners believe it.

The gentleman, it is understood is making his headquarters in Wauregan. He has been about the territory for some time. Presumably the success of the union textile movement hereabouts is closely tied up with his own personal prosperity. It may seem like giving him a lot of free advertising to even mention—when only a few heard his 100 per cent. false statement relative to The Bulletin—that he doesn't have very much regard for the truth in his statements relative to this paper—but the fact is that such loose talk eventually results in a damaging way upon a host of innocent and trusting people who join union organizations and it may be as well to talk about the matter now as after the damage that he may create has been done.

The columns of this newspaper are open at all times to any and all legitimate news items—whether from labor or capital or any other source. No transient agitator who may happen into this section can change that fact—no matter what horse-power of voice or vocabulary he may possess nor how many times he swings his arms when he says it. The gentleman from Wauregan has yet to offer a line of publicity to this paper relative to his textile organization or any other subject.

A statement that may bear repetition is that The Bulletin is gotten out every day by strictly union printers members of the Typographical Union of America—and there is no more sterling union of organized labor extant. And there has been true for many years. Further, and incidentally, the writer of this column believes in the principal of unity and organization among laborers, in any craft or occupation.

If at times union labor tactics are criticised in this column it is because of the inadequacy of the leadership to which sincere unionists are entitled. Good and trusting people striving to better their condition in life are entitled to leadership that is intelligent and honest—and capable; leadership that does not have to indulge in unfair and scurrilous abuse; leadership that is competent to meet the representatives of capital on fair ground and there battle for the rights of the workers represented. There is every evidence that such leadership as the newly formed textile unions are getting out of Wauregan is not of that class. Organized textile workers have the best wishes of The Bulletin for their future well being, but they should see to it that their opportunities are not wasted upon leaders whose chief asset is talking as though they were running with their cut-outs wide open and burning soft coal for fuel.

Up to 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon no motorist or passenger in a motor car had been killed in this territory—which statement may seem flippant, but really is a live news item. However, it cannot be said that the jay walkers had shown any improvement. They were out roaming around their favorite sections of state highway, walking four or five abreast, without the protection of a twilight or a spare tire to save them from possible accidents in which the coroner might be called to look them over after they had been hauled out from beneath the machine of some unfortunate driver.

In view of the fact that motorists are subjected to all kinds of regulations and restrictions, it would seem only reasonable that some action should be taken to protect them from the dangers that are created for them by the people that stroll on state highways Sunday afternoons and at other times. No driver relishes injuring anyone, and unless are supposed to have some rights as well as other people. If memory does not fail, there is a statute that forbids certain forms of strolling on state highways. Perhaps the state police could help some in abating what has become a real nuisance.

Wilfred Tetreault, who died at the Backus hospital in Norwich, was buried Saturday in the Sacred Heart cemetery at Wauregan Saturday after services conducted by Rev. J. F. McCarthy at All Hallows church in Moosup, where the boy lived. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Sunday morning at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Anderson on Allen Hill the death of their son, Herbert Anderson, 30, occurred. He had been in poor health for a long time. Mr. Anderson had lived his life in this vicinity and his relatives an dthe many who were his friends will mourn his loss. In addition to his parents he is survived by several brothers and sisters.

Sunday afternoon, for the children, and Sunday evening for adult members of the parish, the religious play, Pilate's Daughter was presented in St. James' parish hall by a cast of members of the church. Capacity audiences were present to see the production and the delightful manner in which it was given was reflected in the generous applause accorded the players. The drama was staged under the auspices of the Children of Mary and the players were coached by Rev. J. E. Shelley, M. C. assistant at St. James' church.

The cast was as follows: Pontius Pilate's daughter, Wanda Nojadlo; Corina, Pontia's little sister, Marguerite Butler; Claudia, mother of Pontia, Hanora Killian; Agrippina, empress of Rome, Marguerite Mulligan; Flavia, noble Roman lady, May D. Louise Monahan; Flamentina, a vestal virgin, Madelyn Cronin; Pamphilia, a keeper of Mamertine prison, Sophie Vadas; Eunuch, slavekeeper, Frank McDonald; angels, Grace O'Connell, Lucy Peters; pages of empress Leonard Desnoyers, Raymond Dubuque.

POETRY

THE MESSAGE.

Dear heart, the skies are flowering fairly now,
And earth sends forth green messengers to meet
The long sun rays. The bloom is on the bough
And all the air is laden down with sweet.

Earth's voice is whispering o'er and o'er to you
The secret that I cannot tell you of.
The very skies are flowering into blue
Because they have the knowledge of my love.

Alas! the year's grim reaper gathers soon
And spring that was is summer ere we know.
The dawn's first beauty dies before the noon
And all bright things to gradual darkness grow.

So I would have these early messengers
Convey me heart's best song to you my dear.
Earth's dearest note at that old music stirs
Must all the short day's music mean.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Get Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing vegetable laxative.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you'll find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime.

Thousands take them every night just to keep right. Try them. 15c and 30c.

POETRY FOR THE WIDE-AWAKES

May Day

I wish that Time would hurry back
And find a Boy I knew,
And tell him there's a little thing
I want to have him do.

I wish he'd don his stubby shoes
And hunt around the wood
For lavender anemones
And gather all he could.

I wish his boyish hands would make,
In eager, clumsy haste,
A basket that was fashioned out
Of cardboard stuck with paste.

He hung it once upon my door,
And rang the bell, and ran,
With all the lover-symptoms that
Were ever known to man.

It wasn't such a lovely gift;
It didn't breathe of Art;
But, oh! it held a sentiment
That thrilled his Lady's heart.

And when I opened up my door
His flowers seemed to be
A million-dollar present from
A Fruity Prince—to Me.

I wish that Time would hurry back
And find that Boy and say
I want another basket of Anemones—today.

The Rainbow Maker

Mumbly he plodded in dingy attire,
Along the road with its dust and mire,
Dumb with the dazed dumbness of work,
Without ambition, save never to shirk;
Without reflection, joy or regret,
Hopeless, mannerless, stolid, and yet
A maker of rainbows.

Dragging the heavy coils of hose
Over the turf, past lily and rose,
He braced the nozzle, pointing aloft,
Then at his bidding a flower of soft,
White spray unfolded petals bright,
Opening its heart to the morning light
Over it hung suspended, gleaming,
A magical arch of glory gleaming,
The perfect rainbow!

The laborer dully mopped his brow,
Stretched his lethargic limbs, and now
Reclined in the friendly shade, new headed
The miracle he had wrought—the bead-
ed,
Palpitant, quivering crown of light;
But turning his head from the sun-beams bright
Yawned, nodded and slept

And while the maker slumbered, the bow
In radiant splendor glittered; and lo!
Each hurrying careworn, passerby
Pausing a moment to linger nigh,
As mutely craving a benison,
Receiving its blessing and hastened on,
Refreshed by hope.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO WIDE-AWAKES

A few days ago children in many of the schools throughout this section of the country observed what is known as Arbor Day, a day devoted to the birds and trees. Each spring the governor of the state issues a proclamation naming the date for Arbor Day and urging us to observe it with special programmes in our schools.

Here is what the dictionary says about Arbor Day: "A day late in April or early May appointed in most of the United States for planting trees and shrubs. It was first appointed in Nebraska in 1872 and is commonly a legal or school holiday."

One of the purposes of Arbor Day is to beautify our cities, streets and the grounds about our homes. Each year thousands and thousands of trees and shrubs are set out by grownups and school children and this helps to make the cities and villages attractive. Trees not only beautify but they provide welcome shade during the hot sultry summer days.

We all do not realize the great value of trees. Early in the history of our country there were so many trees, especially in the eastern part of the country that our ancestors were forced to cut them down in order to provide open spaces for their settlements. They had little idea of the great uses to which trees were to be put in later years when their tiny settlements had grown to large cities and towns so they made little or no effort to save the trees.

They cut them down right and left, used what they wanted for the building of their homes, public buildings, and for firewood and left the rest to decay and rot. This has gone on ever since the country was first settled and now our magnificent forests are fast disappearing. Unless something is done soon to check the cutting down of our forests or to replace the trees by planting each year the time will come when there will be few trees left.

Already concerns which use great quantities of lumber, furniture factories, contractors and builders, etc., are finding it difficult to secure timber for their needs. People throughout the country are awakening to the need of more and more rigid conservation of forests and for the past few years a movement has been under way to plant trees and to protect the young trees.

It takes but a few minutes to cut down a tree which has required many years to grow. In past years the lumbermen used to go to the forests and cut down every tree in sight, large or small. Now the young trees are passed over and only the large trees are cut down.

While Arbor Day comes but once a year it should not be forgotten as soon as it has passed by. Special programs in the schools are an excellent way of bringing the beauty and value and forests to the attention of the children.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE-AWAKES

How Our Forests Protect the Land

Dear Uncle Jed: When we have a rainstorm the water comes down with a great deal more force than you can make the water come from a sprinkler, and it tears away the soil, making brooks and deep gullies that hurt the fields for cultivation.

Where there are growths of trees, the roots hold the soil together, and the rain instead of tearing its way down in gullies, soaks in and runs off in underground streams.

There used to be an old saying and belief that forests attracted the rain. In proof of this it used to be pointed out that by digging down in the forest you would find water more plentiful than in the fields where no trees grew. In those times the people did not study the forests to find the real cause. The water was found because the ground was well filled from the latest rains, whereas the fields had nothing to hold the water back and so it ran off more rapidly.

In many of our most mountainous regions it would be almost impossible for towns to keep up if it were not for the forests that hold the soil firmly together and take in the rainwater. If the mountains were treeless the water would tear everything before it and the floods would soon destroy the houses.

Years ago an idea was gained of the value of forests as the protectors of the land. When tracts were to be cleared for settlement, the law said that only a certain portion of a forest could be cleared away. While this was mainly to guard against a wood famine yet the law makers knew, that there were other things just as well. The old time farmers knew well the value of the mold that was to be found deep in the forest and used it as fertilizer.

They knew, too, that the fields next to the woods were the most valuable, as they got the drainage from the forest and got food in the rooted vegetation and heavy soil that is needed for their crops.

Forests also protect the land by stopping violent winds from breaking off the weaker kinds of vegetation. They also temper the winds with the cooler air from deep in the woods, making work far more comfortable. Even in the hottest days, when there is no wind, the air in the forest cools the atmosphere.

Taught Dog Tricks.

Dear Uncle Jed: I received the book you sent me. I had the measles and was just getting well so I enjoyed it better. I have read it half through and find it very interesting. Thank you very much for it.

Now I want to tell you about my dog Gyp. A year ago last fall my father bought a little rabbit hound and we named him Gyp. When he was a little older I taught him some tricks. I taught him to kiss me and he licked my cheek. I told him to give me his paw and he did. We played tag with him and hide-and-go seek.

We sold him last fall. Sometimes he comes back and stays three or four days and then goes home.

Is Back at School.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am now back at school after being absent for over four months, on account of sickness. I was very sorry to be out of school so long, so I am going to work hard and try to catch up with my studies.

I am very glad that spring and warmer days are here. My sisters and I have found quite a few flowers already. I read all the Wide-Awake's letters and think them very nice.

My Hens.

Dear Uncle Jed: Would you like to hear about my six hens? My father made me a henhouse to keep them in. I feed them myself. They are very good layers. I often get five eggs and one day I got six. I have one setting and I hope to have some chickens later.

The Care of the Nails

Dear Uncle Jed: We should have our hands and nails clean, scrubbing them well in clean and soapy water. Then rinse and dry. When we are filing our nails we may file or cut the nails to the proper length. Then smooth off irregularities and shape the corners with a flexible steel file, holding the file loosely in the hand and filing from the sides toward the center. The more we cut the cuticle the faster it grows.

The root of the nail is one-twelfth of an inch below the surface. It is very sensitive and its only protection is a thin fold of skin called the cuticle, the part we see protects the end of the finger.

Steps to Become a Knight.

Dear Uncle Jed: Before becoming a knight the person must be a page, squire and soldier. The person is a page when 14 years old. Sometimes they serve a lady. There are some who wait on the people at court. When he is sixteen he is made squire. A knight breaks or loses the ones he squire is supposed in war to have extra weapons for the knight if the knight breaks or losses the ones he has. No one is supposed to hurt a squire for it would be a disgrace.

After that a squire becomes a soldier. When he has done a good deed he is knighted. When he is knighted he goes to a chapel to be blessed. Here he watches his armour and the people in the chapel. In the morning he is made a knight by the king. Sometimes knights have tournaments in which a person shows his skill. Some knights who do brave deeds are made dukes or earls.

LOUIS SITKIN, Age 11.

Cleanliness and Soap.

Dear Uncle Jed: Trying to keep clean we should take a bath every Saturday. People always bathed more or less in rivers, ponds, lakes or brooks. For soap some used oils or sand. Like the Arab who bathes in sand, rolls in it, rubs it over himself, they became clean by erasure.

As far as we know the first bathroom was in the city of Crossos, on the island of Crete, four thousand years ago.

The Greeks were first to use bathtubs, although the tubs they used were not tubs at all. They were bowls which rested upon pedestals three feet high. They were large enough to hold the water for a bath, but not large enough to hold the bather. The bather stood on a stone slab, dipped water from a bowl and poured it over his body.

The Roman bath was called therma, meaning heat, from which we get thermos—thermos bottles. A clean nation is a progressive nation, and a progressive nation is a ruling nation.

An Exciting Fishing Trip.

Dear Uncle Jed: About the second day in April I noticed that there were fish in our brook. I set up my fishpole hoping I would have good luck. When I got down to the brook I had my pole with hooks and a sinker. I looked down and saw four large suckers.

I began fishing and the smallest fish there was nearest me. I got it and while I was pulling it in the others went under the rocks. I did not any so I threw a stone in. Then I noticed two large fish come out. I got another one, making two. I then went home and had my breakfast and got ready for school. On my way to school I noticed some more suckers. As it was about a quarter to nine I had no time to fish.

When noon came I went fishing and got another sucker, making three. After school there was another sucker there. I tried but lost him so I went home empty-handed. Since then I got about 35 pounds of fish. I got one fish this morning weighing about three and one-half pounds. I put him in a water trough in our barnyard.

In the afternoon I went down and did not get any.

The First Paper Makers.

Dear Uncle Jed: A great many years ago it was discovered that the wasps and hornets were the first paper makers. Instinct taught them how to find the fiber and how to make it into nests. The paper they make is not like the paper on which this is written, but quite likely it is made out of the same kind of fiber.

They live in colonies which consist of the queen, drones and workers. In the early spring the queen, which is the only member of the colony that lives through the winter, selects a place for a nest, makes a few cells and places in them some eggs, and then builds a paper wall about them. Then more cells are made, more eggs laid, and as the young wasps become big enough they are put to work to increase the size of the nest. Before the summer is gone there will be three or four hundred in the colony.

The wasps have stings to defend themselves with, and if you get them angry, you will have to look out or they will sting. They do it so quickly, the only safe way is to let them alone. The large hornets are very useful in killing flies and other insects.

There are a great many kinds of wasps, as many as nine hundred the books say, but they are not all found in the United States.

The Fox's Trail.

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to the Wide-Awake Circle. On one of my hunting trips I discovered a fox trail which my dogs followed.

Soon the dogs began to bark savagely and we were following the trail. We looked up and saw the fox. I shot at him and killed him. We took him home and skinned him. I sent the fox to a company and got $25 for him. I hope the Wide-Awake Circle will like this story.

Annie Lovejoy.

Dear Uncle Jed: It was Wednesday and in the afternoon, Flossy Eastman came over with a new game, and while the little girls, Flossy, Susie and Prudy, were playing it, trying their best to keep Dotty Dimple's little fingers and long curls out of the way, in came Miss Annie Lovejoy.

This was a little neighbor, as the children sometimes declared, was always around. But it seemed to Annie that she had very few playmates. The little girls didn't play very long. They played housekeeping. Susie began to set the table and went into the nursery for some cake and cookies, which were kept in an old tin chest, on purpose for this play of the housekeeping.

Susie opened the cake chest and found nothing in it but a few dry cookies. The fruit cake was all gone. Flossy could not eat it because she didn't like raisins and currants. So it seemed that Annie Lovejoy had eaten it all.

A School Walk.

Dear Uncle Jed: One day our school decided to take a walk and look for spring flowers. We did not go far before we found some May-flowers. We came to a big brook. There wasn't any bridge across, only logs. We managed to get over.

After a while we came to a cave. We found an old shanty where some woodchoppers lived. There was no one in it then.

We found some blue violets.

We came to a brook where there were frogs and toads' eggs. We killed a big snake. After a while we started home. It took us quite a while to walk home. When we reached home we were very tired, but happy.

LEONA WOODWARD, Age 12.
Ashton.

The Ruhr Valley.

Dear Uncle Jed: I have never written to you before but I have read the Wide-Awake Circle many times. I am going to tell you about the Ruhr valley.

The Ruhr valley is in the western part of Germany. It is the valley of the Ruhr river, one of the small branches of the Rhine. Its area is 1,224 square miles, or about the size of Rhode Island.

The Ruhr valley has many iron mines. Many factories which manufacture steel and iron goods are located there. It has many large cities close together, as Essen, Duisburg, Oberhansen, Dortund. They compare in size with St. Paul, Minn., Flint, Mich., Albany and Rochester, N. Y. Richmond, Va., Grand Rapids, Mich., and Oakland, Calif. The largest of these cities is Essen.

At first Essen was a small village of 10,500 inhabitants but it has 300,000 inhabitants now. Essen's importance is largely due to a factory founded by Alfred Krupp.

In 1812 he started it. He employed 70 men in 1846. In 1873 he had 12,000 men. Now 56,000 of the 300,000 people of Essen are working in it.

During the war they made firearms for the German army. Since then they are not allowed to make munitions so they manufacture railroad tracks, locomotives, engines, skates and many other things of steel and iron.

VERA BUSHNELL, Age 13.

How Pens Are Made.

Dear Uncle Jed: Most people think that penmaking is very simple, but if they visit a pen factory they will get a different opinion.

The first thing is to cut the pen out of the steel sheets. These steel sheets come in the form of very fine pressed steel.

After the pens are cut they are taken to the room where the punch hole and side slits are cut, then it is stamped and heated and it becomes very brittle. It is then raised, ground and slit from the pierce hole to the point. Then it is carried to the inspection room where the bad pens are thrown.

How I Know Spring is Here.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you and the Wide-Awakes how I know that spring has arrived.

Winter with its snow and ice is gone and spring is here. The days are growing longer. The sun rises earlier and sets later than it did in the winter. The farmers are getting their fields ready to plant. The mothers are doing their spring housecleaning and planting their flowers.

Birds are coming back from their winter home in the south. Frogs are waking from their long winter sleep and telling the people it is spring once again.

Wild flowers are thrusting their blossoms up out of the ground.

Of all the seasons of the year, I like spring the best, because the whole world seems to awaken and take on new beauty after the cold winter.

Glad to See the Spring.

Dear Uncle Jed: I like winter just a little bit. I like it because we can take a jolly ride on our sleds and go skating; but when you see the ice leaving and the snow in little bits of spots, you can think of the happy spring. When you see the first robin redbreast or any spring or summer bird you can make up your mind you are going to see spring soon.

I think everybody and everything are far more pleased to see the spring as they can go out without being all bundled up.

The older folks can take a long vacation. I like spring, and I think everyone else does.

What I Saw in New Jersey.

Dear Uncle Jed: When I was in Paterson, N. J., last time I saw many sights, and I will tell you about some of them. The first day I was there I went to South End park and I liked the park very much. That night I went to see a moving picture. The next day I went to see a burlesque show by the name of The Youthful Follies which lasted three hours. That night I went to see another moving picture. The next day I took a ride to Newark, N. J., in a 'bus and I enjoyed the scenery very much. I passed about five lakes and some people were canoeing. I stayed in Newark for about one-half hour and then went back to the hotel in Paterson where my mother and I were staying. At the end of the week I went to Newark and stayed there for a week.

Why the Bear Has a Short Tail.

Dear Uncle Jed: Not many years ago all bears had long tails, and they were proud of their tails. But there was one that did not like his tail. He always talked about it. He said that when he climbed a tree it would entangle in the branches and he would have to sit for hours trying to get it free.

One day one of his friends thought of a plan to rid the bear of his tail. While the bear was walking in the woods one day he came upon a large stone pile. In the center of the stone pile was a tree. While he was walking over the stones he felt something heavy fall on his tail. He looked around for help, but could not see anyone. At last to his great relief he saw a fox walking up to him and, when he came within speaking distance, the bear asked the fox to help him push off the stone. But after many hours of hard labor they could not push off the stone. Finally the fox thought of a plan and said "I thought I heard one of your friends say that you would like to have a short tail and I think I can bite it off for you. Will you let me? It will save you a great deal of trouble." The bear said "Yes," so the fox bit off the bear's tail.

The bear went home contented and as happy as could be. When he reached home he found that a friend of his thought that this was a good plan, so he tried it. This is the reason bears have no tails.

Is in Fourth Grade.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about my school. We have to go about two and a half miles to school, and we ride in a large 'bus. There are about 29 children in our room and our teacher's name is Miss Berry. I am in the fourth grade. We have a supervisor. His name is Mr. Brownell. He lives in Hartford. We have a school nurse and her name is Miss Danahey. We are having fractions and stories and history. We have been studying about South America. I have missed only six days this year, or since September.

Likes to Visit Friends.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you what I like to do on Saturday. Saturday is the day I don't go to school. I like to visit my friends and have a good time.

I went to visit my friends one Saturday. We all went to church and heard the children speak pieces. After church was over we went to the store and bought some candy.

After we left the store we went into the house and played the Victrola, danced and sang a few songs and had other good times.

About Tapioca.

Dear Uncle Jed: Tapioca comes from Java. It comes from roots of a plant. The plant is from four to ten feet in height. None of the portion above the ground enters into the tapioca. The only use to which the stalk is put is to cut it up into pieces six to eight inches long. The pieces are used in planting a new crop. These cuttings are planted to a depth of two or three inches. The plant begins to harvest 12 to 18 months after planting.

The roots closely resemble a sweet potato, although much larger, some roots weighing as much as 20 to 30 pounds. These roots are pulled out by hand or dug by hoes, and immediately after they are dug they are sent to a factory where the tapioca is extracted. When these roots reach the factory they are reduced to a fine pulp, then passed into a sieve, then into three different kinds of sieves, then through a coarse screen. This is practically pure tapioca which falls into the reservoir.

The tapioca is bagged and sent on its long journey to the United States. After reaching the United States it is sealed in boxes and stored or sold to stores, and is then sold to families. Tapioca goes through all the states of the union.

Patrick Henry.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about Patrick Henry. As a boy Patrick Henry was considered awkward and idle. He failed as a storekeeper and as a farmer. For this reason the people began to have a poor opinion of him. At last came an opportunity to show his ability as an orator.

The King of England wanted to tax the American colonies. Henry denied the right of England to do this. He roused the people to oppose the mother country. By his eloquent speeches this great Virginian helped to start the American Revolution.

My Summer Vacation.

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to you. I want to tell you about my summer vacation. Last summer I went to visit my grandpa and grandma on the farm in South Windham with my two sisters. We gathered strawberries and my grandma would make a shortcake with them and we would eat it with cream.

Later we picked huckleberries. I picked enough for four quart jars and they tasted good this winter when my mother made them into pies. My grandma had lots of little turkeys and chickens and we liked to help take care of them. They were so gentle we could pick them up and hold them in our laps. We liked to be out doors with our uncle when he was haying. I would hide behind a pile of hay.

When the wagon was full of hay we would have a ride on it to the barn, which we thought was great fun. At night we would go down in the pasture and drive up the cows. They were very gentle. I had time to work and time to play. In the evening we went out for a drive in my uncle's automobile. My papa and mama came up to see us every Saturday.

Has Eighteen Chicks.

Dear Uncle Jed: I'm writing to you to let you know what my work is on Saturday. I feed the hens and the sheep and the geese and my small chicks. I have eighteen of them. I do all these things in the morning.

In the afternoon I go into the woods and chop down trees. At five o'clock I come home and get the sheep and shut them in, give them their grain, feed the hens and catch a rat if I can. Then I eat my supper and go to bed.

The Shepherd.

Dear Uncle Jed: One day a shepherd was tending his sheep. On the hillside were many flowers and wild beasts. When he heard his dogs bark he was startled. He sprang to his feet and saw the knight. AGITATOR LARKIN SPEAKS IN DUBLIN

Dublin, May 13 (By the A. P.)—Addressing a huge open air demonstration in O'Connell street, held in honor of James Connolly, the labor leader executed in 1916, James Larkin, Irish agitator who recently was deported from the United States, today dealt with the demand for peace. Larkin, who spoke bare-headed in a heavy rainfall, challenged the government to put up their best man in the constituency in Dublin, saying he would back him on the peace issue. He also demanded the release of Connolly's daughter Nora, who is still being held in prison.
